USEFUL GOWNS.

Smart But Plain Effects In Serviceable Materials.

Simple little gowns of serge, wool moire and other useful and smart materials will be much used this winter instead of the shirt waists so much in vogue. These will be made quite plainly, depending on the excellence of their fit for style. The cheviot gowns are trimmed with braid and irregular applications of panne velvet.

A great deal of hairy goods will be used for these utility gowns, and among them all the tints of gray, black and even pure white will predominate. The white will be of camel's hair trimmed with heavy appliques and can be worn on quite dressy occasions. The darker shades of gray are trimmed with black and white passementerie.

Strapped effects are all the vogue, and these are seen equally on waists and skirts. The strappings are often of the same goods stitched with contrasting silk.

An attractive gown of white serge is here shown. The waist has the cape effect so fashionable at present. The sleeves are laid in folds and held down by strappings of deep red velvet. The loose front is of all over white lace. The skirt is cut with a simple flounce. The hat is of white felt, trimmed with red wings and a facing of red velvet.

WHAT WOMEN ARE WEARING

The New Fall Hats—Smart Patent Leather Shoes.

The fall everyday millinery is extremely simple, but the sailor hat is extinct and more graceful shapes have taken its place. One of the most popular is a turban with a shallow back which is drawn in once or twice. The front is usually trimmed with choux of ribbon or silk cut on the bias, but velvet is very smart or large rosettes of crepe de chine. Large felt shapes with the fronts laden with flowers or foliage still remain popular for dressy wear. Boat shapes with the back flat and finished with a wide bow of velvet or ribbon are also considered smart, and all hats are worn excessively forward and quite close and flat in the back.

Patent leather shoes will be worn this winter more than ever, for nothing looks so neat or gives the foot such a well shod appearance.

Plain tailor mades of gray cloth have a decidedly smart appearance and are almost universally becoming.

The illustration shows a very smart plain tailor made, the material of which is pale gray cloth.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"I forget," said I; "but you forget that I do not know your's."

The girl's face flushed.

"No," she said, "you do not. Well then, Jo—Josephine Dacres. I ought to have told you before. But I'm a woman. This is a man—among lone women—in the room next to this."

"He's a harmless newspaper man," said I.

"And I'm a helpless woman."

I glanced at the dressing case. "J. A. D.," said I. "What does the 'A' stand for?"

"I can't see that that makes any difference."

"No, it makes no difference at all, only I can't see why——"

"Why I shouldn't tell you my whole name? Well, I don't suppose there is any reason exactly. It's Amaranthe."

"Amaranthe?" I exclaimed.—"Amaranthe?"

"Yes, why not?"

"Nothing," said I. "I've heard the name before, that's all. It's a singular name, one you do not often hear."

"Yes," said she, "an odd name. I don't think that I ever knew another person who was named 'Amaranthe.'" She put her hand to her head with a weary gesture. "I declare I get so tired sometimes that I almost forget who I am. Yes, I am Josephine Amaranthe Dacres. I ought to have told you when I first came, I suppose. Well, good-by, I am going." She picked up the dress-suit case from the floor.

"Going! Going where?" said I, aghast, partly because I hated to lose my boarder, and partly because the money paid in advance had part of it been sent to Tom, and part of it by our old factotum, Baldy Towner, to the store for flour, potatoes, sugar and butter, coffee, tea and such like necessities. Our credit was not particularly good in those days.

"Don't go," I said. "Don't, don't! I don't believe he'll bother you at all. It is likely that you will never see him. He hated the idea of your being here as much as you hate the idea of his being here. He wants quirt too."

"It's an awfully comfortable bed," said the girl, with a succession of yawns. "Well, if you promise me he won't have men in there, drinking and carousing, I'll stay my week out anyway. I wish I had some slippers. I must send for my—no, I won't. I won't send for anything until I've seen that man and found out how he's going to behave. When can I see him without his seeing me?"

"He said he'd come out to-morrow morning," said I. "He's very inoffensive, I'm certain. All he wants is peace and quiet, and I'm sure if you both want it, you're sure to get it." Just here there was a thumping on the floor overhead from Aunt Jane Mary's cane. My boarder jumped and looked over her shoulder.

"What is that?" she gasped.

"Only my invalid aunt. She thumps for me in that way."

"Well, don't let her do it again," she said sharply. "Tell her, please, my nerves won't stand it."

"She was very anxious to know," said I, "whom you had nursed last."

"Whom I had nursed?"

"Yes, the dead man, don't you know? She'll ask me again as soon as I go up."

"The dead man?" she repeated, looking at me nervously.

"Why, the man you told me you came from, through the mud——"

"I never told you anything of the —oh yes! I know now, what you mean. The man who was taken suddenly. Yes. Oh, no, he had nothing contagious—nothing catching, I assure you. He just died, tell your poor aunt, from want of breath, —nothing else. Tell your aunt so, but tell her also, please, that I cannot stand sudden noises. I have been worn out with my profession, and no one needs rest more than I do."

She went to the window giving on the side piazza and opened it, and stood there leaning out and drinking in the fresh April air.

"Shall I close the door?" I asked. There was no answer. I approached her softly and laid my hand on her shoulder. "Shall I?"

"How dare you?" She turned furiously, shaking all over. Her face and lips were colorless. "How dare you, or—or at least, you made me start. Don't do that again. I am very, very nervous. Can't you see how nervous I am?—on the very verge of nervous prostration. We must have an understanding." Here Aunt Jane Mary thumped again. "Run! run quickly and tell her to stop it. At once, do you hear?"

"You little know my Aunt Jane Mary," began I.

"And I hope I shall know her less," said she. "There is just this much about it. Even if the man does not prove disagreeable when I see him, I shall not remain a moment if that racket overhead is to continue. Tell her so, if you please." And I ran up the stairs wondering what I should do about the five-dollar bill which Baldy Towner was probably changing at that moment over the counter of the country store, not to mention the other five which was in his pocket in the letter on the way to my dear boy Tom.

CHAPTER II.

I gave the young woman her early dinner, and then left her to rest for the afternoon. I had little time to spare for strangers, and so long as I gave her what I had bargained to give, I felt that I could not be expected to do more. When Baldy Towner returned from the store, I set him to work cleaning the shoes that I had brought out from the lower front. He was not over-pleasant about it but I saw that there might be much of it to do, so I was firm, in the very first instance. I said:

"Baldy Towner, you need not look so unpleasant. Those are the shoes of my boarder who came to-day. She evidently roams about the country a good deal, and doubtless her boots will often be muddy, perhaps worse than they are to-day. They must be cleaned, and——"

"Why sh'd I do it?" returned Baldy Towner crossly.

I might have returned, "And why should I?" but I said, "Who else is there to do it?—Miss Jane Mary?"

The humor of the second part of my sentence seemed to strike Baldy Towner as a huge joke. He really laughed for the third time that year.

I did not smile, however, I put on my most severe expression. "I have enough to do," said I, "without cleaning shoes. I am sure the Judge never anticipa——"

"I don't spose he did," said Baldy Towner. "Then why didn't the Jedge leave ye more wealthy off?"

"That's enough, Baldwin Towner," said I. "I'm tired, and worried, and ——"

"So be I. But I'll clean them shoes, if ye say so, Miss Brathwaite."

"Thank you, Baldy Towner," said I, and fled incontinently, for fear that he might change his mind.

I gave the young woman her tea in the dining-room across the hall. She seemed very well pleased with the young chicken and the nice rhubarb sauce, the rhubarb for which I had cut from the kitchen garden. I was low in my mind about that young chicken, but I had forgotten meat for tea when I sent Baldy Towner away so hurriedly, and that chicken had to be sacrificed. Well, I had sacrificed more in my life than one little pullet, and probably I should be called upon to make much greater sacrifices.

My guest was retiring early. I heard her bolt her door by half after eight o'clock, and I, weary with my day's work, went upstairs to my room over the parlor. Aunt Jane Mary rang her bell just as I had closed my door—her room was across the hall from mine—and I went to her, though I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after I had attended to her wants, which took nearly an hour and a half—giving electricity is tiresome work—I went back to my room. I put out my light and lay down, but I could not sleep. The moonlight streamed full in my face. I hid my eyes in the pillow; I pulled the sheet up over my nose. There was no use trying; I must get up, tired as I was, and close the blinds. I raised the window very softly so as not to awake Aunt Jane Mary. I stretched out my hand for the hasp of the blind, when I thought that I heard the sound of voices.

Warm Enough There.

"Not much in this life," complained the chronic kicker, "not much for me. Everybody else I know seems to get along, but I'm left out in the cold."

"Well, that won't happen to you in the life to come," remarked the sly Mr. Peppery.—Philadelphia Press.

Couldn't Remember His Name.

A dealer about to write a receipt for a purchaser did not like to admit that he could not remember the name of so good a customer and resorted to the expedient of asking.

"How do you spell your name?"

From a Warm Climate.

"Is there any message from my poor husband?" asked the widow of the medium.

"There is," replied the medium, "and it's hot stuff, too!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Paradox.

Nan—I think he's horrid looking.

"Oh, but bulldogs aren't lovely unless they're horrid looking."—Detroit Free Press.

A Chemical Lifeboat.

A new lifeboat from Scotland is inflated automatically on being plunged into the water. A perforated metal case holds materials for generating gas, together with a spiral spring held under tension by a strip of paper; and as the paper becomes wet it tears, releasing the spring, and this causes the mixing of the chemicals and the beginning of the gas-making.

Eye Strain Causes Disease.

Simple eye strain is at the root of many of the ills of nervous patients, is the opinion of Dr. George S. Hill. The brightness of California's sunshine sends many visitors to the local oculists, who, in relieving the eyes, relieve also the stomach trouble, headache, insomnia, depression, spinal exhaustion and even tuberculosis for which the long health trips are taken.

SPORTING NEWS

ON THE DIAMOND.

In giving the summary of the Plainfield-Fourth Precint game, Thursday an oversight omitted the fact that Patrolman Maurice Higgins made a two base hit. He drove a beautiful grounder which netted him two bases and would have landed on third if he had been coached properly.

The Daily Press was in error, yesterday, in stating that the postponed game between the Police and Firemen would be played on Wednesday. It will take place Monday afternoon as has already been announced. On Thursday next the team will go to Elizabeth to play a return game with the Muncipal team.

GOLF.

Frank O. Reinhart is playing a steady winning game of golf in the Westbrook Golf Club tournament and thus far has succeeded in defeating every opponent. On Thursday morning he defeated J. R. Hyde, Bay Shore, by 6 up and 5 to play, in the first round for the W. Bayard Cutting cup, and in the afternoon he defeated Travers, a boy from the Nassau County Club, by 1 up. Yesterday in the semi-final play for the W. Bayard Cutting cup, Reinhart defeated E. L. Kellogg, by 2 up and 1 to play. The finals will be played today.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

There will be no trotting and pacing events at the Plainfield Driving Park this afternoon as was previously announced. Owing to the fact that so many of the horses expected to take part in those races have promised to go elsewhere, it has been decided to postpone the matinee races until Saturday afternoon, September 20, a week from today.

—Peaches—quality the best, price low; special sale this afternoon and evening at Neuman Brothers.

—Miss May Vincent Whitney will resume her classes in piano instruction Monday at her studio in the Babcock annex.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. RAN DOWN WRONG CROWD

NEWARK TRUCKMEN FOUND HIMSELF IN HANDS OF POLICE.

Started to Fight When Stopped, and He Was Subsequently Fined $10.

While waiting for a trolley car to convey them to the New Jersey Central station, a group of the Plainfielders who had been participating in the Newark-Plainfield police banquet after the baseball game, Wednesday evening, a little excitement marred their pleasure which resulted in the arrest of two truck drivers who imperilled their lives.

The group, numbering twenty in all, consisting of Plainfielders and Fourth Precinct patrolmen in civilian's clothing, had just emerged from Birkenhauer & Baumann's Hotel and were standing near the car tracks conversing. A heavy truck was rattling down the street toward them between the rails and when it reached the crowd, the driver swerved the horses directly into it. All jumped just in time and several who ran across the car tracks barely escaped being hit by a car. Roundsman McGeehan and several others sprang at the horses' bridles and ordered the occupants of the wagon, two in number, to stop. Instead, one seized a club and attempted to strike the policeman but was almost immediately overpowered and with his companion was taken to the Fourth Precinct station. There the belligerent fellow, who had been driving, was fined $10 and his friend was released with a suspended sentence.

School Glee Club.

The outlook is very bright for the organization of a glee club in the North Plainfield High School this winter. The club, if perfected, will be under the direction of Miss Whalen, the music teacher.

ASSESSOR FRENCH IS READY WITH REPLY

new system has been put in force and the assessment map prepared and carefully gone over, there is not one foot of property, to my knowledge, that is not justly taxed. The loss in valuation during the year 1900 was not because there was less real estate in the borough, but entirely because of the fact that large sums were sworn off by tax-payers from real estate for notes which they owed to national banks, and were legally deducted and fully explained at that time. This was the principal reason for changing the State law so that notes in banks could not be deducted from real estate, but only from personal property.

This year, as explained in my former letter, the deductions for debts and other legal exemptions amounted to $30,545, more than last year, and this almost entirely offsets the natural increase in the taxable valuation. If Mr. Honeyman, or any other borough citizen, can point out to me where I am in error, after coming to my office and fully investigating the matter, I will be more than glad to correct such error, if there be any, but I have gone over the figures with the utmost care realizing that this is a matter of most vital public concern and I see no possible way to reduce the rate a fraction of a cent.

What Mr. Honeyman says in reference to my office being the headquarters of the annexationists is not true as there has never been a meeting of the annexationists in my office.

The statements of Mr. Honeyman in reference to the borough tax rate are as erroneous, as the statement that if the borough were transferred to Union that it would not get the benefit of the reduced rate of eleven points in that county as it would also get the benefit of the reduced valuation which would make a difference of sixteen points in the borough taxpayer's assessment, which would mean a saving of $3,840.

This is a matter that cannot be disputed by those familiar with questions of taxation. This question is purely a question of business and not of sentiment, and as the borough has always paid Somerset county more than it has received in benefits and if annexation is voted for we intend to pay Somerset county her full share of indebtedness, I see no reason why we should not transfer ourselves to an up-to-date and more prosperous county.

To the best of my ability I have endeavored to serve the citizens of the borough in a straightforward and honest manner, distributing the burden of taxation as fairly as possible and I naturally dislike being held up for criticism by a man who does so little towards bearing this burden and who does not own real estate in the borough.

Yours truly,
Elston M. French,
Assessor.

CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATES.

Elected at Democratic Primaries Held in Borough Last Night.

The Democratic primaries of the borough of North Plainfield were held in the Somerset street High School last evening at 8 o'clock to elect delegates to the Fourth District Congressional convention.

Only a small crowd was present when County Committeeman Linbarger called the meeting to order.

Levi C. Kline was made chairman and Charles G. Wood secretary. The following were made delegates by acclamation: First district, W. J. Conroy and Charles G. Wood; second district, Levi C. Kline and Walter C. Linbarger; from the township, Francis Bartells. The meeting was adjourned at 8:15 after being in session scarcely fifteen minutes.

ON THE QUIET.

Announcement of Marriage Came As a Complete Surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ellis, of Arlington avenue, gave a reception to fifty friends, last evening, at which announcement was made of the marriage of Daniel Guinee, of West Third street, to Miss Susie Fitszimmons, of Newark.

The ceremony took place in the rectory of St. Mary's church and was performed by Rev. Fr. Farley, four weeks ago. Thomas O'Keefe, of this city and Miss Mary Fitszimmons attended the young couple. At present Mr. and Mrs. Guinee are living with friends but will shortly go to housekeeping. The groom is in the employe of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company.

Charged With Getting Cash.

On complaint of Joseph T. Ward, of New Brunswick, David Antonie, a colored individual known locally as the "speaker of seven languages," was arrested by Chief Kiely, this noon, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. Antonio has been employed by a building loan and insurance agency. He will be taken to New Brunswick for a hearing.

Voters, Beware!!

The Union Association of North Plainfield appeals to the intelligence and justice of this community to witness these facts:

Nearly five months ago this association held a public meeting and presented in black and white facts and figures taken from official records at Trenton and elsewhere. Through the president of the association our opponents were invited to a joint public discussion of this important matter. Twice did we urge them to come out in the open and reason together. If the friends of annexation had made misstatements, or if the official figures were wrong, let it be so proved! But no, these false prophets and calamity howlers preferred darkness to the light of day, refusing to meet us and not until last night, Three Days Before Election, do we find them on the platform and in print crying "false" and flourishing in the honest faces of thinking people a cobweb of figures stilted by a tissue of misrepresentations and shielded by the strong arm of an alien attorney.

Every statement and each figure given in the printed matter issued by this association is official and absolutely correct. Our authorities are the official records and they are open books. Beware of that man who would so juggle words and figures at the ninth hour as to lead you to a "most lame and impotent conclusion!"

Just such methods and men as these, fellow citizens, are responsible for the present high tax rate. Follow them and you are chasing rainbows.

"DON'T BE FOOLED!"

Final Appeal of Union Association to the Voters of North Plainfield.

TAX RATE QUESTION.

Points Out the Significance of the Difference in the Tax Rates in Union and Somerset Counties—Appeals to the Reason and Common Sense of Borough Voters.

Don't be fooled, borough voters, by all this talk about sewer systems, court houses, the Martin Act, and don't let anybody obscure your eyes by cobwebs of figures spun on the eve of election. The real serious question and the true basis of this whole movement is your TAX RATE.

LOOK AT YOUR TAX RATE! Here we are right alongside of a county with A TAX RATE eleven points lower than ours! A county that is built up and alive and with a TAX RATE that has GONE DOWN from 53 in 1895 to 48 in 1902! What does this mean? A county tax going down while hundreds of thousands of dollars are being spent for good roads and other improvements! It means nothing else but good and SAFE BUSINESS METHODS! Look at your Somerset tax! It has GONE UP from 42 in 1895 to 59 in 1902!

And now just look at your borough rate! UP SIXTEEN POINTS in one year! It is now eight points above Plainfield's and where will it land? What about your new school houses, your engine building, sewers, and other needed improvements! Is not this exactly what we predicted in "THIRTY REASONS" and didn't we publish all this in the early spring?

Don't be fooled by those who fear to come out and meet us face to face! We invited them to a public discussion. We challenged them to meet us in the open and why did they decline? It is because they knew that the facts, figures and the logic of this situation were all with us. They knew that they must fool you by keeping you in ignorance and by filling you with charges of political schemes, false figures and clever insinuations. They have hired Saengerbund Hall for tonight, and why? Do you think they intend to hold another meeting? No, they only wanted to prevent others from using it!

Don't be fooled by "false alarm" charges at this late hour! We are sawing wood not ringing bells! We are working for the peace, prosperity and happiness of our homes and are deeply in earnest about this matter. Don't put your hands to your eyes, fellow citizens, but feel your pockets.

WAIT TILL YOU GET YOUR TAX BILL!!! The Union Association, of North Plainfield.

PROPERTY BOOM.

Last Few Weeks Has Seen One in Vicinity of Woodland Park.

During the past few weeks there has been a decided boom in property interests in the vicinity of Woodland Park and the prospects are that it will continue. Edward V. H. Voorhees, of the firm of Voorhees & Van Zandt, has sold his handsome house on Evergreen avenue, to L. W. Serrell, of West Seventh street. The purchase price, it is said, was $8,500. Possession is to be taken October 1.

J. D. Loizeaux has plans out for a dwelling house to be erected on Hillside avenue, between Evergreen and Martine avenues, to cost $8,000, and Mrs. Pond has also decided to build a house on Evergreen avenue on the property adjoining that of Mr. Otterson. This will be built for another party who intends to purchase the house.

CONCLUDING HOP.

Final Dance Held at the Hotel Netherwood Saturday Night.

The concluding hop of the season at the Hotel Netherwood took place Saturday evening. It was well attended by the younger set which has helped to enliven matters at the hostelry all summer.

Last evening the concluding concert was given by the orchestra. An additional feature was a 'cello solo given by Jarvis Conover. There will be no more music at the hotel for the remainder of the season which concludes October 15.

PLANNING VAUDEVILLE HOUSE

ADAM DORBER AND WILLIAM SCHORB WILL OPEN OLD WASHINGTON HALL.

It Will be Known as the Central Theatre and is Expected to Open September 29.

Adam Dorber and William Schorb, of this city, who recently acquired Washington Hall by lease, commenced Saturday extensive alterations to interior and exterior that will completely transform it. When finished the place will be renamed the Central Theatre and will be the home of vaudeville, farce comedies and repertoire companies.

Permission has been granted by the city authorities to raise the floor commencing from the front entrance. Starting at a height of three feet it will descend gradually to within a short distance of the stage. On each side boxes will be erected which will afterward be fitted up in a proper manner. The new sloping floor will be provided with modern theatrical seats, similar in style to those with which Music Hall was equipped.

Proprietor Dorber and Manager Schorb announce the season to begin September 29, the initial performance to consist of vaudeville numbers selected from the Keith the Proctor programmes. Bookings have been made for nearly the entire season and the list includes several standard repertoire companies, and well known road companies.

NO GAME SATURDAY.

First Contest Between Westfield and Plainfield to Take Place in This City.

Disappointment in a keen form was felt by hundreds of local fans who contemplated going to Westfield, Saturday, to see the proposed game between the crack team of that place and the Plainfield Consolidated nine. The steady downpour of rain which began at noon spoiled all chances of the contest being held and the first of the series will now take place in this city, Saturday.

There will be no change in the original plans for the games as the series will be played, only a little later in the season. The Westfield's schedule is so arranged that the postponed game will have to be held over. In the meantime the Consolidated members will devote all spare time to practice.

HOME FROM CAMP.

Hope Y. M. A. Members Already Planning for Next Season's Trip.

Fourteen members of the Hope Y. M. A. slept beneath the roofs of their own homes, Saturday night, for the first time in ten days. They were the young men who composed the camping party which has been spending that length of time on the shores of Lake Hopatcong and who arrived home on the 6:23 train Saturday evening. All were enjoying good health and spirits and many expressed regret at parting with their nomadic life to once again assume conventional ways.

The experiment has proved so successful that the promoters of the camp contemplate a similar expedition next year on a larger scale. It is not at all improbable that a lodge will be built on the wildest part of the lake shore line where different parties may spend a week at a time.

K. of P.s Becoming Acquainted.

At its regular meeting, Friday evening, Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., decided to pay a fraternal visit to Olive Branch Lodge, of Elizabeth, Wednesday evening, September 24. Two special trolley cars will convey the members to the county seat. Friday evening, Perseverance Lodge will be visited by Volunteer Lodge, of Elizabeth.

Have Left the Home.

Miss Sara Curry and her New York mothers left for home, Saturday, after completing the work of clearing up at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home. They are very grateful to the people of Plainfield for the generous treatment and assistance during the past season.

SITUATION ON ELECTION EVE

What Has Happened in Last Days of the Campaign in Borough for Annexation.

LIKELY TO BE CARRIED.

Such is the Belief of Those Who Are in a Position to Judge—Something of the Facts Bearing on the Case—A Great Campaign of Education—Situation Summed Up.

North Plainfield's citizenship will decree at the polls tomorrow whether it desires to take advantage of the opportunity presented by Legislative enactment. The proposition—change of territorial boundaries—is purely a business matter. After a campaign lasting half a year the eve of election has been reached and one way or the other a decision will be made by the borough's freeholders before tomorrow night.

The question which is before the voter is this: Will it be more advantageous to the taxpayer of North Plainfield to reside in Union rather than in Somerset county? Many reasons have been advanced for and against the change and now the voter has the right to decide upon the merits of the arguments presented. These reasons, especially those favorable to the change, have been presented in the press, on the platform and in pamphlet form. Twice have the advocates of the contemplated change asked those opposed to debate the question and twice have they been met with refusal. A campaign of education has been industriously waged for at the outset few understood the issue. Those in a position to judge declare today that the voters will cast aside sentiment and cast their ballots in favor of annexation.

Great changes have been wrought in public opinion during the past two weeks. Many who were unfavorably impressed then have had their eyes opened by the extraordinary advance made in the borough tax rate—sixteen points. This rate is eight points higher than in this city, yet the borough is today without a single improvement except good roads. Heretofore the borough rate has been lower than that of the city, but needed improvements in its schools together with an increased appropriation for the health departemnt has caused a rise. Neither of these departments are controlled by those in favor of annexation, but are rather supervised by avowed anti-annexationists.

Because Assessor Elston M. French believes in annexation as most business men do a scurrilous attack was made on him, but through these columns Saturday he invited all to inspect his books and see why taxable values have not advanced more than $1,000 during the last year. The books of the assessor were examined by a councilmanic committee, two of whose members were anti-annexationists, and were declared to be correct. A vain effort was made by the "antis" on the very eve of the election to disprove that the total increase was but $1,000. The attempt fell flat.

Another factor which has contributed to change public opinion has been the fact that in order to improve Somerset county roads it will be necessary to bond the county for $500,000, an awful burden! $500,000 to attempt to bring the county up to the standard now enjoyed by Union. The claim is made that the Somerset county Board of Chosen Freeholders does not intend to bring about this improvement right away. In answer to this Former Mayor Saunders said Saturday that such determination would not be surprising. That board moves slowly and in the race of progressive life, Somerset has long been left in the rear.

At the "antis" meeting Friday night, one of the speakers declared that Union county has planned the erection of a $500,000 court house. In reply to this a prominent annexationist has said: "A large expenditure by a corporation is not extravagance when not in excess of earning capacity, especially when the outlay redounds to the corporation's improvement. Union county is wealthy, one of the richest that may be found. What is $500,000 to it as compared to a fifth of that sum to Somerset? Somerset sorely needs a new court house too, but harken to its freeholders! No court house is contemplated for at

SEWER BEDS ARE A SUCCESS

Councilman R. I. Tolles Gives Actual Facts to Disprove "Antis" False Statements.

THEY WERE MISLEADING

As Chairman of the Committee on Streets and Sewers He Contradicts the "Antis" Arguments in Which They Attempted to Prove That Sewer Beds Were Not Successful.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 15, 1902.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—In the struggle between the two North Plainfield parties over the annexation question, Plainfield is somewhat in the position of a neutral country lying between two belligerent ones, suffering, to some extent, from both. This we have tried to bear with equanimity, even when uncomplimentary remarks have been expressed at the expense of the city, but in recent publications the writers have so far exceeded the reasonable privilege of debate, that as the chairman of the committee on streets and sewers, I feel called upon to protest.

The quotations from the report of the State Board of Sewerage Commissioners, taken without the context, and the reasoning therefrom, are entirely misleading and inexcusable. The report was considered by us as very satisfactory, and the remark quoted by our critic means, in plain English, that, while the degree of purification attained would not be sufficient in case the brook were used for a city or town water supply, yet it is quite sufficient for the brook under the conditions as they actually exist, and the report suggests that even greater purification will be attained with time and experience, which we find to be the case.

In thinking of bacteria, it is well to remember that there are many kinds of them, some of which are neccessary to our welfare, those referred to in the report being the characteristic bacteria of sewage, there is no evidence that a single disease germ has been found in the brook. In regulating the quality of milk, the local Health Board specifies the number of bacteria which must not be exceeded in the proper article; I suggest that our critic use some of his spare time in calculating the number of billions of bacteria he drinks in every glass of the best milk.

The statement as to smell is greatly exaggerated; there is necessarily always some odor where sewage is, but no one need be annoyed at our works unless they search for the smell; the effluent is practically colorless, free from odor, non-putrescible and satisfactory to the State commissioners and to our committee.

In regard to the chemical test referred to, I am informed that if sewage is so purified that it is suitable for drinking water, it would still contain sufficient chlorine to throw down a considerable precipitate if treated with nitrate ot silver, such a test would prove nothing against the efficiency of the works.

Would it not be better for us laymen to leave these things to the experts? Those of the State Commission have considered the chemical conditions and relatively few bacteria in the effluent discharged into Green brook, and have gone home without remonstrance.

Can the critics inform us how many bacteria to the cubic centimeter are washed into Green brook from our streets and fertilized farms and gardens every time it rains? This dirty water receives no treatment whatever.

The statement has been made that no explanation has been given why the gates are so arranged that septic sewage (which is nearly clear water in appearance) may be turned from the tanks directly to the brook. I am glad to supply the omission by stating that it is not for the purpose of being so used, but that the effluent may be turned to either set of contact beds as desired.

As to capacity, the plant is ample for present needs, and is so placed that additional units may be added, when desired, to treat four times the present flow of sewage; the contact beds are largely in excess of present needs.

One writer takes it for granted that the contact beds are formed of stones "as large as hen's eggs," simply because the top foot, used only as a roof,

TOWNSEND WON FINALS AT PARK

The Club Championship of the Park Golf Club Decided in the Rain Saturday.

EVENTS AT HILLSIDE.

Four Competitions Were Held at Hillside Despite the Rain and the Honors Were Well Distributed—At Park, Townsend Defeated Newhall 2 Up—Other Honors.

While Saturday afternoon was entirely too rainy for baseball, the golfiacs splashed thruogh mud and water and submitted to a drenching to enjoy their favorite sport. The number that cared to brave the elements at either course was limited. The chief event of the day was the playing of the final round for the club championship of the Park Golf Club in which Morgan T. Townsend defeated Roberts deS. Newhall 2 up. It was one of the hottest matches of the season, requiring the full eighteen holes to decide it. Townsend also won first honors for the President's cup. Honors at Hillside went to Arthur Wills, Howard deP. Wright, Miss Daisy Elsberg, Miss van Herwerden and W. L. Glenney.

PARK GOLF CLUB.

While it rained hard at intervals all Saturday afternoon, Morgan T. Townsend and Roberts deS. Newhall met for the finals of the club championship on the Park Golf Club course. After a very close match, Townsend won 2 up and received a handsome gold watch fob of special club design.

Despite the fact that the course was wet and slow, both players put up a strong game, particularly on the putting greens. After the third hole, Newhall took the lead thanks to Townsend's drive into the long grass. Townsend had trouble on the slippery teeing grounsd and kept topping his drives. His long game and accurate putting saved him. On the ninth, Newhall was two up when Townsend drove into the ditch. By the most brilliant play of the day, he played out and well over the second ditch. The unexpected unnerved Newhall and he sliced a cleek shot into the woods, losing the hole five and six. That brought the first round to a close with Newhall one up.

Townsend promptly squared things by winnings the tenth in better than bogey figures. The play was even until the fourth when Townsend ran down a long putt for a three and the hole. Townsend lost a chance on the sixteenth by missing an easy putt while Newhall gave a similar exhibition on the green at the next hole. The final hole was started with Townsend dormie one. Newhall drove into the ditch and lost a shot lifting out. For the first time in competition a four was scored for the last hole by Townsend. The bogey is five and a difficult one at that. Newhall missed a putt but it would have made no difference in the end as Townsend was already two to the good.

The score by holes was as follows:
Townsend, out, 3 3 7 6 5 5 5 4 5—43
Newhall, out, 5 3 6 5 5 6 5 3 6—44
Townsend, in, 3 3 8 3 5 5 6 5 4—42—43—85
Newhall, in, 4 3 8 4 5 5 6 5 7—47—44—91.

Townsend was stymied on the sixth hole of the first round and halved the hole at match play. In putting over again for medal play he made a five as is shown in the score above.

The match was refereed by S. St. John McCutchen and Charles B. Morse, both members of the golf committee. As they are the two leading competitors for the President's cup and were anxious not to lose the opportunity to play, they played along with the other couple besides officiating at the match. Morse managed to get third thereby slightly increasing his lead for the trophy. First and second honors were won by Townsend and Newhall respectively.

The afternoon's scores for the President's cup were:

	G	H	N
Morgan T. Townsend	85	1	84
Roberts deS. Newhall	91	5	86
Charles B. Morse	105	16	89
William A. Townsend	101	11	90
William R. Faber	111	18	93

NO CONVENTION CALLED.

Democrats Delayed Issuing Call For County Convention.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, September 15—A small attendance marked the meeting of the Union County Democratic committee in this city, Friday evening. In the absence of Chairman John L. Crowell, Vice Chairman Moody, of Cranford, presided. The selection of a date for holding the county convention was postponed until the next meeting, when it is hoped to have the Democratic nominee for Congress, DeWitt C. Flanagan, in attendance.

SOMERSET IN GREAT NEED

A. A. CLARK OFFERS TO ASSIST IN BUILDING NEW COURT HOUSE.

Makes Statement of Needs of That County—What It Will Have to Do.

The following statement was received by The Daily Press, this morning, from Hon. A. A. Clark, of Somerville:

"The improvements going on in Somerset county of a private character require action on the part of the Board of Freeholders in order to keep pace with the times. Although stated so at the anti-annexation meeting, Friday night, I did not recommend issuing bonds for $500,000 for stone roads. I did and do recommend bonding for such sum as may be necessary for building more stone roads, where the property will increase proportionately in value; also for new county buildings, indexing our records, things which must be done.

"Our court house is tumbling down; the clerk's and surrogate's offices are crowded to overflowing and are antiquated in character. A public-spirited citizen a few days ago, looking at the old court house, said, 'the old court house is a disgrace to the county and I will give $1,000 toward a new one.' This offer holds good today.

"The use of my name at the meeting the other evening was gratuitous because I spoke at the suggestion of some other members of the board and with no thought of influencing the North Plainfield question. Our county will raise a larger amount of money for the purpose indicated whether North Plainfield stays or goes and we will be obliged to issue bonds or double our taxes and the latter will not be done." "A. A. Clark."

IT IS TRUE.

W. L. Saunders Backs Up His Statement Contradicted by A. V. D. Honeyman.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Mr. Honeyman stated in his speech last Friday night, and has repeated in pamphlet that the figures given in "Thirty Reasons," which showed the relative sums of money received each year by Somerset and Union counties, "were not a fact." This statement is absolutely false. The figures are correct and are given in detail for each year, from 1891 to 1901, on page 7 of "Thirty Reasons," and were furnished by Thomas B. Usher, secretary of the State Board of Taxation at Trenton. Railroad taxes are collected and assessed by the State Board and the amounts remitted to the counties. The small sums, which Mr. Honeyman has given, are probably regular county collections from railroad property outside of and distinct from the legal railroad right of way. W. L. Saunders.

IN THE CITY COURT.

Several Offenders Occupy the Cadi's Attention at Today's Session.

Thomas Melcher and John Thompson, one from the East End and the other from the West End, were arraigned separately in the city court, this morning, each charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, preferred by their wives. The complainants failed to appear and both men were discharged with reprimands.

COLD FACTS ON ANNEXATION

Here Are Some Facts Which Every Citizen of the Borough Should Read.

THE REASONS WHY.

Why North Plainfield Should Go Into Union County—Uncontradictable Facts About the Tax Rates in the Two Counties and in the Borough and in the City.

In the midst of all this excitement about annexation there are certain cold facts which are on record and which it is well to bear in mind.

1. The Somerset county tax rate is now eleven points above that of Union.

2. The Somerset county tax rate has gone up from 42 in 1895 to 59 in 1902.

3. The Union county tax rate has gone down from 53 in 1895 to 48 in 1902.

4. Union county has taxable wealth in 1902 equal to $45,269,400, and this is increased at the rate of nearly two and one-half million dollars a year.

5. Somerset has taxable wealth of only $18,785,468, and this is increased at the rate of only $72,000 per year.

6. The debt of Union county in 1902 is less than one per cent. of its assets.

7. The debt of Union county was contracted to build up its road system which is now complete.

8. Somerset county is about three times as large as Union, yet it has less milage of stone roads.

9. Somerset, in order to complete its road system and bring it up to that of Union must spend three times as much money as Union has spent, which means the creation of a debt of nearly one million of dollars.

10. The people of North Plainfield have but little to do with Somerset, while they are almost daily in Union, and their practical business interests lie with Union rather than Somerset.

11. Union county's methods are business-like and up to date. The Freeholders are business men, in touch with conditions in this neighborhood and always willing, as shown by past experience, to build bridges and take care of property along the brook while the Somerset county Freeholders have obstructed almost every measure in the borough's interest.

12. North Plainfield has the highest tax rate of any town, borough or city in Somerset county.

13. As the borough is larger than any other town in Somerset county it pays out each year more county money than any other town and more than it gets back.

14. What difference does it make to the average citizen who is not an office holder, what county he is in? This being true it is plain that North Plainfield cannot be any worse off by being in Union but on the contrary it must be benefitted by the change.

15. Somerset will be fairly treated in that the bill provides that Union shall assume a just proportion of Somerset's debt.

16. A county line is only an imaginary one drawn by Legislatures and frequently changed to meet changing conditions of population. New Brunswick in 1850 did exactly what is proposed here, that is a piece of Somerset county was added to Middlesex because the population of New Brunswick had overrun the line.

17. The borough tax rate is 2.58, eight points higher than that of Plainfield, having risen sixteen points in the past year and fifty-two points since 1896.

18. Plainfield with a lower tax rate is paying for its sewers, a paid fire department, a complete police organization of nineteen men with good headquarters, and a library.

19. The taxable wealth of Plainfield increased last year $299,700, that of North Plainfield $1,170.

20. More than $30,000 of the borough's taxable wealth was taken off this year as deductions for debts. Nearly half of this amount comes from the tax bill of one of the most strenuous workers against annexation and with a single exception every borough tax payer who has thus taken advantage of the law is against annexation. The list of names may be had by applying to the tax assessor.

21. It costs a Plainfield tax payer only one dollar and a half each year on one thousand dollars worth of

WARREN'S BOYS TO BE AMONGST GUESTS

Plans Going Forward for the New Brunswick's Firemen's Parade to be Held Soon.

THE DATE IS OCTOBER 7.

WHAT COMPANIES ARE EXPECTED TO BE IN LINE.

Brunswick Firemen Are Busy Getting Ready for the Event—Big Banquet Will Follow the Parade—Other Details.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, September 15—There is an air of hustle and activity pervading the various fire engine houses these days. The city's protectors are all heartily entering into the plans to make this year's firemen's parade one of the most successful events of its kind ever held up to date.

Incidentally, of course, each company is cherishing an ambition, although not disclosing it to plebeian ears, of making their particular company the crack company of the display. To that end everything that will tend to a realization of their hopes is being done.

No better idea can be gained of the fire department than the parade as it will be presented on October 7, providing, of course, the weather is suitable.

The firemen will prove the most liberal of hosts on that day, and refreshments will be provided in abundance, while there will be one big banquet to add to the gaiety of nations.

The members of Phoenix Engine Company propose to execute a number of fancy drills. They train frequently on Dennis and Hiram streets and their marching is already accomplished with great precision. Bohn's Empire Band will furnish its music. The company will have its new engine and hose carriage in line, and Warren Engine Company, of North Plainfield, and McClelland Hose Company, of Perth Amboy, will be its guests.

Raritan Engine Company will march to the music of Liberty Band. It will have a dinner at Parochial Hall and will entertain many individual guests. Chief Croker, of the New York Fire Department, is expected as a guest of this company, together with Chief Banks and his guests from other cities.

Protection Engine Company will have out of town music and entertain some guests. Its new horses will be a feature of the parade.

Hibernia Engine Company will have Voss' Band, of Newark, and will have several unique features in the parade.

Liberty Hose Company will have a drum corps and will, as usual, entertain liberally. It expects to have its new truck from Trenton in the parade.

Hook and Ladder Company will have the Wilkes' Post Band, of Trenton, and will entertain 200 guests, including the city officials at a banquet at Shortridge's assembly room, after the parade. Its guests will include Protection Hook and Ladder Company, of Perth Amboy, and Independent Hook and Ladder Company, of Asbury Park.

Washington Engine Company will have Goodwill Band and will entertain the West Park Engine and Hose Company, of Asbury Park.

Neptune Engine Company will have Union Band to head them and will entertain many guests.

The day before the parade the excitement will be trebly increased. There will not be a bolt on the engines or hose carts that will not be polished until it shines, and no speck of dust will be allowed to remain if detected. It will be a general display of new uniforms, new horses, and new engines and in that respect the exhibit made will be the most notable in years.

Mrs. Hiram O. Hance, of the borough, who has been at Asbury Park for several weeks, has returned home.

George VanBoskerck, Thomas VanBoskerck and Marion S. Ackerman are expected home this week from a three weeks' hunting trip.

TAFT GIVEN A BANQUET.

Guest of Manila Chamber of Commerce—Death of Colonel Rafferty.

MANILA, Sept. 15. — The Chinese chamber of commerce of Manila gave a banquet to Governor Taft Saturday night. The governor was entertained in an oriental manner.

In the address of welcome made by the president of the chamber the advisability of admitting more Chinese to the Philippine Islands was suggested. In reply Governor Taft said the exclusion of Chinese was a recognition of their thrift and energy and that the Chinese therefore should consider themselves complimented by the measure. He did not discuss their possible admission to the islands.

Commissioner Luke E. Wright will not leave for home on the United States transport McClellan with General Chaffee, being prevented from so doing by work still to be completed. He expects to leave Manila Oct. 15 for San Francisco.

Brewster Cameron will probably be selected to go to Washington for the next session of congress in behalf of the commercial interests of the islands.

On account of the impoverishment of the people by war and cholera the United States Philippine commission has remitted the land tax in the province of Batangas, Luzon, for the year 1902.

Captain Bilo, a leader of ladrones in Bulacan province, Luzon, who was guilty of thirty murders and who had been an outlaw for years, was killed by the native constabulary last Friday. Bilo was surrounded, but refused to surrender. The constabulary then shot him to death.

The force of native constabulary which has been in pursuit of the Rios band of irreconcilables in Tayabas province, Luzon, has killed eighteen and captured twenty-five of the bandits. The constabulary encountered the band upon four different occasions during the chase, but suffered no losses whatever. Rios, the leader of the bandits, says he will never be captured alive.

Colonel William A. Rafferty of the Fifth cavalry is dead at San Felipe from injuries sustained by a fall a week ago. General Chaffee was at his bedside when he expired. Colonel Rafferty's remains will be sent home on the United States army transport Logan.

GERMAN ARMY PRAISED.

American Generals Think It One of the Best In the World.

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Major General Henry C. Corbin, who, together with Major General Samuel B. M. Young and Brigadier General Leonard Wood, attended the German army maneuvers near Frankfurt-on-Oder last week, gave out a statement before he left for Dusseldorf denying what purported to be an interview with him in which he was represented as unfavorably criticising the German infantry. In this statement General Corbin said:

"My companions and I have reached the conviction that the German army in every respect, but particularly in organization, instruction, discipline and equipment, is among the best in existence if not the best.

"The army excited the admiration of all the American officers who witnessed the maneuvers, and we shall never forget the many marks of distinction and courtesy bestowed upon us by Emperor William and his officers."

Confederate Veterans Will Accept.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 15.—The action of the camp of Confederate Veterans in New Orleans declining the contributions from the north which General Torrance and others are soliciting for the home at Mountain Creek finds no responsive echo here. Contributions in response to General Torrance's appeal are already coming in. Arrangements are being made for a joint meeting of local camps at which action will be taken to show General Torrance and other friends at the north that the veterans are appreciative of the high motives which prompt the help now being extended.

Train Robbery In South Carolina.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 15.—Train No. 23 of the Atlantic Coast line was held up during Saturday night about seventy-five miles from here. Soon after the train left Lanes a young white man entered the express car, blindfolded the messenger, G. G. Lewis, and robbed him of about $160 in cash and then robbed the car of several packages of jewelry and other articles. He did not try to tamper with the safe. When the train got to Charleston, the robber jumped off with his booty. Messenger Lewis shot at the man as he left the train.

Coming Here to Lecture.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 15.—Mr. Reitz, formerly state secretary of the Transvaal, will sail Sept. 25 for New York to give a series of lectures both on behalf of his own finances and for the benefit of the Boers. This unexpectedly early departure of Mr. Reitz for the United States is said to be due to the insistence of the Boer generals Botha, De Wet and Delarey that the anti-British propaganda in Europe must be moderated.

Death of Well Known Banker.

LENOX, Mass., Sept. 15.—Samuel D. Babcock, a wealthy New York banker and stockholder in the Commercial Cable company, dropped dead here last evening at 7 o'clock while walking on Main street from the Lenox club to his home. The cause was heart failure. Two of his daughters live in Lenox, and one, Mrs. William P. Dixon, lives in Pittsfield.

King Leopold Coming Next Spring.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 15.—It is announced that King Leopold will visit the United States some time next February or March.

DEAD IN FOREST FIRE

Heavy Loss of Life and Property In Northwest.

MANY LUMBER CAMPS BURNED OUT.

Reports From Washington and Oregon Show That the Flames Are Still Uncontrolled, and Damage Cannot Be Estimated.

KALAMA, Wash., Sept. 15.—News has reached here that the forest fires on Lewis river have wrought sad havoc. D. L. Wallace, his wife and two children were burned to death. They were camping in the woods when caught by the fire. Their wagon was found burned up, the charred bodies lying near. A twelve-year-old boy of Mr. Manley is also dead. Mrs. John Polly, her baby and a brother, name unknown, and Mr. Newhouse and Mrs. Graves are dead. Fifteen others were found without clothing except gunny sacks.

Five logging camps are burned out completely. Ten families have lost everything.

The fire has spread from Lewis river north to the Kalama river, and fifty sections of the finest timber on the coast have been destroyed. It is impossible to give any estimate of the amount of the damage done to property. Oak Point, twenty miles below here, on the Columbia river, has been destroyed. There are no reports of lives lost, but less to property is estimated at about $300,000.

A great fire also is raging on the Coweman, in the northern part of the county. Everything combustible in its path has been consumed. The air is thick with smoke and falling ashes. Three lumber camps are reported destroyed or badly damaged. Two men from Barr's camp are reported missing. People are panic stricken and crazed over the loss of property. Cowlitz county thought it was going to escape until yesterday, when the reports came thick and fast, each worse than the last. Five people are dead and two missing, with only partial reports from the burned district.

The horrible news has cast a gloom over the entire county that can hardly be described. A courier just arrived from Lewis river states that only two houses are left standing on Lewis river from Trait's place to the head of the river, a distance of thirty miles, and that not less than fifteen persons have perished.

Scores of Farmers Burned Out.

OREGON CITY, Ore., Sept. 15.—Nearly every farmer in the territory covered by the postoffices of Dodge and Springwater has been burned out. The loss is appalling and cannot be estimated. People are destitute, homeless and without money, food or clothing and have called for aid. All Thursday night and Friday the fire raged fiercely, following down Clear creek and Clackmas river, crossing Springwater ridge and stopping at the upper edge of Viola. Logan and Viola were saved from destruction by the wind dying down. Fires in that section are now checked, and there is no danger unless the wind shall rise again. The damage was great in the Eagle Creek section. Twenty-four places were entirely destroyed. Fires in the district near Shubel, Clarkes, Beaver Creek and Moshenk settlement are now under control.

Fires In British Columbia.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 15.—There has been no cessation of the forest fires. The new hotel, postoffice and a new store at Mount Stycker have been burned. In all parts of the districts settlers are fighting to save their homes and crops.

Dublin Citizens Aroused.

DUBLIN, Ireland, Sept. 15.—Some 20,000 persons, the biggest open air gathering that has been seen here in years, assembled in Phœnix park yesterday to protest against the action of the government in "proclaiming" the Irish capital. The lord mayor of Dublin presided at the meeting, and John Dillon and William O'Brien, Nationalist members of the house of commons, were the chief speakers. George Wyndham, chief secretary for Ireland, was the principal target for abuse, and ringing resolutions denouncing the slur on Dublin's fair name were unanimousl passed.

May Stop Grain Corners.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Corners in grain are forever rendered practically impossible by a decision handed down by Judge Chytraus in the circuit court if sustained by a higher court. The case was for an injunction asked by Waite, Thorburn & Co. against prominent commission houses in the recent July oats corner. The most important ruling is that the Chicago board of trade loses the power to pass on property rights where margins are involved, denying its authority to discipline members for refusing to put up called margins.

Damaging Storms In Germany.

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Destructive storms are reported in many parts of Germany. In Saxony the temperature sank to zero, and a hurricane-like wind unroofed many houses and injured a large number of people. The damage is estimated at millions of marks. A very severe northwest storm visited the cities on the North sea. Considerable damage was done to bathing establishments on the Elbe, and a number of low lying houses were partially wrecked.

Gusher Fire Put Out.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Sept. 15.—The burning gusher has ceased flowing of its own accord, and the fire was easily extinguished. Smoldering fire at the big tank is all that remains of the flames.

M'KINLEY MEMORIAL

Anniversary of Death Is Observed In Many States.

JUDGE DAY'S TRIBUTE AT CANTON.

Mrs. McKinley, Accompanied by Mrs. Hobart, Visits Martyr's Tomb. President Roosevelt Attends Service at Oyster Bay.

CANTON, O., Sept. 15.—There was a general observance of McKinley memorial day in the city which claimed him as its own. From almost every pulpit there was reference in prayer or in address to him and his work. His favorite hymns were used. There was no attempt at decoration other than to have the portrait of McKinley draped with flags and surrounded with choice flowers. The address that attracted most attention here was that given by Judge William R. Day, former secretary of state and a friend and adviser of McKinley for many years. The address was delivered in the First Methodist Episcopal church, of which McKinley was a member and in which the public funeral was held Sept. 19, 1901. The only decorations were flowers and a portrait of the late president, around which were the folds of the stars and stripes, emblematic of the patriotic spirit of McKinley.

In the Catholic churches of the city special masses were said. Tribute was also paid by some of the priests to the memory of McKinley because, having known him personally, they could not forbear. Although deeply conscious of the fact that it was just one year ago that her beloved husband died, Mrs. McKinley did not vary the programme followed by her for several months. All days to her have been memorial days. Her usual trip to West Lawn cemetery was taken in the forenoon and she laid love's offering of flowers on the casket that contains the remains of the nation's martyred chief. Mrs. Garret A. Hobart, who is her guest, went with her into the McKinley tomb and also laid a bouquet of flowers on the coffin. Their subsequent drive took them to the McKinley family burial plot, where the daily bouquets were laid by Mrs. McKinley's direction. The afternoon and evening were spent at the McKinley home. During the day there were many visitors at the McKinley vault.

Services at Oyster Bay.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Rev. Dr. Henry Homer Washburn, rector of Christ Episcopal church, in the presence of President Roosevelt and his family and a congregation that filled the church to overflowing, preached a sermon in which he devoted considerable attention to "possibility of danger coming by and through the unguarded use of great wealth concentrated in the hands of a few," and in which he also stated that "if ever circumstances indicated that one was placed providentially in the executive chair of the nation then the circumstances that attended the promotion of Mr. Roosevelt so indicated." The first part of the rector's sermon was devoted to a eulogy upon the life and character of the martyred McKinley, and to this the president listened attentively. But when in the second part of the sermon Mr. Washburn took occasion to speak of the possibility of danger coming through certain trusts and also to laud the president, Mr. Roosevelt became restive. His face colored, and he plainly showed signs of disapproval of the rector's utterances.

Ohio Kept Day Sacred.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 15.—McKinley memorial services were held in all the churches of this state. There were special programmes in many churches, including the favorite hymns of the martyred president. Appropriate exercises were also held in all the benevolent and other public institutions. In some churches the floral tributes were as elaborate as on Easter. In many places the portrait of McKinley was festooned with crape or flowers. The posts of the Grand Army of the Republic attended in bodies at different churches. In most of the churches the pastors spoke at the morning service on the life and character of McKinley and the lesson of his untimely death, but in the afternoon and evening judges, lawyers and other prominent men addressed the congregations.

Memorial Services In Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Sept. 15.—The anniversary of the death of William McKinley was universally observed in this city. The pastors in all the churches paid tribute to the memory of the martyred president, and the congregations sang his favorite hymns. In the afternoon a public meeting presided over by Mayor Knight was held in the city convention hall. The auditorium was crowded, and hundreds were turned away. Despite the presence of the immense throng a reverential quiet prevailed throughout the services. The interior of the hall was decorated with the national colors. A large oil painting of the dead president festooned in flags faced the audience. Over the portrait was a banner inscribed with the words uttered by the president on his deathbed, "It is God's way."

The Day In Illinois.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Chicago and the state of Illinois generally paid an impressive tribute to the memory of William McKinley. Throughout city and state from platform and pulpit men of all nationalities and all creeds lauded the life and deeds of the martyred president whose death occurred one year ago. His nobility of character, purity of home life, solidity of statesmanship and greatness of heart were subjects for outpourings of eloquence from clergy and laity. Musical services arranged especially for the occasion added in a considerable degree to the impression made by prayer and oratory.

New York Paid Tribute.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Services commemorating the death of William McKinley were held in almost every church in this city, either morning or evening. In many of the churches the music of a year ago, always including the favorite hymns of the martyred president, was repeated, and the sermons enlarged upon the lessons to be drawn from the nation's tragedy with the clearer sight of twelve months after. From all parts of the state come reports of largely attended memorial services in churches of all denominations in response to the proclamation of Governor Odell.

Pennsylvania Observed the Day.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Pursuant to a proclamation issued by the governor of Pennsylvania the anniversary of the death of President McKinley was observed by special services in the churches of all denominations in this city and state. Many clergymen took for their text the life and death of the late president. "Nearer, My God, To Thee," and "Lead, Kindly Light," President McKinley's favorites, were the principal hymns sung.

The Day In Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 15.—At all the churches special memorial services for the late President McKinley were held. At the Clinton Avenue Methodist church in the evening United States Senator Moses E. Clapp delivered an oration eulogizing the late chief magistrate. Special musical programmes were a feature of many of the services. The observance was general throughout the state.

Day Observed In Nebraska.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 15.—McKinley memorial day was generally observed by the churches, religious and other organizations in this city and throughout the state. Proclamations had been issued by the governor and by Mayor Moores requesting the people to commemorate the day with suitable observances, and the request was generally adhered to.

Connecticut Pays Tribute.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 15.—The anniversary of the death of President McKinley was generally observed in the churches in Connecticut. In most of the pulpits the preachers spoke eulogies of the life and character of the dead president, and the prayers bore especial reference to him.

Anniversary Kept In Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 15.—Special memorial services were held in Louisville and throughout the state in observance of the first anniversary of the death of President McKinley, and the pastors of the various churches made reference in their sermons to the occasion.

The Day In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The anniversary of the death of President McKinley was marked by some tender and sincere mention of him in nearly every church in Washington. In many of them were exhibited emblems of mourning and also the national flag.

Services In Maryland.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 15.—In nearly all of Baltimore's churches some fitting reference to the memory of President McKinley was made during the services, by direction of Cardinal Gibbons a special prayer was said in all the Catholic churches of the archdiocese.

Fittingly Remembered In Missouri.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 15.—McKinley memorial services were held in all the churches of this city. Decorations of carnations, the favorite flower of the late president, were elaborate. Most of the male worshipers wore boutonnieres of the flower.

Australia's Troubles.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The Sydney (N. S. W.) correspondent of the Daily Mail says in a dispatch that resolutions have been laid upon the table of several legislatures in favor of the dissolution of the Australian commonwealth. These resolutions, the correspondent says, are likely to provoke some plain speaking, but they will not be carried. Sir William J. Lyne, minister for home affairs of the commonwealth, said in a public speech Sept. 13 that he recognized the fact that discontent prevailed and admitted that the federation machinery was weighty and intricate and difficult of expansion, but he appealed to the Australians not to give up and urged that co-operation would bridge over their difficulties.

Curing Leprosy.

HAVANA, Sept. 15.—The medical board reports very favorable progress in the ten cases of leprosy now in the hospital here which are under the special treatment of Drs. Duque and Moreno, who have recently been allotted $250 a month by the house of representatives to continue their investigations for a cure of the disease, which were begun under the military government. The medicine employed by the Cuban doctors is an extract from red mangrove and is used as a salve and a tonic.

Seven Seamen Killed.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Sept. 15.—The British steamer Rydal Hall, Captain Curtis, from Liverpool for Port Natal, reports having seen the German bark Euterpe, Captain Kauffman, from Port Talbot, Wales, founder Sept. 8 in latitude 49.36 north, longitude 8.13 west. An explosion had occurred on board the Euterpe, killing seven of her crew and injuring several. The survivors of the Euterpe were landed here.

THE COLOMBIAN REBELLION.

Insurgents Have Not Yet Attacked Colon or Panama.

PANAMA, Colombia, Sept. 15.—Acting Superintendent Prescott of the Panama railroad has obtained permission from the government that the employees of the railroad who are Liberals may attend to their duties notwithstanding the decree issued by General Salazar, governor of Panama, prohibiting Liberals from appearing on the streets under pain of imprisonment. This courtesy has also been extended to the steamship companies in order to prevent interruption of traffic.

As a result of international treaties almost all foreign vessels coming to Colombia have in the past enjoyed the exemption of tonnage duties which was extended to ships under the Colombian flag. A decree recently issued revokes this concession, and from now on the duties in question must be paid by all vessels. It is believed that the recent difficulty of the government with the Pacific Steam Navigation company of Liverpool, when the company refused to transport government troops from Buenaventura to the isthmus on board the steamer Ecuador caused this decree to be issued.

Advices received here from Barranquilla say the government cruiser Cartagena is at that port awaiting the arrival of troops down the Magdalena river from Honda. The Cartagena may reach Colon today. A dispatch has been received here from the minister of war at Bogota saying that General Perdomo and his army are coming to re-enforce the isthmus as quickly as possible. The war minister orders General Salazar to employ all the means in his power to resist the insurgents pending the arrival of General Perdomo. General Perdomo recently pacified the province of Tolima, and the fact of his now being sent to the isthmus is taken as proof that the government at Bogota appreciates the perilous situation of its forces here.

The insurgent general Herrera is reported to be strengthening his positions at Bejuco and Chame. It is believed in certain quarters that he may have resolved not to attack Panama or Colon, having heard how well these ports are defended. Unless General Herrera attacks within the next four days he may lose his chances of capturing either city, for with the arrival of re-enforcements it is believed such an enterprise would be too much for his army.

WANTS HIS MONEY BACK.

C. F. W. Neely Begins Proceedings to Get $6,000 Taken From Him.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Information has been received at the war department that C. F. W. Neely has instituted proceedings in New York to recover the $6,000 which was found upon him at the time of his arrest in Cuba.

The money in question was in the possession of the postoffice department, but when Neely was tried it was turned over to the war department as one of the exhibits in the case. It was sent to Cuba and returned to the United States and now is at the war department. It will not be given up except by a decree of the court deciding into whose possession it should be given.

It is understood that the Cuban government has given an intimation that the money should be turned over to its treasury to compensate it for the loss of Neely, but the pardon of Neely raises the interesting question whether or not that government has not forfeited all claim against Neely or the money found in his possession when he was originally arrested.

So-Called Sessions Robbed.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Extraordinary scenes, verging upon riot, have occurred at Clapton, where nearly 5,000 persons attempted to mob a former Episcopalian clergyman named Smyth Piggott, who is now the leader of an eccentric sect called the Azapemonites. Piggott last week announced himself as the Messiah. Exposures of the man which filled many columns in the newspapers heightened public interest in the matter to such a pitch that Piggott was only taken from the mob by the efforts of mounted policemen.

Lord Hope to Wed.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The marriage of Lord Francis Hope and Beatrice Ricketts will occur as soon as the decree of divorce he obtained from May Yohe in March of this year becomes absolute. The engagement of Lord Francis Hope and Miss Ricketts, whose grandmother, Lady Caroline Ricketts, was a daughter of the fourth Duke of Newcastle, was announced last June. Lord Francis Hope and Miss Ricketts are cousins. It is said that the marriage will considerably improve Lord Francis' financial condition.

Case of Belgian Queen Hopeless.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 15.—The Soir says the condition of Marie Henriette, queen of the Belgians, who has long been ill with heart trouble, is hopeless and that King Leopold will probably be obliged to shorten his visit at Bagneres de Luchon, France, in consequence.

William S. Stratton Dead.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 15.—William S. Stratton, the millionaire mining man, died at 9:30 o'clock last night.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

An English mail train 205 miles from Madras dashed over a bridge which had been undermined by floods. Fifty passengers were drowned.

Unusually cold weather was reported in Kentucky, west Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas, and frosts occurred at several points in the south.

President Diaz has laid the cornerstone of the new general postoffice building. The building is in the new business center of the City of Mexico.

END SEEMS FAR OFF

Governor's Efforts to Settle Strike Seems Abortive.

STRIKERS AND OPERATORS FIRM

President Mitchell Refuses to State What Was Done at the Harrisburg Conference — Increasing Activity at All Collieries.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Sept. 15.—Today begins the nineteenth week of the coal strike. The date on which Senator Platt predicted that the strike would end has passed, and the hope which was instilled into the people in this locality because of that prediction has been succeeded by a feeling that the end is still far off.

The reiteration by the coal presidents during last week that no concessions would be made and the resolutions passed by nearly all the local unions of the United Mine Workers renewing their allegiance to their officers and pledging themselves to continue the strike until concessions are granted show that neither side to the controversy is weakening.

General Gobin, in charge of the state troops encamped in this county, denies that he is preparing to remove the troops at an early date or that he expects an order from the governor to withdraw the troops. He says he does not anticipate an order of that kind until there is a settlement of the strike.

MITCHELL RETICENT.

Has Little to Say About Meeting With the Governor.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 15.—President Mitchell returned to Wilkesbarre from his night interview at Harrisburg reticent as to what was said or done. He said the visit to Governor Stone was a pleasant one.

The strike situation was discussed in all its phases, but the governor had no proposition to make for the settlement of the strike.

Asked whether he thought the governor would call an extra session of the legislature, Mr. Mitchell said he did not know.

The reticence of the chief officer of the miners' union weighs heavily on the business and industrial interests of the strike region, who were hopeful that the meeting between the governor and President Mitchell would result in some plan for a settlement of the strike. The silence of Mr. Mitchell is interpreted to mean that the Harrisburg conference was barren of results.

There is more or less activity at all the collieries in this region, and it is said that some of the companies will make desperate efforts to resume work without delay at many of the collieries.

The anthracite coal operators say that the conference between Governor Stone and President Mitchell was merely a friendly talk and that neither party to the conference submitted a proposition. The operators think the crisis will come within three or four days and that a break in the ranks of the strikers is among the possibilities.

At strike headquarters President Mitchell's subordinates claim the companies are in no better position to start their collieries now than they were three months ago and that there will be no break in the ranks of the strikers.

Nonunion Miner Killed.

TAMAQUA, Pa., Sept. 15.—By the accidental discharge of a Winchester rifle in the hands of Hugh Black, a deputy at the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company's No. 4 stockade, near Nesquehoning, Paul Haulick, a nonunion man, was instantly killed. The bullet passed through his left lung, coming out of his back. Coroner Feller of Nesquehoning held an inquest, and a verdict of accidental death was rendered.

Boiler Explodes With Fatal Result.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—George Lutz, engineer; James J. Dooley, fireman, and Walter Weber, conductor, were blown out of the cab of a locomotive which exploded on the Pennsylvania railroad just west of Jersey City. Lutz was killed and the others seriously scalded and bruised. No cause for the explosion has been discovered. The boiler had been filled, there was plenty of water in the tender, and the locomotive had been working smoothly. The engine was one of the biggest on the road and of mogul type. It was drawing a heavy freight train made up in the west into Jersey City. The bursting of the boiler and its flight had no effect on the train except to set the air brakes.

A Head on Collision.

SOUTH LANCASTER, I. T., Sept. 15.—In a head on collision between a Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger and a light engine near this place Engineer William Lanan of the passenger train was instantly killed and his fireman, Charles Johnson, perhaps fatally injured. The baggage, express, mail and smoking cars were wrecked and both engines demolished. Many of the passengers jumped from the train and fell down the embankment. Some of them were considerably shaken up, but none of them was seriously injured.

Bad Break In Erie Canal.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 15.—A serious break in the canal at Durhamville will cause a suspension of traffic for at least a week. The water on what is known as the sixty mile level is being drawn. The bottom of the canal just west of the aqueduct dropped out, making a hole 40 feet long, 30 feet wide and 15 feet deep. The water is mostly flowing into Oneida lake through Oneida creek. A large force of men is at work, but little in the way of repairs can be done until the water has been entirely drawn.

TOMORROW'S VOTE.

Here we are on the eve of the election which shall decide whether North Plainfield shall remain a part of Somerset county or be annexed to Union county. It is a subject which vitally affects every resident and particularly every tax-payer of the borough of North Plainfield. Let us, therefore, give the subject a final careful consideration. Put aside the personalities which have no bearing on the case and yet have been dragged into it and let us reason together, Brother Boroughite, and see the situation as it really exists.

The question which will come before the people of North Plainfield tomorrow is to determine whether North Plainfield is to join Union county and make consolidation with Plainfield possible. For the present, the question of consolidation does not come up for consideration. The situation has been pretty thoroughly reviewed already. The opposition, at their meeting Friday night, failed to throw any new light on it.

It narrows down to a matter of business. Union is a wealthier and more enterprising county than its rural neighbor. It has a large debt, it is true, but it possesses manifold advantages and is far superior in wealth. Why less than one-fifth of the increase in the wealth of Union county for one year would pay the total debt of that county while all the increase in wealth of Somerset county for a year would not pay over three-fourths of that county's debt. Today, the county tax rate in Union is 11 cents lower than it is in Somerset county. There is practical evidence for you. Then Union county has one of the finest systems of stone roads in the State while Somerset is beginning to wake up to such a need and is considering the bonding of the county for half a million to improve its roads. Who wants to pay increased taxes when he can secure greater advantages at a less cost. It may be all right for the wealthy man or he who pays no taxes at all but how about the small property owner who has to figure very carefully to meet his expenses?

Unless this annexation vote is carried, consolidation is dead. Everybody admits that. Once North Plainfield is a part of Union county consolidation is possible. Look at the city and borough today. The city possesses advantages which North Plainfield cannot hope to have without putting the tax-rate even higher than the price of coal. Just look what the borough tax-rate did this year. A jump of sixteen points! Don't forget that and there is no prospect of it's staying there either. It must go up.

What has Plainfield that North Plainfield hasn't, you ask? A public library, a paid fire department, an adequate police force, and a score of minor municipal advantages that you can easiy ascertain from any city resident. And then there's the sewer system. Aha, shouts the "anti" man. You've heard him talk on that subject, heard him tell what a wholesale failure the disposal works are and yet, as a matter of fact the sewage disposal works are doing just what they were intended to do and they are acceptable to the State authorities and are approved by engineers. What do we laymen know about this matter of sewage any how? It is a question for experts.

There you are. Tomorrow will be the time to choose. Consider the facts carefully, then vote according to your honest convictions.

WHAT INGRATITUDE.

Hon. Richard V. Lindabury, born in old Somerset and remaining therein until his bread winning days, then drifts over into Union county in which he accumulates a fortune and fame, then drifts back into old Somerset county to live a life of easy luxury. Now from his millionaire's home on Banker's Knob he advises all not to put themselves in Union county's jurisdiction. Truly this is ingratitude.

It is really strange, isn't it, how some people are willing to bite off their own nose to spite their face, as the saying is. From personal reasons alone, there are some citizens of the borough who are going to vote against annexation. They are willing to do it now but how will they feel when the tax bills begin to come in, growing larger and larger. Then there will be mourning and gnashing of teeth over the lost opportunity. It is not difficult to vent personal spite when it doesn't cost anything but how about those taxes, brother boroughite, that will have to be paid year after year? Is the game worth the candle? Think it over before you vote Tuesday.

The first of the wards in the city to have a candidate for Councilman even under consideration is the Second. Councilman George P. Mellick, whose term in the Council expires this year, announced several months ago that he would not be a candidate for re-election. Now some of the Republican friends of Malcom McKenzie have an idea that h would make a good representative for the Second in the Council and have been talking over his possible candidacy.

One of the most remarkable features of the factional fight now in progress in Union county is the rapidity with which new candidates for the various nominations are bobbing up. They are appearing with such bewildering rapidity that it is getting next to impossible to tell exactly what the situation is. Of course, the great bulk of them will never be heard of again in this campaign at least but it is rather hard sometimes to find out exactly which are the chosen ones.

The improvement now being made to North avenue is cheerfully welcomed by those who have occasion to use that thoroughfare. While it will not be pleasant to travel through while under repair, everybody is thinking of the good time to come.

The rumors about that trolley deal still continue to generate with much regularity. It looks as if the future might have something in view looking towards a general consolidation of trolley interests in this part of New Jersey.

Newport society is much split up just because a butler happened to serve soup to the wrong person first. The situation seems analogous with that among the Republicans of Union county today.

least ten years, says a member of that board. No one expected that the needed improvement would be considered at this time. They'll wait for fear, that the North Plainfielders might realize how heavily the burden of such a move would fall on them. Somerset county will do without good roads, such as Union has, and a creditable court house, such as Union will have, for the sake of saving the North Plainfielders from staggers and the county from financial paralysis."

The main object of annexation is consolidation. Unification of borough and city is contemplated. It is submitted by the annexationists that a community of twenty-five thousand people, geographically on one spot, with interests that are mutual, should logically be governed by a single, not a double set of officers. The city and borough are of the same political complexion Democrats and Republicans alike favor the change.

Plainfield has a paid fire department, a public library, thoroughly modern police and street departments. The residents of North Plainfield are given the advantage of these if they consent to join. Furthermore Plainfield has a complete and successful sewerage system, North Plainfield has none. It has been proven that in its present condition North Plainfield can not afford an independent system, and hence the progress of the borough will be retarded in its growth. The cost of establishing a tide water sewerage system renders it an impossibility for the borough. It costs Plainfield but fifteen cents on the hundred to gradually pay off the required expense of its system and competent engineers have computed that it will cost the borough twice as much if such a system should be established there. A point is made that a single high school, supported by united Plainfield, with well paid teachers, is better than two independent high schools. This applies to the lower grades as well.

The cost of keeping the municipal machinery going is an important one. At present the borough and city have separate officials. A consolidation would bring with as an attribute, one mayor, one council, one clerk, one attorney, one collector, one fire chief, one health board, one police chief and one overseer of the poor. North Plainfield is but the overflow of Plainfield; both are dependent upon a single railroad, one postoffice, one express office, one central 'phone office, and in all affairs of business and social life the two places are identical.

The saloon license in the borough is about half the city license and this tends to increase the liquor traffic in the former. Saloons in the city close at 11 o'clock, while in the borough close at any time. Plainfield's Common Council grants the saloon licenses and is not dependent upon a distant court as North Plainfield is. Warrants issued in one county can't be served in another without being countersigned, hence annexation would be beneficial to the administration of justice. Consolidation would relieve the police of many difficulties in this respect. United Plainfield would have a district court. Ratables in Union have increased greater than those of Somerset county. The influence of united Plainfield would be felt in the State, and the city would be one of importance. Building inspection is an advantage enjoyed by Plainfield. A single board of health is less cumbersome than two. North Plainfield does its banking here and depends upon this city for its railway facilities. North Plainfield is in fact a part of this city, and now the opportunity is given it to become one in law.

They Are as Fond of Gambling as the Stronger Sex.

Possessed by Mad Desire to Get Something for Nothing—Make Bets on Grain, Stocks and Horse Races.

[Special Los Angeles Letter.]

The ease and rapidity with which women, during the last few years, have demonstrated the fact that they are equal to men in their mental powers, even if their thought processes are somewhat dissimilar, while aiming largely toward the evolution of the race into a condition were higher uses may be performed, have also added many drawbacks which drag so heavily on our wheels of progress that we are not likely to have our millennium for some years to come. By no means the least of these is gambling, which in its various forms is making enormous inroads into the fortunes, principles and morals of both sexes. It is well known that this vice has existed since the world began, in various forms, that, through different gradations it has come down to the last century when women of wealth patronized the large gambling resorts abroad and those of lesser renown the lotteries in our own country. But until recent times the desire for gaming in the average woman found ample outlet in the various money-catching devices at church fairs, in one class, and a quiet game of poker, at home, with another. It is a well known fact that in our large cities many prominent women play this game nearly the whole night through, week in, week out, with an utter recklessness and sang froid that frequently renders it difficult to obtain the necessary number of partners from the men of their acquaintance. Darkey women shoot craps with the men. Little white girls play marbles with their school fellows and pocket their ill-gotten "stone alleys" with the greatest satisfaction.

Since women went into business speculation seems to attract some of them to an alarming degree. Especially is this true of those who inherit money, knowing little of the toilsome processes by which it was obtained. To these may be added the large number who receive regular allowances from fathers and husbands. Money-making schemes galore attract their attention and dollars, and the fear of confession of losses often leads to deception opening the door to a thousand and one other vices. If a person banks his money, the greatest care is taken to investigate the character of those in control and their financial integrity. But the same people will, in the most astonishing manner, put their funds in some wild-cat scheme that promises unnaturally large returns on the investment. A woman whose business ability had been unquestioned was, not long since, approached on the subject of converting sea water into gold. She became enthusiastic, a company was formed and she, desiring to invest $10,000, used her ready cash, mortgaged her residence, and gave her negotiable notes for the balance. The rest goes without saying; but results were very disastrous to her, a widow, long past middle age. It was all her little fortune.

The extent to which the women of our country gamble in stocks and grain is but little realized, but it is increasing so rapidly that the attention of the general public is being turned in that direction. There seems, however, no prospect of finding any means of preventing it; in fact, the very things written against it seem to advertise and aggravate the evil. The fact that women have not had the business training of their brothers, and thus are less able to judge the market and make advantageous investments, does not deter them at all.

There are some brokers in eastern cities whose clients are all women. There are others who have rooms especially devoted to that sex, and a few where men and women deal indiscriminately. In those offices devoted entirely to the interests (?) of women, no men are allowed, so there is no danger of interruption of a deal by an anxious or angry relative of the male gender. An able woman has charge and promptly at 9:30 arises and gives quotations, after which various women telephone their orders, each giving her number instead of name, to avoid notoriety. Those near to the scene get wofully mixed on the "puts and calls" and are dismayed and bewildered with long wheat and short pocketbooks. They receive small satisfaction from the head of the house, who, as likely as not, assures them that they should not buy until they know the market. In those states where there is legislation against selling puts and calls, the law is easily evaded by dealing through brokers in other states.

There are women in this city who operate more or less in the bucket shops, and stock brokers here have been repeatedly solicited to open a private office for women, and in several instances the experiment has been tried, but as one old broker said yesterday: "The women are so reckless and plunge so heavily, that brokers have been obliged to close them. They become greatly excited and when they lose do not always bear their troubles philosophically. Sometimes they want their money back, too, and declare they have been cheated. Most women have not been trained to know when and how to buy and sell. As for me, I have never yet accepted one cent of a woman's money to invest in stocks or grain, and never shall. It is frequently very hard for them to get enough to live on afterward if they lose; and they are not, as a rule, amenable to advice."

This statement is recorded as uttered, and may be taken for what it is worth. Meantime there are plenty of women here speculating along these same lines. "Isloated cases," they are called, but the isolation is not very lonely. Many people here, of both sexes, put money in some of the eastern investment companies, where the puts and calls are so skilfully balanced that there seems no chance for loss. At least I have never been able to learn of a period passing without their declaring a good dividend. Those investing in wheat pools must let their money remain until the end of a period. Corn people can call in their cash any time. Those whose money is in the care of these companies have nothing to do with the investments. They have only to receive their dividends. How long this unvarying good luck will last, remains to be seen. The company I have in mind has been in successful operation for two years, and is in the hands of an experienced man. Returns are fabulous, but many of the most skilful operators lose their own money sooner or later, and why should he who invests that of other people always remain infallible? Every investor realizes that he is in for gain or loss, and must take the consequences.

One of the principal styles of rapid return investments up and down this coast, perhaps the favorite, is the book-making companies. Each, as it starts out, has an unfailing method of winning which, though appearing a little hazy at first, perhaps, when explained by an earnest and convincing talker coaxes the dollars from the purses and old stockings of the charmed hearers, whose visions of future grandeur seem about to be realized.

A short time ago, on the day before his failure, the man running one of these companies obtained $1,500 from from an elderly widow—all her money—and absconded. There have been numerous instances of this kind, but each new company professes to have profited by the mistakes of its predecessors, and the good work goes merrily on, attracting ever increasing members. Men support their families selling chances in horse-racing companies, and to hear them talk, if one did not notice their home surroundings, one could almost believe that their knowledge must lead to affluence. Some live in very shabby places, others are arrayed like the lilies of the field. One woman, in town here, a dressmaker invested $100 in a horse-racing company. In a few days it was all lost. She knew that the man to whom she paid the cash made ten dollars by the operation, and requested him to refund. His answer may be imagined. She retired, in tears, but is now, herself, agent for several similar companies persuading all the women possible to invest—and so the world goes around.

A few years since an oil exchange was operated very successfully by women, but speculation in that product now seems a thing of the past.

IT MADE HIM TIRED.

Dude from the East Started Out to Slay a Bear Which Refused to Be Slain.

The station agent at Canon City had a half grown cinnamon bear chained up to a post as a pet and a curiosity, and while the train waited there for the east-bound to come along many of the passengers crossed the tracks to gaze at the living wonder. Among them, says the Philadelphia Press, was a girl-faced man with a lisp, who viewed the bear for awhile and then went back to the agent and asked:

"Thir, . thee you have a bear over there. If I should kill him, could I telegraph to my ma in New York thath I had thlain a savage monster of the west?"

"HAVE I THLAIN HIM?"

"You could."

"How much to let me thoot at him thix times?" continued the young man, as he fished up a small revolver.

"Twenty dollars for six shots," replied the agent.

"I will accept, and here is your moneyth. Now, then, everybody thand back while I thlay the monster in his tracks."

We moved back, and he advanced to within ten feet of the bear and opened fire. The beast stood broadside on, and did not even raise his head.

"Have I thlain him?" asked the young man as he stood with empty weapon in hand.

"He doesn't appear to be slain," replied the agent. "Want to try six more at the same price?"

"No, thir, I guess not. I will go in and telegraph to ma that I started outh to thlay a monster of the west, but he refused to be thlain and tired me outh!"

RESCUED HER CHILD.

St. Paul Woman Shows Rare Presence of a Mind in an Unlooked For Emergency.

At St. Paul the other day, Mrs. Mary McKenzie proved herself a heroine by rescuing her three-year-old boy from a cistern into which he had fallen and was drowning. The cover of the cistern was a part of the floor of the kitchen, and in order to draw water from the cistern a trapdoor in the floor had to be lifted. Mrs. McKenzie had just lifted the door and turned to pick up a pail, when little Percy toppled headlong into it, falling into five feet of water. It was six feet to the water line, and the mother was helpless. She ran into the yard screaming for help, and when two women neighbors responded she made them understand and asked that they take her, one by each foot, and suspend her head down into the well.

Without a tremor the mother lay down, and was let slide down toward the water, head first. The child was coming up for the second time when her hands reached his skirts, and, after a strong pull altogether, the two women holding to Mrs. McKenzie's ankles, drew both mother and child from the water. The child was revived in a few moments, and neither was the worse for the experience the next day.

FOR THE ATHLETIC GIRL.

Smart Pedestrian Costumes In Mixed Goods—Auto Coats and Caps.

The new pedestrian costume resembles in nothing the short skirt suit of former seasons. It just clears the ground and, far from being plain, is laid in bewildering strappings and stitchings. The favorite design has the entire skirt stitched in box plaits, which are allowed to flare only when within ten or fifteen inches of the bottom. Around the hips of these skirts there is frequently also a yoke effect.

The most popular as well as the most striking jacket just at present is the Norfolk, which is made perfectly straight up and down after the fashion of a man's Norfolk and which has a loosely encircling belt either of the stitched cloth or of the patent leather. The sleeves alone reveal the fact that it is a feminine garment. They are either slightly puffed at the wrists or they have fancy cuffs. Still there are also a great many of them which are made plain like a man's sleeve.

The materials are diagonals, hair stripes, granite effects and blue and black wools flecked with white.

The latest automobile costume is shown in the illustration. It consists of a long sack coat cut on the military style, with a high upstanding collar. The material is blue and white checked Scotch goods. The cap is made of the same material. It has a visor of patent leather. Touches of scarlet are given by the velvet facing of the collar and the lining of the coat.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR MOUNTAIN WEAR.

The Correct Costume—Coat, Hat and Waists.

The girl who intends to spend the fall months in the mountains will need a wardrobe chosen principally for its usefulness. Still it need not lack for that reason the artistic touches so essential nowadays.

Her little suit should barely escape the ground. It can be of any smart mixture laid in box plaits, both blouse and skirt, with the addition of a red vest or revers and cuffs of the red cloth. A smart hat of the popular upturned shape can be of white felt with black and red trimmings.

The shirt waists which accompany this should be of wash silk or cotton chosen with a view to their wearing qualities. They should be plainly but beautifully fitted and have correct stocks and ties to accompany them.

Two long coats are necessary—a light rainproof covert and a heavier military coat, with its cozy linings for the cold autumn evenings, which are not very far off.

Unlined flannel blouses in shades harmonizing with the costume can be relieved by bright colored stocks.

The fur jacket here shown illustrates the winter styles. It is of broadtail, with a wide collar of ermine.

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

Yes, it was true. Standing under the great elm in front of the gate were two figures. As near as I could make out, they were those of a man and a woman. I strained my ears to hear what they were saying, for I could not understand why anyone should choose the shelter of our old elm as a meeting-place. Could it be Baldy Towner? Perhaps his wife, Glorianna, had come over from Waukekan Town to try and persuade him to return. Baldy was very stubborn, and Glorianna had not behaved any too well, and Baldy Towner had said to me only the day before, "I wunt, I wunt, I wunt g'-back. She can write, and she can send, and even come. I know when I'm well off. I shouldn't be well offer there, and though I'm kinder poor off here in some ways, I'd be poor offer ef I's to g' back and let her lick me ag'in."

Baldy Towner stood fully six feet two in his stockings, and Glorianna was a slim little creature. I despised his weak resolve! What Glorianna really needed was what Aunt Jane Mary called a "special good trouncing" from Baldy Towner and an assertion on his part as to who was the head of the family, but it was not to my interest to say so. I could not get along without him. My heart sank within me as I heard the murmur, and I wondered if she would really persuade him to go back to her and Waukekan Town and his beatings.

I crouched in the window, listening, but though I strained my ears to the aching point, I caught no distinct word. Finally the man stooped and put his hands on the woman's shoulders. He kissed her. Oh, dear! Then the reconciliation was complete. He would leave me on the morrow. What should I do, with the marketing to attend to, the cooking to do, the beds to make, the house to keep clean, not to speak of the shoes!—the muddy shoes!

"Good-night." I did hear that much, and, then, instead of the woman going away, it was the man, who drew towards him a wheel, which had been leaning against the tree in the shadow. "I'll be over in the morning," I heard him say. "All right," answered the woman's voice, and she turned and opened my own gate, and came along up the gravel-path,—no, not the path, she walked on the grass.

Of course, I knew now who it was, and why she had walked on the grass. Naturally she did not wish anyone to know of her midnight assignation. Well, I would see that she had no more of them. My house, Aunt Jane Mary's rather, should not be used as a rendezvous for such creatures as she. I would tell her so in the morning. I would give her warning. Of course, she must eat up and sleep out her ten dollar's worth, but as soon as that debt was paid she should leave the house and never set foot inside it again. I listened and heard her come in at the front door, lock it softly and go into her own room. If she shot the bolt of her door, it was unheard by me. Well, no matter. She should have warning before breakfast.

I spent a restless night. My room was opposite Aunt Jane Mary's, over the parlor and across the hall from my lower-front's bedchamber. I wondered if Aunt Jane Mary had heard the movement in the house. However, I was almost certain that she had not, or I should have been called by the tinkle of the bell. I was now hopelessly awake, and lay tossing in my bed, furious with myself, my boarder, and everyone else—more angry than anything with the fact that I should need all the rest that I could obtain to spur me up to the stand that I was going to take in the morning. I dropped asleep a little before daylight, and on awakening found that I was a half-hour late. Oh, dear, there was so much to do! Where should I begin? I dressed hastily and ran down the stairs.

My boarder was evidently up, for her door was open, her bedclothes thrown back, and the room airing in a manner to suit the most particular of housekeepers. This somewhat mollified me towards her, but still I was determined that she should go, and that I would tell her as soon as I had the time. She nodded to me as I looked out of the door, for she sat there, calmly rocking in my chair, looking unblushingly at the morning sun as it rose over Farmer Barker's hickorynut wood. She had on her feet a pair of loose slippers. Her shoes, well cleaned, were standing within the door of her room.

"I thought you hadn't any slippers?" said I.

"Good-morning," said Miss Dacres politely. This made me conscious at once of my own rudeness.

"Good-morning," said I. "Excuse my remark, but you know you told me yesterday——"

"Yes, so I did. Well, I've got them since, I——"

"I have no time to talk now," said I, "but please to understand that when your breakfast is eaten, I shall be glad to see you in the parlor."

"You are very kind," returned Miss Dacres, in the tone one uses when accepting an agreeable invitation. "I will come with pleasure. I never sew, you know, I am only here for a rest."

"You need not sew," said I, "and you need not remain long."

"What?" said she. "I don't understand your tone. I——"

I ran down the steps and round into the back yard.

"Baldy Towner," said I, wishing to make sure before I went any further, though I certainly did hear her come into the house, "have you and Glorianna made up?"

"Nor never will in this blessed world," said Baldy Towner.

"Is the fire made?" said I, running towards the hen-roost.

"It be," called Baldy Towner after me, as he went to the well for water.

I found three or four fine eggs, went back into the kitchen, prepared Miss Dacres' breakfast, and called her into the dining room.

I waited on her in silence, and then left the room, asking her to ring when she wanted anything else.

She did not seem blessed with a large appetite. Indeed, in looking at her, it seemed to me that she must be very delicate. There were large black circles round her blue eyes, and her face appeared more sallow than it had on the last evening. Now that she had discarded her felt hat, I saw that all her hair was short, thick, and curly.

"I see you are looking at my hair," said she to me when I came in, bringing her a glass of cold water, which Baldy Towner had just drawn from the well. "I wear it so because it is easier for me, and much neater in my profession. I am always dressed. I just run a comb through it and shake it out. First though, I stick it in a bucket of water."

"It looks just like a boy's," said I.

"Yes, that's what they all say. I've often wished that I had been born a man. They have the dead wood on us, don't you think so?"

"The——" My tone was interrogative.

"Dead wood, the dead wood. Oh, you don't understand! I catch all sorts of slang from my brothers; you can't help it when you're the only girl. You see when a patient calls me, my hair is always neat and tidy, or I can make it so in the jerk of a ram's tail—I mean, in the small space of a minute, and then I don't waste any time with curl papers, and——"

"If you have finished your breakfast," said I, "I should like to see you in the parlor."

"Don't keep me long," said Miss Dacres. "I haven't any sewing, and I don't talk gossip. I'm very busy writing a treatise on the best method to nurse typhoid. I hold that——"

"Do you know anything about rheumatic cramps?" asked I.

"Well, I should smile, rather—I mean, of course I do. Rheumatic cramps are my specialty. Why, have you got' em?"

"No," said I, "I have not, but my aunt—however, that is neither here nor there. What I have to say to you will preclude the possibility of—but come into the parlor," and I led the way to the room in front of the dining room. I opened the door and groped my way across the room by the light that came from the hall. I threw up the window and pushed open the blind.

"Smells stuffy, don't it?" remarked Miss Dacres.

"That's because it hasn't been opened for some weeks. My aunt is a confirmed invalid and I have too much to do to sit in the parlor and play lady. When I have any sewing to do I take it out on the piazza, and there I—— Sit down," said I, suddenly breaking off.

Railway Speed Experiments Tried in Germany

Some Wonderful Results Being Achieved With Both Electricity and Steam as a Motive Power.

DIFFERENT countries of Europe, and especially Germany, are devoting considerable attention to the development of speed in rail transportation, using both electricity and steam as a motive force. The Prussian government constructed a short line between Berlin and Zossen for military purposes, but last year turned the line over to an association of electrical experts that they might utilize it in ascertaining the utmost speed that could be developed from the electric current. On this road a specially constructed car has attained a speed of 110 miles an hour. The car, the roof and sides of which taper in order that as little resistance to the air as possible may be offered, is divided into three compartments with seats fixed transversely. The current is conveyed through the elaborate trolley-bar, and through transformers to the motors, which are bolted upon the axles of the trucks beneath the car, and are each able to generate 250 horsepower. Though they weigh four and a half tons each, these huge pieces of machinery move at the rate of 900 revolutions a minute when a car is going at full speed.

While this marks the high record with electricity as a propelling force the German society of mechanical engineers are making an effort to offer something equally or more practical with steam. If the Prussian state railways are to adopt electricity as a motive power for the purpose of securing increased speed it will be necessary to relay the lines with heavier rails and ties. It is to preclude the possibility of the necessity of this change in motive power that the society of engineers have have offered a series of prizes for the best design and specifications for a steam locomotive and group of cars which will collectively form an express train capable of carrying 100 passengers and their baggage with personal comfort, and at a speed of 75 miles an hour.

A GERMAN ELECTRIC CAR CAPABLE OF RUNNING 110 MILES AN HOUR.

Several designs have been received and locomotives are now being built for the purpose of making the necessary tests. The specifications require that the engine and train shall be able to maintain a speed of 74.5 miles per hour for three consecutive hours without stopping for water or fuel and at a minimum expediture of motive power. These locomotives and trains will be tested on the Berlin-Zossen line some time next year.

An interesting forecast of the pending competition has been given by Mr. Arthur Kirchhoff, editor of a technical publication in Berlin devoted to engineering and machinery, in which a description is given of certain features of the new locomotives which are to be tested.

During the experiments made with the electrical locomotives an attempt was made to determine as accurately as possible the waste of power entailed by the friction and resistance of air to railway trains at different rates of speed. It was found that while at a speed of 50 miles per hour this resistance on a still day was about 67.2 pounds per square meter of the surface of the front end of the car, the rate increased very rapidly with the augmentation of speed, so that at a pace of 93.7 miles the resistance rose to 157.5 pounds per square meter of impinging surface. Every projecting part, every window, door or other indentation which could form a pocket to catch the wind created by such high velocities increased the resistance to be overcome, so that in all future experiments the economy of rapid transit will require that the factor of air resistance shall be taken into careful account. This, according to Mr. Kirchhoff, is to be done by enveloping the engine and train, from pilot to rear platform, in a shell of sheet steel, jointed so as secure flexibility in passing curves, and so constructed as to inclose the locomotive and cars in a continuous tube, uniform throughout in size and presenting no projecting irregularities which shall catch the resisting air. The front of the engine will be pointed or wedge-shaped, the sheath will inclose as far as possible the running gear of the cars, and even the wheels of both engines and cars will be closed disks of metal instead of, as now, spoked wheels with openings to catch the air.

In the experiments on the Zossen line the electric motors, conductors and transformers worked to the entire satisfaction of the experts in charge, and the maximum practicable speed and the consequent success of the trials were limited only by the track, which gave way rapidly when a speed exceeding 70 miles an hour was attained. This was indeed the unexpected and most important fact brought out by the trials, viz.: that an electric motor, as at present constructed, exerts a greater strain upon the roadbed than a steam locomotive. It had previously been claimed, with apparent reason, that, being a rotary motor, without the reciprocating motions of pistons and connecting rods, the electric locomotive would avoid the pounding of the track caused by the unbalanced parts and oscillating strain of the steam locomotive. It was therefore a surprise to find that above a certain speed the strain exerted on the rails by the electric engines was even greater and more fatal. This is now explained by the fact that the center of gravity in the electric engine hangs much lower than in the steam machine, and, what is still more important, the whole weight of the steam boilers, cylinders, pilot, etc., is carried on springs, while in the electric engines used at the trials the motors and all the heavier working parts were hung directly upon the axles, thus adding a crushing weight to the blow, delivered by the wheels upon the end of each rail. Attempts have since been made to devise a system of springs to avert or lighten this defect, but so far as can be learned, with only limited success.

The new steam locomotive will be specially constructed to meet this difficulty. It will rest on 12 wheels, viz.: two pairs of drivers located at the middle of the machine, with a four-wheeled pivot truck in front and rear. Upon these three points of support the boiler and superstructure will be hung upon springs, carefully adjusted to take up as far as practicable the inevitable vibration and oscillation. The engine will be of the compound type, with three cylinders, and in order to secure the most perfect practical balance of working parts, two of these will be connected outside, as in an ordinary locomotive, while the third, or high-pressure cylinder, will be hung at the center and connected inside, working upon a mid-axle crank, set at 90 degrees from the crank pin of the two outside cylinders, which are set opposite each other.

The boiler will have an interior heating surface of 200 square meters, more than double that of a standard German express locomotive as now constructed. Throughout the entire train, superfluous dead weight will be avoided. Instead of carrying ten tons of water, the new tender will be built to take only half that amount, but will be rigged to take up water en route, as has been successfully done on some American lines. As now planned, the new engine will have, theoretically, a coal consumption of 2.352 pounds per effective horsepower hour, as against 2.625 pounds, which is the standard of economic efficiency in the best locomotives of the present German type. It will be interesting to compare this forecast of theoretical efficiency with the actual results which may be attained when the new engine is tested, which will be done during the course of next year. Voters, Beware!!

The Union Association of North Plainfield appeals to the intelligence and justice of this community to witness these facts:

Nearly five months ago this association held a public meeting and presented in black and white facts and figures taken from official records at Trenton and elsewhere. Through the president of the association our opponents were invited to a joint public discussion of this important matter. Twice did we urge them to come out in the open and reason together. If the friends of annexation had made misstatements, or if the official figures were wrong, let it be so proved! But no, these false prophets and calamity howlers preferred darkness to the light of day, refusing to meet us and not until Friday night, Three Days Before Election, do we find them on the platform and in print crying "false" and flourishing in the honest faces of thinking people a cobweb of figures stilted by a tissue of misrepresentations and shielded by the strong arm of an alien attorney.

Every statement and each figure given in the printed matter issued by this association is official and absolutely correct. Our authorities are the official records and they are open books. Beware of that man who would so juggle words and figures at the ninth hour as to lead you to a "most lame and impotent conclusion!"

Just such methods and men as these, fellow citizens, are responsible for the present high tax rate. Follow them and you are chasing rainbows.

is composed of that sized stone; he would be surprised if he should see the body of material in which the purification is performed; he should also know that the solids do not reach the beds but are retained in the septic tanks.

In speaking of the cost of the works it is well to remember that about $100,000 is represented by the pipe distribution, which is as perfect as any in the world, has never given any trouble, and which would still remain a part of the system with any means of disposal.

We have built the most approved system of sewage disposal works at present known, and are operating them to the best of our skill and ability. We have had absolutely no complaints from residents in the vicinity of the beds and we regret very much that it has seemed necessary to make them an issue in the North Plainfield contest.

CERTAIN OF THE "ANTIS" ARE WORKING WITH SALOON INTERESTS.

One Worker Claimed He Was Paid to Fight Annexation and Showed Roll of Bills.

Saturday night was a hot time in the borough saloons. The places were active to a late hour, many boroughites being left in a sadly delapidated condition because of free treats by a man said to be employed by those opposed to annexation. This man was in such a condition that he gave his mission away, telling the onlookers that he was "paid for his work," and pulling from his pockets rolls of bills including a list of the expenses at Saengerbund hall Friday night.

This rather lends color to the charge often made that, while all of the "antis" were not cognizant of the fact, certain of their number were working with the saloon interests. are known to be strongly against annexation. Ii has been claimed taat at the time of the spring meeting of the "antis" two well known saloon keepers of the borough sent in handsome contributions to the expense fund.

Borough saloon licenses are only about one-third of the city licenses because they are fixed by the Somerville courts, while those in Plainfield are regulated by the Common Council.

WHO SENT IN FIRE ALARM?

STATEMENT BY CHIEF STAHL AS TO THE LOCATION OF KEY.

Lost Long Ago and Was Not Left in Smalley's Meat Market As Was Reported.

The discovery of the person who turned in a false alarm of fire at the corner of Willow and Geraud avenues Friday evening and for a time disrupted the anti-annexation meeting, which was being held in Saengerbund Hall, would be very important at this time. Ordinarily the incident would have been of merely passing interest, but now, on the eve of a sharp municipal contest, it has been seized upon by both unionists and "antis" as a weapon with which to make political capital. Both sides disclaim any knowledge of the affair, but at the same time points a finger at the other and holds this incidents up as an example of the dirty methods used by over-zealous workers of the other side. Aside from hints and insinuations, no facts have come to light tending to show the collusion either.

The report which was circulated through North Plainfield to the effect that the key used to ring the alarm came from the store of a prominent Somerset street butcher, is apparently without foundation, as the following letter from Chief Stahl will show:

"Having seen a statement in the North Plainfield Weekly Review rather reflecting upon and intimating that W. S. Smalley & Co. were the custodians of the key as shown by the record kept by me, in the first place would state that their names do not appear on the record at all. The facts of the case are simply these:

In 1898 the key was left with Wm. Killfoil, who occupied the store, W. L. Smalley being in North Carolina at that time. Since 1898 the store has been occupied by Drake & Mundy, the Trenton Abbator Co., and B. F. Crane, in addition to William Killfoil, the custodian of the key. About a year ago I spoke to Messrs. Smalley & Co. in reference to the key and they stated that no key had ever been in their possession, and by some error the record was not marked indicating that key No. 60 was lost as is the custom when we cannot trace a key."

"J. J. Stahl, Chief."

Inquiry has been made in the neighborhood of Willow and Geraud avenues but no information was had which would lead to the identity of the person who sent in the alarm.

GOLF.

The annual meeting of the Westfield Golf Club will be held at the clubhouse tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Trustees will be elected as follows: Three trustees to serve for three years and one trustee to serve for two years, the unexpired term of Paul D. Worcester, resigned.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club team will play a match a week from today with the New Brunswick Golf Club team at New Brunswick. Frank C. Talmadge has sufficiently recovered from his recent injuries as to be able to play golf and he went with the team to Stamford, Conn., Saturday.

The honors won by the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club team during the past season have rapidly been fading away of late. A week ago the Montclair Club team gave the home team a severe defeat, and Saturday at Stamford, Conn., the Hillsides were defeated by Wee Burn by a score of 15 to 3. The game was played on wet links and under unfavorable conditions. The score was as follows.

Hillside.		Wee Burn.
A. R. Fisk	0	C. Seeley	9
F. C. Talmadge	0	Gerritt Smith	1
Robert Abbott	1	J. T. Williams	0
Dr. Hedges	0	Dr. G. S. Sherill	5

TENNIS.

The semi-final play at tennis for the Mellick cup, women's championship, was played Saturday on the courts of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. Mrs. W. L. Murray defeated Mrs. J. R. Blake, 7-5, 6-3, and Miss Margaret Goddard, who drew a bye, was defeated by Mrs. Murray, 6-3, 6-0. The finals will be played off Wednesday.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

The Somerset A. C. was out Friday night for light practice and all made a good showing. Manager McLaughlin hopes to announce the lineup soon. The team averages 120 pounds and all communications should be addressed, E. McLaughlin, Somerset and Regent streets.

assessed valuation to pay for the sewers and to pay off the sewage bonds. Add the cost of cleaning cesspools in the borough to the tax rate and it is plain that borough taxes are very much higher than those in the city. With sewers, more schools, money for building a new fire engine house and other contemplated improvements and the borough rate will go still higher.

22. The borough tax for free schools has gone up this year from 78 to 97 or nineteen points.

CASINO PLANS.

Maze Edwards Will be in Charge of the Casino, Much Improved.

An arrangement has been effected by and between the owners of the Casino and Maze Edwards for the coming season, which will ensure to a certain extent, a place wherein entertainments of limited stage requirements can be given with effect and improved conditions. The house will be thoroughly renovated and improved, the reception rooms and theatre entirely redecorated, and proper heating facilities are assured during the coming winter. It will be the aim of the management to cater especially to the wants and requirements of lodges, societies, meetings, clubs, receptions, concerts, amateur performances and entertainments of reputable character.

Mr. Edwards has already won a reputation for himself in his care and success for all entertainments given at the Casino under his direction and the public will undoubtedly support his efforts.

Odd Bridal Gift.

A German paper reports a singular freak of paternal liberality in the matter of wedding dowry. On the betrothal of his daughter Herr Duchatscheck had announced that he would give her as her marriage portion her weight in silver currency. Accordingly on the wedding day the bride was formally weighed in the drawing room in the presence of the assembled guests before proceeding to the church. The bride turning the scale at 140 pounds, a sack was at once filled with silver crowns to the same weight. The exact number of crowns was 13,500, about $2,800.—Chicago Chronicle.

Economize in Time.

How many women who would consider it a sin to waste money spend time as lavishly as though life would last forever. Thrift of time is as necessary as thrift of money if one would learn the secret of opportunity. An hour spent in idle gossip could as well be spent in a study or conversation which would lead to some improvement, and many people could make their lives much more interesting and profitable if they would learn this commonplace truth.—Chicago Post.

Railway Passengers Insured.

The French government has adopted a system of passenger insurance on state railways. The purchase of a penny ticket confers the right to $2,000 in case of death or permanent injury, from $500 to $1,000 for minor injuries and five francs a day while the injured person is unable to work as the result of an accident of any kind within the precincts of the railway. A passenger may purchase any number of tickets up to ten.—Chicago Chronicle.

One of Kitchener's Incisive Replies.

A correspondent sends the following characteristic anecdote of Lord Kitchener: "The governor of Natal wired to the commander in chief: 'My ministers and myself consider we should be vouchsafed further news.' The Man of Iron wired back: 'I do not agree with either you or your ministers.'"—London Telegraph.

POLICE WON FINAL GAME

Defeated Firemen's Nine in a Game Full of Errors and Other Kinds of Excitement.

WAS WON BY TWO RUNS.

Some Great Playing by Everybody, But the Honors at Batting Went to Jack Conroy—J. Flynn's Running Catch Saved the Game for Police —Great Work by Both Pitchers.

In a game abounding with exciting points and bristling with errors the Policemen's team again defeated the Firemen, yesterday afternoon, thereby winning the series of three. It was a wildly disconnected exhibition of the national sport but for all that it furnished plenty of amusement for the assembled multitude that cheered incessantly, whether it was a good or bad play made. There were only thirty-four runs made in the nine innings of which the cops owned eighteen.

The bluecoats started the ball rolling in the first inning in a very business like manner and retired with three runs to their credit. They were followed closely by the red shirted contingent until the third when the guardians of the peace secured a lead of five runs and made things look secure for themselves. But they received a thorough fright in the sixth when the red shirts got a bead on Winn's pretzel benders and the bluecoat outfield was kept streaking in all directions after the bounding leather.

To still further spread consternation in the coppers' camp, the firemen went them two better in the seventh and the shouting that ensued reminded the fans of the critical parts in some of the recent League games. It was nip and tuck then until the end of the game when the firemen got the wrong end of the eighteen to sixteen score.

"Jolly" Jack Conroy was clearly the favorite with the feminine portion of the grandstand and, on one occasion, this contingent presented him with an immense bouquet of cut flowers. Jack made three two baggers out of five times at the bat, two of which were good for three bases if he only commanded a little more speed.

Both pitchers were in fine form with the advantage on the side of Winn, who struck out seventeen men and would have made it twenty but for Bolmar dropping the ball on the third strike. This surpasses his phenomenal record at Newark when he retired seventeen men. Force fanned eleven bluecoat batsmen.

Probably one of the most exciting moments in the game was the last half of the ninth inning when Center Fielder Flynn made a phenomenal running catch and probably prevented a final tie in the score. Captain Townley reached second base with two men out, when Young sent a hot fly over into center garden. It looked a sure thing for a run from Townley and a hit for the batsmen but Flynn sped under it and the side was out. It was a play that called for prolonged cheering from the constituents of both teams.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE IS DEAD

WESTFIELD AND ROSELLE WITHDREW AT THE LAST MOMENT.

So the Other Teams, Alis A. A. and Company K, Will Play Independently.

After several attempts at organization, the projected football league gave a few expiring gasps last evening and died. The immediate cause of its demise was the announcement made at the meeting, last evening, that the teams from Westfield and Roselle had reconsidered the subject and decided to withdraw.

A week ago it looked as if a four-cornered league would be organized and last night was set as the time to complete the formal organization. The teams from the Alis A. A., Company K, Westfield and Roselle were expected to enter. Only Alis and Company K's representatives were on hand last night. The two out-of-town teams wrote that they had decided not to enter.

It was decided that a dual league between Alis and Company K would not be satisfactory and as there are no other teams in town heavy enough to compete with them, the league was given up for the present. It is possible that some of the minor football organizations may try to effect an arrangement among themselves but the Alis A. A. and Company K will put independent teams on the gridiron.

Among the many supporters of the Alis eleven, the decision reached is regarded with much satisfaction. It was not believed that the league, as proposed, would develop the exciting contests that an independent schedule would bring out. Manager Chandor, of the Alis team, is now looking for more games to fill out the dates he had reserved for the league games.

BOYS' CLUB OPENED.

Started Actively After the Summer Season With Forty-Six Boys Enrolled.

The Boys' Club opened last evening for the fall and winter season, when forty-six boys were enrolled. W. B. Wadsworth, a hearty supporter of this work, was present and gave the boys an interesting talk. Olaf Saugstad, who is in charge of this work, was also present and gave the boys a few words of encouragement.

The first night was devoted to receiving and enrolling the boys, and tonight the club will be open again for the same purpose. After all the boys are enrolled Mr. Saugstad will pick the first set from the waiting list. The actual work of the club will not begin before Friday night, but from present indications the coming season promises to be the most successful in the history of the club.

The Colonel and Major are representatives of Duss, the famous bandmaster, who will bring his musical organization to this city on October 23 for two concerts at the Casino, afternoon and evening. The Colonel weighs 266 pounds and the Major tips the scale at 216.

SUCCESS FOR SEVEN YEARS

ANNIVERSARY OF PRIMARY AND JUNIOR SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS' UNION.

Exercises Held in Y. M. C. A.—There Was a Programme, a Birthday Cake and Other Things.

The seventh anniversary of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union was held yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. building, where a large number of the members and a few friends gathered to enjoy the happy event. The usual custom of reading reports, etc., was omitted for the reason that the annual meeting will be held on October 31, and these reports will be presented at that time. However, yesterday's affair was one for hearty congratulation for seven years of prosperity and the successes of the past year were referred to in a general way to the gratification of all present.

The president of the Union, Miss Nettie Beeching, was in charge, and Mrs. Brundage lead the devotional exercises, after which the lesson was taught by Mrs. Woodruff. This being concluded all adjourned to the parlors where a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Prior to the serving of refreshments, Miss Beeching read a verse of Scripture for each one of the seven years. Then a seven layer birthday cake, which was made by Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, and suitably inscribed, was cut. Within the cake were seven ten-cent pieces, and various members found this money as the cake was passed. Afterward the silver was contributed to the Union.

During the social hour an interesting letter from Mrs. Jenkins, of Patchogue, a former member, was read and a birthday card and greeting from Mrs. Skillman, of the New Brunswick Union, were received. Another enjoyable feature was a recitation given by Miss Ursula Krewson, which was received with hearty applause.

Following the social hour the members, upon the invitation of Mrs. J. B. Probasco, adjourned to her lawn, where several pictures of the members in a group were taken. This concluded the anniversary exercises and the happy affair was voted one of the most sucessful and enjoyable ever held.

DAZED IN STREET.

Colored Woman Found by Police Has Strange Lapse of Memory.

Mrs. Phoebe Henry, a middle-aged colored woman, was found by the police, last night, wandering about Plainfield avenue in a semi-unconscious condition. She was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital but the authorities there were unable to determine the nature of her trouble. She regained her senses today but is still unable to explain how she came to be wandering about. Beyond giving her name she is also incompetent to furnish any particulars in regard to herself.

TALKED POLITICS AT A CHURCH SOCIABLE

Reception to City Judge W. N. Runyon at Hope Chapel Developed Much Enthusiasm.

WARM FEELING SHOWN.

HIS FRIENDS DECLARED THEY WOULD SUPPORT HIM IN SENATORIAL RACE.

Affair Was Directly in Charge of the Ladies' Aid Society, But All Organizations of the Chapel Assisted In It.

In recognition of the good work he has accomplished in the congregation during the past few years, the Ladies' Aid Society, of Hope chapel, tendered a reception to City Judge W. N. Runyon, last evening. Every organization connected with the institution was represented and the result was a most pleasant affair which incidentally afforded an opportunity for the Judge's intimate friends to say a word in his behalf relative to the present contest in which he is engaged.

An address of welcome from Rev. L. R. Howard, in which he conveyed to the Judge the warm feeling which exists in the hearts of the chapel people for him, was followed by timely remarks from I. W. Travell. A third address was made by Henry C. Squires, superintendent of the Sunday-school, and its nature showed the enthusiasm with which the Hope adherents are supporting their candidate for the Senatorial nomination. Hope chapel, Mr. Squires said, was back of Judge Runyon in every way and any man who voted against him was not possessed of the true Hope spirit, or else he was not acquainted with him. In a reply to these remarks the Judge touched lightly on the political side, merely mentioning the fact that he is daily becoming aware that he has many political enemies throughout the county but he feels safe in the continued friendship of the congregation and members of Hope chapel.

Interspersing the addresses vocal selections were given by Judge Runyon and Mrs. L. R. Howard and phonograph selections by Miss Bertha Jones. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

The affair was directly in charge of the Ladies' Aid Society but the members were assisted by the other organizations. The committee consisted of Mrs. William Gray, Mrs. Thomas Hendry and Mrs. George Radford.

FIGHT TO FINISH.

City Judge Runyon Denies Report That His Candidacy is Not in Good Faith.

It has been from time to time rumored by the opponents of William N. Runyon that his candidacy for the Senate was not being made in good faith and that at the proper time his name would be withdrawn.

When seen about the matter this morning City Judge Runyon said:

"Such reports are entirely without foundation. I am in this contest fairly and squarely until the end, and I feel that it is but justice to my friends to let them know that their work in my behalf is not being made for a dummy candidate."

FIRE IN EMPTY HOUSE.

Small Blaze at Home of Abraham King, on Chatham Street.

The borough fire companies were called out at an early hour this morning to extinguish a small blaze in the residence of Abraham King on Chatham street.

As a conductor in the employ of the local trolley company, was passing the house at 12:50 o'clock he noticed smoke coming from an upper window and at once sent in an alarm. The firemen immediately responded and the blaze, which was found eating its way through the roof, was easily put out by a fire extinguisher.

The damage is estimated at about $200. No one was in the house at the time and the origin of the fire is not known.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Memory of McKinley Honored at Park Avenue Baptist Church.

The closing exercises of the Sunday-school session of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, were in the nature of a McKinley memorial service. The school sang "Nearer My God to Thee," and after a cornet solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," which was sung at the McKinley funeral by the Enterpean Quartette, the school sang "Lead, Kindly Light." Following a prayer by Theodore I. Runyon, Miss Adelia Runyon and Roland G. Treadwell sang "I'll Surrender All."

WILL NOT BE EXHIBITED

COMBINATION CHEMICAL AND HOSE WAGON WILL BE SHIPPED DIRECT.

Failure of Specially Made Wheels to Arrive Prevented Its Exhibition in New York.

Councilman Robert L. Lee, chairman of the fire committee, has received word from the manufacturers to the effect that the city's new combination chemical and hose wagon will not be placed on exhibition at the convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs to be held in New York this week.

Instead the vehicle will be completed within a few more days and as soon as the varnish has assumed a sufficient hardening, it will be shipped to this city. The makers think this will be some time during the week beginning September 22 and it will then be in readiness for service.

It was a great disappointment for the building firm not to be able to place the wagon on exhibition and they attribute the failure to the non-arrival of some specially made wheels. They have secured another combination truck which resembles the Plainfield truck in many particulars and it will be placed in the Grand Central Palace.

FIRST DANCE OF SEASON.

I. C. T. Club Will Tender Reception to Friends Tomorrow Evening.

Taking up the thread of social affairs where it was left off, last spring, the I. C. T. Club will give its first reception of the season tomorrow evening. Invitations, to the number of two hundred, have been issued to local young people and the affair promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the organization. The committee in charge has managed many similar affairs and is competent to do its work thoroughly. A full orchestra has been engaged for the occasion.

Forming Classes.

Miss Aimee Louise Emmons, teacher of elocution and physical culture, is preparing to begin her fall and winter work. Classes are now being formed with the prospect of a successful season. Miss Emmons has formed a class at Bound Brook, and her Plainfield class will begin work about October 1. Miss Emmons makes a specialty of fencing. Any information concerning the above can be obtained at 41 Prospect avenue.

Pitcher Burns to Wed.

Cupid has again invaded the ranks of the local baseball players for a victim and Thomas Burns, of the Safe Works team, has succumbed to the wiles of the sly little god. The popular pitcher will leave tomorrow for Paterson, where he will be wedded to a young woman who resides at that place. He will return to this city in time for Saturday's game.

Respecting New Pupils.

Superintendent of Schools Maxson wishes to call attention to the fact that the new school law provides that pupils for the beginners class shall be received only during the first two weeks of the fall term. Parents having small children which they wish to enter are requested to do so not later than this week.

RAN OVER BURNETT'S HEAD

NOW HE WONDERS THAT HE IS ALIVE TO TELL THE TALE.

Fell Under Heavy Stone Wagon and Wheel Passed Over His Head.

Henry Burnett, of Stirling, is wondering now how he is alive to tell the tale. Saturday night, one of the wheels of a heavy stone wagon ran over his head and he escaped with no more serious injuries than a badly cut and scraped face.

Burnett has been furnishing two teams for hauling stone for the new county road being built in the Passaic valley. He had occasion to come to Plainfield Saturday morning and the storm prevented his return until night. He drove over the "dugway" road and, in the darkness, did not notice the grade down into the next valley. The heavy wagon started the horses on a brisk trot and he shouted to a man who was with him to put on the brake.

The brake was applied with such suddenness that Burnett was thrown from his seat and landed in the road, directly under the wagon. Before his companion could stop the horses, the hind wheel passed over his head. The wagon is said to weigh 1,650 pounds. The skin was torn off one side of his face by contact with the roadway and he was badly cut and bruised about the head.

He was carried to his brother's home nearby and Dr. Dundon, of Plainfield, summoned. His injuries were dressed and he was made more comfortable. He is now at his brother's home and it will be sometime before he can be removed to Stirling.

RAN AMUCK.

Mad Dog in West End Inflicts Bites Upon Many Canines—Killed by Patrolman McGinley.

Patrolman McGinley ended the career of a supposedly mad dog, last evening, which had terrorized the West End of the city all day. The animal was seen several times frothing at the mouth and snapping viciously at other canines it passed. It wandered up town after dark and collided with the policeman on West Front street, near Madison avenue. Patrolman Higgins has been searching about the West End today for the dogs that were bitten and will kill all.

ANTONIO DISCHARGED.

New Bruswick Judge Fails to Find Evidence Enough to Hold Him.

Through his attorney, Francis J. Blatz, David Antonio, the local colored man arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses, secured a dismissal of the complaint before Justice Suydam, of New Brunswick, yesterday.

Antonio proved that the complainant had been mistaken in his conclusions and that he had not misrepresented himself. The amount involved is $10 and on promising to pay this the defendant was discharged. Antonio is well educated and is said to be connected with a prominent Cuban family living in Havana.

BASKET BALL TEAM.

Y. M. C. A. Expects to Have Representative Team This Winter.

At a meeting of the leaders' corps in gymnasium work at the Y. M. C. A. held last evening, steps were taken toward the formation of a representative basket ball team for the coming winter. The matter of athletics was discussed at some length and it was decided to have an athletic contest once a month on Saturday nights. For prizes medals will be offered and in addition the names of winners will be engraved on wooden shields to be kept by the association. It was also decided to increase the number of members in the leaders' corps.

WILL IT BE ANNEXATION?

Heavy Vote is Being Cast in North Plainfield Today With Prospects of Victory.

BOTH SIDES HOPEFUL.

Activity at Both Headquarters on Eve of Election—Both Sides Hard at Work This Morning Getting Out a Full Vote—Will be Close —Both Sides Claim It.

Will North Plainfield be annexed to Union county? That is the all absorbing question in North Plainfield today. Plainfield, too, is mightily interested in the result as defeat for that question will put a quietus to the Greater Plainfield project. A majority of the voters expressed their opinions with the aid of the secret ballot this morning. At 7 o'clock tonight the polls will close and then it will not take long for the election officers to discover which the answer is to be, "for" or "against." At the hour of going to press, the annexation forces are confident and expect to win by a small majority. The "antis" are still hopeful.

On the eve of election there were busy times in the borough. The Union Association, which represents annexation in the campaign, gave up its plan of continuing the stereopticon exhibition on Somerset street and confined its efforts to making its headquarters in the Eggerding building a busy place. Although the "antis" had engaged Saengerbund Hall for last night, they made no attempt to hold any meeting there and the place remained dark. There was activity at the "anti" headquarters in the Spencer building, which is only one door south of the other, and there congregated most of the leading spirits of the "anti" camp.

At both headquarters the evening was largely devoted to a discussion of the coming election. The Unionists were hopeful but were leaving no stone unturned to win. Former Mayor W. L. Saunders was on all sides with a word of explanation here or a bit of advice there. He felt very sure that annexation would win. So did P. A. Emmons who was on hand most of the evening. Mayor Smalley was kept busy answering questions but he, too, seemed to share the confidence of the others. But he admitted that it was going to be close. Others of the Unionists were busily engaged in the closing efforts of the campaign.

Over at the "anti" camp, the leaders gathered in the rear of the room while the lesser lights sat around and talked over the situation. John H. VanWinkle, Jr., had a pleasant word and a cigar for each visitor and made a delightful host. The little gathering in the rear grouped around A. V. D. Honeyman. Among them were George D. Hallock, Charles L. Nichols, W. W. Howland and E. S. Hooley. John G. MacLoughlin was more restless and wandered in and out but said, like the others, that the measure was as good as defeated already.

There was very little betting on the result, very little money being seen at all during the evening. Occasionally an argument would result in the drawing of wallets and some one was called in to hold the stakes. All the bets were for small amounts. The offer of one of the firm believers in annexation to wager $2,500 on the result was not accepted. Most of the betting was on even terms although a few small ones showed the annexationists giving odds as high as three to one.

As the evening grew apace, the crowd gradually diminished and only the most ardent partizans remained working over their poll books so as to be ready when the election began at 6 o'clock this morning.

It was nearly midnight when the discovery was made that the term of the old election officers expired September 11, and that it would be necessary to swear in the new board before today's election. That made some hustling necessary. The election officers were gotten out of bed and sworn in at 11:30 o'clock. The term of the old board did not expire until after the last registration day.

Councilman James K. Arnold remembered this time that there was an election and was the first man in the polling place of the second district to cast a ballot. It will be remem-

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

The Elizabeth "Journal" has discovered a comet in the constellation, Perseus, which moved that sedate old Republican organ to remark that in former days the appearance of a comet was taken to signify that war was at hand.

In these days it might well be taken to signify the same thing, for the liveliest war in the political history of this State is on in Union county between the followers of United States Senator John Kean and those who stake their all on the success of Congressman Fowler.—Jersey City News.

Newspapers printed in various cities have in the last few days printed figures compiled from the State comptroller's report showing the tax rate for 1901 of the nineteen largest cities and towns of the State. As a result Camden, Trenton, Passaic and possibly others are pointing with pride to the figures which would see to indicate low taxes and economical government. But in this case, as in others, figures do not always tell the true story. Before accepting the tax rate as an accurate index one must inquire as to the method of property valuation and also as to what public benefits the taxpayers received for their money.

A low tax rate is no credit to a municipality if it reflects such a niggardly and parsimonious policy as deprives the people of needed public improvements. Economy is a praiseworthy municipal virtue, but economy is carried too far when civic pride, material progress and the public convenience are sacrificed for the sake of a low tax rate. In the light of the benefits that accrue to the people from the disbursement of their taxes, it is probable that Newark's tax rate is the lowest in the State.—Newark News.

LITERARY.

It will be remembered that among the scientific men who went to the West Indies on the Dixie relief expedition, for the purpose of studying the phenomena of the eruptions of May 7-8, were Professor Robert T. Hill, geologist U. S. Geological Survey, and Israel C. Russell, professor of geology in the University of Michigan. The results of the investgiations of these two gentlemen are to be published in the September Century, with a considerable number of photograps, including several of unique and rare interest. The August Century contained the "human side" of the catastrophe in both islands, set forth by eye-witnesses, and it will be interesting to see what these two geologists have to say on the scientific side, particularly as it is understood that they differ in the deductions which they make from their personal observations.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The changes in the western country made by the development of steam, electricity and all the facilities of modern travel are hardly realized by the present generation. When the trip to California can be made with luxurious comfort in a few days, one forgets that it is comparatively but a few years when the "far west" was much nearer than California. This fact was impressed upon the writer when in conversation with a resident of Plainfield, the old lady, over ninety years of age, said that when she was a girl and studied geography, all beyond the Mississippi river was marked on the map, "The unexplored region."

Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut, of the Methodist Episcopal church, of Morristown, formerly of this city, has a fund of good stories and is always telling them in casual conversation as well as on the platform. Recently he was speaking to a friend about the difficulty experienced in getting a good house servant and the friend remarked that he had nearly lost his religion in trying to find one.

"Which reminds me," said Dr. Hurlbut, "Some years ago I attended a camp meeting that was presided over by a very erratic but forceful preacher. He was a denouncer. He denounced everything and made of religion a most terrible thing. In the midst of his sermon he said with great earnestness: 'Why, friends, there are men who have so little Christianity that they can not set a link of stove pipe without losing their religion.' A man in front of me turned around and with a very severe countenance said: 'I don't think it is any time to judge a man's religion when he is setting up a stove, do you, Doctor?'

"Well, I've sometimes thought the same thing about the servant question. It is no time to judge how much grace a person has when he or she is struggling with the girl problem."

THEATRICAL.

The second season of the Manhattan Theatre, New York, under the management of Harrison Grey Fiske, began September 8 with the successful production of "Captain Molly," an American comedy by George C. Hazelton, author of "Mistress Nell." The enthusiasm and applause of large audiences have left no doubt that "Captain Molly" has scored a popular hit. Mr. Hazelton has written a delightful comedy of Revolutionary days, and the central figure, Molly Pitcher, is a charming character. The play contains, in addition to its comedy, a number of dramatic scenes, chief of which is a scene showing the battle of Monmouth in which Molly figures as she does in history. This scene receives a dozen curtain calls at every performance. It is a vivid picture. Amid the smoke and noise of battle the artillerymen drag the famous cannon up a hill. Dirty, faint and tattered they struggle while the enemy's fire depletes their numbers. Finally, the gunner himself is killed and then Molly dashes forward and fires the gun, amid the cheers of the soldiers. The last act occurs at the Continental Tavern, at New Brunswick, and is full of incident that sustains the interest until the final curtain. The play is mounted beautifully, there being five stage pictures of high artistic worth. In the costumes and accessories every possible attention to detail has been given, and the stage management is admirable.

The part of Molly is taken by Miss Elizabeth Tyree, who gives a fascinating portrayal. Others in an excellent cast are John W. Albaugh, Jr., M. J. Jordan, William Hazeltine, Frank Mathieu, Lynn Pratt, W. L. Branscombe, Herman A. Sheldon, Frank McIntyre, William Weston, Frank McCormack, Josepha Crowell, Mabel Dixey and Velma Berrell.

"Captain Molly" promises to have a long and prosperous run at the Manhattan and it should not be missed by those who enjoy wholesome comedy in quaint Colonial setting.

seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lamb, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache.

A liniement may relieve, but can't cure.

Backache comes from the inside, from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills get inside.

They cure sick kidneys.

Here is Plainfield proof that this is so:

Mr. C. E. Hepburn, of 123 Duer street, formerly of Canada where he first heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have my endorsement for they cured me of a long standing case of backache which annoyed me very much especially if I took cold for at such times I was in pretty bad shape. I heard different people speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, concluded to try them, got a box from my druggist, Mr. L. W. Randolph, and used them according to directions with the above results. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement of a preparation like Doan's Kidney Pills."

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. MINERS SUFFOCATED

Deadly Explosion In a Virginia Mine.

FIFTEEN BEYOND REACH OF AID.

Disaster Caused by an Accumulation of Gas Catching Fire From Lamp of a Careless Miner Who Disregarded Orders.

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 16.—A disastrous gas and powder explosion occurred in the Big Four mine of the Algoma Coal and Coke company at North Fork. James Lester, an engineer; John Recokie, a Hungarian miner, and fifteen colored miners are known to be in the mine now, and there is no chance of their being recovered alive, as they are beyond the point where the explosion occurred, and the gas and smoke are so thick that the rescuing parties are being driven back.

H. F. Frankenfield, the bank boss, and George Gaspie, a Hungarian miner, succeeded in crawling over the fallen coal and slate to the lights of the rescuing party and have been taken out alive, although they are both badly burned and were nearly suffocated by the gas and smoke inhaled.

The explosion was caused by an accumulation of gas catching fire from the lamp of a miner who was going to work and this in turn firing six kegs of blasting powder that had been stored in the mine. The explosion knocked down all of the brattices for a quarter of a mile back toward the mine entrance, thus preventing the air from reaching the men imprisoned behind the debris. There had been a small gas explosion in the mine on Sunday last which burned two mine mules to death, and Mine Superintendent A. J. Stewart had personally cautioned the men who worked in the mine not to attempt to work again until the air had been tested by a safety lamp, but they disregarded his caution and went in.

A party headed by Mine Inspector Cooper attempted a rescue, but was driven back by the want of air. It is now learned that the coal is burning, and there is no hope of extinguishing the flames until a new air passage can be built to the point of the explosion. Superintendent Stewart has a large force of men at work now and will make a second attempt to reach the imprisoned men.

Eleven Bodies Recovered.

BLUEFIELDS, W. Va., Sept. 16.—A telephone message just received from Algoma says eleven bodies have just been recovered from the mines and that six more bodies are to be taken out. So far those recovered are all colored miners with the exception of one white miner named Luster. The names of the other men are unobtainable at this hour.

The Boodle Cases.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 16.—The examination of the present members of the house of delegates in relation to the city lighting bill and the defeat of the street railway bill is being continued before the grand jury. Ten delegates were before that body yesterday, and each was detained but a short time. It was expected that Circuit Attorney Folk, who is prosecuting the alleged bribery cases, would go to Jefferson City to appear for the state in the hearing of arguments for and against the issuance of writs of habeas corpus for the release of the five ex-delegates now in jail here, but by reason of the statutory provision allowing him time after service of court papers he was not compelled to go, and Assistant Circuit Attorney Maroney represented him. The proceedings consisted only of formally deferring the hearing until next Saturday. Until then at least the habeas corpus petition by which Judge Chester H. Krum hoped to secure the release from jail of the five men charged with bribery and perjury can have no effect.

News From Colombia.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The state department has received a cablegram from Minister Hart, at Bogota, Colombia, which says that the revolutionary general Carrenzo, who has been operating with a strong force on the great plains east of Bogota, has surrendered. This is regarded as of the utmost importance to the government authorities, who consider that it assures the pacification of the whole eastern region. The Colombian government also has announced the repulse by a government war vessel of a revolutionary attack some days ago upon the Magdalena river.

Dimmick to Have Third Trial.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—After deliberating for nearly forty-eight hours the jury in the second trial of Walter N. Dimmick, accused of embezzling $30,000 from the United States mint in this city, was unable to agree and was discharged. Dimmick will have a third trial.

Confesses Murder of a Boy.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 16.—W. F. King, a farm hand under arrest here, has confessed to having murdered fifteen-year-old James Freeman, an adopted son of a farmer near here, because he was jealous of the boy owing to the privileges he enjoyed on the farm.

Six Thousand People Homeless.

CALCUTTA, Sept. 16.—Twenty-five villages have been swept away and 6,000 persons have been rendered homeless by floods due to the overflowing of rivers in the southern part of the presidency of Bengal. Relief camps for the sufferers have been started.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; light to fresh east to south winds.

READY FOR VETERANS.

Detroit Expects a Large Crowd Next Week.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 16.—It is expected that the third annual reunion of the Spanish War Veterans, which will begin here next Monday, with President Roosevelt and a number of other notable persons present, will bring to this city one of the greatest crowds in the history of the city. Adjutant General Dyer of the Veterans' association has already arrived here from Washington and has opened headquarters in the Hotel Cadillac to prepare for the convention.

The convention will open Monday morning and will be in session four days, with business sessions in the morning only. Monday afternoon the great parade, which will be reviewed by President Roosevelt, will be held. The other afternoons will be devoted to entertainment of the veterans.

Elaborate plans for the entertainment of the president have been made by the local committee in charge of arrangements. He will arrive here Sunday morning. After attending services at the Fort Street Presbyterian church he will be given a luncheon at the home of former Secretary of War General R. A. Alger.

Monday morning the president will address the school children of the city and attend the opening session of the convention. After a ride on the river in the afternoon he will review the parade. In the evening he will be given a banquet at the Light guard armory by the veterans, at which he will make a speech. He leaves in his special train at midnight.

PEARY COMING HOME.

Word Received From the Long Absent Arctic Explorer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the Peary Arctic club, has received a dispatch from Lieutenant R. E. Peary, the arctic explorer, dated Chateau Bay, Labrador. Lieutenant Peary says in the dispatch that he is on his way home on the relief ship Windward and that all on board are well.

Beyond that contained in the dispatch Mr. Bridgman has no information as to the movements of the explorer, who sailed with his expedition to the north pole July 4, 1898. Mr. Bridgman left Lieutenant Peary at Cape Sabine on the 29th of August, 1901.

The relief ship Windward left New York in July last to find the Peary expedition and has evidently been successful.

Captain Diedrich was in command of the Windward. His wife, who lives at Washington, N. J., received a dispatch from her husband giving the same information as that contained in the important message sent by Peary himself to Mr. Bridgman.

DEATH OF JUSTICE GRAY.

Appointed to Supreme Court Bench by President Arthur.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 16.—Justice Horace Gray, who retired from the United States supreme bench recently, is dead at his residence in Nahant of paralysis. He had been in poor health for some time. Since his retirement he had been staying at his summer home.

Judge Gray was born in Boston March 24, 1828, and was graduated from Harvard college in the class of 1843 and from the law school in 1849. He was admitted to the bar in 1851. He was reporter of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts from 1854 until 1861. He was appointed associate justice of that court in 1864 and chief justice in 1873. President Arthur commissioned him as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States Dec. 19, 1881.

In 1889 Justice Gray married Jeannette, daughter of the late Associate Justice Stanley Matthews, who survives him.

Ryan Knocked Out Carter.

FORT ERIE, Ont., Sept. 16.—Tommy Ryan may be the veteran of the middleweights in the prize ring, but he is still far from a back number. Last night in the arena of the Fort Erie club in a vicious bruising fight he knocked out Kid Carter of Brooklyn in the last minute of the sixth round. The knockout was clean and decisive.

A SCENE OF DEVASTATION.

Devastation by Forest Fires Worse Than at First Reported.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Sept. 16.—Reports of loss of property from forest fires continue to come in on every hand, but no reliable estimate of the extent of the damage can be obtained. A report from the Dale settlement east of Bell's mountain is to the effect that nearly every settler in that section has been driven from home and his property consumed by the great wall of fire that swept through there.

A Washougal report says that the loss of property in that section is worse than was at first thought. The entire surrounding country, including the Skamaka, Last Chance, Latton and Blue Bird mines, is a smoking ruin, and many people are homeless. Latton's sawmill at Bear prairie was destroyed, and two other mills back of Fern prairie are also in ashes.

Mayor Eastham of Vancouver has issued a call for a mass meeting of citizens today to devise ways and means to succor the suffering inhabitants of the burned districts of Clark county.

A special from Kalama, where great loss of life from forest fires were reported Saturday and Sunday, says: "News from the fire on Lewis river confirms the report of Saturday night and adds to the losses. The fallen timber has blocked the only road leading up the river, so that the work of the rescuers is slow. A party of ten persons with a team was known to be camping in the timbers. The charred remains of the horses and the wagon were found, but no trace of the people can be discovered.

Portland In Darkness.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 16.—Smoke from forest fires is so thick in Portland that between midnight and daylight it was impossible to see fifty feet away, and the arc lights could hardly be seen. In the harbor the steamboats did not dare to stir, the smoke was so dense. In Multnomah and Clackamas counties the fires have practically burned out, and the settlers are returning to their homes. Along both sides of the Columbia river fires are still burning, though the worst is over.

One Hundred Families Burned Out.

ELMA, Wash., Sept. 16.—Fully 100 families have been burned out in this vicinity. The total loss is estimated at $200,000.

SOLDIERS IN RIOT.

Arrested at the Presidio For Poker Playing.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—There was a riot at the entrance to the Presidio reservation when Police Lieutenant Kelly, with seven patrolmen, raided the saloon of Press Anderson and arrested thirty-three soldiers and ten civilians who were playing percentage poker.

Anderson was refused a license recently, but has been running his place in defiance of the law. While the police were making the arrests a crowd of soldiers gathered and assailed them with sticks, stones and brickbats. The police wielded their clubs vigorously, but with little effect, and were finally forced to fire into the uniformed mob. So far as known, however, no one was hit.

While the rioting was at its height an alarm was sounded at the Presidio, and three companies of infantry and one of cavalry were sent to the scene. They succeeded in driving most of the riotous soldiers back into the reservation, but not without considerable trouble, the men not being disposed to yield even to superior force. The forty-three prisoners were taken in patrol wagons to the police station.

STRIKERS ENJOINED.

Union Pacific Shop Hands Must Not Hinder Work.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 16.—Counsel for the Union Pacific Railroad company in this city has obtained from United States District Court Judge McPherson a temporary injunction against striking shopmen restraining them from interfering in any way with the men who took their places.

The injunction is sweeping and restrains the strikers from going on the grounds of the company, from interfering with the employees on their way to and from home, from congregating near the entrances to the shops, from in any way threatening or menacing employees, from following the workmen while on the streets and restrains the officers of the International Association of Machinists or any one else from publishing orders, statements, rules or directions which tend to agitate or engender feelings or sentiments which tend to violence.

The order is the result of the fight on Saturday night, when a nonunion man was killed.

Killed His Brother.

VINELAND, N. J., Sept. 16.—William Brandt of Newfield was shot and killed by his brother, Peter Brandt, at the latter's farm yesterday. The shooting was done during a quarrel, and the weapon used was a shotgun. The entire load of shot entered William Brandt's neck and went out at the back of his head, causing instant death.

A British Steel Trust.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The Daily Mail this morning declares that after many months of secret negotiations there has been formed an association of the leading British steel rail manufacturers for the purpose of controlling prices and the regulation of the output. The capital is roughly estimated at $60,000,000, not counting large debenture issues.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The cold wave has badly damaged the northern New York corn and buckwheat crops. The aggregate losses will be heavy.

MINES STARTING UP

Operators Resuming Work With Nonunion Help.

STRIKE LEADERS DENY THE REPORTS

Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company Claims Ability to Lift Eighteen Hundred Tons Daily From Collieries Now In Operation.

TAMAQUA, Pa., Sept. 16.—Operators have made some gains at different collieries in the Panther Creek and Mahanoy valleys. The Greenwood washery, owned by Beddall Bros., one mile east of here, has been started up with twenty-five nonunion men, who are now being protected by fifty armed deputies. No one is allowed to cross the dead line, 200 yards from the washery.

The Lehigh Coal and Navigation company reports that more than fifty new men are at work at Nos. 4 and 12 collieries, while the Reading's washeries at North Mahanoy and Maple Hill, which started last week, have 150 nonunionists. These gains have been accomplished without trouble.

An official of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company says that it is expected that the daily output from the No. 4 and No. 12 collieries will now be increased from 1,400 to 1,800 tons a day. The leaders of the mine workers ridicule the claims of the company. They say there are no more men at work than there were last week. No disturbance of any consequence has been reported.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE.

Strike Leaders and Others to Meet at Wilkesbarre.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 16.—An important conference has been called at strike headquarters. Among those who will take part will be President Mitchell, District Presidents Nichols, Duffy and Fahey and National Treasurer Wilson of Indianapolis and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. Bishop Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church of Chicago may also be present. It is stated the chief topic that will be discussed will be the relief plan. Mr. Gompers, it is said, has some proposition to make which will insure steady relief for the striking miners all winter should they decide to continue the battle.

Sheriff Jacobs and a large number of deputies assembled at the courthouse yesterday in anticipation of trouble occurring at some of the mines, but, outside of an outbreak at Old Forge, in which an Italian was badly beaten by strikers, the day was a very quiet one in the strike region.

National Board Member John Fallon went to Nanticoke early in the morning to head off any trouble in that section, and other prominent officials of the United Mine Workers went to other parts of the county to advise against any marches on the collieries. But no marches were attempted. Neither was there any effort made to resume work at any of the big mines. It is said that the attempt may be made when least expected, probably some day this week.

Memorial to Professor Proctor.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—A perpetual memorial to the late Professor William Proctor, Jr., of Philadelphia was decided upon by the American Pharmaceutical association at the final session of its fiftieth annual meeting. About $18,000 has been raised by the association since Professor Proctor's death in 1874, and this sum will be applied to the award of a gold medal to be struck not more than once in three years for the man who in all the world shall be adjudged most to have advanced the cause of pharmacy.

Noted Artist Dead.

SALEM, Mass., Sept. 16.—Miss Mary Elizabeth Williams, an artist of international reputation, is dead at her home here. Years ago she studied art in Rome and afterward lived beside the Mediterranean and traveled in Egypt. She met John Ruskin, who gave her pictures considerable attention. Two years ago Miss Williams and her sister returned here to live in the Osgood House, a place of historic interest and which belonged in the family. Miss Williams was seventy-seven years of age.

Secretary Root Returns.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Secretary of War Elihu Root returned from his trip to Europe on the steamship Kroonland. Mr. Root was unaccompanied by his wife and daughters, who remained on the other side, to return, Mr. Root said, early in October. The secretary left at once for Washington.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

GREENFIELD, Ind., Sept. 16.—Two men were killed, one probably fatally hurt and a dozen others more or less seriously injured by the explosion of the boiler in a sawmill at Maxwell, Ind.

COMING EVENTS.

September 16—The annexation election in North Plainfield.
September 16—Opening of John Leal's School.
September 16—Continuation of opening of Boys' Club.

WHO WILL WIN?

By the time this reaches most of the borough homes, the fight over annexation will be practically over. A few scattered ballots may yet be cast but the great bulk of the voters of North Plainfield have expressed themselves either for or against the proposition to leave Somerset county and become a part of Union. Just what the result will be no one can tell until the ballots are counted but we are confident that the people of North Plainfield have not failed to exercise their best judgment and that annexation will come in the very near future. If, however, the election fails to accomplish the purpose for which it was intended, we can only say that we believe that the voters of the borough have been deceived and that the day will soon come when they will regret, yes bitterly regret, the stand they took today.

It seems quite certain that the election has been a close one and, as we go to press, the men interested in the conduct of the campaign for and against are both claiming victory. The events of the last two weeks have won many votes for the annexation proposition and we cannot but feel that the confidence of Mr. Saunders and his fellow-workers in the good sense of their fellow citizens has not been in vain.

The campaign, which is now at an end, has not been of the kind we would have seen precede such an election. There has been a bitterness displayed, particularly on the side of the opposition for which there was no call or reason. Ever man had a right to his own view of the subject. It became simply a business proposition to be decided on its merits. There were arguments on both sides but we frankly believe today as we did when the campaign started that the bulk of the unanswerable arguments were on the side of annexation. We have never contended that anyone did not have a right to think otherwise but we have done our best to convince them that our position was the right one. So we have watched with much regret all this display of bitterness and animosity on the part of many of the "antis" to those who have taken a prominent part in the advocacy of the measure.

Whatever is the result of today's election, one thing is certain and that is that Somerset county must do something without delay if it is not to remain dead for all time. Somerset is far larger than Union and the mileage of its roads is naturally considerably greater yet it has fewer miles of good roads than Union has today. The people throughout the county have seen the beneficial results of such improvements and the demand for macadam roads has become so great that Somerset is confronted with the proposition that it must double its tax rate or bond the county for the demand for good road must be heeded. Then it is a well-known fact that the present quarters of the county court and other county officials are inadequate and old-fashioned. If Somerset is to remain even a laggard in the race with progress, new county buildings must be built and without delay.

Councilman R. I. Tolles' reply to the criticisms of the city sewage disposal plant by certain of the "antis" was well timed. It appeared in full in yesterday's Daily Press. It should be read with care, not only by residents of the borough but by the city people as well for there are a few on this side of the brook who have absorbed that fallacy which the "antis" have been trying to spread. The Daily Press has contended that the report to the State Board of Sewage Commissioners was a satisfactory one and Mr. Tolles' letter simply backed up our stand with a few facts.

Every bank in Pittsburg which has a savings department now advertises in the daily newspapers, using bright, concise and fetching arguments, comments the Philadelphia Record. The result shows that advertising does not merely draw business from one house to another, but creates new business, as there has been an enormous increase in the number of depositors since the banks began advertising.

With the annexation fight on one side of the brook and the factional fight in the ranks of the political party in power on the other, Greater Plainfield has seen a display of bitterness, the like of which has not been seen for many a year.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Several days ago the caretaker of Mrs. Simpson's summer home near Washington Valley discovered that thieves had broken into the house and barn and got away with the family carriage and some of the furniture. The place has not been occupied this season, Mrs. Simpson and family remaining in the city. The thieves have no doubt been acquainted with these facts and the robbery was an easy one as the home is some distance back from the road. No clue has yet been obtained to the robbers and very little hopes are entertained for the recovery of the stolen articles.

The local ball team has been very fortunate this season with the weather. Only two games have had to be postponed on account of rain. One being with the Xaviers and the game Saturday with the St. Marys.

Foss & Jeter are large receivers of fresh fish. They buy direct from the nets and have fresh supplies at their local store every day. They deliver all orders free in time for breakfast when asked.

This is ideal weather to have painting and papering done in your home and the New York Painting and Decorating Company will do the work for you reasonably and satisfactorily. Inspect their stock of wall-papers.

Bonn, the West Front street milliner, is rapidly preparing his fall and winter stock of hats for women. Yesterday he closed out his stock of straws and within a short time he will announce his fall opening. There is no better place to select a hat than at Bonn's store.

The Paris Cloak Company is prepared for the fall and winter months with a large and complete stock of goods including suitings, separate skirts and waists. If you like suitings will be made to order. You can save money by trading at this store on West Front street.

The cool weather is now approaching when a nice chop or a steak for breakfast is doubly relished. VanSickle, of North avenue, has the dainty kind that make you pity the vegetarian and yet these don't begin to be all the good things in the meat line at this market.

If it's drugs or medicines the good wife told you to get then be sure and stop at Nagles', corner of West Front and Grove streets. She prefers to have them from there and if she neglected to say so it was an oversight. Nagle's pharmacy is one of the best and most up-to-date in the State.

Paterson Not in Sympathy.

Because their leader refused to pay a fifty dollar license fee, the miners' band from Summit Hill, Pa., which played in this city recently, was refused permission to give concerts in Paterson streets. This is the first time they have been refused the desired privilege to play and collect funds for the striking miners and they left the city very much disgruntled.

Joseph Clark as Host.

The home of Joseph Clark, of Central avenue, was the scene of a merry gathering, Saturday evening, when he entertained fifteen friends in an informal manner. Vocal and instrumental selections were the feature, several of the latter being contributed by the host. The affair terminated at midnight when an elaborate supper was served.

PRESIDENT RECEIVES

Many Thousands Shake the Hand of Mr. Roosevelt.

NEIGHBOR DAY AT OYSTER BAY.

For Three Hours the Steady Stream of Friends and Acquaintances Filed Past the Porch at Sagamore Hill.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 16.—President Roosevelt yesterday received his friends and neighbors of Nassau county, and between 6,000 and 7,000 people shook his hand. The reception was held at his country home, on Sagamore hill, and from 3 o'clock until nearly 6 he was busy shaking hands and renewing old acquaintances. He met people whom he had not seen for thirty years and shook hands with men who had known him when he was a child. The president thoroughly enjoyed the affair and was as fresh when it was over as when he began. He expressed his feelings to a woman in the crowd who asked him if he was getting tired.

"Not a bit," he replied. "It takes more than a trolley car to knock me out or a crowd to tire me."

The weather could not have been more delightful. The day was just cool enough to make walking pleasant, and there was not a cloud in the sky. The decorators did their work thoroughly, and when the sun rose it shone upon a village resplendent with color. Nearly all of the business houses and many of the private dwellings were adorned with flags and bunting. The most effective decoration was along the road leading from the center of the town to the road that winds up Sagamore hill. Here at a distance of every hundred feet were hung large American flags which formed a canopy of stars and stripes, under which the people rode on their way to Sagamore hill. Where the private road leaves the main thoroughfare a large arch of flowers and flags had been erected, with the word "Welcome" in the center. The president's residence was handsomely decorated with large flags.

The event, which passed off so successfully, was in the hands of a general committee, of which Frank C. Travis was chairman, and a number of other committees, of which the following were the chairmen: Executive, W. Emlen Roosevelt; reception, A. L. Cheney; decoration, Julius Blum; transportation, Maurice Townsend; finance, Franklin Hall.

The crowds began to arrive early from points on Long Island, and by noon the village streets were crowded. Delegations came in from many of the places near here, and several special trains added their quota to the crowd.

At 1 o'clock the members of the committees, headed by a band, started for Sagamore hill, and they were followed by vehicles of all descriptions filled with Long Islanders, many of whom had come a considerable distance to greet the president.

The precautions to guard the president against any possible harm were of the most thorough character. In addition to Sheriff Johnson's 300 special deputies who had been sworn in for the day, a large number of secret service men and policemen from New York in plain clothes were on the porch and about the grounds. No one was allowed to go past the president with a camera or a stick of any description. Cameras, valises, canes, umbrellas and in many cases overcoats and women's wraps were taken from their owners and piled up under a tree near the porch until the space around looked like a secondhand clothing store.

It was 2:45 o'clock when the reception began. President Roosevelt stood on his porch and shook hands with all. After passing him the visitors passed off the porch, along a road leading to the side of the house, where lemonade was served, and thence by another road out of the grounds. The lemonade was served in small glass cups on which was inscribed, "President Roosevelt, 1902, Oyster Bay." The cups were retained as souvenirs.

On the porch with the president were Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. W. Emlen Roosevelt, Miss Christine Roosevelt, Miss Lorraine Roosevelt, Mrs. E. Reed Merritt, Frank E. Travis, Gerard Beekman, W. Emlen Roosevelt, A. L. Cheney, Assistant Secretary Loeb, Father Powers, Rev. Henry Homer Washburn, Rev. Mr. Russell, Hon. August Montant and Commandant Snyman, late of the Boer army.

All sorts of people in all conditions of life filed by the president—white and black, poor and well-to do, women with babies in arms and several with dogs, small boys and little girls. All got a pleasant smile and a shake of the hand. Many were in line who had known the president most of his life, and their delight in renewing an old acquaintance was apparent, but none gave the president more pleasure than the greeting of the two old family servants Maggie and Bridget Mitchell, who had been servants in his father's family. They came from New York, where they now live, to greet the president and to show him a photograph of his father and one of himself when he was four years of age. The president was delighted to see the pictures and the old servants and presented the sisters to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt was dressed in a Paris gown of cream broadcloth elaborately trimmed in applique lace, chiffon and heavy silk cord. She also wore a dainty garden hat covered with pink and white roses.

None of the visitors was introduced to the president, but when he recognized an old acquaintance Mr. Roosevelt generally called him by name and addressed some pleasant remark to him.

SUICIDE ON THE OLYMPIA.

Lieutenant Morris Follows Example of Chaplain Morrison.

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—Lieutenant John R. Morris, U. S. N., was found dead in his stateroom on the United States cruiser Olympia by a fellow officer yesterday. He had committed suicide off the Boston navy yard.

Lieutenant Morris was the engineering officer of the Olympia and began his duty on that ship Jan. 25 last. No cause is known for his act.

Captain Henry W. Lyon, U. S. N., the commanding officer of the Olympia, is in Paris, Me., and in his absence the ship is in command of Lieutenant Commander C. H. Harlow, U. S. N.

Lieutenant John Ramsay Morris was appointed to the Naval academy from Missouri. He was made a naval cadet Nov. 15, 1889, and was honorably discharged June 30, 1895. April 17, 1896, he re-entered the navy and was made an assistant engineer. Then on March 3, 1899, his rank was changed to ensign. He became a lieutenant (junior grade) April 17, 1899, and got his rank of lieutenant July 12, 1901. He served on the Concord from 1893 to 1896, was then on the Texas and in the latter part of 1896 went to the Solace, on which he served until 1901, when he was assigned to the torpedo station until ordered to the Olympia.

Lieutenant Morris was the second officer of the Olympia, Dewey's flagship, to commit suicide within five days.

Chaplain William F. Morrison, U. S. N., committed suicide by shooting on Thursday afternoon last at the marine hospital at Chelsea, where he had been transferred a few days before.

PENNSYLVANIA'S NEW CAPITOL.

Contract Awarded For Structure to Be Completed Jan. 1, 1906.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 16.—The state capitol commission has awarded the contract for the new capitol, for which an appropriation of $4,000,000 was made by the last legislature, to George E. Payne & Co. of Philadelphia. The contract provides that the building shall be constructed of granite, that the dome shall be of the same material and that the structure shall be completed by Jan. 1, 1906.

William Miller & Sons and Roydhouse, Arey & Co., associated contractors of Pittsburg and Philadelphia, were the lowest bidders if terra cotta were used in the construction of the dome. The commission decided at its meeting yesterday on the advice of its architect, Joseph M. Houston of Philadelphia, and its supervising engineer, Bernard R. Greene of Washington, to construct the dome of granite so as to make it uniform with the rest of the building.

Payne & Co. were the lowest bidders for the construction of the building with a granite dome, their bid being $3,000,000. The next lowest if this material were used in the dome were William Miller & Sons and Roydhouse, Arey & Co., who bid $3,548,000, with $225,000 to be added if a granite dome were determined upon.

The other bidders were Henderson & Co., Doyle & Doak and the Colonial Construction company, all of Philadelphia, and Norcross Bros. of Boston. The bids were opened by the commission on Sept. 6. Work will begin on the building about Oct. 1.

VOLTAGE OF LIGHTNING.

It Exceeds the Carrying Power of an Electric Plant of 40,000 Volts Ten Times Over.

Few people have any understanding of the disruptive power of a severe bolt of lightning. The figures quoted convey little, even when one is told that at the present time the limit of carrying power of an electric plant is electricity at 40,000 volts, one-tenth of that of a heavy lightning bolt, says an electrical authority.

Perhaps a truer conception is to be gained from the story of an old Long Island resident, who admits being very fond of squirrel hunting, and says: "In a piece of clear woods near where I lived several years ago was an enormous white oak tree several feet through at the stump, and spreading over half an acre of ground. Under certain conditions I could always count on finding a fox squirrel in that tree, and I knew every limb of it.

"One morning, after a tremendous thunder storm, in which we all had noticed a mighty thunder bolt, I visited this tree. Only a pile of broken brushwood and thousands of little splinters scattered all over the ground for the distance of several hundred feet all around marked where this giant of the forest had stood. Some explosive force had torn the roots out until there was a hole in the ground eight feet deep and ten feet across.

"That one bolt of electricity had torn that tree to pieces in a way that ten woodsmen working an entire week could not have accomplished.

APPETITE AND AGE.

Well-Known Physician Who Deprecates Present-Day Practice of Over-Feeding the Aged.

Sir Henry Thompson deprecates increased eating as a means of keeping up the strength of those who are advancing in years, and particularly objects to the repeated and general use of concentrated forms of animal nourishment for the aged. Overnourishment in old age is apt to lead to pains and aches due to the impairment of excretion and a long protracted course of overfeeding will end in an attack of gout. Even artificial teeth are not to be considered an unmixed blessing, for by a provision of nature the teeth begin to decay and become useless just when the system begins to thrive without much animal food of coarse fiber. Indigestion, says Sir Henry Thompson, is mostly not a disease, but an admonition. "It is the language of the stomach, and is mostly an unknown tongue to those who are addressed." It means that the individual has not yet found his appropriate diet. "There is no food whatever which is wholesome in itself; that food only is wholesome which is so to the individual."

STORIES OF SNAKEBITES.

Statistics Regarding Fatalities in India Are Unreliable and the Reason.

An English traveler just returned from India says that the stories about the great number of deaths from snake-bites in India are to a great extent unreliable, as statistics, when carefully analyzed, show. He accounts, moreover, for the extreme exaggerations in figures on very plausible grounds. In India, he says, the law requires that when there is a sudden death a detailed report of it must be made to the civic surgeons, and as there are many such deaths far from the civic offices where the report should be made, the under officers perform their duty with the least possible trouble. To save the annoyance of transporting dead bodies, or vital organs, and the loss of time in getting evidence on the facts of the cases—which may be plain murders, by poison or otherwise—a report of death by "snakebite" is made. This sort of report is very convenient and makes interesting statistics.

Keeping a Rooster Quiet.

An English artist recently was summoned to appear in court for allowing a rooster to crow in the morning to the annoyance of his neighbors. The case was amicably settled. A London newspaper thereupon printed the following: "It is quite possible to keep fowls and prevent them from crowing. All that is needed is a slight string over the neck and fastened to the foot. It is the habit of chanticleer to throw back his head when crowing, and he will not crow if prevented, as he may be, by the string from doing so. The contrivance has the great merit of inflicting no pain whatever. The bird scarcely knows of the pressure of the string until he tries to crow, and a harmless jerk brings him to order."

Delinquents Brought to Time.

A paper in Golden, Col., raked in many delinquents on the ground of this eloquent appeal: "You may approximate the stars in a nail keg, hang the ocean on a grapevine to dry, wipe the nose of a cyclone with a towel, cut off the tail end of a tornado for a keepsake, put the sky in the ground to soak, unbuckle the bellyband of eternity and open up the sun and moon as health resorts, but never be deluded with the idea that you can escape the other side of purgatory if you don't pay for your paper."

Fasting Feats in India.

In fasting feats the sect of Jains, in India, is far ahead of all rivals. Fasts of from 30 to 40 days are very common and once a year they are said to abstain from food for 75 days.

A Subject of Large Proportions.

Words are too feeble to describe the glories of the Iowa corn crop this year, but most of the Iowa papers are trying to do it, says the Chicago Tribune.

FOR HOUSE WEAR.

Gowns of Challie Tucking, Point d'Esprit and Mull.

Pretty and inexpensive negligees are made of white or ecru point d'esprit trimmed with point d'esprit lace or the heavier varieties. Pale colored challies are also inexpensive, as they only require a touch of lace and a sash brought up empire wise from beneath the arms.

Nearly all the pretty negligees are made empire style, although there are a few who try to revive the Greek draperies. One of the easiest ways of making an empire house gown is to arrange a princess slip of tucked material run through with perpendicular bands of insertion. At the bottom should be two or three ruffles of the material, either fulled or accordion plaited. Over this comes a short bolero jacket with elbow sleeves. This is of all over lace. Then under it and crossed over the front comes a sash of pale hued silk, which is fastened into a soft knot with long ends behind.

OF WHITE MULL.

A dainty negligee is the one shown. It is made of fine white mull. The collarless yoke is laid in fine tucks crossed by beadings of lace run through with pale blue ribbon. The bertha is slashed here and there and is trimmed with narrow lace and the beading. The sleeves are tucked to the elbow, and from there they puff into a tight wristband. The bottom of the gown is trimmed with a gathered ruffle headed by beading and ribbon, which is caught at intervals with big bows.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Pale Taffeta Gowns—White Dresses More Popular Than Ever.

For evening wear nothing can be smarter at present than a dress of plain pale colored taffeta appliqued with rich yellow lace. Dresses of this sort are made with many pin tuckings, with soft fronts covered with the applique and chiffon sashes. They are decorated with little embroidered medallions and dainty touches of every sort.

One of the prettiest gowns seen recently was of pale pink taffeta with the skirt tucked on the bias and inset with pale yellow narrow lace. The waist was tucked straight across, with a high collar of the lace and narrow lace between the tucks. The sleeves were tight fitting to the elbow, where they flared into a huge puff of white chiffon, held into a cuff of the lace.

White dresses of all kinds will be extensively worn this winter. They will be principally cloths, crepes and taffetas, not to speak of the softer weaves of silk.

EVENING WAIST.

Separate evening waists will be found useful to wear with similarly colored skirts when traveling. Thus a black dress will have two waists, one high, the other low cut.

An evening waist of crepe de chine is here shown. The trimmings are black chiffon and jeweled ecru lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Beryl—Was Jack much embarrassed when he proposed to Miss Antique Gotrox?

Sibyl—Well, I should say so.

Beryl—I suppose he blushed and stammered the way they all do.

Sibyl—Not at all. His was financial embarrassment.—Baltimore Herald.

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

The invitation was superfluous, as Miss Dacres had seated herself wearily in the best stuffed rocker, and laid her head back against the clean tidy. However, what she had told me about her hair had made me easy in my mind as to that. I saw as I looked at her that her eyes were closed, and I really thought she would drop off to sleep.

"Are you so tired," said I, "that you cannot listen to me for a moment?"

"I don't know what's the matter with me," she answered. "I never was so tired in all my life. I'm awfully nervous. I suppose that last case wore me out. He couldn't have anybody but me—took a fancy to me, I suppose. It's real sad after you've nursed a person for weeks to see him die. You get so kind of attached. Gracious! how I worked over that old man."

"Did—did he leave you anything for all that nursing?" asked I, forgetting for the moment the object of our coming into the parlor.

"No," she said, "he didn't—nothing but some pretty bad thoughts. It's those I'm trying to get rid of here, and I hope you won't allude to the subject until I'm stronger. I'll tell you all about it later. Perhaps in a few weeks I shall feel equal to the strain. I——"

"I'm afraid you and I shall part company before a few weeks are over," said I; "in fact, that is what I asked you to come in here about this morning."

I saw the deep color creep up under her pallid skin as I said these words. Her eyelids trembled, and I felt almost sorry for her.

"Will you tell me why?" she asked in a low voice. "Tell me at once please. Have you heard—have I done anything? You said yesterday that I might come. It seemed such a rest to me, such an ideal home, and now you want to——" She had proceeded thus far with almost passion in her voice, now she dropped back to her old, quiet tone, saying, "Give me your reasons."

"I saw your meeting last night."

She sat up, opened her eyes, and laughed. "Oh, is that all? My meeting with Waldemar. That wasn't anything. Why, he's my brother. He's employed in an automobile factory, Waldemar. Mother sent out my slippers by him. She knew how careless I am, and——"

"How did he make himself known to you?" said I severely. "How did he know where you were?"

"Well, as to that, I could as well make my whereabouts known to my own brother as to anyone else, I suppose. We rode out here last week on our wheels, Waldemar and I. He can't get out until the day class in learning have got through. So we generally go out in the evening about six o'clock. We rode past your house, and I told Waldemar that if I went into the country to stay, it should be here. I told him, too, that I was coming out yesterday to see if you could take me in, and if I wasn't back at tea time, to ask mother to send out my slippers. They're awfully good to me, mother and Waldemar, and Jim was until he—he—went away." The girl's face flushed, her eyes grew moist, and I began to repent me somewhat of my suspicions. "However," she resumed, "since you seem to have these suspicions of me, and as my trunks have not come, I suppose I had better go. Perhaps I can find some place farther out in the country. Oh, dear! It's awfully hard, just as the apple blossoms are coming on. I see you've got lots of 'em in the side yard. Well, there is not much to pack, and I'll——"

"I don't want to turn you out," said I. "Certainly you must stay until I have worked out your week's board."

"Oh, no," said she, "I don't think that at all. Perhaps you had better give me back the amount that I have paid for my meals, but rooms are always paid for in advance, I believe, and I must lose that, I suppose. I can ill afford to." She sighed.

"You can stay your week out," said I. Where was I to get the five dollars that she had paid me for her meals? Perhaps when the other new boarder came, I might get it from him in advance, and pay her and let her go, but it seemed as if the question must be settled, now we had begun to argue it out. Why had I not had a little more prudence, a little more forethought? Had I waited a few hours, the lower-back would have arrived, and out of his advance payment I could have reimbursed her for what I had taken.

"If I were sure he was your brother," said I.

"What if he isn't? We didn't do anything wrong, did we? I just talked with him about fifteen minutes in front of your gate in the bright moonlight. But it was Waldemar. That I'll swear. I've half a mind to ask you to go to town and see mother to-day, since you are so suspicious; but no, I won't. I feel really insulted that you should suspect me so. A poor tired nurse, who is worn out in taking care of sick people; and I think I'll go anyway."

"Very well," said I, "perhaps it is better, but before you go, please wait a moment to see me. You know you gave me last night four bills, two fives, one one-hundred note, and a fifty-dollar bill. Did you know it?"

"Oh, yes," said she. "Of course I did. See how I trusted you, and you are suspicious of me just because my brother comes out from town with a pair of old slippers for me. Well, I'll go and pack, and when I'm ready I'll whistle up the stairs."

"Oh, no!" exclaimed I, "not for worlds! My aunt would be horrified. Please just sit quietly here in the hall while I go and get it."

I intended asking Aunt Jane Mary for the extra five dollars. Shame compels me to confess that I intended to let my boarder lose the money paid in advance for the room. I could do nothing else. Such are the pleasures of adversity.

"I may as well be packing," said she. "The truth of the matter is, I thought the money would be safer with you than with me sleeping on the lower floor, and all——"

I was upstairs before she finished her sentence and in my room. I took the keys from my pocket and fitted them in the lock. It stuck for a moment—it never had before—and I pushed it rather roughly. I turned the key with such force that it broke off in the lock.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! What shall I do?" I cried.

"What's the matter, Sophronia?"

THE KEY BROKE OFF IN THE LOCK.

It was Aunt Jane Mary's voice. My door was open and so was hers.

"I've broken the key off in the lock of my desk."

I ran across the hall as I said these

Some Facts About Football

Enormous Sum Required to Equip a College Team

THE football rooters are beginning to make a noise in the land, and enthusiasts predict that the coming season will be the most successful in the history of the sport. Golf cranks who, a short time ago, ventured the assertion that the gridiron would be deserted this fall for the links are drawing in their horns, so to speak, and reluctantly admit that the number of teams and individuals now preparing to engage in football is greater than ever before. Golf is a good game for gentlemen of uncertain age, but it does not particularly appeal to the younger element which prefers tennis and baseball in the summer and football in the autumn.

An authority on football was asked the other day how many players of the game he thought there were in the United States, including high school boys, collegians and amateur teams, referring, of course, to the American college game only. "Fifty thousand," was the reply. He estimated that there were 3,000 teams in the country, and an average of 15 players to the team is a very conservative one. At the big universities, such as Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Chicago, Michigan, Wisconsin and numerous others, the squads run from 75 to 100 men each in the early part of the season.

The amount of money that is expended every season in supplying this army with the necessaries of conducting their campaigns has engaged the attention of a New York Sun newspaper statistician. The game has spread from one ocean to the other and the money spent for railroad fare in carrying out the season's schedule is no small item. Then there are hotel bills, training table expenses, expenses for officials, liniment, employes to look after the grounds and last, but by no means least, the expenditure for equipment, which includes moleskins, jerseys, sweaters, headgears, shoes and footballs.

There is, in fact, no game that puts so much money in general circulation as football. Baseball and horse racing, if the latter can be termed a game, involves larger amounts of capital, but football circulates the money more freely among the public at large. Some of the big universities spend as much as $2,000 every fall for body equipment alone, and the entire expense account of one college last season—and it was not one of the biggest ones either—was $18,000. Take the well-known universities, say Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Columbia, Brown, Chicago, Michigan and Wisconsin, and it is estimated that they will spend for football regalia, which are principally uniforms, a total of $20,000 each season, and these ten form but a small part of the gridiron community of the entire country.

It is a hard thing to say just how much football teams spend in a season, but an estimate of $1,000,000 would not be too high. Football is nevertheless, a very profitable sport and the colleges make much more out of it than they spend. The football profits support the crews and other athletic branches. With seats at two dollars apiece and crowds from 15,000 to 30,000 at the big games one can readily see that the gate receipts are not to be despised. If a million dollars is spent by all the teams of the country in a season it may be assumed that as much as $2,000,000 is taken in.

The charge has been made that of late years there has been too much tinkering with football playing rules, that the sport was being made too complicated and that weight and tactics were crowding out individuality and fundamental knowledge of the game. Yet, in spite of these complaints, which are by no means without foundation, the game with its burdens of intricacy is everywhere advancing with tremendous strides and bids fair to become what baseball once was, "the national game."

Osborne House, Isle of Wight

King Edward's Coronation Gift to His People

OSBORNE HOUSE, Isle of Wight, which was given to the British people by King Edward VII., as a coronation offering, was one of the favorite estates of the late Queen Victoria. It is doubtful if the king could have found a more suitable present, and his intention, announced a few days ago, to convert it into a home for disabled army and navy officers meets with the full approval of the British public, according to enthusiastic accounts received from London.

The Osborne house estate, once called Austerburne or Easter Brook, was held for many years by the Bowermans, an ancient island family. There were several owners until, in the time of Charles I., it was purchased by Charles Mann. The civil war found Mann with a large sum of gold and silver in the strong box of his magnificent castle. He considered the dense woods near by a more secure hiding place, and buried his treasure. The legend has it that he forgot to mark the spot and was never able to recover his wealth. His heiress and granddaughter married a Mr. Blackford. Lady Isabella Blackford, their descendant, sold the estate to Queen Victoria in 1840. It is stated that the prince consort, father of King Edward, helped Architect Cubitt plan Osborne house as it exists to-day. The estate proper was enlarged from time to time by extensive purchases, until it now contains some 5,000 acres.

The new house is in the style of Palladio. There are two striking towers—the campanile, or bell tower, 90 feet in height, and the flag tower, immediately behind the late queen's private apartments, which rises to the height of 107 feet. The rooms occupied by Queen Victoria will be the only part of the house not given over to the public.

The garden is arranged in terraces, and ends in a superb lawn, which slopes to the water's edge, where there is a little jetty used by the late queen. In these gardens the prince consort made his harmless and at one time much ridiculed experiments in agriculture and forestry.

Outside of the apartments occupied by Queen Victoria the council room at Osborne is of most interest. It was at a meeting in this room, in 1845, that the Peel cabinet split over the repeal of the corn laws as a relief for Irish famine. In the same room hangs Landseer's famous painting, "The Deer Drive," one of the rarest specimens of English art.

Believed That Sudden Summons This Afternoon Means That Gen. Oliphant Has Passed Away.

Captain W. K. Browning, of Company K, received a telegram from Col. Collins, of the Second Reigment this afternoon, instructing him to assemble his command Thursday morning in uniform caps, without leggins, white gloves, and proceed to Trenton. He will advise Captain Browning later as to hour of leaving the Plainfield station.

It is believed that the orders means that Adjutant General Alexander C. Oliphant, of the National Guard, who has been very ill, is dead and that he will be buried with military honors and that a part of the National Guard will take part in the funeral ceremonies.

Captain Browning says that the men will assemble in the armory Thursday morning at an hour that will be announced in tomorrow's Daily Press and he requests the men to bring rags with them prepared to clean guns.

bered that he broke his record at the last special election and forgot to be on hand. In the first district, the honor went to Fred E. Bettman, of Willow avenue.

Even a presidential election never managed to arouse the interest than today's contest did. The voting in the early morning hours was remarkably heavy. At 9 o'clock, 243 ballots had been cast in the first district and 179 in the second.

Nearly all the leaders were on hand during the morning. Charles W. McCutchen, president of the North Plainfield Citizens' Association, the organization of the "antis," voted early and went to New York. So did W. W. Howland, another prominent "anti."

Most of the leaders were too busy to talk much. Mayor Smalley declared "Indications point to a close but good-natured contest." No one but the Mayor would have the nerve to suggest such a thing after all the bitterness that has been displayed.

"I think we will win," remarked Former Mayor W. L. Saunders, "but it is too early to estimate on majorities."

Assessor Elston M. French was more enthusiastic. "It will be carried by 100 majority" was his forecast of the result.

A. V. D. Honeyman was cool and collected as usual. "I refuse to make an estimate," he declared to a Press reporter when asked his opinion of the result. "But of course we will win," he added.

At 12 o'clock vote in two districts as follows: First district, 321; Second district, 262.

PICNICKED BY FIRE.

"Korn Roast" Given Last Evening in Randolph's Woods by the Seventh-Day Endeavorers.

A "korn roast" was a novel affair held last evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh Day Baptist church, in Nathan Randolph's woods on Woodland avenue.

Thirty-six members and friends of the society took the 7:30 o'clock trolley to the woods, where an evening of pleasure followed. The refreshments consisted of corn, white and sweet potatoes and apples. A huge fire was built in the woods and this served a double purpose, that of keeping the young people warm and also roasting the potatoes.

The affair was arranged by a committee consisting of Dr. Martha Stillman, Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis, Miss Ida Randolph and Sydney R. Titsworth. All agreed that the committee had furnished a most pleasant and profitable evening for all. It was about 10:30 o'clock when the Endeavorers returned home.

Rescue Mission Service.

The Epworth League from the Methodist church in Rahway will have charge of the services at the Rescue Mission tonight. The singing will be led by four pieces of music, and a quartette which the League will bring with them. After the services a social hour will be enjoyed.

Charged With Stealing Fruit.

Albert Pearson was arraigned before Justice Huff at police headquarters, this morning, charged by James G. Emmons, of East Front street, with stealing fruit from his premises. The matter was adjourned until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Off to Boston.

Mrs. Andrew Cox and Mrs. David Bush, of Mizpah Lodge, left today for Boston to attend the government session of the United Order of Independent Odd Ladies, which begins tomorrow.

NORTH PLAINFIELD VOTED NOT TO CHANGE THE COUNTY LINE

Annexation Was Defeated at the Special Borough Election Yesterday By a Majority of 161.

SALOON ELEMENT POTENT FACTOR

THE FIGHT CONTINUED, HOT AND BITTER, UP TO THE TIME THE POLLS WERE CLOSED AND THE ELECTION WAS OVER.

The Morning Vote Looked Like Annexation, But the Saloon Element Got in Its Work During the Day, and, When the Polls Closed, Mayor Smalley Admitted the Defeat of the Project by 150 Majority—First District Was Very Close—Great Crowds Around the Polling Place—Wild Excitement and Serenades After it Was All Over.

North Plainfield will remain a part of Somerset county for some time to come Such was the decision reached by the voters of that borough in the special election held yesterday. After one of the hottest and most bitter campaigns ever waged in North Plainfield, the opponents to the project of transferring that borough from Somerset county to Union gained a victory. The question was defeated by a vote of 608 to 447, a majority of 161.

It was a hot fight up to the time the last ballot was cast and both sides labored their hardest to win. Probably the most remarkable thing about the election was the incongruity of the forces allied against the question. Most potent of the latter was the saloon element which united to a man to oppose annexation. Several of the tavern keepers labored openly with the workers of the "anti" organization while all used every means in their power to defeat the question at vote. That their efforts were not in vain was shown by the result.

Before the election both sides claimed a majority but admitted that it was going to be close. In the morning it looked like victory for annexation but the situation changed during the day. When the polls were closed, Mayor N. B. Smalley, who worked indefatigably for annexation, declared, "We are beaten by 150 votes." And the result showed that the Mayor knew what he was talking about. Others of the annexationists, who did not have the personal knoledge of the borough and its voters that the Mayor possesses, were more sanguine in their belief. As the counting progressed, it became evident that the attempt was going to meet with failure and the only question was as to the size of the defeat.

Never has North Plainfield been stirred so as it was in yesterday's election. There were few, indeed, who did not line up with one side or the other. Political parties were forgotten and strange and entirely new lines were drawn which resulted in some peculiar combinations. Where, as is usually the case in ordinary elections, the floating vote is somewhat divided, in this case it was solidly arrayed against annexation, thanks to the efforts of the saloon element which played a very prominent part in the fight.

From the time that the polls opened yesterday morning at 6 o'clock until they closed at 7 o'clock last night, the workers both for and against were hard at work. The first three hours of the morning showed a very heavy vote. It was then that the annexationists gathered in greatest numbers. Most of the commuters voted before they went to their trains and a majority of them were in favor of it.

Both sides had well-equipped organization and the work of stirring out the voters was carried on with even more thoroughness than at the usual county elections. A dozen carriages were kept busy by both sides. In addition there was no end of personal work outside of the organization.

In the realm of annexation which was scattered between the regular headquarters in the Eggerding building and W. L. Smalley & Co.'s butcher shop, there was to be seen Mayor N. B. Smalley, ssessor E. M. French, Samuel Townsend, Former Councilman George T. Rogers, P. A. Emmons and a number of others of more or less prominence in borough affairs. Many other annexationists were on hand and did good work for a portion of the day.

As the captains of the "anti" band there were A. V. D. Honeyman, Former Mayor John H. VanWinkle, John H. VanWinkle, Jr., Dr. J. H. Buchanan, Dr. J. H. Cooley and several others who were assisted by a number. Working side by side with them was Richard Boice, proprietor of the Somerset Hotel and Mr. Burns, proprietor of the Crescent Hotel. Several of their bar-keepers were on hand and their followers were legion. Other of the "hotel" proprietors were actively engaged in the fight for votes but operated from the seclusion of their respective establishments.

There was more or less feeling displayed during the entire day and some fierce arguments were heard. Collisions were threatened several times between some of the more partizan of the workers but the troubles were staved off before any serious damage resulted. As the day wore away, many wandered over to the borough to see what was happening and the leaders on both sides were besieged by those who wanted to know what the probabilities were.

While both sides were straining every nerve as the time for closing the polls grew apace, the work done by the saloon element was manifest to those who were closely in touch with the situation. Probably no one was better acquainted with the voting than Mayor Smalley and the conclusion he drew led him to make the assertion, when the polls closed, which afterwards proved to be so close to the result.

As soon as the polls were closed and the election officers could settle down to their work of counting the ballots, crowds congregated at the two polling places and watched the tallying of the ballots for and against. The store, in which the First district polling place was locaetd, was too small to accommodate many people. Saengerbund Hall, where the voters of the second district cast their ballots, offered special advantages for watching the count and talking it all over.

Over in the First district the balloting was close from start to finish. At the end of the first hundred, there was a majority of seven against. After two hundred were counted, the majority had been increased to thirty. Another hundred saw the "anti" majority at thirty-eight. Four hundred showed a loss of four in that majority but another hundred carried it back to thirty-eight again. When all of the 539 ballots were counted, it was announced that the majority was thirty-five. The total vote in the First district was as follows: For, 247; against, 282; rejected, 10.

Things were not so even over in the Second district. The majority against the proposition began to run up at once and went well beyond a hundred. At one time it was 144 but that figure was reduced as the early vote was counted and the final figures showed a majority of 126 against the question. There were 539 ballots cast in the Second district, which were divided as follows: For, 200; against, 326; rejected, 13.

For some time before the election officers completed their tallies, the impatient crowd which blocked Somerset street had foraging parties scouring the neighborhood for inflammable material with which to build bonfires. Other preparations for a noisy exultation had also been made and the moment the word was passed that "the antis win" pandemonium was rampant.

A dozen burning piles of boxes and barrels sent their lurid flames high in the air, the crowd yelled and howled and sang as the mood inspired them, cannon crackers added their sharp reports to the din and pyrotechnics went hissing through the air. Through it all the "I told you so" man worked overtime and the Plainfielders and "pro's" came in for a lot of good natured chaffing. This demonstration served to release some of the "antis" pent up enthusiasm but the grand finale came when the members of the Warren Engine Company piled into a farm wagon drawn by two horses and joined the Independent Fife and Drum Corps which had been hastily summoned. The crowd instinctively fell in the rear and a procession began which headed for Washington Park.

Not for a moment did the men and boys cease their yelling and when their vocal organs gave out, they were enabled to keep up the din with tin horns which were distributed from a carriage by "Uncle" Dave Carney. In the struggle for wind instruments the vehicle was nearly overturned on Craig place and Peter Seader, the owner, gave vent to some frightened ejaculations and entreaties for respect to his property.

The ubiquitious small boy, who couldn't have told which side he was howling for if questioned, worked himself into a frenzy before Senator Reed's home was reached and several of them found a new method of helping the fun along. This consisted of visiting back doorways while the householders were watching the procession, and "annexing" each and every broom in sight. The first few that went up in flame and smoke furnished illumination enough for the others to discern the source of supply and when the Park proper was reached, scarcely a house on the route escaped the rear door visitation.

A stop was made in front of Senator Reed's house for the fifers to get their second wind and the trailers gave vent to cat calls and shouts for "Reed." The house was darkened, however, and remained so. What was intended for an extra noisy demonstration in front of Mayor Smalley's domicile was spoiled through two boys getting into a fight over a purloined broom. Each had his constituents and everybody sprang to the rescue, to the detriment of the serenade which practically fell flat. The quarrel was settled somehow and the procession continued by easy stages back to the starting point where the corps played "Home Sweet Home."

Several of the bonfires were kept burning for sometime afterward, and a few "antis" remained in the vicinity discussing their victory with one foot resting on a railing but by 11 o'clock the borough's "Broadway" had resumed its wonted quietness.

"I do not feel a bit discouraged," declared Former Mayor W. L. Saunders when it was clearly evident that annexation had lost the fight. "In fact, I feel that we have accomplished much in getting out such a vote. It was a great step toward consolidation. We could not expect to accomplish great results in a little time. A good many of the people did not properly understand the question. They thought it was a political scheme and it was hard to get that idea out of their minds. In time they will come to a proper view of it. I am just as sure as ever that consolidation will be brought about in time."

"The primary object has been achieved," said Senator C. A. Reed this morning. "The question which has for years hindered North Plainfield's growth has been settled. We can now proceed to adopt a definite policy as to public improvements, such as sewerage, school buildings and the like, which seem to be absolutely necessary.

"The people have decided that they are willing to pay the increasing taxes rather than join with Plainfield, and I will heartily assist in any efforts to give the borough the improvements which are essential to keep it up to the times."

MISS SHATTUCK WAS STRICKEN

Principal of Bryant Public School Passed Away Very Suddenly This Morning.

FAITHFUL TO THE LAST.

Had Been Attending to Her Duties Until This Morning, When She Was Found Unconscious in Bed—Has Been in Plainfield Since 1893—Was a Most Efficient Teacher.

With scarcely the slightest premonition, death came quietly this morning to Miss Emma V. Shattuck, one of the best known teachers attached to the public schools, at the home of Mrs. Hellstrom, of LaGrande avenue, with whom she boarded.

She had been complaining for the past few days but with her accustomed reticence did not make known the extent of her illness. Last evening she was at the dinner table and afterward retired as usual but this morning was missed at breakfast. A search was instituted and she was found in her room, unconscious. Physicians were hastily summoned but their efforts to restore her proved fruitless and she passed away without a sign of recomition to the friends gathered at her bedside. Uremic poisoning is ascribed as the cause of death.

Very little is known of Miss Shattuck as she had few confidants and even to these she talked but slightly of her private affairs. She was middle aged but close application to her duties had given her a much older appearance. Her only known relative is a niece who lives at Montclair. The latter has been communicated with and until her arrival no arrangements will be made for her funeral.

Miss Emma V. Shattuck came to the Plainfield schools from Flushing, where she was vice principal, in the fall of 1893, to take the principalship of the Bryant School as a successor to Miss Neuman who had received an appointment in the Trenton Normal School.

The school has constantly grown in effectiveness and excellence under her administration, until it has become one of the very best in the city. When the Lincoln School was built, this was also put under her charge as principal, and she has since had the supervision of both buildings. She was a woman of great executive ability, of excellent judgment and wide sympathy. Her discipline was strong, and kindly, and she commanded the respect and loyalty and friendship of the teachers under her supervision.

She was unsparing of herself in her devotion to the int rests of the schools, and was constantly studying and working to improve them, not only during the term, but also during the vacation, and it was rare that a summer passed without her attendance on some school or university to fit herself further for her work. In her death, the city loses one of its most able principals and most conscientious and hard-working teachers.

Plainfielders Out for Big Game.

Word has been received from W. W. Warnock and E. H. Clevely, who left Sunday evening for a western trip. They stopped long enough at Detroit for the latter to send a dispatch for the immediate shipment of his pedigreed dog "Ted," which he will use for hunting moose in upper Canada. They expect to be in Montreal tomorrow.

RING GONE; CHILD ACCUSED

DIAMOND RING STOLEN FROM GUEST OF MRS. C. A. MANN.

Evidence Points to Little Ten-Year-Old Girl—The Police Are Investigating Case.

A Mrs Church, who has been a guest at the home of Mrs. C. A Mann, of Watchung avenue, reported to the police, yesterday, that a diamond ring valued at $300 had been stolen from her room at the Mann residence. Patrolman McCarthy was detailed to investigate and after an investigation learned enough to make him suspect a ten-year-old daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Furey, a neighbor of the Mann's.

Going to the Bryant School he taxed the child with taking it and she unhesitatingly admitted the charge. She told the officer that she had the jewel at school but had taken it home and hid it under the carpet. A thorough search at the Furey house failed to reveal it and the stone is still missing. When again questioned this morning the girl denied the theft but a schoolmate declared she had seen her have the ring.

The Furey child, whose mother is in poor circumstances, has been a protege of Mrs. Mann and has often been invited to the house. Several days ago she visited Mrs. Mann and received the gift of a new dress and it is thought she gained access to Mrs. Church's room at this time. She has not been locked up although the owner of the ring desired this course to be taken.

WILL NOT ENROLL VOTERS

OLD ENROLLMENT FEATURE ELIMINATED FROM PRIMARY RULES.

Republican City Committee Fixed Polling Place and Did Other Things.

The city Republican executive committee met last evening and transacted such business as is necessary prior to the primaries to be held next Monday evening. Vice President E. R. Ackerman occupied the chair in the absence of Mayor O. L. Jenkins, the only member not present.

The committee on rules and constitution submitted a report and the revision of the same was adopted. The enrollment feature was eliminated for the reason that a general primary law to be enacted will cover the case. The secretary was instructed to issue the call for the primaries.

The polling places and the ward clerks are as follows: First ward—153 North avenue, H. G. Adams; Second ward—Bryant School, John E. Keely; Third ward—Casino, J. B. Kimball; Fourth ward—Reform Hall, William Newcorn.

Nominations will be received until Saturday evening. Each nomination must be accompanied by the name and address of the party making the nomination. The polls will be open from 5 to 9 o'clock at the primaries, and a 8 o'clock a business meeting will be held.

E. R. Ackerman tendered his resignation as vice president of the committee, and the matter was laid on the table. He will continue as a member of the committee. A committee, composed of H. G. Adams, John Keely, J. B. Kimball and W. A. Westphal, was appointed to look after naturalization matters.

BAR FORMING.

Threatens to Completely Block the Opening to the Inlet at Atlantic City.

The bar that has been forming in front of the inlet at Atlantic City during the summer will be made the subject of a special inquiry by the United States Geodetic Survey this winter. So rapidly has the bar formed that the buoys which were re-located last winter do not now mark the channel and a re-survey will be necessary. Not only will there be a re-survey made, but it is likely that Congress will be asked for an appropriation to pay for the construction of a dyke which shall turn the channel from along the shore, where it now runs, to direct to sea.

To do this it will be necessary to build a dyke from the Inlet pavilion to the outer edge of the bar, a distance of 2,700 feet. This will not only change the channel, but the dyke will cause the present channel to fill in and will add a quarter of a mile to the beach front from Vermont avenue to the Inlet.

The bar, which is slowly but surely choking the mouth of the Inlet, has been growing in size all summer. A year ago there was no bar at low water, but now there is a sand bar of fully fifty acres lying between the Inlet and Brigantine. It is said by officers of the Geodetic Survey that unless the dyke is built the harbor will be entirely closed within a year, except to vessels drawing less than three feet of water.

DIRECTORS CHOSEN.

At Semi-Annual Meeting of Plainfield High School A. A.

The semi-annual meeting of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association for the purpose of electing a board of directors for the coming year was held at the City High School this morning. President VanAuken presided. A. D. Beers was appointed secretary pro tem.

Brakeley, H. Meeker, VanAuken, Thompson, Munro, Ulrich and Beers were nominated and Murphy, Hill, Mosher and Moore were appointed tellers. The balloting resulted as follows: Brakeley, 84; Meeker, 70; VanAuken, 96; Thompson, 50; Munro, 93; Ulrich, 79; Beers, 25. As a majority of votes was required for election, the board of directors for the coming year stands as follows: Brakeley, Meeker, VanAuken, Ulrich and Munro.

PAID FIREMEN FOR BOROUGH

Talk in North Plainfield of Abolishing Volunteer System in Favor of Paid Men.

MAYOR FAVORS PLAN.

Believed That Change Would Give Improved Fire Protection and Take Department Out of Politics—Borough Loses by Exemption of Firemen From Taxes.

There was a well-defined rumor in the borough this morning that within the next few months the volunteer fire department would be abolished and that in its place a paid department will be established. This will no doubt be done about the first of January. Many officials of the borough have felt for a long time that a paid department is the most advisable, and can be better controlled by the governing body in the borough.

One official, speaking of the subject this morning, expressed the opinion that the time had arrived for better fire protection and while he did not speak disparingly of the present department he believed that the best interests of the borough would be served by such a change.

Mayor Smalley strongly favors such a change, it is said, believing that it would put this department on a better basis and would eliminate many difficulties that have and now do exist in the department.

One prominent person in the borough referring to the matter today said that by making such a change the department would be taken out of politics, a most desirable feature. He also expressed an opinion that has the department working so hard for the defeat of the annexation question the members showed their ingratitude for all that the borough has done for them, such as giving them an opportunity to buy land and erect a new fire house, besides every time the department arranged a bazaar or a fair the citizens of the borough were always asked to contribute to the affair, in addition to paying their tax for the maintenance of the department.

Another substantial reason advanced for a change was that last year $40,000 was lost by the borough through exemption and every year the amount increasing as more members are made exempt. With a paid department this exemption would cease.

NOT READY.

Power House Has Caused Delay in Opening New Trenton-Brunswick Trolley Line.

The delay in opening the New Brunswick and Trenton Railroad is caused by the failure of contractors to get the power house ready. Practically all the roadbed has been completed. When Sub-Contractor Strang was killed, Sunday, nearly all the work in his charge had been completed and his men will finish it in a few days. There is yet to be laid at the point where the tracks of the Trenton-New Brunswick Company will join those of the Middlesex and Somerset Company, in Milltown, the necessary curves and switches which will allow the cars of the former company to run on the tracks of the latter.

Before this can be done it will be necessary for the company to obtain an ordinance from the Milltown Borough Council, giving it permission to lay the tracks. This privilege will be secured without much difficulty.

It is probable that the cars of the company will be run over the entire distance from Milltown to Trenton for a period of a week or ten days before they will be open to the public for the purpose of testing the roadbed, the machinery at the power house and of getting the motormen and conductors familiar with the peculiarities of all parts of the road.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

One by one the other gentlemen whose names have been used in connection with the Democratic Congressional nomination in this district have peremptorily declined to be considered as candidates, and Colonel Lewis Perrine will bear off the honor unopposed. Mr. Apgar, whose name has been used without his consent, is the latest to formally withdraw from the lists. His close friends have known for some time that he would not accept, his professional engagements being such that the could not afford the dissipation of a campaign.

The unanimity which Hunterdon, Somerset and Mercer show, excites a suspicion that the prospects for Democratic success in the Fourth district are not as bright as some of the State papers have been seeking to make their readers believe. There is comfort in the knowledge that the Republicans have so capable, upright and fair a candidate in ex-Judge Lanning.

The Democratic convention is to be held at Flemington, on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. The primary meeting will be held in Trenton this evening with elections tomorrow in cases of contest. The only contests likely to be held are such as may be provoked between rival factions in the effort to demonstrate their following.—Trenton Times.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Two prominent Plainfield women had their nerves rudely shattered the other evening while walking along West Front street on their way to and from a visit to a friend's home. Close to the sidewalk was a covered basket, and while they were "just dying to know" what was in it, they were too timid to closely examine the basket. On their way home they sought legal advice and the eminent counsellor returned with a friend to make an examination. When the spot was reached a match was struck and to the amusement of the two men the basket was found to contain some very choice sweet corn and apples. The women were informed of the result and their curiosity is satisfied. It is evident that some one put the basket down for a short time intending to return later and get it. The women in passing it had first thought that the basket might contain an infant and for this reason were afraid to touch it.

THEATRICAL.

The capacity houses which are the rule at Keith's Theatre are undoubtedly due to the fact that there you are always assured of seeing the best vaudeville show in New York.

The headline position on the bill for the coming week is taken by Mme. Capell, the latest European sensation, who gives a wonderful exhibition of high school equestrianism. Charles Grapewin, with Anna Chance in his support, presents a new one act farce called "The Awakening of Pipp," which is very laugh provoking. The Parros Brothers, European Acrobats, another of the imported acts; the Four Cutty's, America's greatest instrumental specialists; Fields and Ward, Acrobatic Comedians; The Webb Trio, extraordinary gymnasts; Miller and Kresko, in their original comedy sketch; Martin and Quigg, grotesque comedians; Raymond and Clark, vocalists and dancers, with twenty-one other strong features, including new pictures for the Biograph, are on the bill at the Union Square.

Miss Kohler, of Staten Island, has returned after a visit with friends in this city.

Miss Eva Doeringer, of the local telephone office, will begin her vacation next week Monday.

Save the Children.

Statistics will prove that a large percentage of deaths among children may be traced to complications arising from the early souring of milk by bacteria. Cholera Infantum is the most fatal disease of infancy, and common, especially with bottle fed infants. GREAT EVENT PLANNED IN ST. MARY'S PARISH

Fiftieth Anniversary of the Establishment of St. Mary's Parish to be Observed.

HISTORY OF THE PARISH.

EVENT WILL BE CELEBRATED SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 28.

Programme of Ceremonies Will be Announced in a Few Days—The Story of the Parish and Its Growth in Half Century.

The fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of St. Mary's parish in this city will be celebrated September 28, two weeks from next Sunday. As yet no definite programme for the observance of the day has been announced. St. Mary's parish is one of the largest and most successful church societies in this city and much local interest will be taken in the event.

At the time of the establishment of this parish, Plainfield was in the Newark diocese, the Trenton diocese not having been set off. The first mass was said in the building at Fourth and Liberty streets, now known as T. A. B. Hall. Peter Flynn, Sr., one of the original trustees, now lives on West Third street.

Recently Rev. Father Egan, the present rector of St. Mary's, found a slab in the cellar of the church, which on examination proved to be the one used at the old church on Fourth street. It is inscribed as follows: "Father McDonough caused this church to be built in 1852."

From this discovery came the idea of a semi-centennial celebration and he decided to invite several well known clergymen to participate in the services to be held September 28. The occasion also will mark the second anniversary of the consecration of the present edifice.

When St. Mary's parish was formed in 1852, this State had no Catholic bishop, but was part of the New York diocese, over which Archbishop Hughes presided. At that time Plainfield people travelled to Stony Hill to a little chapel built for the German farmers of that vicinity. In 1851, Plainfield Catholics petitioned Archbishop Hughes for a priest, which was granted and Father James McDonough was sent here. The first services were held in James Verdon's house near the "notch." The congregation grew so rapidly that it was necessary to find more commodious quarters, which was done by holding services twice a month in the Verdon barn. Soon after this a little hall was rented in this city, and funds were raised for the building of the first church now T. A. B. Hall.

In 1852 the Plainfield parish extended from Raritan to Westfield. The rector lived at Raritan and said mass in this city only twice a month. It was the day of missions when country priests rode horseback, carrying the vestments, sacred vessels and altar stone in the saddle.

Father Fisher succeeded Father McDonough in 1854. He was the first one to take up his residence in Plainfield. Father Fisher's stay in Plainfield was short. He was succeeded in 1856 by Father Terence Kiernan, who remained until he died in 1869. His successor was Rev. John Connolly, who had an assistant, Father Morris. Upon the former's death, in 1870, Father Morris became the rector and began saving funds for a permanent church.

In 1875 the cornerstone of the present handsome edifice was laid. Five years later the church was dedicated with great pomp.

In 1882 Father Morris was succeeded by Fathers DeBurgh and Callahan, both of whom remained until January in that year, 1883. Father Smyth came here from Jersey City, with Father Gillan, the latter acting as rector until spring.

St. Mary's school was built in 1888 at Sixth and Liberty streets, and Sisters of Charity were brought here for teachers. Owing to poor health, Father Smyth was able to do but little active work and at different periods and he had as assistants, Fathers Flood, Murphy, McCormick, Westman and McGeary. Father Egan, the present rector, came here in February last and has as assistant, Father Farley.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. Randolph.

WORK OF WESTFIELD'S CAMP

EXPENSES HAVE BEEN CONSIDERABLY INCREASED THIS YEAR.

There's a Small Deficit in the Treasury, But Past Season Was Otherwise Successful.

The past summer season of the Fresh Air Camp has been one of the most profitable in the history of the organization. During the year over 800 guests have been entertained at an expense of $1,600.

The work of caring for these guests has been under the direct supervision of the head matron, Miss Gertrude Diehl, and her assistant, Miss E. D. Morgan, and associates. Accommodation facilities have been increased. An addition has been made to the nursery building, which now accommodates fifty children, and a cottage has been rented on Grove street to accommodate special guests.

The expenses of the camp have been larger than in former years, owing to the increase in the cost of provisions and the additional expense of building. Services have been held every Sunday afternoon and evening of the week, except Sunday, conducted by one by the affiliating societies, which have been largely attended.

The treasurer reports a slight deficit, but this amount, it is said, will speedily be raised by the surporting churches. The present officers of the camp are: President, George H. Wolfe; first vice president, Arthur N. Pierson; second vice president, Lucien H. Bigelow, Jr.; secretary, Miss Edith S. Moorehouse; treasurer, Lawrence A. Clark; visiting physician, Dr. F. A. Kinch.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Most Important is the Woodhull & Martin New Building.

The following building permits have been granted by Chief Doane:

Brick building to be used as store at 224 Park avenue; 11 feet front, 10 feet rear and 64 feet deep; owner, Rosa Frucht; architect, B. Fosgate; carpenter, W. H. Smith; mason, Townley.

Frame dwelling house at corner Clinton and Evona avenues; owner, Bennet Brittin; architect F. L. Lancaster; carpenter, Thomas Wearrens & Sons.

Frame dwelling corner Second street and View avenue; Mrs. Annie Schrivens, owner; architect, W. H. Clum; mason, Cronke; carpenter, J. J. Scriven.

TO DINE BASEBALL TEAM.

Members of Y. M. C. A. Nine to be Guests of Honor at Banquet.

Officials of the Y. M. C. A. are making preparations for an elaborate banquet to be tendered the members of the baseball team which represented the association on the diamond, this season. It will be given in the Y. M. C. A. building probably on the evening of September 29.

In addition to the baseball team, League officials, prominent men and representatives from the various other teams from the city will be invited. The pennant offered by the Spalding Company will be presented the victors at the close of the dinner.

More Trolley Line.

Residents of the New Orange section of Cranford are securing signatures for an extension of the trolley on North avenue from its present terminus at the Cranford line to New Orange. The plan to extend the line through Cranford to Westfield has met with strong opposition from abutting property owners.

Settlers' Fares to the West.

The passenger department of the Lehigh Valley Railroad has issued a card containing comprehensive information in regard to low fares to western points, for settlers. Copy may be secured on application to nearest ticket agent, or by addressing general passenger department, 26 Cortlandt street, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stack, of Park avenue, have returned from Cardinal, Va., where they have been visiting Mrs. Stack's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rockfellow.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 17.—The steamer Virginia Lake reached here from Labrador. She reports the loss of ten fishing schooners, with their cargoes of fish and their outfits, during the last fortnight. The crews of the lost schooners were saved and brought here by the Virginia Lake.

Officers of the steamer report also the finding on Belle Isle of the remains of a woman, supposed to be Mrs. Bates of St. Catherine street, Montreal, who was a passenger on the ill fated British steamer Scotsman, which was wrecked on Belle isle in October of 1899. It is believed that articles found near the body will identify it as that of Mrs. Bates.

Pacing Record Not Broken.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—With perfect weather, a good track and a large and appreciative crowd the great stallion Dan Patch had every circumstance in his favor in his effort to defeat old Father Time and win the world's pacing record, but he did not do so. Accompanied by a running mate, the famous son of Joe Patchen first came out and paced a preliminary mile in 2:11. In his first effort he went to the quarter in 0:30¼ and then broke and came back. In his second effort he went to the quarter in 0:30¾ and on to the half in 1:01, but tired badly and came home all out in 2:02½. The pacing record of 1:59¼ held by Star Pointer looks safe for this year.

Grand Duke Boris Going.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 17.—Grand Duke Boris has taken formal leave of friends in Newport and today departed, with his suit, for New York. After breakfast he went automobiling with Miss May Goelet. Later his highness was the guest of honor at luncheon given by Mrs. William Payne Thompson. In the afternoon, with Mrs. Ogden Goelet, the grand duke went driving and made a number of formal calls at which goodbys were said. Mrs. Goelet gave a brilliant farewell dinner in honor of the guest at Ochre Court. The grand duke will board a transatlantic liner tomorrow morning. He is going to Paris for a long stay.

Delaware Democratic Nominations.

DOVER, Del., Sept. 17.—The Democratic state convention here nominated the following ticket: Representative in congress, Henry A. Houston; state treasurer, Joseph H. Hossinger; auditor of accounts, J. Thomas Lowe. The contest hinged on the nomination for congress, Houston defeating ex-Congressman L. Irving Handy by a majority of two votes. Because of the split in the Republican ranks the Democratic leaders claim to be able to elect their congressional candidate in November, and consequently there was a scramble for the nomination. Each of the three counties in the state had several candidates.

STATUS OF STRIKE.

Conferences at Wilkesbarre and New York.

A FIGHT TO THE FINISH ASSURED.

Meanwhile Three More Collieries Are Opened, Making Nineteen In All, With a Daily Output of 20,000 Tons.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 17.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and National President Mitchell and National Treasurer Wilson of the United Mine Workers, together with the district presidents of the same organization in the anthracite region, spent the best part of the day in conference here.

After the meeting none of those who participated was in a communicative mood. President Mitchell said it was the regular monthly meeting of the executive board of United Mine Workers and Mr. Gompers and Mr. Wilson, happening to be coming this way, stopped over.

Mr. Gompers was a little more talkative than the others. When asked what was the object of his visit to strike headquarters, he replied: "I simply came up here to look over the strike situation. I find everything in excellent shape. The strike is being ably conducted, and I learn that there is ample relief for all the strikers."

Mr. Gompers was asked whether the federation will be assessed to support the miners. He said in reply that the trades unions now comprising the federation are making voluntary contributions to help the miners and that if it is necessary to give additional aid it will be done. "But at present," he continued, "the miners are well able to take care of themselves."

Mr. Gompers said the annual convention of the federation would not be called at an earlier date than November to take action on the strike.

NO CONCESSIONS.

Conference of Leading Anthracite Coal Road Presidents.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—At a conference of the leading anthracite coal interests held at the Philadelphia and Reading company's offices President Baer of the Reading road, President Truesdale of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, President Fowler of the New York, Ontario and Western, President Walters of the Lehigh Valley, President Olyphant of the Delaware and Hudson, Irving Stearns of Coxe Bros. & Co. and John Markle of B. G. Markle & Co. were present.

The two last named represented the independent operating interests in the hard coal industry.

The precise subjects of the conference could not be learned, but it was stated in advance of the meeting that no concessions would be granted and that recent events of a semipolitical character would not be seriously considered.

Following a meeting with J. P. Morgan, John Markle made this statement:

"I do not think it necessary to repeat that all talk of concessions on the part of the operators is foolish and certainly without foundation. Our position now is the same as when Mitchell made his original propositions and no different than when the strike began.

"We said then that we would make no concessions, and we repeat it now. There is no reason why this should not be understood. The operators have shown that they mean it, and I repeat it only by way of emphasis.

"There is just one way to end the strike, by the men returning to work, and every day they remain away by giving ear to Mitchell's specious promises will only entail further loss and suffering to them. Conditions are improving daily. More men are returning to work and more coal is being mined."

Three More Collieries Started.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 17.—The Delaware and Hudson company has started up three more collieries, the Coningham, at Wilkesbarre; the Plymouth No. 2 and the Olyphant. This company now has six collieries and three washeries in operation. The Ontario and Western company has resumed operations at the Pine Brook and West Ridge collieries in Scranton and the Johnson No. 1 and No. 2 in Priceburg, just north of the city line. This company now has three mines and three washeries going. Altogether the companies having headquarters here claim to be operating nineteen colleries and twenty-one washeries, with an estimated daily output of 20,000 tons.

Kentucky Assessment to Be Resisted.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 17.—The Kentucky state board of valuation and assessment has assessed for the purpose of franchise taxation all private car lines of the United States which railroad reports show operate through this state, thirteen in number. The assessment was an arbitrary one and will be resisted in the courts.

HENDERSON IS OUT.

Speaker Withdraws From Congressional Contest.

AT VARIANCE WITH HIS PARTY.

Third Iowa District's Candidate Retains His Belief In Protection and Does Not Think Reduction to Curb Trusts the Proper Thing.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Sept. 17.—Speaker Henderson has announced his withdrawal from the congressional fight after a conference of several hours' duration with Chairman Glasser of the congressional committee and friends. Mr. Henderson has been contemplating this action for two weeks, but had intimated nothing of it to his friends until Monday. At the conference his friends implored him not to take the action, but to no avail. He said he had made up his mind and no argument could cause him to change his decision. When asked for his reasons for his withdrawal, Speaker Henderson said:

"My letter to Chairman Albrook is the whole thing in a nutshell. You cannot kill the trusts by applying free trade without killing our own industries. The foreign trusts are fighting the American trusts, and I don't believe that for the purpose of controling American trusts we should make a market for foreign trusts, thereby crushing out the industries of this country. After my conference last Saturday at Waterloo and hearing the views of the chairmen of my district I concluded that my views on the tariff question were at variance with those of many of my party, and I did not desire to appear in a false position."

Speaker Henderson gave out an address last evening which states his views on the tariff and trust questions, and because these views, in his opinion, are not in accord with the state platform and with the opinions of prominent members of his party he declines to accept the nomination. The address is to the Republican voters of the Third Iowa district. He says, being a Republican, he is a protectionist, and if he ever entertained a doubt as to the wisdom of a protective policy a hasty comparison between the present and the past would blot out such doubt. He then speaks with satisfaction of the tariff planks of the last two national platforms.

Continuing, he says: "For three years I have advocated giving control of trusts to congress. In my judgment proper supervision can never be had until congress has power to treat with them. I am glad to see from speeches made by our fearless and upright chief executive that he is advocating federal control over these corporations, and, while in some quarters they may sneer at it, I have not seen any proposition yet except this that seems at all likely to bring relief. No proposition has ever been made by the Democracy excepting to put everything on the free list and to give the country free trade. In other words, they propose to kill the child in order to cure it.

"They propose to slaughter every interest in the United States, whether capital or labor, in a wild and blind effort to provide a remedy for trusts. In my opinion, if combinations could be regulated and controlled we would have very little demand for changes in the tariff laws."

Sensation Caused at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The dispatch announcing Speaker Henderson's declination of the congressional nomination caused a sensation in Washington. Very few public men are in Washington at this time, but all here expressed regret that the speaker had determined on the course announced in the Dubuque dispatch.

BANKER FISH'S DEATH.

His Assailant, Detective Sharkey, Under Arrest.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The death of Nicholas Fish as the result of a quarrel in a saloon and the arrest of Thomas J. Sharkey, a private detective, on the charge of homicide in that connection has been the subject of close police investigation and conjecture.

Mr. Fish was the head of one of the most distinguished families in the United States, a banker of great wealth and at one time minister at the court of Belgium. He died at the Roosevelt hospital from the effects of injuries received during the course of an altercation with a stranger in Ehrhardt's saloon, at the corner of Eighth avenue and Thirty-fourth street. According to information gathered by the police, Mr. Fish's death was due to a blow struck by Thomas J. Sharkey, a private detective, who, with two women who were present at the time, were arrested after the death.

A policeman found Mr. Fish lying unconscious on the sidewalk in front of the saloon and summoned an ambulance, in which he was taken to the Roosevelt hospital, where his identity was revealed by papers found in his possession. A dispatch was sent to Mrs. Fish, who was at Tuxedo and who reached the hospital soon after midnight, remaining at the side of her husband, who never regained consciousness before death took place.

School at Winona Opened.

WARSAW, Ind., Sept. 17.—Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, chancellor of the Winona Agricultural and Technical institute, presided at the formal opening of the school at Winona yesterday. A number of wealthy business men is interested in establishing this school, among them being J. M. Studebaker of South Bend, Walter M. Smith of New York, H. J. Heinz of Pittsburg, Hugh Hanna of Indianapolis and Alexander McDonald of Cincinnati. The school is designed to help boys to practical business life in all lines, and provisions have been made whereby a boy lacking the necessary means may work his way through the college. The agricultural department is located at Winona, and the technical department will be at Indianapolis. More than 400 acres will be used at Winona and kept in order by the boys of the school. The enrolled attendance was eighty-five students from fourteen states, but many applications have been deferred for want of accommodations. Funds sufficient to pay the faculty expenses for the first five years have been pledged.

Canada Defenseless.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Daily Express this morning says that Colonel Ferrers Townshend has returned to England after having inspected on behalf of the war office the forts on the Canadian-American frontier. Colonel Townshend says, according to the Express, that the British fortifications all along the frontier are absolutely inefficient, while the American forts are well equipped. Referring to Colonel Townshend's statement, the Express says, "In the event of war between Great Britain and the United States the Yankees would easily march over the frontier and seize Canada before anything could be done to resist them." The statement is made that there is only one cartridge and shell factory in Canada and but little ammunition in the Dominion.

Oceanic's Record Trip.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The White Star line steamship Oceanic, from Liverpool and Queenstown, arrived off the Sandy Hook light vessel at seven minutes past 10 o'clock last night, completing a record trip from Queenstown. The big steamer sailed from that port at twenty-five minutes past 10 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 11. The approximate time of her passage is five days, sixteen hours and forty-two minutes, or one hour and eight minutes less than her previous best record, made in November last year.

Elk Presented to New York.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 17.—The park commissioners of the city of Binghamton have presented the state with a herd of five elk, which has been one of the chief attractions at Ross park for a number of years. Three guides came here to crate the animals for shipment, but after four hours of hard work with the big bull that leads the herd they were forced to adjourn their attempt until another day. The animals will be liberated in the Big Moose region when they arrive in the Adirondacks.

LEADERS IN COUNCIL

Senators Talk Politics With the President.

NO MARKED POLITICAL CHANGES.

Republican Solons Decide Against Tariff Revision and Uphold Roosevelt's Position Regarding the Trusts and Cuba.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Senators Hanna, Spooner, Allison, Aldrich and Lodge and Postmaster General Payne spent several hours with President Roosevelt yesterday and discussed with him the entire political situation, having special reference with regard to the conditions in the western states which the president is to visit on his approaching trip.

The parties to the conference were very close mouthed after they returned from Sagamore Hill, but it can be stated on reliable authority that it was decided to make no attempt to revise the tariff at the coming session of congress, that the president is to maintain his position as to the trusts and further that he is to insist in his demand for reciprocity with Cuba. It is understood that he will fully outline his policy regarding this latter question in some of the speeches he is to make on his western trip. It also can be stated on excellent authority that the coal strike was not discussed.

The president's purpose in having this conference was to ascertain if there had been any marked political changes in the different sections of the country during the past year. The conference, it is said, showed that there had been none.

"The conference was entirely harmonious," said one of the gentlemen who participated in it, but who declined to allow his name to be published. "No differences of opinion developed, and the president's position on the different questions discussed was indorsed. We talked over the entire political situation, especially that in the states through which the president is to pass. The coal strike was not talked about."

The senatorial delegation arrived at 12:20 p. m. They came from Long Island City in the private car of President Baldwin of the Long Island railroad and refused to see a number of newspaper men who were on the train. On their arrival here they were driven at once to Sagamore Hill in President Roosevelt's traps. They left in the private car at 10:10 p. m. for Long Island City. Postmaster General Payne came over earlier in the day from Center island. He left at 6:35 p. m. for New York.

Sold Bad Meat.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 17.—Partly decayed meat which had been treated chemically to hide its condition as well as sausages containing potato flour, unhealthy kidneys ground up and other adulterations were sold in St. Louis and the other large cities of the country between Aug. 21, 1899, and May 1, 1902, by the members of the packers' trust, according to testimony given by Thomas L. O'Sullivan, meat and live stock inspector of St. Louis. Mr. O'Sullivan was the first witness called by Attorney General Crow when the taking of testimony was resumed by Supreme Court Commissioner J. N. Keinly in the beef trust inquiry.

Governor Odell at Oneonta Fair.

ONEONTA, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Governor Odell addressed a crowd of thousands of people of Otsego and adjoining counties at the Central New York fair here yesterday afternoon. He was accompanied from Albany on a special train by Company A of the Tenth battalion and Gartland's Tenth Regiment band. After lunch at the residence of W. H. Brown, president of the Agricultural society, the governor was escorted to the fair grounds, where he was accorded an enthusiastic reception.

Fastest Western Ocean Trip.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The fastest westward passage ever made was completed when the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm was sighted off Sandy Hook light, five days, eleven hours and fifty-seven minutes out from Cherbourg. The trip was made over the short summer route, and the best previous time over the same course was made by the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland—five days, twelve hours and twenty-three minutes.

QUINCY, Mass., Sept. 17.—When the new protected cruiser Des Moines is launched at the Fore River shipyard on Saturday the state of Iowa will be represented by a party of about fifty persons, representative of that state, the gentlemen being prominent officially, socially and in business life there. Miss Elsie Macomber, who will christen the cruiser, will be chaperoned by Mrs. Cummins, wife of Governor Albert B. Cummins.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Some of the men who have seen the canal break at Durhamsville, near Oneida, say that it will not be possible to repair the trouble in time for the reopening of navigation on this level this season. It is believed that at least a month will be required for the work, and it may take longer than that.

NOT DISHEARTED.

Beaten? Yes. Dishearted? Not a bit of it. Although the Greater Plainfield project met with a check yesterday when a majority of the borough voters expressed themselves as being opposed to uniting with Union county, the movement is still healthy and vigorous and its inevitable and ultimate triumph was only postponed a little while. Like other great improvements, it requires time, and time will just as surely bring about the final consolidation of the city and borough into one municipality even if the first step in that direction met with an obstacle.

Yesterday's election was simply to decide which county North Plainfield should become a part of, Union or Somerset. The verdict was in favor of retaining its present allegiance. It can be truthfully said, however, that yesterday's vote was not made on the merits of the question. The Daily Press and other friends of annexation made an attempt to present the real issue at stake. To those who would listen to argument there was only one possible result. Unfortunately personalities were so injected into the campaign that, with the aid of interested influences which were very active in the opposition, the question was defeated. That a majority of the borough voters believed that annexation was not advisable we do not doubt. But the course of events is going to bring true the prophesies of the advocates of annexation and many of those who voted against it yesterday will see the day when they will be sorry that their ballot read "against" instead of "for."

The campaign, which ended yesterday, has aroused a depth of bitterness which must be greatly deplored by everyone who has the interests of the community at heart. Such questions can and should be settled without appealing to the passions or prejudices. Logic and common sense should prevail. It will require sometime for this bitterness to die. When it does, the agitation for a Greater Plainfield can be taken up again for fair and honorable treatment.

There still remains the consolidation act, which was entirely independent of the annexation measure. Under it steps can be taken to consolidate city and borough even if the county lines are not changed. A number who have been prominent in the fight against annexation have stated publicly in the past that they are not opposed to consolidation if brought about in the right and proper way. When all the feeling has disappeared, let those who have supported and opposed the annexation measure get together and formulate plans whereby consolidation may be brought about, if not this way then in another.

Among the latest batch of candidates for Republican nominations in this city is said to be Charles H. Denman, of Westfield. Mr. Denman is now best known to fame as the president of the Westfield Baseball Club. He has been at the head of that successful organization this season and has won much glory by giving Westfield the best baseball team it ever had. It is now said that Mr. Denman is a candidate for the shrievalty nomination but the report has not yet been confirmed. There isn't any doubt that Mr. Denman possesses the faculty of successful organization which would be just as valuable in the change of a county department as in the conduct of a baseball team. From the present outlook the two factions have picked their candidates, for sheriff and Mr. Denman is not one of them. If the course of political events should veer around and send the nomination his way, we feel confident that Mr. Denman would make a success in the place now held by Sheriff Houston.

The death of the football league was not surprising but it was nevertheless to be regretted. Any project to advance good amateur sport is to be commended. In this case, the projected league lacked an initial rivalry between the teams on which to work. Now that it has been given up, the local teams will work independently and will probably give some better exhibitions of football than would have been seen had the league been successful.

An observing writer, says the Philadelphia Record, considers it inevitable that with experience advertisers should place newspaper advertising above all other forms of publicity. "In no other way," he says, "can the merchant reach the people so quickly, cheaply and effectively. The newspaper of character and circulation goes into the homes of the people, where all the members of the family read the advertisements."

If the reports which eminate from Somerville be true, the Republicans of Somerville are not the only political party which is torn with factional discords. The Democrats seem to be suffering along the same lines. Perhaps some of the bacteria from the sewage disposal beds contain the germs of factional disturbance and are responsible for the trouble on all sides

As long as Music Hall is not going to be opened and the project to build a new theatre is slumbering, the local patrons of the theatre will have to be content with the Casino and such performances as Manager Maze Edwards can give with its limited stage room. Manager Edwards had some excellent programmes at the Casino last season and he promises even better ones this year.

Hunterdon county has finally been selected as the place to locate the State Home for Consumptives which was ordered by the last Legislature. The site is to be near Glen Gardner and the people of that town are quite delighted over the prospect. The impression would be that those whose business will be most brisk will be the undertakers.

A glimpse over in North Plainfield yesterday afternoon and evening showed that the saloon element had done everything in its power to encompass the defeat of annexation. Never have so many intoxicated men been seen on the borough streets.

DUNELLEN.

The suit of Charles Vail against the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company for damages for injuries sustained by falling off a car at this place over a year ago, had a hearing yesterday at Flemington. Neil Taylor is one of the witnesses for the plaintiff.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Manager Johnston was unable to arrange Saturday's game with the Hopes, of Plainfield. Manager Cose's team will be the only team in Plainfield who has not met the locals on the diamond this season. Nine games in all have been played with the several teams of Plainfield. The locals have won eight and lost one, the fortunate team being the Y. M. C. A. Manager Johnston has several clubs in view for Saturday's benefit game and from the way tickets are selling it will be a financial success.

A meeting of the membership committee of Fanwood Council, R. A., was held at the home of Edw. L. Hand, last night. Plans for the fall and winter campaign for new members were talked over and from present indications Fanwood Council will not only give the ten per cent. increase asked for by the Grand Regent, but will do several per cent. better.

The many friends of John Patterson, a former old resident of the village but now employed at the Morris Plains Asylum, will be glad to learn that he has nearly recovered from his serious illness and will soon be able to resume his position again.

THIEVES CRIPPLE TROLLEY

STRIP OFF 1,700 FEET OF FEED WIRE NEAR GALVIN'S PARK.

Cars Were Unable to Proceed Past Spot Until Nearly Noon—Local Police at Work.

Bold wire thieves badly crippled the service of the Elizabeth-Plainfield trolley line, early this morning, by stripping off 1,700 feet of the main feed wire of both tracks between Galvin's Park and Westfield. The loss was not discovered until the first car from this city reached the portion where the wire had been taken and was unable to proceed further. Repair gangs were hurried from the local barns and Rahway Junction and the line was restored to traffic before noon.

It is evident that the thieves operated between 2:30 and 4:30, as this is the only time during which the power is off. It was 6:45 before the police of this city were informed but steps were immediately taken to head off the perpetrators. It is Chief Kiely's opinion that the men hailed from Newark as the junkmen from that place have a manis for stealing wire and it can also be disposed of easily at that place. The stuff brings twenty cents a pound as junk.

SITE SELECTED FOR A STATE HOSPITAL

Proposed Institution for Consumptives to be Located in Hunterdon County.

NEAR GLEN GARDNER.

THE CHOICE MUST FIRST HAVE THE GOVERNOR'S APPROVAL.

That Secured, There Will be No Delay in Starting Work—It is Stated to be the Fritts Farm on Stern's Mountain.

Glen Gardner, among the hills of Hunterdon county, is to be the site of the proposed State Hospital for Consumptives. The site was decided upon at a meeting of the commission which has the matter in charge. A farm of about 500 acres is to be purchased for the purpose, and the actual work of erecting the building will be commenced as soon as the purchase of the land is completed and the necessary preliminaries arranged. The selection of the site will have to be approved by Governor Murphy before the deal can be consummated.

Dr. Charles J. Kipp, president of the commission, has refused to disclose the exact location of the proposed site or to tell the price to be paid for it. It is understood, however, that the site is the same as that upon which an option was secured in the interests of the commission early last month from Joseph Fritts.

Previous to securing an option on the Fritts property there were several visits of commissioners and others interested in the matter to Glen Gardner, and the Fritts property was given the most attention on these visits. Glen Gardner people have accepted it as an assured fact for the past month that the sanitarium would be built on the Fritts land.

The farm upon which the commission has had an option, and which is believed to have been selected for the hospital site, lies on the top of Stern's Mountain, about a mile from the village of Glen Gardner, and near the Lebanon township poor farm. There is quite an extent of woodland, which may easily be converted into park grounds, and the view from the top of the hill is the finest in the county. On a clear day Newark Bay is easily discernible through a telescope from the hilltop.

It is said that the commission was unanimous in voting for the Hunterdon county site. Colonel E. A. Stevens, of Hoboken, who accompanied Governor Murphy on a trip to Sussex county to inspect the High Point Inn property, which was suggested as a possible site, got back in time for the meeting and gave his approbation to the choice. The Governor did not attend the meeting, but it is understood that his approval of the commission's action will be given without delay.

"The land selected is about half a mile from the New Jersey Central Railroad station at Glen Gardner," said Dr. Kipp, "and is easily accessible from all parts of the State. The air is perfectly pure, the soil is dry and porous, the property is now thickly wooded, and the spot on which the building will be erected is sheltered from the wind. There is an abundance of pure water at hand, and a part of the property can be utilized as a dairy farm. The site was regarded by all the members of the commission as an ideal spot for such an institution."

Dr. Kipp said that a building committee had been named, and all the work for proceeding with the erection of the hospital had been considered and planned, but the commission was not yet ready to announce its intentions regarding the plans.

A State hospital for consumptives was proposed several years ago and has been agitated by medical men at each legislative session for the past three or four years. When Foster M. Voorhees was governor he maintained a persistent opposition to the scheme, declaring that there was no place in New Jersey where the climate was suited to the treatment and cure of tuberculosis. Since the law for the establishment of the institution was approved by Governor Murphy last winter, the commissioners appointed by him have been considering sites in several parts of the State, a proposition to locate the institution in Ocean county, among the pines that made Lakewood famous as a health resort, being one of the sites that did not meet with approval.

The commission that has the State hospital scheme in charge consists of Dr. Charles J. Kipp, of Newark; Dr. Austin Scott, president of Rutgers College, New Brunswick; Colonel E. A. Stevens, of Hoboken; Dr. O. H. Sproul, of Flemington; Dr. Elmer Barwis, of Trenton; Dr. James S. Green, of Elizabeth; Frank L. Shepard, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Dr. Walter Jones, of Camden.

JERSEY'S IMPROVED ROADS

BUILDING OF 200 MILES THIS YEAR WILL MAKE 1,200 MILES IN ALL.

Remarkable Network of Fine Highways Which Cover This State Today.

New Jersey is credited with having made wonderful progress in improved road building. During the present year about 200 miles will be built. These include stone and gravel roads under State, county and township laws. When they are finished New Jersey will have about 1,200 miles of improved roads. These will include great through highways, extending from Jersey City to Trenton, and thence to Camden, and down to Atlantic City; from Jersey City to Amboy, and around Raritan Bay to Seabright, and thence down the coast to Atlantic City; across the State from Trenton and other points to the seacoast, and several great routes from Newark and other eastern cities back into the hilly and mountainous regions of the State.

But these 1,200 miles of improved highways, while covering many of the most impotrant routes of communication, include only about six per cent. of the total road mileage of the State, as there are 20,000 miles of public roads in New Jersey, independently of city streets. At this year's rate of road building, therefore, it would take just 100 years to cover all the roads of the State with stone or gravel. But, of course, many of these roads are little used; others are naturally good, and, it is pointed out, if one-fourth of the most important are improved within the next two or three decades, the State will be splendidly equipped with hard roads, and may well plume itself on the achievement.

The economic effects of New Jersey's progressive road policy have been marked, say the observant. The farmers and fruit and truck raisers are brought within easy reach of the best markets. They can take twice as heavy loads in less than half the time. Many wealthy persons from the cities are buying estates in New Jersey. The taxable value of property has increased from $786,998,770 in 1895 to 918,418,746 in 1901.

FATHER CUSHING'S CASE.

A Petition to the President Regarding His Confinement in Rome.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A petition signed by nine American citizens has been addressed to President Roosevelt asking that the complaint of the Rev. John H. Cushing, who was arrested Nov. 10 while calling on Bishop N. C. Matz of Denver in Rome, Italy, be not ignored.

The petition says: "The arrest and confinement in an insane asylum are notorious. A story was invented that Father Cushing was intoxicated at the time of his arrest, but of the four persons present at the interview between Bishop Matz and Father Cushing three testified that he was sober. Two of the three persons were intimate friends and intimate companions of Bishop Matz. Father Cushing himself gave similar testimony. There were also several in Rome of various nationalities who saw Father Cushing daily and were willing to testify to his constant sobriety if they suspected that such an issue would be raised. Even if intoxicated were the brutal indignities heaped upon him justifiable?

"We saw Father Cushing within an hour and a half before his arrest. We insist that he went to the temporary abode of Bishop Matz sober and peaceably, that he was peaceably received and while a guest therein that he was violently assaulted and deprived of his liberty as well as subjected to brutal outrages."

Conference at Panama.

The matter of the interpretation of article 35 of the treaty of 1846, by which the United States in view of certain concessions made by Colombia guarantees the neutrality of the isthmus and that traffic across it shall not be interrupted, was also taken up in the conference.

TAILOR MADE SUITS.

Simple Styles Which Are to Be In Vogue For Ordinary Wear.

The fall tailor mades show simple and becoming lines, with in many cases almost severe trimming. We may therefore gather from this that the serviceable coat and skirt styles are not in danger of being suppressed, as was believed this summer. There is an attempt to bring in longer jackets, and many models are being shown in the three-quarter length. The Eton and blouse, however, still hold their own and remain practically the same, with the exception of the sleeves, which have increased fullness below the elbow. This is often confined at the wrist in a series of pin tucks and a cuff of embroidered material of a contrasting shade. In the latter case the collar is also made or faced with the same embroidered material. Thus a costume of dark blue cloth will have cuffs and revers of pale blue embroidered in green or white. A black or iron gray costume will have touches of scarlet.

The simple but effective tailor made shown is of iron gray mixed goods, trimmed with very narrow black braid. The blouse waist opens in front and is decorated with embroidery on either side of the opening. The skirt is quite plain, with the exception of two wide strappings around the bottom and two perpendicular strappings on either side of the front gore.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FALL AND WINTER HINTS.

The New Belts and Sashes—Elaborate Fur Models.

The new belts are quite elaborate. Most of them have the postilion effect in the back in the shape of two ribbon tabs held together on the belt proper by means of an art nouveau ornament. Velvet is the favorite texture, with moire a close second.

Wonderful are the knottings of the new sashes. One of these is tied six times at irregular distances. Another made of black satin has its two ends knotted in the shape of flowers, in which is sewed an artificial yellow center.

The new fur models show very fancy sleeves and a tendency toward postillion coattails. Brocades and laces are introduced to soften the general effect. Three-quarter coats of broadtail, Persian and moleskin promise to be very popular.

Evening coats of black bengaline silk lined with white satin and chiffon and having ermine collars and cuffs are always extremely smart.

One of the newest designs in fur coats is here shown. It promises to be popular this winter. The double cape and the revers are faced with white and gold brocade. The sleeves are especially smart with their double ruffles at the wrist.

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"I don't know of anything that is more exactly like you," was Aunt Jane Mary's kindly comment. "Well, what's in the desk?"

"The market-book and the money."

"What money?"

"The money the new boarder gave me to keep for her."

"Well, can't you keep it as well with the key broken off as with it whole? I should think it was safer so than the other way."

"Yes, it is," I faltered, "but she wants it."

"What for?"

"She's going."

"What! The new boarder going? The boarder who only came yesterday! What have you done to her, Sophronia?"

"I haven't done anything," said I, half crying—"at least I've done everything. I've been as kind as kind could be, but I leave it to you, Aunt Jane Mary, if we can harbor a person in the house who gets up at all hours of the night to see men, and who——"

"It was my brother." The voice came from the door-way.

Aunt Jane Mary gave a scream. She hated to be caught looking as she did at that moment.

"Go downstairs," said I. "Go down! Go downstairs, she'll have a fit."

"I'll cure her," said the boarder.

Aunt Jane Mary's jaw worked convulsively. The new boarder approached the bed.

"There! There!" she said soothingly. She took Aunt Jane Mary's hand in one of hers and smoothed it with the other. I have thought since that she must have possessed hypnotic power. "I've seen worse looking people than you in my profession—not much, though," she said, turning to me. "Now, now. There! There!" She stroked Aunt Jane Mary's arm with her thin brown hand as she spoke. "There! You'll be all right presently. There! Are you feeling better? Run down to my room"—she turned to me—"and open that little black bag that sets on the table, and bring me that bottle of pale yellow liquid. Get a tumbler and spoon as you come past the dining-room and some water. Oh! You have water here. Go quickly! There! There! Where is the pain?"

Aunt Jane Mary, who loved to be made much of, lay as quiet as a mouse.

Instinctively I obeyed, and running swiftly down the stairs, I got the bottle, spoon, and glass, and returned to the upper chamber. As I came in the door, Miss Dacres was lifting Aunt Jane Mary up on her pillows with the tenderness required by a serious case. Then she resumed the stroking of her arm, with the soothing "There! There!" which seemed a part of her trade. To my astonishment, Aunt Jane Mary allowed her to drop a few globules of the pale yellow liquid in a glass half-full of water and give it to her. Then the soothing in the way of stroking and words continued, and Aunt Jane Mary had soon dropped off into a natural slumber.

Miss Dacres gently disengaged herself and went quietly down the stairs. I followed slowly after.

"You can't go until afternoon," said I; "the key's broken off in the lock, and I can't get at your money."

"Can't some one round here pick a lock?"

"I'm afraid not," said I. "There is no one nearer than the village. I am going down there by and by, and I will get the locksmith to come up."

"I'll go down on my wheel," said she.

"No," said I, suspecting something. I knew not what, from her readiness, "I will go myself. You don't know where the locksmith lives, and I want——"

"I could ask, I suppose. The place isn't so all-fired big—I mean, the village is not a place of such magnificent distances—that——"

"No," said I, "but I wish to see the people at the store, and get some stamps at the post office, and I may as well see to it myself."

"Very well," said she, turning away stiffly into her room. "Perhaps, after all, as you're the one to be benefited you had better do the walking."

This was so entirely what I should have to do that I smiled faintly. I looked in at her door, and saw that the work was yet for me to do.

"I must make that bed first, I suppose," said I, with a sigh.

"Oh, no, you needn't; I'll make the bed; just as lief as not. Besides, as I am going, and you'll have to put on clean sheets for the next comer, perhaps I'd better leave it as it is."

"I can't bear to think of it," said I. "I never left a room like that after nine o'clock in the morning."

"Your rooms don't get much airing that way, do they?" said she. This gave me something to think of.

"Just go along and don't bother," she added. "I'll make the bed." And I went.

When I had walked about a quarter of a mile I suddenly remembered my sunshade, which I wanted mended at the village store. I turned about and walked quickly backward. As I went swiftly towards the house, I raised my eyes to the window of my room. A woman was standing there, examining something which she held in her hands. What it was I could not tell. I came towards the house as fast as I could, and as I got near the gate I raised my eyes again, but there was no one in the room, at least not at the window. When I came up the steps I found Miss Dacres' room-door was closed. I opened it unceremoniously. There she was, pulling and stretching the sheets, patting them in place—in fact, going through with all the motions of making a bed in the most approved manner.

"Who was that in my room just now?" said I.

"How do I know?" she answered shortly.

"Were you up there?"

Miss Dacres stopped her bedmaking and stood upright. "I declare!" said she. "I think you are the most suspicious person I ever saw. I'm glad I'm going. Why should I go into your room? What should I get there? Not much, I should think, from——" She stopped short. She meant, I think, from my appearance. "You needn't flush up so. You've insulted me more than a thousand times since I came into this house, and as soon as I get my money I'm going out of here, if I have to walk back to town."

"Haven't you been upstairs?" asked I again, scrutinizing her narrowly.

"Yes," she admitted, "I have been upstairs, but only to see how your aunt is getting on. She wanted some breakfast, and I'm getting it for her."

"And you were not in my room?"

"No! No! No!" said she, "and no again. What should I want but my own money, and that, apparently, I can't get. Why shouldn't I be suspicious of you? It's probably that woman out there in the kitchen."

"What woman?"

"You'd better ask her. How should I know?" With this short answer Miss Dacres returned to her bedmaking, and I went up the stairs. All was apparently as I had left it. The key was still in the lock, still broken off, still stuck so that it could not be moved one way or the other. Aunt Jane Mary was sleeping as if she were dead. So I descended rapidly and ran out to the kitchen. Glorianna Towner was sitting by the stove. She was holding in her hand a spoon, with which she occasionally stirred something which was heating in a pan.

"What are you doing, Glorianna?" asked I.

"A-stirring the posset," said she, without looking up.

"So I see. What were you doing in my room just now?"

"Declare to God I hain't——"

"Stop," said I, "we don't use such language here. Answer me without prevarication. What were you doing in my room?"

"Only come jess as you left the gate—come across the back pasture," said Glorianna. "Hain't done a thing but set here an' stir as she told me to. She was coming downstairs as I come in the back-hall door."

Feat of a Somnambulist.

From Lewistown, Pa., comes the report of the recent remarkable feat of a somnambulist. Frank McNitt, while asleep, arose from his bed and walked out of the second-story window of his house and fell to the ground, a distance of 25 feet. The next morning dents to the depth of four inches were found in the ground where his hips and elbows had struck. McNitt's younger brother, who saw him get out of bed, walk to the window and deliberately step out, took a light and ran down the stairs, expecting to find his brother with his life crushed out by the fall, but he was much surprised when he saw him standing on his feet looking about him in a dazed manner and uninjured. He drank a glass of water that was tendered him and then quietly walked up the stairs and resumed his slumbers. Although he admitted feeling sore the next morning he says he does not remember anything of his remarkable fall.

ON THE DIAMOND.

It has been arranged to have the Plainfield-Elizabeth police game tomorrow, to take place on the Hope grounds. Don't forget this will be one of the best games of the season and the commodious grandstand will afford plenty of room for everybody. The game is scheduled to commence at 3:30.

As a heavy guarantee is to be paid Westfield for its game with Consolidated team, Saturday, it has been decided to somewhat raise the prices of admission. The grandstand rate will be twenty-five cents and for the field fifteen cents. The Y. M. C. A. and Hope officials will attend to the field management.

The St. Mary and Clinton Avenue teams will cross bats, Saturday. No arrangement has been made by Manager Monahan for the St. Mary postponed game of Saturday with the Scotch Plains team, but the latter will be seen in this city on September 27, per schedule. The other game in the series will no doubt be played later in the season.

GOLF.

The following new members have been elected by the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club: Active—Joseph L. Myers, Mrs. C. Wesley Holland and James F. Parker; junior associate—Mrs. James H. Hallock.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

The members of the I. C. T. football team indignantly deny the statement that the organization is to disband. The eleven is practicing regularly and a complete fall schedule is being arranged.

PERSONAL.

Miss Elsie Goddard, of East Ninth street, will enter Wellesley College this fall.

Miss Edna Moore, of Kensington avenue, left yesterday to enter Wellesley College.

Cannot be Located.

This morning's New York World publishes a news item from SanFrancisco telling of the suicide of Harry W. Johnson, a commercial traveller, who is reported to be from Plainfield. Investigation fails to locate such a person in this city. Harry F. Johnson, of Watchung avenue, was at his place of business in New York today, as usual.

Home From Europe.

Among the passengers who arrived on the Kroonland Monday, were Mr. and Mrs. David Prescott Hall, of 910 Madison avenue. They have much enjoyed their summer in Europe, and Mr. Hall's health has been greatly benefitted. Miss Caroline Minturn Hall will remain in Paris during the winter, continuing her art studies.

Council Meeting Tonight.

There will be a special meeting of the Common Council this evening called for the purpose of making a change in the security of Maybury & Son, of Passaic, the successful bidders for the extension of the sewers in this city. A meeting is necessary at this time so that there may be no delay in the work.

Two More Weeks.

It is expected that the work of macadamizing North avenue will be completed within two weeks, and then the street department will turn its attention to other work about the city which has been held up for a time.

JUDGE RUNYON'S CANDIDACY

CHAS. S. SMINCK WRITES OF IT IN GLOWING TERMS.

Appeals to Republicans of City and County to Support the "Boy Judge."

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The friends of Judge Runyon who advocate his nomination to the honorable office of State senator, who desire that Plainfield shall have a candidate, who wish to place an alert, ideal, able young man to the front feel that they are serving the best interests of the county and the State; that they are exciting a worthy ambition in others to appeal to the best side of human nature.

It is a wise political leader who will recognize the merit of youth, the glory of its ideals, who will strike the keynote so that the rank and file will keep harmonious time in martial spirit to the high aspirations of the opportunity.

We stand by the "Boy Judge." It is a fine battle cry, a striking example of Plainfield's citizenship and the possibilities presented within her borders, with her schools and her elevated standard of official conduct.

We cheerfully concede to Senator Cross all the virtues claimed for him by his friends who must, in turn, acknowledge that Judge Runyon has equal mental endowments, moral qualifications and character. In addition to this Judge Runyon has political strength not possessed by Senator Cross.

Judge Cross has been twice elected senator and it is therefore only fair to give another a chance, especially when it doesn't seem to be good political judgment to nominate him at this time.

The wrongful use of money at the primaries and at the polls in the interest of Republican candidates will surely bring a disgraceful and a disastrous defeat for the people of Union county are too intelligent, independent and patriotic to tolerate a breastwork of greenbacks.

The hillsides of Union are dotted with homes around whose firesides are taught that merit and right shall prevail and it is an ill-starred politician who attempts to run counter to the wholesome morals of the home.

Politicians in their sharp rivalry should therefore beware of public sentiment and not do anything to create a scandal.

In advocating Judge Runyon no reflection is cast on any man. In presenting him as Plainfield's candidate the standard is kept high for the Republican party will not be satisfied with anything but the best.

Judge Runyon is a man of the people in close touch and sympathy with their thought and life—a gentleman noted for his worth and sincerity.

The proof of this statement is the fact that he has twice been elected city judge and the second time without Democratic opposition—a graceful and appreciated tribute from our opponents and a compliment which now would be very becoming from some isolated, local Republicans.

We appeal to the citizens of Plainfield to give Judge Runyon a solid delegation to the county convention.

Why should this courtesy be denied?

Youth should favor, not handicap him, for some of our best statesmen have held commanding positions in their early manhood.

If Plainfield will stand by her honored son the prospects for success will be bright.

For senator, William N. Runyon, the people's candidate! Let this be the cry throughout the county! The spirit and confidence of youth, the bounding enthusiasm, the live, building principles of Republicanism will assert themselves and the election will be a worthy triumph.

Is this not worth working for?

Charles S. Sminck.

Released Under Guarantee.

Albert Pearson, the young man accused by James Emmons, of East Front street, of stealing fruit from his premises, was discharged by Justice Huff, yesterday afternoon. The boy's father consented to furnish a guarantee for $50 that he would remain away from the premises. S. S. Swackhamer appeared for Pearson while William Newcorn represented Emmons.

Crippled Horse.

An old horse, owned by Levi Bird, of Somerset street, was found this morning in a crippled condition in Mr. Bird's yard. The attention of Health Inspector Pangborn was called to the case by Chief Campbell, and some provision will be made to take care of the animal.

VOTED NOT TO CHANGE

Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., in referring to yesterday's election in the borough, had the following to say this morning:

"The saloon aided by the fire department and those having real and imaginary grievances against Senator Reed or Mayor Smalley brought defeat to a most desirable measure. Personally, I sincerely regret the result as it will be a long time before the people of the borough can hope to have a like opportunity to better their condition."

"I'm not surprised," remarked Mayor Smalley after it was all over. "We've made a stride. All the saloon element was against us in this fight. We had most of the intelligent people. They think we are dead but I'm the liveliest corpse you ever saw. The annexationists will keep up the fight, and we'll win."

"Those who feared annexation," said A. V. D. Honeyman this morning, "did their level best and put up a strong fight, which could not win simply because from the first the voters were against the proposition to annex, or, at present, consolidation. Now that popular sentiment has declared itself in a lawful way, the controversies arising out of the legislation of last winter should be considered settled.

"I take for grapted there will be no election called by the Borough Council on the question of consolidation, for it would be folly to press it. And, besides, the legislation had is not adapted to secure the end in a way to suit either advocates or opponents. We want to devote our energies now to making an ideal borough, and let the matter of whether we shall ever become a part of Plainfield or not be settled in its own natural time and way.

"The North Plainfield Citizens Association, which numbers nearly 350 members, will continue to exist, to watch the progress of future events, and if any future legislation is asked for, to have something to say about that. It may also take a hand in discussing and aiding the settlement of measures which are of great local concern; for example, future sewerage, the grants of street railway franchises, and even the condition of our annual tax budget. An organization of this kind can be exceedingly helpful to civic interests, if properly managed."

"The conservative people of our borough have won a decided victory," was the way Dr. J. H. Cooley put it. "Every possible device was used by the annexationists to defeat the will of the majority. Threats, promises, ridicule, ballots with 'against' marked very faintly and sent to voters advanced in years whose eyesight might be getting dim, were of no avail although quite a number of ballots were thrown out on that account. What the next move will be I am not informed. Be it what it may I shall be found ready to do my part to defeat any scheme to impair the independence and welfare of the borough."

Fertility of Mindanao.

Backed by American capital Mindanao would become a strong competitor of Java in its sugar plantations, having the most fertile soil in the world and being peculiarly adapted to the raising of this staple article. The region to the north of Lake Depao is a flourishing hemp country. Sugar, coffee and cocoanuts can also be raised in abundance. From Lake Lanao to the Pacific ocean the mountains are filled with gold, iron and coal. There are many miners here now, but they are keeping quiet and saying nothing. However, there have been exhibited rich specimens of gold taken from the hills about Parang Parang, grains about the size of wheat grains. In the popular mind Mindanao has been pictured as a wild, unexplored country, peopled by savages. Not so, however, and although some parts are unfit for development there remains a vast territory as fertile and as rich as any in the United States. Leaving out the west uninhabited parts, the south and east afford ample fields for colonization.—Manila Freedom.

Sarcasm That Failed.

He is such a little man—only three years old—yet he insists upon intruding his presence and advice upon his elders, often to their intense annoyance.

It was only a few days ago that his mother and his Aunt Belle were discussing some household problem—something which an infant was not supposed to know anything about. Suddenly Cliff appeared on the scene, and in a moment was informing both of the feminine members of the family just what the facts were.

"Oh, Wisdom, when did you arrive?" exclaimed Aunt Belle, thinking she might be able to "squelch" the youngster.

"Just come dis minit," replied the mite, not in the least abashed by the sarcasm. And Aunt Belle gave it up as a hopeless case.—Duluth News-Tribune.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887 PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1902. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR.

LITTLE COAL IN LOCAL BINS

But Few Dealers Have Any, and Supply Will Only Last to the First of October.

A LITTLE SOFT COAL.

Severe Cold Wave Would be Very Unwelcome to Majority of Plainfielders — McDonough Brothers and E. H. Holmes Have Largest Supply—No Prospect of More.

With very little coal in yards or cellars, the prospect for a cold spell just at the present time would come as an unwelcome proposition to the majority of Plainfielders. The useful commodity is now bringing $9 per ton for the domestic grades and a canvass of the local dealers today revealed the fact that their entire reserved supplies will be entirely exhausted by the first week in October. Reports from the coal fields as to a settlement of the anthracite troubles are so conflicting that as one dealer remarked, "There's no living man, not even Mitchell, can tell when this strike will end." That practically means that the woodman's axe will be kept busy this winter or else a pall will hang over the city through the use of soft coal.

Of the local dealers, probably the largest amount of coal of hard grades is held by McDonough Brothers. It aggregates 800 tons, but of this 700 tons has already been booked and is now being delivered. The remainder is being disposed of in small quantities to private persons and some of the other dealers. This firm secured the contract to furnish the public schools with the winter supply and has fulfilled it, but not a pound of coal has been received at the yards since May 12. There is also a few hundred tons of bituminous stored in the bins and one of the firm stated that this could be used by householders if it came to a pinch. The only difficulty is the narrowness of the flues but a little practice will soon remove all trouble. Throughout the west and in England soft coal is used constantly. Soft coal sells for $6 a ton.

E. H. Holmes, the Madison avenue dealer, is also fortunate in having a fairly good supply in stock and is booking orders for small amounts. Early in the year he placed a number of large orders with the operators and they were filled shortly after the strike began.

Boice, Runyon & Company have a small amount of the hard grades and enough soft to supply immediate demands. They are expecting a shipment of 100 tons of the latter this week. There is not a pound of hard coal at the D. C. Ivins' yard and the Consumers Coal Company, TenEyck & Harris, and the smaller dealers are filling booked orders by buying from McDonough Brothers.

Thus the situation stands locally and there is small chance of a relief wave coming this way. Providing the miners do return to work and the collieries run on full time, it will be many days afterward before any cars will be shipped in this direction. Large manufacturing concerns and important industries which have been compelled to shut down will be attended to first and then it will be time to listen to the cries from the "smaller fry." As stated, the Plainfield supply will be exhausted by the fore part of next month and if anything like cold weather sets in, the situation will indeed be grave.

FOR CLERKS AND CARRIERS.

Civil Service Examinations Will be Held Here October 15.

The United States Civil Service Commission has ordered that an examination be made by the local board in this city Wednesday, October 15, commencing at 1:30 for the grade of clerk and carrier in the postal service. Only citizens of the United States between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years can be examined. Applications must be made to William B. Sharp, secretary of the local Board of Examiners.

To Enroll New Members.

The Swedish Lutheran congregation will hold a Communion service and enroll new members at Grace Episcopal church, Seventh and Sycamore streets, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Rev. G. Nelsenius, of Brooklyn, who is president of the New York Augustana District, will officiate. All are welcome.

GOLF CLUB ELECTION.

Annual Meeting of Westfield Golf Club Held Tuesday Night.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Sept. 18—The annual meeting of the Westfield Golf Club was held at the clubhouse, Tuesday evening, when Harrison Gladwin, John Gulick and Robert Fairbairn were elected trustees for three years, and W. P. Tuttle was elected a trustee for two years to fill the unexpired term of Paul D. Worcester, resigned.

The financial reports showed the club to be in good condition, there being no deficit. There were twenty-five members, out of a total active membership of 150, present at the meeting. The entire membership of the club is nearly 250.

MUST CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM

TROUBLES OF THE INDEPENDENT REPUBLICANS IN PLAINFIELD.

Each Faction Has a Popular Plainfielder on the Ticket—If They Could Only Combine.

While the local machine politicians have lined up with their respective factions, some of the independent Republican voters have been having their troubles to know exactly where they do stand. The trouble is that Plainfield has two candidates in the field and they happen to be on opposing tickets. If a combination could be made whereby they could support City Judge William N. Runyon for senator and Councilman B. Frank Coriell for sheriff, then the way of the Plainfielders would be easy. As it is, some of them do not know what to do.

While it looked for a while as if Judge Runyon would get a solid delegation from Plainfield, the candidacy of Mr. Coriell has rather upset calculations, particularly in the Third ward where is his home. Mr. Runyon's friends are still confident that Plainfield will back their candidate solidly while friends of Mr. Coriell believe that he will get a portion, at least, of Plainfield's delegation.

From Elizabeth comes a report that the advocates of Senator Cross and Councilman Coriell say that they will have enough delegates outside of Plainfield to nominate their candidates so that it will make no difference whether or not the city is solid for Judge Runyon. The other faction claims that it will make serious inroads into Senator Cross' strength right in Elizabeth and that it will hold Plainfield, Westfield and most of the township solidly.

All the work being done in the city is now going forward very quietly. While little is heard above the surface, it is no sign that there is not a great deal of work being done. Monday the primaries will be held. Then will the results of this effort be seen.

OFFICERS ASSIGNED.

Appointed to Companies in City High School Battalion.

The following assignment of officers of the Plainfield High School Cadet Corps has been made:

Company A—Captain, F. J. Van Auken; first lieutenant, A. F. Conant; second lieutenant, V. B. Miner; first sergeant, J. L. Tweedy; quartermaster sergeant, E. I. Weseman; sergeants, C. N. Doolittle, E. Elliot; corporals, C. C. Rocap, E. M. Daniel.

Company B—Captain, A. E. Moore; first lieutenant, M. T. Moynihan; second lieutenant, F. K. Anderson; first sergeant, C. F. Neagle; quartermaster sergeant, R. R. Eckert; sergeants, F. H. Lock; H. M. Slauson; corporals, H. G. Lapsley, H. E. Lavelle.

Company C—Captain, R. S. Lane; first lieutenant, V. W. Brooks; second lieutenant, A. D. Beers; first sergeant, H. C. Fenno; quartermaster sergeant, H. A. Brownell; sergeants, C. Brown, A. F. Yaeger; corporals, P. M. Brown, S. Freeman.

Was Known Here.

Many Plainfielders will be interested in the announcement of the marriage of Dr. Elmer Wherry, formerly of Westfield, but now of Newark, to Miss Mary M. Rue, of Red Bank, which took place yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church, Red Bank. Dr. Wherry when he lived at Westfield was prominent as a football player and in social circles he was popular. He has many friends in this city who will learn of his marriage with interest.

Shinn-Fanes Remember Mr. McCue.

Doorman Thomas McCue, of police headquarters, was the astonished recipient yesterday of a gold mounted, amber stemmed pipe. It came as a gift from the members of the Shinn-Fane society, of which the genial Thomas is numbered, which held its reunion at Bethlehem, Pa., recently.

FOOTBALL TO BEGIN HERE SEPTEMBER 27

Alis A. A. Will Play Its First Game With the Orange Field Club, of This City.

GETTING OTHER GAMES.

SOME OF THE CANDIDATES WHO ARE TRYING FOR TEAM.

Games Will be Played on the Hope Common—Practice by Electric Light in Field Near Captain R. T. Phillips' Home.

The football season for the Alis Athletic Association is scheduled to open Saturday afternoon, September 27, when an exhibition game will be played with the Orange Field Club, of this city. The management has secured the right to lay out a gridiron on Hope Common and there all of its home games will be played. The opening match with the Orange F. C. will be free to the public. After that contest, a charge will be made for all witnessing the games.

Everything points to a most successful season and a strong team. Now that the league has been given up, Manager Harold A. Chandor is losing no time in scheduling games with the strongest amateur elevens in this part of New Jersey and the metropolitan district. The Bergen Point Field Club, which played a tie game with Alis on Thanksgiving Day, 1900, has been booked to play here on the morning of next Thanksgiving Day. The Election Day morning game will probably be with the Rutgers "scrubs" as has been the custom for the last few years.

Candidates for the eleven will meet for practice this evening in the field at the rear of the home of Captain Roy T. Phillips, of Madison avenue. Electric lights have been placed around the field and give excellent illumination for practice.

Captain Phillips has an excellent lot of material from which to choose. He has not yet outlined the team as a number of candidates are expected out soon who have not yet appeared for practice. Among the candidates for positions on the line, who have already been out for practice are Homer Smith, David S. Pond, Garfield Pike, H. C. Gwynne, Alfred Egan, Roy Radford, Herbert Cathcart, Ernest Peters, Bert Brandon, Harold Davis and Godwin Beard. The candidates for the backs who have so far been out are Charles Woolston, George P. Smith, Harry Cuming, LeRoy Mack and Ivan Hardingham. Captain Phillips will probably play quarter back.

SECURITY APPROVED.

Special Meeting of Common Council Held Last Night to Approve Contractors Bond.

A special meeting of the Common Council was called for last evening for the purpose of approving the surety bond of J. Maybury & Company, furnished by the Fidelity and Deposit Company, of Maryland, required for the faithful performance of the sewer contract awarded to J. Maybury & Co. This action was necessary owing to the absence of Mayor Jenkins and so that there may be no delay in the execution of the work.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution which was adopted approving the surety. Another resolution offered by Mr. Tolles provided for the laying of a stone sidewalk in front of the property No. 921 to 925 Prospect avenue, deeded to the city under provisions of the Martin Act. This comprised all the business and the Council adjourned.

Juniors Visit Gallia.

Fifteen members of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., journeyed by stage to Gallia, last evening, when they paid a fraternal visit to Fairview Council. The Plainfielders were treated to an entertainment and supper that was excellent. The return home was made at 2 o'clock this morning.

Caught Hand on Meat Hook.

Bernice Egel, of Somerset street, severely cut his left hand yesterday on a meat hook at his father's butcher shop. The young man was placing a large piece of meat on the hook and his hand slipped. Young Egel went to Dr. Mattison's drug store, where proper treatment was given.

MISS SCHUYLER WON CUP

WOMEN'S TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP OF HILLSIDE CLUB DECIDED.

She Defeated Miss Loizeaux in the Finals Played Yesterday Afternoon at Hillside.

The Mellick cup, which represents the women's tennis championship of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, was won yesterday by Miss Sarah E. Schuyler after one of the most exciting matches ever played on the Hillside Club courts.

During the summer four qualifying tournaments have been held, the winners of which were to meet for the semi-finals yesterday. The winners were Mrs. W. L. Murray, Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, Miss Mary Whiton and Miss Sarah E. Schuyler. Mrs. W. L. Murray and Miss Loizeaux were paired together to play in the semi-finals yesterday morning. Mrs. Murray made a good fight but her opponent was much too strong for her and the match went to Miss Loizeaux 6-0, 5-1. Miss Whiton and Miss Schuyler were paired together for the other match in the semi-finals but Miss Whiton could not be present and her opponent won the match by default.

It was in the finals, which were played during the afternoon, that the hottest contest developed. A large audience witnessed the play and saw a match well worth witnessing. From the first the play was close, almost every game being a deuce game. More accurate play finally gave the first set to Miss Loizeaux, 7-5. The second set was just as close but Miss Schuyler's game showed improvement and she finally won out 7-5. The deciding set, while very exciting, showed the superiority of Miss Schuyler's game and she won out handily 6-2. The victory gives her the championsip of the club and the handsome silver trophy offered by George P. Mellick.

WIRE THIEVES WORK AGAIN

CHAGRINED AT LOSING PLUNDER CUT SUPPORTS AND STALL CARS.

Elizabeth Line Blocked for Two Hours Last Evening—At Same Place Where Wire Was Taken.

Not satisfied with having badly crippled the through trolley line beyond Scotch Plains, yesterday morning, wire thieves again put the line in difficulties, last evening.

While repairing the damage done, yesterday, linemen found in the bushes near Galvin's Park, the greater part of the wire removed, presumably left until a favorable opportunity was afforded to take it away. Without informing the police they confiscated it but left no one to watch the spot. Last night shortly after 9 o'clock, the thieves evidently returned to get the plunder and finding it gone were much chagrined. Their anger was vented in cutting the guy wires which hold the power strand, letting the whole network to the ground.

The first car which came along ran into the tangle and was stalled. Another followed from the other direction and the crews kept guard until repair men could be hurried to the spot. It was nearly 11 o'clock before the cars were enabled to proceed. The company has decided to place watchmen along the route to prevent further annoyance.

City Judge William N. Runyon officiated at the quiet wedding of a Plainfield couple, this morning. The contracting parties were Miss Anna Holmes, of West Front street, and Francis B. Cockburn, also of West Front street. Only a few intimate relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony which took place at 9 o'clock in the Plymouth Brethren meeting house in East Front street.

The bride was attired in a gown of silver gray cloth. Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, the former a brother of the bride, acted as attendants. The form of the ceremony was that used by the Plymouth Brethren.

Mr. and Mrs. Cockburn will go to housekeeping at 963 West Front street. The groom is a draughtsman at the Pond Tool Works.

GREAT ENDEAVORER HAS ENDED EUROPEAN TOUR

Rev. Dr. Clark Returned From Eight Months' Trip in Interest of Christian Endeavor.

MADE FIVE JOURNEYS.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER RECEPTION ACCORDED TO CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Attended 200 Meetings and Conferences in Twenty Different Countries—Talks on the Foreign Work by Dr. Clark.

Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark has returned to America, after having spent eight months in making five journeys in the interests of Christian Endeavor. During these eight months he has traveled 23,000 miles and attended 200 meetings and conferences in twenty different countries, ranging from Iceland to Turkey, and from north of the arctic circle in Norway to Spain. His speeches have been translated into nineteen tongues. In seven nations national Christian Endeavor unions have been formed or strengthened, and beginnings made in several other countries. Secretaries who give a whole or part of their time to the work have been found for eight countries. Christian Endeavor literature has been translated into Italian, Finnish, Portuguese, and Bulgarian for the first time.

Dr. Clark is very enthusiastic over the reception accorded to Christian Endeavor in those countries which had not previously known Christian Endeavor and delighted over the enthusiasm of the workers in the places where the movement is established.

The twenty countries visited during the eight months were Italy, Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Russia, Austria, Bohemia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Macedonia, England, Scotland, Wales, France, Spain, Portugal, Iceland and Switzerland. Some of these were visited more than once.

The founder of the Christian Endeavor movement has observed that the reason why the cause meets with such a hearty reception in foreign lands is because of its clear-cut and insistent principles. He says:

"Christian Endeavor is wanted because it is a strenuous, earnest programme of service; because it has a prayer meeting and a pledge to make the prayer meeting effective; because it asks some definite Christian work from every active member, and does not cater to worldly laxness and indifference; because it is genuinely a religious organization, and makes its social and literary side distinctly secondary to its spiritual aims.

"European countries do not want any flabby, namby-pamby, weak-kneed organization that is afraid to demand any service of the young people or to appeal in any way to their heroism. Over and over again I have been told this by religious leaders, some of whom have tried these other plans, and have given them up in utter weariness and disgust, and have been attracted to Christian Endeavor by its strenuous purpose and high demands on its active members.

"I am more convinced than ever that any society that lowers its standard for the sake of numbers or any temporary success will make an almost irreparable mistake. The blessing of God in America and every land has rested upon the best type of Christian Endeavor societies. Multitudes of other organizations with a lower aim and less heroic methods have been proposed and advocated, have had their little day, and have been forgotten. Why waste time on such experiments, when the way of genuine success has been demonstrated tens of thousands of times in America and in almost every land beneath the sun? The adaptability of genuine Christian Endeavor to every land and its need in every land can no longer be doubted. Under peculiar and adverse circumstances in a score of different lands during the last eight months I have seen it demonstrated."

The work on the Arlington avenue storm sewer is progressing favorably and under present weather conditions it should be completed at an early date. The contractors have had no setback with bad weather and have been able to make steady progress every day.

YOUNG PEOPLE WED.

Miss Edith Conover and Albert King Married in New York, Sept. 8.

Announcement has just been made of the marriage of Miss Edith Conover and Albert King, both of this city, which took place September 8. The ceremony took place in New York and was performed by Rev. Charles C. Edwards, rector of Grace P. E. church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Conover, of Jackson avenue. The groom has been living with his father on West Front street, but is in business in New York. The young couple have commenced housekeeping in handsomely furnished apartments in One Hundred and Fifty-first street, New York.

CITY HIGH SCHOOL TENNIS

CHAMPIONSHIP WILL PROBABLY BE PLAYED NEXT WEEK.

Informal Arrangements Made for Event to be Played on Cedar Brook Courts.

Although the subject has not yet come officially before the officers of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association, arrangements have been informally made for the tennis tournament for the championship of the City High School. At a meeting of the new directors of the athletic association, the action taken will undoubtedly be approved.

It is now planned to begin the tournament Monday afternoon on the courts of the Cedar Brook Tennis Club on LaGrande avenue. The consent of the officials of the latter club has been secured by some of the interested ones and the courts will be put in the best of condition for the play. A large field of entries is expected in the singles which will probably be played first.

In the doubles it is expected that the number will be greatly reduced. In the latter contest, victory will probably lie between last year's winners, Fred T. VanAuken and Vincent B. Miner, and Chester Briggs and Clarence Rocap who met them last year in the finals. Some good tennis is promised before the championships are decided.

MORE MEMBERS.

Additional Applications Received for Boys' Club at Open House Last Night.

The Boys' Clubhouse has been open every evening this week, when Olaf Saugstad was present to receive new members. There were many boys at the club who were unable to be there the first night.

The total enrollment is now over fifty and during the next few days Mr. Saugstad will pick from the list the oldest boys and give them first chance. Those remaining on the list will have to wait their opportunity to get in the club. It is only possible to accommodate between thirty-five and forty boys and do the work as it should be.

Just as soon as the boys are selected the work for the winter will be planned and classes will be formed. There will be systematic work in the gymnasium, as heretofore, while the wood carving department will be a feature. During the winter months exhibitions will be given and socials will help to pass the time pleasantly. Mr. Saugstad has had great success with this work and the coming season will no doubt be equally as successful as preceding ones.

Shampooed Guests Heads.

A Tulepo party was given last evening at the residence of LaFever Bradley on Church street. Twenty couple were present. All kinds of games were played and light refreshments were served. A unique feature of the evening was the shampooing of every head by Mr. Bradley with Tulepo.

Still Without Pastors.

As yet the Crescent Avenue, First Baptist and Grace Episcopal churches have not selected pastors to succeed those who have resigned. The several committees, having in charge the matter of a selection, have not yet reported, although it is believed that they are doing something.

Purchased Monarch Plant.

Yardley Brown, formerly associated in the management of a printery in North Plainfield, yesterday purchased the plant of the Monarch Printing Company on North avenue and he will take possession Monday. Collector Frank H. Smith formerly owned the North avenue plant.

For Mexican Missions.

The offering at the Crescent Avenue church, Sunday, will be for missions in Mexico and South America.

MAYOR AFTER "ROUGH HOUSE"

Proprietor R. Boyce, of Somerset Hotel, Arraigned for Keeping Disorderly House.

HE PLEADED GUILTY.

But Promised Recorder That His Place Should be a Model of Order—The Mayor Said Some People Had Gotten Idea That Saloons Were Controlling Borough.

There was something doing in the borough yesterday afternoon and in the future Mayor Smalley, Recorder Doud and Chief Campbell can be counted upon to strictly enforce the borough ordinances regarding the maintenance of saloons. It was evident that the saloons were feeling the somewhat lenient hand of the borough executive and took too many liberties.

The trouble of yesterday started in Richard Boyce's Somerset Hotel, corner of Somerset street and Lincoln place, where a crowd of men were engaged in a heated argument. To those outside it sounded as though a fight was going on and someone was being hurt. Suddenly, Walter Jenkins, colored, ran out of the saloon and started down Somerset street toward Plainfield. In an instant Chief Campbell was chasing after him, and Health Inspector Wm. Pangborn also joined the chase. Campbell reached the man first and brought him back to the borough lockup. In the meantime, William Emmons was thrown out of the side door of the saloon. His face was cut and he suffered from other injuries. He was assisted to his feet and taken to police headquarters.

In a very short time Recorder Doud and Mayor Smalley were on hand and then followed a lively time. Jenkins was arraigned and Mr. Pangborn appeared in his behalf. He was asked to explain his part in the fray, and Richard Boyce was present to testify against him. The testimony given by Boyce was used against him immediately afterward, when Chief Campbell charged him with keeping a disorderly house.

It was at this time that Mayor Smalley took a hand in the affair. He delivered a strong and impressive lecture to Mr. Boyce. He gave him to understand that there are borough ordinances and that they will be enforced to the letter in the future. His Honor said that some people had lately gotten the idea that the saloons were in power and that they were controlling the borough. For the benefit of such saloon keepers the Mayor said that he wanted them to fully realize that they must live up to the ordinances or suffer the consequences.

Mr. Boyce was deeply affected by what the Mayor said and he promised faithfully that in the future he would keep his place as it should be. He pleaded guilty to the charge preferred and said he was very sorry that there had been any disturbance in his saloon.

After severely reprimanding Mr. Boyce, Recorder Doud suspended sentence. The Recorder supported Mayor Smalley in his statements and said that in the past there had been too much disturbance and that in the future violators of the law would be severely dealt with.

REMARKABLE RIFLE.

Telescope Rifle Now on Exhibition at J. Hervey Doane's.

There is on exhibition in the show window of J. Hervey Doane's jewelry store a Confederate sharpshooter's telescope rifle, picked up near the foot of Little Round Top, on the battlefield at Gettysburg, by an officer of the Fifth New York Volunteer Infantry, Duryea's Zouaves, July 3, 1863. It weighs thirty-two pounds and is in fine condition. It has attracted considerable attention from passersby. The rifle is owned by a Plainfield man who prefers to withhold his name.

Repairing Tracks.

The Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company has commenced the work of repair on West Front street where the single track joins the double tracks. Heretofore, there has been a depression alongside the tracks making it dangerous for wagons crossing at that point. It is now proposed to place block pavement each side of the track. This, when the tracks are raised, will allow water to run off more rapidly.

SENATOR STRONG IS LEADER IN MIDDLESEX

The One Shadow Across His Path is Mayor Viehmann, of New Brunswick.

THE COMING CAMPAIGN.

HOW STRONG HAS WORKED UP TO THE REPUBLICAN LEADERSHIP.

Slates of the Two Parties in Middlesex County—The Great Showing the Democratic Mayor of New Brunswick Has Made.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Sept. 18—A campaign for a choice lot of county and city offices is close at hand for New Brunswick and Middlesex county. Outside of the Congressional honor, which is practically conceded to Benjamin F. Howell, there will be an interesting struggle. A surrogate, a sheriff, three assemblymen, six New Brunswick ward aldermen, an alderman-at-large, city collector, assessor and recorder are to be chosen. Moreover, and most significantly, the county will make public its views for or against changing the Board of Freeholders to a commission of five as provided in the Strong law. Senator Theodore Strong's political future will be greatly affected by the way the county votes. He had the Freeholder law passed for Middlesex county's benefit because he believed conditions here were ripe for a change. If the scheme is rejected by the people, Senator Strong's outlook for renomination or re-election next year will be a poor one.

The Senator at present practically sways the destinies of the Republican party in Middlesex. He is the first actual leader the party has had here since the days of Senator Jarrard. Since then all has been strife and clamor for leadership, and the well organized Democrats have generally had things all their own way. In the campaign of 1896, when the county gave McKinley 3,000 and more for President, it elected a Democratic sheriff by 1,300, because the Republicans carried their convention squabbles into the campaign.

It is pretty hard to determine when Theodore Strong decided to become the much-needed leader. He was State committeeman up to 1896, and then County Clerk John H. Conger managed to get the position away from him. Four years later Mr. Conger decided to get out, and it was supposed that he had the place warm for Robert Carson, the nominal Republican leader for a dozen years. But to the surprise of everyone, Henry Banker, an almost unknown New Brunswick politician, was made committeeman. And it didn't take long to discover that Banker, instead of shaping a leadership of his own, was preparing one for Strong, who had been in the background for four years. The Carson-Conger faction had groomed Edward W. Hicks for Senator in 1900. Strong entered the fight and won easily. It is safe to say that had it been an individual test of men, Mr. Hicks would today be the Senator from Middlesex. But the Republicans were tired of drifting along under a half dozen or so of leaders, and voluntarily elevated Theodore Strong to the first place in their counsels. He defeated Senator James H. VanCleef easily at the polls. Since he has been in the Senate he has been building up a powerful following in the county. Three of his followers he has landed in good jobs at the Rahway Reformatory, another at the State Hospital. Locally his supporters have been well placed, one of them even getting the position of sergeant-at-arms in the District Court of which the Senator's erstwhile rival, Edward W. Hicks, is judge.

Senator Strong kept a solid Middlesex delegation in line for Senator Dryden at the memorable caucus last winter, and he is the only candidate mentioned so far for the Senate presidency next year. If he wins the hard campaign before him this fall he will probably get the presidency and will also be in good shape for the fight next fall. He will not be opposed for the nomination then. The one shadow across his path is a Democratic one, cast by George A. Viehmann, Mayor of New Brunswick.

Mayor Viehmann has been carrying on his adimnistration in an open, independent way that has won the hearts of the people of the whole county. He has started New Brunswick on the road to prosperity. The city streets are being paved, a new library has been secured from Andrew Carnegie, the city ordinances have been codified for the first time and every department of the city thoroughly systematized, all directly through the influence of the energetic young Mayor. So Mr. Viehmann is pointed to as the coming man in Middlesex county. All agree that he is booked to go higher. Congress is out of his reach just now, but the State Senate would be a natural and comparatively easy step. Senator Strong has had his eye on the Mayor since the latter's election last fall. When Mr. Viehmann got a bill through the Assembly specifying a means for raising paving money by bonding, the measure was side-tracked in the Senate and the Mayor's paving schemes were delayed somewhat. So the indications are that Strong and Viehmann will fight it out hand to hand next year. There are practically no other county offices to fill then and the tussle is bound to be a hard one.

The slates for this fall are pretty nearly made up. The Republican ticket will read pretty much like this: Surrogate, Theodore B. Boorsem, of New Brunswick; sheriff, William Carman, of Metuchen; city recorder, William W. Kuhn; Assemblymen, Myron J. Whitford, of New Market, and W. H. C. Jackson, of New Brunswick. The third Assemblyman is an unknown quantity. J. E. Montgomery, of South Amboy, has had three terms and is not likely to run again. The Republicans are in doubt over their nominees for Alderman-at-large, city collector and assessor in New Brunswick.

The Democrats have about decided on these candidates: Sheriff, George J. Litterst, of New Brunswick, or J. V. D. Field, of New Market; surrogate, Peter F. Daly, of New Brunswick; city collector, W. E. Florance; city assessor, Charles A. Dunn; Alderman-at-large, Freeman Woodbridge. The men for city recorder and the Assembly are still under discussion.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

THEATRICAL.

The Bostonians' scenic production of "Robin Hood" at the New York Academy of Music is a splendid success. Messrs. Barnabee and MacDonald have engaged the finest company this season they have had in many years, while the chorus is without doubt a credit to this talented organization. It seems like an entirely new "Robin Hood" with its beautiful costumes and gorgeous stage settings. The exquisite melody and delightful comedy place it as the peer of American comic opera. There are roars of laughter in every line spoken by H. C. Barnabee as the "Sheriff of Nottingham" and his partner, W. H. MacDonald, the original "Little John," sings with fine fervor his tribute to "Brown October Ale" which wins encore after encore. Miss Grace VanStuddiford ranks with the best prima donnas this country has produced and her share in the success of "Robin Hood" is very important. "Jolly Friar Tuck" in the person of George B. Frothingham, is as unctuous as ever, lending merriment to every scene. Withal it is the best production "Robin Hood" has known and there is no wonder at the crowds that are flocking to the Academy as "Robin Hood" is a real comic opera and a veritable treat.

Nasal Catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. A remedy for Nasal Catarrh which is drying or exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. Cream Balm is recognized as a specific. A cold in the head immediately disappears when CreamBalm is used. Ely Bothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. Randolph.

TWO LARGE BRIDGES SOON TO BE BUILT

One Firm Has Contract for Newark Bay Bridge and the Bridge Over Raritan River.

IMPORTANT CHANGES.

RARITAN RIVER BRIDGE IS BIG STEP IN ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

It Makes a Short Wagon Route to Seashore—Has Been Opposed by Railroads—Sandford & Harris Are the Contractors.

One of the most important of the proposed road improvements in this State contemplates a short wagon route to the seashore through Rahway and Perth Amboy, cutting out the long ride through New Brunswick, South River and Old Bridge. For years the railroad interests have fought the construction of a wagon bridge across the Raritan below the Middlesex and Essex turnpike at New Brunswick, and it has been necessary to make a long detour to reach Keyport and Red Bank on the direct route to the seashore resorts.

This opposition has at last been overcome by the strength of public necessity, and a big bridge has been contracted for to cross the wide river near Perth Amboy.

The contract for building the bridge was obtained last week by Sanford & Harris, of Newark, who bid for the piling, the steel construction of the big draw, the concrete pivot pier and the two rest piers, both of which will be built of concrete upon the modern principle. The contract price is $146,950, and the work will be done by July 15 next.

The bridge will be nearly a mile in length and will be free for pedestrians and all kinds of vehicles. Probably a trolley will be run over it when it is completed. It will be a great public convenience at all events and will be in close conjunction with the State improvement of public roads, for which a large sum has been appropriated.

Sandford & Harris struck luck last week in two contracts, one of which was the Raritan Bridge. The other consists of a large share of the work of improving the long bridge over Newark bay for the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey. This job consists of preparing for the erection of a pair of Scherzer rolling lift draws to replace the pivot draw, which has been a great obstruction to navigation since it was put in place when the bridge was erected and opened in 1864. This pivot draw has two openings of seventy-five feet width in a total length of 269 feet. The new rolling lift draw will have a clear width of eighty-five feet and will be one of the largest of the kind ever erected in this country.

There are several of the Scherzer bridges crossing the Chicago river and carrying railroads and highways. They are built in two sections, each of which rise prependicularly when it is necessary to give passage for a vessel, and they move in much less time than swing or pivot bridges, at the same time giving a sure block against trains approaching in either direction.

Messrs. Sandford and Harris are residents of Newark. A. E. Sandford has been identified with many bridge contracts, among them the county bridge at Passaic, the Centre street bridge, Newark; the freight bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad over the Hackensack river; the county bridge at Jackson street, Newark, and the Seabright bridge. The firm is now constructing the foundations for the new D. L. and W. R. R. bridge, Newark. It also has the contract on the D., L. and W. R. R. for depression of the tracks from the canal bridge to East Orange line.

OFFICERS FOR WOMEN'S CLUBS

NOMINATIONS ANNOUNCED FOR NEW JERSEY STATE FEDERATION.

Nominating Committee Has Made Its Official Report—About the Women Selected.

The official report of the nominating committee of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs has been made, and copies will shortly be sent to the secretaries of all of the federated organizations. The report, with a few exceptions, follows the selection of candidates made by the North Jersey clubs at a meeting held in May.

The nominations are as follows: President, Miss Mary McKeen, Woman's Club, Camden; Mrs. Albert O. Field, Woman's Club, Orange; first vice president, Mrs A. J. Newbury, Woman's Club, Jersey City; second vice president, Miss S. E. Demarest, Monday Afternoon Club, Passaic; Mrs. A. B. Endicott, Research Club, Atlantic City; third vice president, Miss Annie L. Tichenor, Philitscipoma, Newark; fourth vice president, Miss Ellen Mecum, Woman's Club, Salem; Mrs. A. C. H. Mumper, Contemporary Club, Trenton; recording secretary, Miss Charlotte V. Tuttle, Bay Palmer Club, Newark; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. R. Mitchell, Asbury Park; treasurer, ——; auditor, Miss Celia E. Gardner, Rahway Study Club; directors, Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, Civic Federation, Elizabeth; Mrs. Jessie C. Crear, Rutherford; Mrs. Fannie E. Bates, Village Improvement Association, Cranford.

The officers will be chosen at the biennial session to be held in Jersey City on Thursday and Friday, October 30 and 31. The nominations represent some of the best-known clubwomen in the State. Miss McKeen, who is one of the two candidates for the presidency, has been associated with the federation for years, and has held various offices on the official board. She is at present first vice president of the federation, and last year was a member of the department of forestry. She is the present president of the Woman's Club of Camden, and is one of the directors of the Mary Fisher Home Association. She is likewise interested in the Legal Aid Association and in the Congress of Mothers.

Mrs. A. O. Field is one of the prominent members of the Woman's Club of Orange, the largest and oldest woman's organization of the State. Mrs. Newbury is the president of the Woman's Club of Jersey City. She has been for some time a director on the federation board, and last year, was chairman of the department of town improvement. She is the treasurer of the Mary Fisher Home Association, and is one of the best known New Jersey clubwomen.

Many members of the federation wish Mrs. Newbury as president of that organization. Miss Tuttle is the corresponding secretary of the federation at the present time. Her home is in Summit.

Miss Tichenor is vice president of Philitscipoma and is associated with several organizations not in the federation.

The election will occur on the morning of the second day, and the result will be announced in the afternoon.

Miss Maude Warburton, of West Front street, has gone to Yonkers, N. Y., for a two weeks' stay with friends.

Prof. W. B. Smith and family, of Waynewood place, have returned home from their vacation spent in Vermont.

PING-PONG IN HIGH FAVOR

GAME PROMISES TO BE MORE POPULAR THIS SEASON THAN EVER.

Sporting Goods Dealers Say This Winter Will See the Game a Universal Attraction.

Ping pong will be more popular next winter than it was last year. A far greater number of persons know how to play the game, which was practically unknown hereabouts a year ago. A good many persons have learned within the last few months, for ping pong was played continually at all the summer resorts. One important cause for its increasing popularity among both players and spectators is the skill that has been acquired by many of the former. It is really not the simple game that some people at first thought it to be. Moreover, no matter how clever a player may be, there is always room for improvement, new strokes to be mastered and improved methods of returning difficult shots. To be expert at the game requires among other things, coolness, good judgment, an accurate touch and good sight. This in itself is enough to make the game attractive, but there is also a certain fascination for some persons who play in watching the little celluloid ball bound rapidly back and forth across the net.

Hundreds of Plainfielders play ping pong in their homes, and a large number of sets have been sold for that purpose during the summer. The dealers think that if persons will stay indoors in hot weather to play the game a great many more will play it in cool weather.

"The popularity of ping pong last winter was nothing compared to what it will be this season," said a local sporting goods dealer the other day. "Ping pong sets are being manufactured by the thousands, not only by general sporting goods makers, but by firms that usually devote their attention to one special line, such as fishing tackle or guns. Some persons who admit that the sport will be played more this season than ever before in this country think that its popularity will decline thereafter. I do not agree with them. The game is extremely popular in England and has been for two or three years. There is no sign of abatement over there. At any rate the game will always be played to some extent in private homes.

"Ping pong sets will cost less this season than formerly. What they were sold at last year was a clear case of robbery. Sets that sold for $5 cost the manufacturers less than $1 to make and put on the market. And you may be sure that it was not the retail dealers who reaped the big profit. You will be able to get a good serviceable set this winter for $2 that could not be purchased six months ago for less than $4 or $5. Cheaper sets will be obtainable for less, even down to fifty cents. There are sets that sell for less than the latter price, but they are worthless toys."

The same dealer said he thought that the enthusiasm over ping pong last winter had something to do with the unusual popularity of lawn tennis last summer. It is doubtful that it affected it much, for the revival in tennis began a year ago, when it was freely predicted that the sport would be played more this season than it had been in many years.

SHOT BY A MADMAN

Prominent Citizens of Essex, Conn., Fatally Wounded.

SLAYER THEN TAKES HIS OWN LIFE.

Veteran of Civil War Who Had Been Dishonorably Discharged From the Navy Crazed by Futile Attempts to Get a Pension.

ESSEX, Conn., Sept. 18.—David Hayden, an insane veteran of the civil war, shot and probably fatally wounded two of the most prominent citizens of the town and when the authorities were about to capture him blew the top of his head off with a shotgun.

Hayden stopped Judge Coulter on the street about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and asked if the judge had a grudge against him. Coulter laughingly replied "No," whereupon Hayden drew a revolver and fired twice. One bullet entered directly below the heart and another in the side. Coulter attempted to disarm the man, and in the struggle the revolver was discharged, and a third bullet entered Coulter's hand. He succeeded in getting the revolver, however, and Hayden fled.

First Selectman Pratt witnessed part of the affair and gave chase, but Hayden gained on him rapidly and ran to his house, where he procured a shotgun and shot his pursuer just over the heart as he attempted to enter the yard. Hayden then re-entered the house and became involved in a quarrel with his sister Elizabeth. The latter became frightened and ran into the street, calling for assistance. A moment later the report of a gun was heard in the rear of the house, and when the crowd which had collected ran into the back yard they found Hayden on the ground with the top of his head blown off. On the ground beside him was the shotgun with which he had wounded Pratt and then ended his own life.

Pratt and Coulter were taken to the Memorial hospital in New London.

Hayden was dishonorably discharged from the navy in 1861 and has tried repeatedly to get a pension. He has always been refused and blamed every one who refused to take up his case. This is the only reason that can be advanced for the shooting.

Troops Guard Railway.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Sheriff Gill of Warren county, deeming his force of deputies insufficient to guard the Hudson Valley Railway company's property, called upon Captain Mott of Company K of the national guard for aid. This company has its headquarters here. Captain Mott responded promptly and arrived at the power house, midway between here and Sandy Hill, soon after the call. The property of the railway company is in the hands of the sheriff and is picketed by national guardsmen. Justice Armstrong of Glens Falls read the riot act to the crowd of several thousand people who had gathered.

Boxers Surround Chingtufu.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Cabling from Shanghai under date of Sept. 17, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says, that Chingtufu, capital of the province of Szechuen, is surrounded by 50,000 Boxers, but that their attempts to take the city have so far failed. Without immediate help, however, Chingtufu must fall. "A prominent Chinese tells me," continues the Daily Mail's correspondent, "that if Chingtufu is taken a rising in the provinces is inevitable. To further complicate matters the feuds between Protestant and Catholic converts are now worse than at any previous stage."

Shot His Wife.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—William D. Grady, a clerk in the Jersey City postoffice, shot his wife, Rose Agnes Grady, on the street in that city late yesterday. The woman is probably fatally wounded. Grady had a narrow escape from lynching at the hands of some workmen who witnessed the shooting. He was saved by Policeman Nolan. Grady was taken to headquarters and locked up, and his wife was sent to a hospital. The couple have been living apart for the last three years.

Craig Hearing Put Over.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 18.—Motorman Euclid Madden and Conductor James Kelly of the Pittsfield Street railway, who are under arrest on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death of William Craig, the secret service officer, were not given a hearing today, the case being continued three weeks. One cause of the continuance is that Driver W. J. Pratt is still unable to appear as a witness.

More Steamers For Morgan Combine.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—A news agency says that the Norfolk and North American Steam Shipping company, owning nine large steamers trading between England and the United States in connection with the Lehigh Valley and Reading railroad, has been taken over by the Morgan shipping combine. The agency's announcement adds that this report has created a sensation in local shipping circles.

Reduction For Scotch Miners.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Nearly 75,000 Scotch miners have agreed to accept the award of the arbitrator allowing the claim of the employers for a reduction of 6⅛ per cent in wages. This will make the wages of the miners 5s. 6d. per day.

GASTON FOR GOVERNOR.

George Fred Williams Turned Down by Bay State Democrats.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Acrimony was not wanting for a time in the Democratic state convention in Tremont temple, but in the end harmony was restored, and the state ticket finally named was enthusiastically greeted. The ticket is as follows: For governor, William A. Gaston of Boston; lieutenant governor, John C. Crosby of Pittsfield; secretary of state, Willmore B. Stone of Springfield; treasurer, Thomas C. Thacher of Yarmouth; auditor, J. L. Chalifoux of Lowell; attorney general, John J. Flaherty of Gloucester.

It might be said that in naming Colonel Gaston to head the ticket precedent was shattered, inasmuch as he was nominated and then given a platform of his own dictation. Not unlike the famous conventions of 1896 and 1900, the fight was over the national issues in the platform. As man for man the test of strength was between Colonel Gaston on the one hand and Hon. George F. Williams, once the stalwart leader of the silver Democrats, on the other. In this battle Mr. Williams was utterly routed, with the predicted result that he is shorn of all power of leadership. The platform adopted is a repudiation of the Kansas City platform, for Mr. Gaston refused to be the nominee if in any way the declaration of principles could be construed to indorse those things most prominently advocated by the party in the last two national campaigns.

Mount Copperas is Emitting Smoke and Sulphurous Gases.

BAINBRIDGE, O., Sept. 18.—People living in the Paint creek valley are alarmed over the appearance of smoke and sulphurous gases from Copperas mountain, which can be seen from this place. Ever since the first eruption of Mont Pelee smoke has issued from the mountain at intervals, but only within the past few days have the smoke and gas become especially noticeable, and many attribute it to the recent eruptions in Martinique.

Investigation shows that the slate in the mountain has become hot, and some of it has become a dull red from the action of the heat. The smoke issues from the side and not the top of the mountain, and scientists will be asked to make a thorough investigation.

FASTEST RACE EVER TROTTED.

Exciting Contest Between Monk and Lord Derby at Empire City Track.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The racing was decidedly exciting at the Empire City track yesterday. The weather was perfect, the track fast and speculation brisk.

In the grand special between Lord Derby, 2:05¼, and The Monk, with the same record, the former was the choice at 100 to 50. The Monk had the pole, and C. K. G. Billings lost no time in sending him to the front. He led by two lengths up to the top of the stretch, when Smathers sent Lord Derby for one of those electric finishes for which he has become famous. He was just a little too late, however, and, though The Monk was tiring, he just managed to win by a nose.

The finish brought the occupants of the grand stand to their feet, and both horses were loudly cheered as they returned to the judges' stand. The betting was now 100 to 75 on Lord Derby. The Monk again led to within fifty yards of the wire, when Lord Derby in a superb drive won by a neck. Pools now sold 50 to 20 on Lord Derby, and the pair got a perfect start, going like a team to the back stretch, where The Monk broke, and Lord Derby came on and won by five lengths.

This is the fastest race of three heats to wagon ever trotted, the time in the second and third heats being 2:06 and in the first heat 2:06½.

LEAVING COAL FIELDS

Thousands Seek Work In Bituminous Mines.

GOMPERS PREDICTS AN AGREEMENT.

President of American Federation of Labor Takes a Hopeful View of the Struggle and Expects Improved Conditions.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 18.—The exodus of anthracite mine workers continues from the Schuylkill region because the strikers have given up hope of an early settlement.

Yesterday forty certified miners left for Wise county, Va., where they will be employed in the soft coal mines. A similar number left for the same point ten days ago, and in a few days a carload of driver boys will go to Westmoreland county, this state. They say they are promised good wages.

It is estimated that 2,000 mine workers have gone to Irwin, Madison, Latrobe and Greensburg bituminous coal fields, and upward of 7,000 are said to have secured employment in the Pittsburg district.

GOMPERS CONFIDENT.

He Thinks Long Struggle Will End by Agreement.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 18.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor in a statement just issued takes a hopeful view of the strike situation. The statement is as follows:

"At this time it is impossible to say exactly when the strike will terminate, but after careful inquiry into the situation at the mines I am convinced that the struggle will end by agreement. The wage earners and the general public are generously contributing to the aid of the miners. It is essential that this aid be extended and continued."

Mitchell Discredits Reports.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 18.—Inactivity at President Mitchell's headquarters and apparent activity in coal operators' circles covers the situation in this section of the strike region. President Mitchell still insists that his followers are remaining firm and that there will be no break in the ranks of the miners. He discredits all reports about an increase in output of coal at the mines and washeries, claiming that there will be no coal mined and sent to market of any account until the strike is ended. At the offices of the local coal companies, on the other hand, it is said that they are adding to their working force every day and that the output of coal is gradually increasing, but no figures are furnished. The Exeter mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal company has been opened. Preparations, it is said, will at once be made for mining coal on a large scale. When in full operation, the mine employs 600 men.

Another Colliery Opened.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 18.—Sheriff Schadt admits that he has sent a communication to President Mitchell informing him that if there is a repetition of lawlessness which occurred in so many parts of the county last Monday he will make requisition for troops. The Pancoast colliery at Throop, an Ontario and Western working, has resumed operations. The Ontario and Western now has five collieries and three washeries in operation.

The "Baby" Barked.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—One of the most ingenious attempts on record to evade the payment of customs duties has just occurred at Dover, when a smartly dressed young woman landed from the Ostend steamer carrying in her arms what was ostensibly a baby in long clothes. As the young woman was passing the customs officials the "baby" barked, and an investigation disclosed that the supposed infant was in reality a valuable dog which the woman was endeavoring to smuggle in in contravention of the strict English customs regulations. The animal, which had been unsuccessfully placed under the influence of drugs, was sent back to Belgium.

Forest Fires Have Abated.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Special Agent Dixon of the general land office telegraphs from Seattle, Wash., that the forest fires in that state have abated, according to the most reliable information. Mr. Dixon wires that he has sent Agent Grygla to Enumclaw to investigate the situation. Near Enumclaw and Butler the fires have not been sufficiently serious to prevent the movement of trains, and the danger in those localities is apparently over.

A Roman Scandal.

ROME, Sept. 18.—A sensation has been caused in society here by the announcement that a suit for damages had been brought against the Princess di San Faustino, formerly Miss Jane Campbell of New York, by her maid, the latter complaining that she had been beaten so badly by the princess that, according to her doctor, she would need ten days to recover.

Floods Caused Great Suffering.

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 18.—Governor Otero has received harrowing details of the suffering caused by the recent Mimbres valley flood. A letter from the relief party says: "Rations have been distributed to 836 persons. Crops are laid waste. People are living on decayed corn and beans."

Senator Bard Very Low.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 18.—Senator Bard's condition, according to the latest bulletin issued by the physicians, is very grave. The pulse was 152 and temperature 101½.

A PAID FIRE DEPARTMENT.

There is talk in the borough of abolishing the volunteer fire department there and, in its place, establishing a paid department run on lines similar to the city department. While nothing has yet been done to bring it before the Borough Council, a number of the borough officials favor it and it is within the province of the Borough Council to follow out the plan.

One of the strong arguments advanced in behalf of consolidation was that the city possessed a paid fire department which has already proved its usefulness and success. In the old days, residents feared to call out the old volunteer fire department as it was a well-known fact that what the fire didn't damage the water would. The paid department has ended all that and the large increase in the number of still and telephone alarms for the local department shows that people hesitate no longer about summoning the firemen as they know the flames will be extinguished with as little damage as possible.

While North Plainfield has a volunteer department that compares favorably with nearly all the volunteer forces of the State, it is not a paid department and lacks the efficiency of the latter. Such a change as suggested would undoubtedly give increased fire protection in the borough.

Of course the question of the cost is a very important one. Plainfield has found it economical while Elizabeth says that it is more expensive. Members of the volunteer departments are exempt from taxation and thus the borough loses a considerable sum. In the case of the paid department, there are salaries to be paid but it is declared that the taxes, which can be levied without exemption, are more than enough to make up the extra expense of the paid system. Then there is a department of much higher efficiency and which the people will soon learn not to fear but rather to welcome in case of a fire.

There is prospect of several strong basket ball teams in Plainfield this winter. Last season's contests developed such a healthy rivalry that it may end in the formation of a local basket ball league this winter. The subject has been under discussion for some time and, if it receives the approval of the proper people, such a league is very likely to be organized in the near future. If such action is taken, The Daily Press will be glad to put up a trophy to be contested for.

The death of Miss Emma V. Shattuck has removed one of the most able of the principals at the Plainfield public schools. Miss Shattuck made a host of friends during her stay in Plainfield and her sudden death was a great shock to them. The school authorities will find it a difficult task to fill the position as satisfactorily as it has been for the past nine years.

It was interesting to hear what the leaders both for and against annexation had to say about the election. Yesterday's Daily Press, with a very full account of the election including interviews with some of the prominent men on both sides, was read with great interest.

The sooner the bitterness between the "antis" and the "pros" disappears in the borough, the better it will be for the community at large.

Every election gives the "I told you so" man new opportunities to get in his good work and Tuesday's election was no exception.

Demand for Clocks.

There has been a great demand for the auxiliary savings clocks at the Plainfield Trust Company. The company has received telegrams from persons in other towns and cities who want to open an account in the savings department.

WANT OLD TRANSFER SYSTEM

COUNCILMEN HELD A CONFERENCE ON SUBJECT LAST NIGHT.

Lots of Kicks Made Over New Arrangement—May Return to Old Method.

After the special meeting of the Common Council last evening a conference was held to consider the question of transfers on the street railway. Recently, the company made a change in this system taking the work of giving out transfers away from the conductors and authorizing the inspector at the Watchung avenue station to give them out. This has given great dissatisfaction and many complaints have been received by various members of the Council.

The chairman of the street committee, R. I. Tolles, has communicated with the trolley company manager and for some reason no satisfaction has been given in reply. For this reason it was thought best to have a conference of the members and then call the company's attention to it. The company has been asked to return to the old system, that being considered the most satisfactory. The chances are the old system will be returned to very soon. Under the present method patrons of the trolley are obliged to get their transfers at one central point and it has already proved a great inconvenience.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. DUNELLEN.

The suit of Charles Vail against the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company for $25,000 damages for injuries sustained by being thrown from a trolley car near Lincoln was practically thrown out of court yesterday at Flemington. Although the case was adjourned because of the unsatisfactory testimony of the plaintiff's witnesses it is improbable that it will ever be brought up again. Vail's own testimony, it is said, damaged his case considerably. The case was of considerable interest to Dunellenites, as Vail was brought here after the accident and is well known.

Christian Schepflin, of Grove street, does not now expect to remove from his present property. The house, formerly occupied by Mrs. Carpenter on the same street, has been rented to an out-of-town party. Mrs. Carpenter will reomve to Prospect avenue.

The benefit game of baseball on Saturday afternoon promises to be one of the most successful benefits ever given in the village. Mrs. Frentz, widow of the late Louis Frentz, a former well-known member of the ball team, was left last spring with three small children to bring up. As soon as possible she procured work in a laundry at Summit. So as to enable her to keep her home together. After working there several weeks she was unfortunate enough to catch her hand in the machinery, injuring it so badly that amputation was necessary. The members and friends of the team hearing of her second sad affliction arranged for the benefit on Saturday as a fitting testimonial of their sympathy.

John R. Parse, one of Scotch Plains' old and respected residents, passed away Wednesday evening at 7:20 after an illness of only a few days. Mr. Parse was a life long resident of the village, being born in the old Parse homestead on Front street. The deceased is survived by two sisters, Miss Susie L. Parse, of Scotch Plains, and Mrs. Francis Wight, of Holland, Mass. Funeral services, which will be private, will be held at the convenience of the family.

Edward Walters, a resident of Washington Valley, employed at the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Works, Plainfield, fell from a ladder while oiling machinery Tuesday, and sprained his ankle. Mr. Walters was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment after which he was brought home in a carriage. The injury will keep him from work for sometime.

The Republican primary to elect three delegates to the county convention, which meets at Elizabeth, Wednesday, September 24, has been called for Monday evening at 8 o'clock, in Excelsior Hall. Two members of the county committee will also be elected at the meeting.

John Nagle, of Short Hills, near Springfield, was haled before Judge Clark Wednesday afternoon, charged with being helplessly drunk and driving his team recklessly, endangering the lives of others. Nagle plead guilty and was fined $4 and cost. The fine was paid.

The much adjourned automobile case of the township against Herman Unger, of Newark, which was to have been heard in Judge Clark's court yesterday afternoon, was again adjourned, by request of counsels, until October 1, at the same hour.

Henry Johnston has started the work of painting the exterior of the Methodist church building. A number of other necessary repairs will also be made about the property this fall.

The members of the Methodist church held their quarterly conference meeting in the church last night. The presiding elder, Rev. Mr. Haloran, of Elizabeth, had charge of the meeting.

FUNERAL OF MISS SHATTUCK.

To be Held From the First M. E. Church Tomorrow Morning.

Funeral services over the remains of Miss Emma V. Shattuck, principal of the Bryant School, who died suddenly yesterday morning, will be held from the First Methodist church, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, her pastor, will be in charge.

At the request of her only relative, the casket will not be opened, since she believes that the custom of viewing the dead is undesirable where there are likely to be many impressionable children in attendance. The body will be buried in the family plot near Buffalo.

The Bryant and Lincoln Schools will be closed tomorrow, and other schools will hold no sessions at the time of the funeral in order that the teachers may attend.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 21.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—The fullness of God: how secured.—Eph. iii, 14-21.

In the topical references we have one of the most remarkable prayers to be found in the word of God. Paul was a man of prayer. He not only prayed for himself, but his prayers were constantly offered to the throne of God for Christian people everywhere and especially in behalf of the Christian churches in which he was interested. He wrote to the Romans that without ceasing he made mention of them in his prayers, and in this letter to the Ephesians we have an illustration of one of his best prayers offered in the behalf of a Christian church. This prayer consists of a preface of four petitions and the following doxology: "Now unto Him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, unto Him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen."

As a consummation of all the petitions of this prayer Paul prays that the Ephesians may be "filled with all the fullness of God." This is a peculiar expression. It does not mean that it is possible for the Ephesians to contain the fullness of God. This would be absurd. They are finite; God is infinite. It would be absolutely impossible to confine infinity in the limits of finiteness. What Paul asks is that the Ephesians may be filled with the same sort of graces and perfections that are characteristic of God. They could not contain in themselves the perfect love that is contained in God, and yet to the measure of their fullness they could contain the same kind of love as characterizes God. The difference would be in the degree and not in the quality. The smaller vessel could be filled from the larger one and possess the same material contained in it, although it could not contain the same amount. In this sense Paul prays that the Ephesians may be filled with the fullness of God. He asks that they may have the graces of character and the qualities of disposition that characterize God, He possessing in perfection what they would possess in imperfection.

The question asked in the topic is, How is this fullness of God to be received? In the topical reference it is suggested by Paul that it is to be the result of the possession of the qualities which he has prayed for before. There are four of these petitions. 1. Paul prays that they may be strengthened with might in the inner man by the Holy Ghost. 2. He prays that Christ may dwell in their hearts by faith. 3. He prays that they may be able to comprehend what are the breadth and length and depth and height of the love of God. 4. He prays that they may be able to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge. The result of all these petitions is to be the fullness of God. They include the possession of the Holy Ghost, the indwelling of Jesus Christ and the comprehension of the love of God and of Christ. If, therefore, we want to know how we may be filled with the fullness of God, answer is found here. The Holy Ghost will strengthen us; then Christ must dwell in our hearts, and, being rooted and grounded in love, we must apprehend and understand the love of God and the love of Christ. Being thus possessed of God and thus understanding the character of God, we cannot but also possess the disposition of God. The Holy Ghost and the Lord Jesus Christ cannot dwell in our hearts without manifesting themselves in our dispositions and in our lives. Being of the same nature as God, they will impart this nature to us, and we will possess to the fullest measure possible the same disposition and the same character that God himself possesses.

BIBLE READINGS.

John i, 15-18; iii, 34-36; xiv, 1-6; Acts i, 1-11; I Cor. iii, 5-14; Gal. v, 19-26; Eph. i, 1-12; Col. i, 12-20; ii, 8-10; iii, 12-17.

Put Love In Your Heart.

Crowd what money you may into your purse you find your purse still empty. But with love in your heart all your drafts are honored. And though you who doubt love question its logic, I say that though love is illogical it is sufficient. For that love which was logical or just would come short at the hub. You think love is away up or down, somewhere out of sight and beyond use. But love, too, and in larger senses, is food and raiment and guards and beautifies the sources of life. Indeed there is no practical thing but love. Your bargains and sales are in the last degree ridiculous and useless. But when man dies for man, or when life commands the services of life in any of the humble byways of experience, the only practical work of the spheres has been accomplished.—Conservator.

Just This Minute.

If we're thoughtful, just this minute,
In whate'er we say and do;
If we put a purpose in it
That is honest through and through,
We shall gladden life and give it
Grace to make it all sublime;
For, though life is long, we live it
Just this minute at a time.

Just this minute we are going
Toward the right or toward the wrong;
Just this minute we are sowing
Seeds of sorrow or of song.
Just this minute we are thinking
On the ways that lead to God
Or in idle dreams are sinking
To the level of the clod.

Yesterday is gone; tomorrow
Never comes within our grasp;
Just this minute's joy or sorrow,
That is all our hands may clasp.
Just this minute! Let us take it
As a pearl of precious price
And with high endeavor make it
Fit to shine in paradise.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache.

A liniement may relieve, but can't cure.

Backache comes from the inside, from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills get inside.

They cure sick kidneys.

Here is Plainfield proof that this is so:

Mr. C. E. Hepburn, of 123 Duer street, formerly of Canada where he first heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have my endorsement for they cured me of a long standing case of backache which annoyed me very much especially if I took cold for at such times I was in pretty bad shape. I heard different people speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, concluded to try them, got a box from my druggist, Mr. L. W. Randolph, and used them according to directions with the above results. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement of a preparation like Doan's Kidney Pills."

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 21, "The Fullness of God: How Secured"—Text, Eph. iii, 14-21.

It is a favorite thought with St. Paul that we may be filled with God's fullness. We may have the mind that was in Christ. The very nature of God can be imparted to us until we become in very fact partakers of the divine nature. The means of reading this experience are active exercise of the powers we have and the giving in of special gifts on the part of God.

A person who naturally has mathematical gifts finds in the world around indications of number, proportion, lines, angles and relations of parts such as most persons never see. Deeper and deeper he goes into mysteries of surfaces, solids, distances, motions, velocities, rising from earth into the heavens until he can weigh the stars as accurately as other men weigh coal or grain, and trace the motions of worlds as others watch the course of a train of cars.

Some have an artistic temperament and discover beauty where others have never seen it. They reproduce sentiment and preserve in permanent form the passing passion. On canvas, in stone or metal, by painting, sculpture or architecture they embody the immaterial fancy and make visible the intangible life of soul.

In like manner there are religious elements in our natures which can discover and appropriate the spiritual elements in the world around us. The highest revelation of God to men is not mathematical nor artistic in its nature but spiritual and moral. The ethical side of our nature allies us most closely with the deepest nature of Deity. Not His works, but Himself in essential characteristics is grasped and known in true devotion. Number and beauty are seen in all the works of nature which are but the work of God, showing His thought and accomplishing His purposes, but love is an attribute of His nature and most fully characterizes Him. In loving we exercise a power of our nature which is similar in kind to love in God. By this power of affection we come to know Him and participate in His blessedness. Hatred is the opposite, the antithesis of love.

The animal nature prompts to self gratification and knows only fleshly appetites. When by self mastery the spirit rules the body and brings all powers into subjection and co-operation and yields all in glad obedience and the perfect abandon of love; when self is sacrificed in the great soul surrender to its supreme object of desire and devotion, the fullness of God flows in and fills all the capacities of the being. Height after height is seen and scaled, and affection and divine regard are revealed in wondrous measures and ways undreamed of by the mind in its natural condition. The pure in heart see God where other eyes find an utter blank.

Whoever would secure the fullness of God in any measure must devote himself to knowing and being like God. Then as surely as mathematician and artist discover truth in their realms, so will he find God imparting love passing knowledge, for He "is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

The Happy Servant.

He is the happy servant who in obedience to his Lord has planted his corn, has watched it grow and given to his care, he who has been out in the heat of the day hoeing out the weeds and filling fresh soil about the roots. Now the day's work is done, the bell of sunset sound release. With hoe on his shoulder he turns homeward. He stands by the bars for a moment and looks back over the field upon which he bestowed his toil and sees that he has done his duty well. The corn stands up in the furrow clean and hopeful. He lies down at last to sweet rest, for he has earned it, and dreams of a morrow of fruitage which will surely reward the honest purpose and toil of today. So it is that Jesus calls down to us as we live and labor here. He is saying to us each day: Adhere to God's thought. Be faithful today to all truth. Do your work well. Be not weary in well doing, for in due season ye shall reap if ye faint not.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Two Precious Things.

The two most precious things on this side of the grave are our reputation and our life. But it is to be lamented that the most contemptible whisper may deprive us of one and the weakest weapon of the other. A wise man, therefore, will be more anxious to deserve a fair name than to possess it.—Lutheran Observer.

With Glad and Grateful Heart.

After all, the sweetest music that can possibly ascend from this world is the music of a glad and grateful heart attuned in all things to God's will.—American Friend.

At Eventide.

The sun is sinking low
Beyond the sight;
But see! A star begins to glow,
The first of night.

And at its signal call
The hosts on high
Come trooping forth until they all
Parade the sky.

Life hath its sunsets, too,
And twilight gloom,
But God can pierce the shadows through,
Their depths illume.

So, Lord, when fades my day
Of mortal breath,
Set all Thy stars in grand array
To brighten death.

And as for me they shine
In evening's dome
Their sheen unerring and divine
Shall light me home.

—Philadelphia Ledger.

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Who?"

"That stranger. Said she'd be'n up to see your aunt. She got the things outen the clauset an' set me to stir this mess."

"Have you seen Baldwin?" I asked.

"Should think so," said Glorianna, a smile breaking out over her sharp features. She glanced towards the corner. There across a chair hung a cowhide. It looked useless enough, at present, but I could imagine its possibilities in the hands of the wiry little woman.

"How long are you going to remain?"

"'Tell Baldy comes home 'long er me."

I sank down into a chair, hopeless. Then I must either harbor this little fiend of a person or lose Baldy Towner, my prop and stay.

"I haven't any room for you, Glorianna," said I.

"Don't make no diffrunce. We'se got a good one to hum. You can hev us both, or you can lose us both. I reckon whar Baldy lives is good enough fer me."

"I will have no scandal," said I, "and if you stay you will have to work for your board."

"You don't want to hire me then?"

"No," said I. "I can't afford to do that. But if you wish to stay for a week or until I get rid of an unpleasant complication, you may. Come now, Glorianna, do relieve my mind, and tell me that it was you up in my bedchamber."

"Hain't left this blessed seat sence I come in here," declared Glorianna.

"Then who could it have been?"

"Yer aunt, pro'bly."

"My aunt! You know well enough Glorianna, that my aunt cannot move from her bed. Everything that is done for my aunt I have to do." A bright thought struck me. "Now, why shouldn't you take some of the care of my aunt off my shoulders while you stay?"

"Guess she wouldn't hev me," replied Glorianna; "but I'll see about it when I've done a-stirring of this mess."

"There's one thing I won't have in this house," said I, looking at the cowhide, "and that's——"

"Lor'," said Glorianna, following my eyes with hers—"he likes it."

"Do you, Baldwin?" said I. He was peeping in at the door.

"Pshaw," said he, "she can't hurt a fly."

"We'll see," said Glorianna, still stirring.

"Haven't you the spunk of a flea?" said I, starting up in a rage. "Baldwin, why don't you have her bound over to keep the peace?"

"Pshaw, she don't hurt none. I'd jess as li'ves she'd amuse herself's naut."

"Do you know who was up in my room just now, Baldwin?"

His wife gave him a quick glance, whether of caution or threat I could not decide.

"How sh'd I know? I've be'n a-splittin' wood ever sence I got up."

"Baldwin," said I, "I must go to town. See to things until I get back, will you?" And again I started with the broken parasol and walked quickly on my way. When I got nearly into the village, I saw a man coming towards me on a bicycle. As he neared me, he slowed his wheel and jumped off.

"Here are my certificates," he said. I saw that it was my lower-back, and put out my hand to take the papers, which he held towards me. I opened them, standing in the middle of the sunny road. The first read:

"This is to certify that Holdsworth W. Beldon is perfectly reliable and trustworthy. He has been in my employ for over four years, and there is no one in my office whom I consider more faithful to my interests.
(Signed) "Walton F. G. Haight,
"Editor of the Star Union."

Of course I knew that Mr. Haight was the editor of the Star Union. I turned to the other, which was written very differently from the first. Mr. Haight's recommendation was in a strong, heavy hand, an upright hand which wobbled first this way and then that. The second recommendation was written in a fine, thin hand, almost a lady's hand, and certified, very much in the same language, that Mr. Beldon was to be trusted with almost anything that this or any other world possessed. This was signed "John Everett." Somehow the names gave me much comfort, for I knew all about their owners, and felt confidence in the young man, my prospective boarder, from that moment.

"Very well," said I. "Go on to the house. I will be back soon. I'm just going in town for a locksmith."

"Indeed?" he laughed. "What has happened? The young woman hasn't locked herself in the cellar, has she?"

"No," said I, "but I've broken the lock of my desk. By the way, the young woman won't trouble you for long. She's going away."

"Going away?" His look was one of incredulity. "That's—that's better than I expected. What's the reason?"

"Well, I don't like some things about her."

"I hope I haven't frightened her away," said my new boarder. "I should be sorry to make you lose the rent of the room on my account. What's she done?"

"Well, I don't want to prejudice you——"

"Oh, you can't prejudice me. I always judge for myself. What's she done?"

"Well, she was out at the gate last night—it must have been all of 12 o'clock—with some other man. She says he's her brother, but I do not believe it."

"Don't!" said the man. "I wouldn't. No one with a particle of sense could. The idea of a girl talking at the gate at 12 o'clock with her own brother! Why, it's beyond reason. It's a waste of raw material. I wouldn't believe a word she says if she tells such stories as that. You see, if that man was her own brother, he might as well have been at some other gate with some other fellow's sister, and the other girl's brother might as well have been at your gate with your young woman. Well, I hope you'll get rid of her. I won't say by fair means or foul. I suppose she's got her living to make as well as the rest of us, but I'd rather she'd make it elsewhere than in your lower front, if I'm to have the lower back."

"She's very quiet thus far," said I, thinking regretfully of the money spent and the bills locked up in the desk.

"I'm glad of that! No cackling girls yet, eh? Well, I'm sure I don't mind her talking with her brother, or any other girl's brother, at your front gate at 12 or one in the morning. I am secure in my lower back, and then I'm in town always at night, you know. Now, I'm going home—that is, if you'll have me—to turn in. Don't wake me until five or six o'clock. Then I should like a bite of something, and I'll be off. You'll see that I'm not a great eater."

"Thank heaven for that," I murmered, and proceeded on my way. The young man jumped upon his wheel, and was off. A minute had passed, when I heard some one calling to me. I turned. It was Mr. Beldon coming back. My heart fell. Had he decided not to take the room? Had anything in my manner——

"I came back to ask you how I can get into the room without the young woman seeing me. I just want to crawl in, you know, incog., as it were. Is there a side door, or a back door, or anything, where I——"

"Lock your wheel," said I, "and when you have opened the gate walk right round the left side of the house. Go on the grass. I hate to have you, but this time you may. You'll find my man servant there, unless his wife has inveigled him up to the loft. If you hear groans, go up at once and protect him."

"Hear groans?"

"Yes, if she's beating him. If she isn't——"

NEW HAMPSHIRE REPUBLICANS.

In State Convention They Favor Changes In Prohibitory Law.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 18.—Following the action of the party in Vermont, the Republicans of New Hampshire in state convention warmly debated the question of making changes in the prohibitory law. Those in favor of a change carried the day. The contest for governor was won by Hon. Nahum J. Batchelder of Andover, who is prominently identified with the Patrons of Husbandry. General Shephen H. Gale of Exeter withdrew before the nominations were called for, and Mr. Batchelder was chosen by acclamation. No other candidates are nominated by state conventions in New Hampshire.

The platform adopted indorses the administration on all points and favors the renomination of President Roosevelt. Illegal combines are condemned, and one plank opposes the indiscriminate destruction of forests.

The plank on the liquor issue adopted, which was opposed by the out and out Prohibitionists, is as follows:

"We recognize the unsatisfactory municipal conditions in many parts of the state relating to the enforcement of the prohibitory law. We believe that the best interests of our citizens demand essential changes in the law, but the details of such changes should be fully discussed and carefully considered by the representatives of the people to be elected next November, with that end in view.

"We therefore recommend that at the next session of the legislature in January, 1903, all questions relating to liquor legislation be re-examined and that such laws be enacted as will more effectually promote temperance."

AFFAIRS ON THE ISTHMUS.

American Guards to Be Placed on All Trains Running Across.

COLON, Colombia, Sept. 18.—The reports which reached here of a skirmish between insurgent and government forces near Mindi station are now learned to have been magnified. No skirmish actually occurred, but government soldiers fired a few shots upon sighting insurgent spies moving between Mindi and Monkey hill. Monkey hill is about one mile from Colon.

The British steamer La Plata has just arrived here from Savanilla. She brings 1,000 government troops. Further re-enforcements are expected to reach the isthmus shortly.

A dispatch from Panama says that Commander Potter of the United States cruiser Ranger will today place guards on the trains running across the isthmus. This step will be taken in addition to the marines already landed at Colon from the cruiser Cincinnati. It is not thought probable that the revolutionists will attempt to interrupt transit on the railroad.

SOUFRIERE CRATERS ACTIVE.

Bold Explorers Have a Narrow Escape—The Heat Intense.

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, Sept. 18.—Both craters of La Soufriere have been active since Sept. 11.

The top of the mountain is usually covered with clouds; but, being exceptionally clear of them yesterday morning, two natives named Cummings and Adams ventured to ascend the volcano and reached the summit of the old crater. Sept. 3 this crater contained water. It is now nearly filled with sand and has a funnel shaped cavity in the center. Cummings and Adams saw flames rising from three distinct places in the crater. They experienced a narrow escape. The heat on the mountain was intolerable.

Anderson's Golf Record.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 18.—Willie Anderson of Pittsfield, Mass., won the western open golf championship on the links of the Euclid Golf club. He is the present national champion. He played the greatest golf ever seen in this vicinity. He made a score of 299 for the seventy-six holes on a 6,000 yard course. The record is likely to stand for some time.

Troop Train In Collision.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 18.—A special train carrying Companies B and C, Twenty-second infantry, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Logan, collided with the Hot Springs freight train a mile from this city. Two of the freight crew were killed. The trains ran together head on on a curve, and the soldiers were badly shaken up and several of them injured.

The Maine Accepted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The final report of the official board which witnessed the speed trial of the battleship Maine has been submitted to the navy department. The Maine gets the advantage of tidal corrections, which brings her speed up to eighteen knots, the lowest rate demanded by the contract. She will be accepted.

Noted Guide Wounded.

MEEKER, Colo., Sept. 18.—John Goff, the noted guide who piloted President Roosevelt on his famous lion hunt in Colorado last year, was shot over the right eye by a careless hunter as he was approaching the camp of the party of which the hunter was a member. Goff may lose the sight of the injured eye.

Time For Ratification Extended.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—The governments of France and the United States have agreed to an extension of one year from Sept. 24 of the time limit for the ratification of the commercial convention between the two countries of July 27, 1899.

General Wheeler Visits President.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 18.—General Joe Wheeler, under whom President Roosevelt fought in Cuba, was a guest at Sagamore Hill yesterday at luncheon.

JUSTICE FOR THE JEW

Secretary Hay Makes Appeal to the Powers.

A REMARKABLE STATE PAPER

Frightful State of Affairs In Roumania a Menace to This Country—European Governments Are Responsible.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—With the double purpose of protecting the long suffering Jews of the Balkan states and of averting the very present peril of the immigration into the United States of a horde of paupers Secretary Hay has adopted the unusual course of appealing to the powers of Europe to force one of their children to observe the obligations of humanity in case of the Jews.

The appeal takes the form of a state paper, remarkable in several respects, which has been dispatched in identical form to every embassador and minister of the United States residing in one of the countries of Europe which were parties to the famous treaty of Berlin of 1878—namely, Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, Italy, Austria and Turkey—marking the termination of the Turko-Russian war and the creation by the direct act of the powers of the independent Balkan states. Because the powers are thus responsible for the existence of Roumania, the culprit in this case, the secretary of state has directed the note to them in the hope that they will bring this government to a sense of its duties toward civilization at large as well as to cause it to ameliorate the frightful condition of the Roumanian Jews.

In a measure this action by the department of state may be traced to numerous petitions from Jewish societies and humanitarians generally as well as to the warnings of publicists respecting the growing dangers of immigration of degenerates.

TO STOP POACHING.

Russia Takes Steps to Protect Seals From Americans and Japanese.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—In a dispatch from Odessa the correspondent of the Standard says the Russian minister of agriculture and state domain, M. Yermoloff, has announced that he has now taken effective measures for the suppression of the systematic poaching operations of Americans and Japanese among the seal and other sea animals on the northeastern coast of Siberia.

Although anxious to comply with the reiterated representations of Russia, the Washington and Tokyo governments have failed to put an end to this illicit fishing in Russian waters.

M. Yermoloff, continues the correspondent, now gives formal notice that American and Japanese poachers captured within the limits of Russia's maritime jurisdiction on the Siberian coast will be liable to three months' imprisonment and their ships and cargoes to confiscation. This order will be enforced by three fast gunboats. No discriminations will be made; the commanders and crews of poaching vessels will be subjected to the same punishment. In case of refusal to surrender or attempt to escape the commanders of the Russian gunboats are empowered to fire upon and sink the "sea pirates."

Root Again at His Post.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Hon. Elihu Root, secretary of war, has returned to Washington after his trip to Carlsbad. The secretary looks rugged and says he is in splendid health. He resumed charge of affairs at the war department today. Secretary Root expects to deliver a political speech at Peoria, Ill., Sept. 24, opening the Republican campaign in that state. Whether he will join the president on any portion of his western trip the secretary is unable to say, as he has not had an opportunity to see Mr. Roosevelt since his return to the United States.

HAVANA, Sept. 18.—While workmen were raising the end of the floating drydock, which formally belonged to Spain, the strain caused the dock to break amidships. The dock is now the property of the United States, and it has been undergoing repairs for several months past.

WANTED REVENGE.

So Joseph Granger Bought a Revolver, But Practice Led Him Into Difficulties.

Desiring to take revenge on a man who had pummeled him, recently, Joseph Granger, of Washington street, purchased a revolver with which to do the trick. To make sure that everything was all right he shoved the muzzle out of his window, last night, and fired the weapon off. Patrolman Meyers heard the report from a nearby corner and before the echo had died away was at Joseph's side. He was taken to police headquarters and this morning was arraigned before City Judge Runyon. He explained matters and was discharged with a warning, but the police kept the revolver to prevent any decrease in the city population.

POLICE MAKE HAUL.

Raid a House at 62 Elm Place, and Arrest Three Occupants Who Have Been a Nuisance.

Frequent complaints to the police of the midnight revels taking place in a house at 62 Elm place, led to the arraignment in the city court, this morning, of Mrs. John Slover, Mrs. Anna Meadows and Fred Pangborn.

The place has been under surveillance for several weeks but it was not until last night that Patrolman Meyers secured sufficient evidence to warrant his calling Sergeant Frederickson. The two proceeded to raid the place with the above result.

All three prisoners received a verbal lashing that made them quail, especially Pangborn who up to three months ago was one of the strongest workers in the Salvation Army. A fine of $5 or twenty days was imposed in each case but up to noon none had paid.

THE Elizabeth Journal States Facts that no Plainfield Republican Can Deny.

WHY WE FIGHT.

Editor Journal—If you are opposed to factional fights in the Republican party why do you continue them? Don't you know the old adage—"Where one will not, two cannot fight?" A PEACEFUL VOTER.

The old adage is true, but it does not contain all the truth. Where one will not fight and the other will and does fight, the non-combatant gets whipped. The Journal is in the present fight, not from choice, but from necessity; not to continue the factional fight, but to end it if possible.

For years past, ever since the Republican party began to be split up into factions, the Journal has exerted all its influence, in every way it could, to harmonize the factions, and to restore conditions of peace and unity. But every year the fight has grown more and more intense, more and more bitter, more and more vindictive, and more and more perilous to the Republican party in Union county.

This year it has passed all former bounds. The faction which is led by Mr. Rankin and Mr. Fowler would not permit peace. They got what they wanted, got it unanimously, got it harmoniously at the Belvidere Republican congressional district convention, and then at once began to plot the overthrow of Senator Cross, the defeat of Edward S. Coyne for assembly, and of every man who refused to bow the knee to them. This is not a fanciful sketch, it is the fact.

They opened the fight when peace prevailed. They hid under cover for awhile, but finally declared war "to the bitter end."

The fight must go on to the bitter end, simply because Mr. Rankin and Mr. Fowler have so decided. To lie down before them and let them turn down Senator Cross and Councilman Coyne would be cowardly. Mr. Rankin will either rule or ruin. He will imperil his party, in a purblind attempt to carry out his end. Every drop of blood in his veins is fighting blood, and every drop is superheated in the effort to defeat Senator Cross.

The Journal will not stand for such work. It will not permit, if it can possibly prevent, the defeat of a man like Senator Cross, when he is entitled to a renomination, and when the great, unbiased majority of the Republicans of Union county want him re-elected.

The Journal has always stood for the Republican party, and not for a faction, and it is standing for the party now. Nothing in the course of its experience has been more repugnant to it than the wretched, unnecessary, unwarranted factional disturbances that have contiuned from year to year for eight or ten years past. Nothing has been more disgusting to the great body of Republicans in Union county.

It is no pleasure to denounce the acts of men whom the party has greatly honored, year after year; but since they have declared war, there's nothing to do but fight.

This is the situation as the Journal finds it. The primaries will be held on Monday night next, and the voters will, the Journal believes, defeat the schemes of the "rule or ruin" faction.

But that faction is full of fighters, and they are fighting as never before. The primaries will, on next Monday night, be thronged with a class of voters who care little and know less about Senator Cross. They are being corralled. There is no doubt about it.

The voters who want Senator Cross, who are opposed to "rule or ruin," who are disgusted with and are determined to end factional fights, must go to the primaries in full force, if they want to make their sentiments felt at this time. Every vote will be needed.

Do not wait until election and then scratch the ticket. That is the worst policy. Settle the matter now and for all time at the primaries, settle it in the interests of good men in politics, settle it right. And then go to the polls and vote the whole Republican ticket.

The primaries are the places at which to end factional fights. Let every Republican voter attend and do his duty. 9 18 3

THE PRESS on SENATOR CROSS

The newspapers of this State have taken a deep interest in the factional fight in Union county, particularly as it is made against the renomination of Senator Cross. They all know him, they all appreciate him, and one and all they condemn any and every effort to deprive the State of his services. The following are a few extracts, out of many, that show the sentiment of the Republicans of New Jersey, both in and out of Union county:

Camden Courier—"It is a little singular that the Plainfield people are so persistent in their opposition to Senator Cross, as he has proved to be one of the strongest men Union county has sent to the Legislature."

Newark News—"For the honor of Union county and the good of the State, it is to be hoped this unholy alliance may be overthrow. Men like Senator Cross are needed in the State senate. * * * The defeat of Senator Cross for renomination would weaken the party ticket in every county of the State."

Jersey City News (Dem.)—"The unrighteous war against Senator Cross is not surprising. * * * He is too honest, independent and fearless."

New York Press (Rep.)—"It will serve no good purpose in Union to attack the public record of Senator Cross, for no man ever served the State more conscientiously or his constituents fairer than Joseph Cross."

Newark News—"Former Governor Voorhees has literally taken to the woods. The faction in Union county which is now trying to down Senator Cross ought to follow its leader."

New York Press—"It is possible that the hole dug for Senator Cross in Union may hold Representative Fowler, for if Cross fails to get a renomination through the instrumentality of Fowler or his friends there may be such reprivals in the Fifth district as well elect the Democratic candidate for Congress."

Bound Brook Chronicle — "The whole State is interested in the nomination of the best men possible for the Senate and Assembly. * * * For this reason the Republican press throughout the State is expressing its disapproval of the efforts made to defeat Senator Cross for re-nomination."

Paterson Press—"If there is any danger of factional feeling in Union county jeopardizing the return of Judge Cross to the Senate, it is a most deplorable thing. No county ever had an abler, honester or higher tried representative."

Camden Post Telegram—"Senator Joseph Cross declares that he believes he is entitled to another term. * * * That seems to be the general impression all over the State outside of Plainfield."

Cranford Chronicle—"As the representative of Union county in the Senate of New Jersey Mr. Cross has won wide renown. * * * Let well enough alone."

Paterson Press—"An attempt is making in Union to defeat the renomination of Judge Cross as State Senator, which would be a public misfortune. * * * If the strife continues and results in the defeat of Judge Cross, it will certainly be carried into the Congressional canvass and may defeat Mr. Fowler."

Summit Record (Dem.)—"The decent people of the county and State are not now seriously concerned with the question of the United States senatorship, but they are deeply interested in the outcome of a fight to humiliate an official who has been honest, able and trustworthy. And that is about what the fight against Judge Cross resolves itself into."—Elizabeth Journal. 9 18 3

BASKET BALL LEAGUE PLANS

The Daily Press Will Put Up Trophy if City Teams Decide to Form Such a League.

A MEETING NEXT WEEK.

Six Teams Will be Invited to be Present on That Occasion to Discuss Advisibility of Forming a League—Teams From Y. M. C. A., Hope, Alis and Others.

A basket ball team composed of local teams is contemplated. The idea, suggested by The Daily Press, has found favor with those at the head of the various organizations and now steps will be taken to carefully discuss the project and see if it is possible to complete such an organization. A meeting will be held Thursday evening of next week at the Y. M. C. A. building to which representatives of the different teams will be invited.

As three of the teams suggested for the proposed league were from the Y. M. C. A., the co-operation of that association was first necessary. The subject was broached to Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood some time ago and was by him proposed at a meeting of the physical work committee of the Y. M. C. A., last evening. The idea of such a league, if conducted on the lines of clean amateur sport, found favor with the members of the committee and the permission was granted for the use of the gymnasium for games by teams in the Y. M. C. A. As the Y. M. C. A. has thus taken the initial move on the suggestion of The Daily Press, it was decided to hold a meeting there to see if the league can be arranged.

According to the plans now under consideration, six teams will be invited. There will be the "first" team of the Y. M. C. A., the Leal's School and the City High School's teams, composed of players from those schools who are in the Y. M. C. A., Hope Chapel Y. M. A., St. Mary's and the Alis A. A. All have had teams except the last two. The St. Marys are new at the game but those spoken to have viewed the plan favorably. The Alis A. A. has a number of old Y. M. C. A. players in its membership who will be glad of the chance to play the game once more.

One of the chief troubles will be the securing of proper places to play. The Y. M. C. A., Leal's School and City High School will make the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium their headquarters. Hope has its own gymnasium and may be able to accommodate the Alis boys. T. A. B. Hall has been suggested as a possible home for the St. Mary's team. As all of these places will only accommodate a limited number of spectators, the financial part of the league will naturally go to the background and good, clean sport will be the all important feature. The league will not be started with the idea of making money for the clubs interested but simply to give a series of contests between local teams which will very effectually decide the question of the city championship. With this idea in mind, The Daily Press will offer a suitable trophy to the winning team.

Police Ball Game Tuesday.

The inclement weather of yesterday prevented the scheduled game between the Elizabeth and Plainfield police taking place. It will instead be held Tuesday afternoon.

They will offer 300 baskets as follows: Fifty baskets at 60 cents, fifty baskets at 65 cents, seventy-five baskets at 75 cents, fifty baskets at 85 cents, fifty baskets at $1. BANQUET TO LEAGUE TEAMS

WILL BE GIVEN BY Y. M. C. A. MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 29.

Formal Opening for Fall Work at Y. M. C. A. Saturday Evening, October 4.

A lot of important subjects were considered at the meeting of the physical work committee of the Y. M. C. A., last evening. Chief among them was the sanctioning of The Daily Press' suggestion for the organization of a city basket ball, the completion of arrangements for the supper to the players of the City Baseball League, and the planning of details for the formal opening of the Y. M. C. A., Saturday evening, October 4.

In another column will be found full details of the basket ball league project. It was decided to hold the supper Monday evening, September 29, at 7 o'clock. The league officials, the managers and players on all the league teams and a few invited guests will compose the party which will number seventy-five in all. The dinner was placed in charge of a committee of women of which Mrs. J. W. Gavett will be the chairman. After dinner there will be speeches with City Judge W. N. Runyon, president of the league, as toastmaster.

The formal opening of the educational and physical departments of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the main hall on the evening of Saturday, October 4. There will be a few addresses and a programme of a varied nature. It will mark the resumption of activity for the fall and winter in both departments.

CITY SCHOOLS CLOSED DURING THE FUNERAL

Many Gathered to Honor the Memory of Miss E. V. Shattuck, of Bryant School.

SERVICE THIS MORNING.

THE FUNERAL WAS HELD FROM THE FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass Conducted the Services and Paid a Glowing Tribute to Her Memory—Those Who Bore the Casket.

While every public school in the city closed its doors, this morning, the teachers and pupils gathered in the First Methodist church, where the last sad rites were conducted over the remains of Miss Emma V. Shattuck, principal of the Bryant building, whose sudden death, Wednesday, was a shock to the community.

The service was simple but none the less impressive. Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass was in charge and in the course of his remarks paid a glowing tribute to her who by devotion and self sacrifice had endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. The sudden termination of the bright life was used as an example of the uncertainty of earthly existence and need of preparation.

Preceding and following Dr. Snodgrass' remarks, two solos "Crossing the Bar" and "When I Meet Him," were rendered by Charles L. Lewis. Without being opened the casket was then borne away by Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the city schools, I. W. Travell, Lindsey Best and J. D. Macnab, of the Stillman High School, Charles L. Lewis, instructor of music in the schools and Frank B. Clark, clerk to the Board of Education. The remains will be taken to Westfield, N. Y., and interred in the family plot.

Among the numerous floral tributes which almost hid the casket from view was an immense wreath of galax from the Board of Education, a white wreath from the teachers of the Bryant School, pink and white carnations from the Bryant School pupils and sheafs of asters from the principals and teachers in other schools of the city. The latter will place a memorial of Miss Shattuck on the walls of the Bryant School.

After practically being in existence for several weeks, the Fraternities Accident Order was formally organized, last evening, when a meeting was held in the office of Assemblyman William Newcorn. The order is a benefit institution to which only members of fraternal organizations are eligible. The charter list has thirty names.

Officers were elected as follows: Councillor, William Newcorn; vice councillor, R. W. Osland; deputy, William Westphal; treasurer, H. H. Coward; secretary, J. L. Bennett; medical examiner, Dr. T. S. Davis. The work of organizing was performed by Grand Deputy T. S. Fisher, of Philadelphia. The next meeting will be held at the call of the chair.

Not An Office Nurse.

Through a misunderstanding it was stated, yesterday, that Miss Emma Messler was office nurse for Dr. Zeglio and that she had returned from a vacation. In justice to Miss Messler it should be stated that she is not office nurse for Dr. Zeglio, neither has she been away. She is still doing private nursing, as usual.

KNOCKED OFF TROLLEY CAR

Conductor Michael Nevins Swept From Foot Board by a Wagon in the Roadway.

WAS BADLY INJURED.

Accident Happened on Trolley Car Passing Along West Front Street, Near Washington Avenue, Yesterday Afternoon—Nevins Unconscious When He Was Picked Up.

Totally unconscious of the danger which threatened him, Michael Nevins, a conductor on the Dunellen trolley line on West Front street, swung along the foot board of his car to collect a fare, yesterday afternoon, as it was passing Washington avenue at full speed. The next instant his head came in contact with the projecting side of one of the Watchung Kindling Wood Company's huge wagons and he was swept to the ground in an unconscious condition. The wagon was standing in the roadway at the time.

Passengers who witnessed the accident stopped the car and Nevins was picked up. An ugly cut on the scalp showed where he had been struck and as hurriedly as possible he was taken to Dudley S. Miller's pharmacy on Park avenue by Miss Evans, a trained nurse, who was a passenger in the car at the time. He was brought back to consciousness and then removed to his home on Lee place. Beside the scalp wound he suffers greatly from contusions and will be kept to his bed for a week.

Nevins is a nephew of the late millionaire trolley magnate, Thomas Nevins, who died recently in Ireland. He is one of the oldest employes in the service of the local company and this is his first accident. The manner in which he was hurt is one which constantly menaces conductors while the summer cars are in use and many have barely escaped being struck as he was.

ARCANUMITES OBSERVED ORDER'S ANNIVERSARY

Greenbrook Council, No. 1725, Had Many Guests at Pleasant Affair Last Evening.

POSTPONED FROM JUNE.

COUNCILS FROM THE SURROUNDING TOWNS SENT DELEGATIONS.

Professional Entertainers Provided Amusement for Evening—Refreshments Were Served in Abundance —Greenbrook's Officers.

Royal Arcanumites from many towns in this vicinity assisted Greenbrook Council, No. 1725, in making an unqualified success of its efforts to celebrate in a fitting manner, last evening, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the order. This occasion in reality was in June, but circumstances prevented its being observed then. The delay was no barrier to the ultimate satisfactory carrying out of the plans as it was one of the pleasantest gatherings local Arcanumites have attended.

Visiting delegations were present from councils at Somerville, Bound Brook, Fanwood and Westfield. In addition the following Grand Lodge officers were present: Grand Regent Bowne, of Hoboken; Past Grand Regent Lightfoot, of Westfield; Grand Secretary Alberts, of Jersey City and Grand District Deputy D. R. Walls, of Jersey City. Plainfield Council, No. 711, also had a large delegation present.

An excellent entertainment was furnished by professionals from the Star Lyceum Bureau. Charles H. Simerson, of Brooklyn, with monologues and character sketches, Professor Borst, piano selections, and William Steyer, vocalist, made up the programme which was lenghty but still prolonged by frequent encores. The Grand Lodge officers also made interesting addresses bearing on the work and objects of the order.

This part of the affair was followed by the refreshments which were no small feature. Cigars were also distributed in abundance and while the Arcanumites puffed out rings of smoke, an hour was spent in informal sociability.

Greenbrook Council, although not so long organized has been progressing rapidly in its growth and influence and now stands as one of the most energetic in the order. It is daily increasing in membership and bids fair to become one of the leading organizations of the city. Its officers at present are: Regent, U. Grant Pierson; vice regent, George W. Taylor; secretary, G. Webster Grant; past regent, Charles M. Wilson; orator, William Taylor; treasurer, H. H. Coward; collector, J. F. W. Bamberger; guide, Harry Leek; chaplain, Ira N. West; warden, L. S. Bennett; sentry, Charles Mehlenbeck.

The committee in charge of last evening's affair consisted of William Taylor, chairman, assisted by Charles Wilson and W. F. Oliver.

BIG TIME AT HILLSIDE.

Annual Fall Outing and Entertainment Scheduled for October 4.

The annual fall outing and entertainment of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be held on Saturday, October 4, when an attractive programme of events will be enjoyed by the members. There will be golf, lawn tennis, putting and approaching contests, ping-pong, etc., and in the evening there will be one of the series of dinner dances. The committee, of which George P. Mellick, is the chairman, will have charge of the affair at the clubhouse.

Dances to Clerks.

The committee, having in charge the arrangements for the dance to be given in honor of the women clerks in this city, has not yet completed the details for the affair. It is possible that it may not be given at the Hotel Netherwood. The committee will meet this evening to decide the matter.

COLORED VOTERS ACTIVE

HELD MASS-MEETING LAST EVENING AND HEARD ADDRESSES.

Big Rally in Reform Hall Tonight—Music and Speeches Galore—Many Visitors Coming.

A rousing meeting of the colored voters of the city was held last evening in the rooms of the Colored Republican Club, on Plainfield avenue. It was in the nature of a rally previous to the big meeting which is to held in Reform Hall tonight.

William Maynard was chairman of the gathering and George H. Jones was secretary, and previous to the real motive for assemblying, the latter enrolled several new members.

The speaker of the evening was Jesse Lawson, of Washington, D. C., and his remarks were listened to closely. He was followed by Charles Hawkins, of Elizabeth, and William Roantree and Dr. Anderson, of this city. The gist of their remarks was an entreaty for the colored voters to stand firm and not become divided against themselves in the coming election.

Colored Republicans from all over the county will be at the affair in Reform Hall tonight and some of the best known colored speakers have promised to attend. Spencer Conway will be in charge and in addition to vocal selections by he and others, music will be furnished by a band from Elizabeth.

I. C. T.'S OPENING DANCE

THE FIRST RECEPTION OF THE SEASON WAS A DECIDED SUCCESS.

Many Young People in Attendance—The Music Was a Distinct Feature—The Committee.

Successful to a degree that was hardly anticipated by any of its members, the opening dance of the season of the I. C. T. Club which was held, last evening, will linger as a fond memory to all who partook of the organization's hospitality.

One hundred and twenty-five young people were in attendance and glided over the waxed surface until an early hour this morning. The music was a distinct feature. Suhr's Imperial Orchestra, augmented by a trap drummer, furnished a programme of all the latest instrumental selections. The musicians were stationed behind a bower of stately palms which added greatly to the other decorations of the room. At midnight an intermission took place during which the club members distributed refreshments. The committee to which credit is due for the successful event consisted of George L. Apgar, chairman, Hiram Humes, William Waters, Charles Overbaugh.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

Union County Convention Held at Westfield Yesterday Was a Very Successful Event.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Sept. 19 — The Union County W. C. T. U. convention held in the M. E. church yesterday, was one of the best and was interesting. Reports were read of the various departments of work showing much progress during the past year. In the evening Miss Belle Kearney, of Flora, Mississippi, gave an address which was one of the strongest and most impressive ever listened to. It was a strong argument against the saloon.

Miss Kearney said that she was as sure that the liquor traffic would be outlawed as she was that there is a God in Heaven. She spoke of the abolition of slavery, and how bitter her own mother was against the north at the time of the Civil War. She believed the time would come when saloon-keepers will realize what a terrible thing the liquor traffic is.

COL. PERRINE IN THE FOURTH

Nominated at the Democratic Congressional Convention at Flemington Yesterday.

WAS NO OPPOSITION.

Somerset's Leading Candidate Was Made Chairman, and Much Harmony Reigned Throughout—Hunterdon Had Honor of Making Nomination—The Speakers.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, September 19—Democrats from Somerset, Mercer and Hunterdon counties, which go to make up the new Fourth Congressional district, selected Colonel Lewis Perrine, of Trenton, as their standard bearer in the Congressional campaign. The Congressional convention was held here yesterday and developed much enthusiasm among the followers of Democracy who assembled here from the three counties.

Many of the delegates assembled here Wednesday night for the usual ante-convention conference. The booms of the several candidates from Somerset county were extinguished and Perrine was agreed upon by all the counties. James J. Bergen, of Somerville, who was considered the best man from that county, was accorded the honor of being chairman.

Peter D. Rockafeller, of Hunterdon county, chairman of the Congressional committee, called the convention to order yesterday short before noon. James J. Bergen was introduced as temporary chairman. After his little speech, the other officers were named. Somerset county presented the following names: Vice president, Walter C. Linbarger; resolutions, Charles J. Fury; credentials, D. J. Carney; permanent organization; J. W. Mattis; rules, J. J. Bergen; congressional committee, John A. French. Then there was a recess until 2 o'clock, to give the committees a chance to get in their work. Reports of committees began the afternoon session and the platform was presented and received with much enthusiasm. The temporary organization was made permanent. In the call for counties Former Senator Richard S. Kuhl, of Hunterdon, presented the name of Col. Perrine, of Mercer, and the latter county promptly seconded it. Former Senator Kuhl made a rousing speech. As there were no other candidates, it did not take long to make the nomination after which the candidate himself talked at length and outlined his position and that of the Democratic party.

CHANGES AT CEMETERY.

Noticeable Improvements Made at Plainfield Avenue Cemetery.

Among the noticeable improvements recently made at the Plainfield avenue cemetery is that of fixing up the main entrance to the burying ground. Block pavement has been laid in the driveway and stone flagging has been placed just inside the grounds, where persons can stand in wet or damp weather without fear of getting their feet wet. The lawn has been rounded off presenting an attractive appearance. The work has been done by the trustees of the Methodist church.

SETBACK FOR NEW BOROUGH

WAS A MISAPPREHENSION AS TO THE SUBJECT OF TAXES.

Plan to Form New Orange Borough From Cranford and Union Townships.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Sept. 19—The proposition to incorporate the New Orange section of Cranford and Union townships into a borough has received a setback as far as the Cranford side is concerned. This is due to a misapprehension as to the amount of taxes paid into the Cranford treasury, which was estimated at $12,000 annually, Cranford maintaining one school and making only a small amount of road repairs.

A study of the assessor's tax duplicate places matters in a different light to the seceders, who were surprised to learn that the total assessed valuation of all property in the New Orange section amounts to $115,000 only. At the prevailing tax rate of $2.60 per hundred this only yields $2,990 annually, which is inadequate for the support of the school maintained there, and meant a large deficit when the new and larger school building contracted for is built.

At present it was found that single lots are only assessed at the rate of $50 each, and lots in blocks at the nominal rate of $10 each.

The assessor's and collector's fees on single lots amounts to thirty-four cents and yield $1 in taxes. Therefore it appeared that New Orange would pay no part of the bonded debt or general township expenses and receive back more than is paid into the treasury.

The promoters of the borough scheme are now fearful that their valuations will be raised to equalize expenses, and wish that further discussion of the matter be avoided lest the Township Committee investigate, and cut off improvements in that section.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

The blessings of rural free delivery contain much alloy in Cranbury, it seems. The farmers who get their mail delivered daily to them no longer have reason for daily or weekly journeys to the postoffice to get their papers and letters, so business is becoming bad. In order to get supplies, the Cranbury merchants complain, the farmers go to Trenton and New Brunswick and buy in large quantities. The plight of these country tradesmen is evident, but we don't see what can be done about it. The farmers seem to be consulting their own convenience and doubtless they find their new living methods more economical. The rural delivery routes from this city undoubtedly hurt the business of several surrounding towns, but few complaints were heard then, the ones affected taking the new state of affairs more philosophically and as a matter of course.—New Brunswick Home News.

With State aid there has been constructed in New Jersey since 1893 inclusive more than 850 miles of improved roads at a cost to the State of $1,215,000, and at a total cost to State, county and property owners of $3,645,000, the State paying one-third of the money expended. The question is whether these expensive roads shall be for the benefit of all the people of the State or be converted into speedways for the owners of racing automobiles who abide in New York and Philadelphia.

A number of accidents, fatal and otherwise, caused by the fast speeding of automobiles, have recently been reported on the improved roads of the State. In some cases collisions have occurred, and in others horses have been made frantic with fear by the swift passage of the automobiles, and have done injury to drivers and damage to property. If the automobile is permitted to be driven at speed on our improved highways the people who ordinarily use them will have to abandon them for travel.

It is apprehended also that the danger of the automobile may arouse such a prejudice to good roads as to operate against future State appropriations. Why continue to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on highways only to make them race tracks for reckless chauffeurs, it will be asked. And, indeed, at the next legislative session the alternative is likely to be presented of enacting a strict law to keep the automobile within bounds or abandoning road building for next year.

Having appropriated $1,215,000 for improved roads, the Legislature should now see to it that the people of the State shall have the use thereof, free from danger to life and limb from the automobile. Local ordinances do not go far enough to grapple with the new evil. Legislative action is necessary, and a law should be passed to be operative and efficient.—Newark Advertiser.

THEATRICAL.

The original Drury Lane production of the "The Great Ruby," now touring the Proctor Circuit of seven prosperous theatres, is but the forerunner of still more noteworthy attractions to come. James E. Wilson has signed as leading man and Minnie Seligman will be leading woman at the Fifth Avenue. Gus Weinberg and Florence Reed have come into immediate popularity with the Broadway audiences, and among the other popular Fifth Avenue Theatre favorites may be mentioned Paul McAllister, John Wesley, Florence Leslie, Loretta Healey and Ada Levick.

But more interesting than these details is the statement that Miss Seligman will presently masquerade as the girl-boy Rosalind, in Shakespeare's "As You Like It," and there will be at least six novel and important productions in the course of the season. Manuscript plays by prominent dramatists are now being read with a view to a proper selection.

The stock system will be continued also at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street houses. At Fifty-eighth Street melo-drama will be the principal offering, with Harrison J. Wolfe and Edna Archer Crawford as the chief players. At One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street both melo-drama and farce will be presented, with Adelaide Keim and Ned Howard Fowler at the head of the company.

The Twenty-third Street Proctor house will give continuous vaudeville, while the Albany and Montreal theatres will duplicate the Fifth Avenue productions each week.

TROOPS CALLED OUT

Bloodshed In Hudson Valley Railway Strike.

ATTEMPT MADE TO MOVE CARS.

State Labor Officials on Hand With a View to Bring About a Compromise and End the Struggle.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The Saratoga Citizens' corps, Captain Walbridge, known in the national guard as Company L, Second regiment, has been ordered to proceed at once to Mechanicsville and Stillwater.

The orders were issued on a report received here that two persons had been shot near Waterford.

Company K, Captain Mott, of Glens Falls, is on duty near that place, and Company I, Captain Dennis, of Whitehall, is also at Glens Falls. Both companies belong to the Second regiment, which is under temporary command of Colonel James W. Lester of Saratoga, who has his headquarters here.

ONE CAR MOVED.

Serious Trouble Along the Hudson Valley Railway.

SANDY HILL, N. Y., Sept. 19.—There was trouble here yesterday when the first car which the Hudson Valley railway has attempted to move this week through this town reached here. The car was bound south and was followed by a repair car to be used in replacing on the tracks the car which was derailed Wednesday at Fort Edward. The car was filled with deputies and soldiers carrying guns.

When the courthouse at this place was reached, a crowd of people who are in sympathy with the strikers had completely filled the street and spread itself over the tracks. District Attorney Pratt was at once summoned from the courthouse and, taking a position on the tracks, read the riot act. The crowd jeered him.

Employees of the railway company then moved the car forward to a position in front of the Waite hosehouse, where the hose cart had been placed on the track to interrupt the passage of the car. Those on the car, however, sent it right along and knocked the hose cart into kindling wood.

Earlier in the day Sheriff Austin of Washington county, fearing his force of deputies would be unable to cope with the strike situation, called on Captain Otis Dennis of Company I of the national guard of Whitehall for assistance. The company arrived in Sandy Hill eighty strong and are now in camp near the power house of the company at this place. The militia officers were at first unable to move their camp equipment from the Sandy Hill station, as no teamster in the town could be induced to carry it to the power house. Finally a local cartman was impressed into service to do the work.

State Labor Commissioner John McMackin and State Mediator Bernard Stark have arrived in Glens Falls with a view to bring about a compromise and ending of the strike. This plan was tried a week ago by Mr. Stark, but his effort failed.

Boy Shot From a Car.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Charles Curtin, aged fifteen years, was shot by a nonunion man on one of the Hudson Valley cars in Waterford late yesterday. The man fired from the rear end of the car into a crowd. The boy was not seriously injured, the bullet striking him in the arm, making a flesh wound. Hoodlums have caused much trouble in Waterford of late. The car was run through a bonfire built on the track. Four additional shots were fired, but the bullets went wild. The man who is alleged to have used the revolver was arrested in Mechanicsville and brought to Waterford.

Injunction to Prevent Prizefight.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 19.—Judge Field in the Jefferson circuit court has granted the injunction prayed for by State Attorney General Pratt to prevent the contest between Terry McGovern and "Young Corbett," scheduled for next Monday night. The attorneys for the Southern Athletic club will apply to the court of appeals today for a dissolution of the injunction.

Fatal Railway Accident.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 19.—The Canadian Pacific railroad express from Toronto to Montreal ran into an open switch while passing through the Maberley yard, near Perth, and as a result Fireman W. Ross is dead, Engineer Rose is badly injured, and Fireman G. Peters is also hurt.

Steamship Managers In Council.

OSTEND, Belgium, Sept. 19.—A conference of the managers of the German and British steamship lines plying between Europe and South America has begun here. The purpose of the conference is to establish uniform freight rates in the South American trade.

Prospects In India Improved.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Lord Curzon, viceroy of India, telegraphs that the agricultural prospects in that country have been further improved by the general rains of this week and that the gratuitous relief is less than at any time since last February.

An Escaped Convict.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Sept. 19.—Frank Ford, under arrest at Indianapolis, has been identified as one of five prisoners who escaped from the South Dakota penitentiary in April, 1900. He was a member of the famous Dockery gang of Minneapolis.

ACROSS THE ISTHMUS.

Our Bluejackets Guard Every Train In Spite of Protests.

COLON, Colombia, Sept. 19.—United States bluejackets, with a small quick firing gun from the cruiser Cincinnati, continue to accompany each passenger and freight train across the isthmus, notwithstanding the protests against such measures which the Colombian government has lodged with Oscar Malmros, United States consul here.

There is no definite news of the whereabouts of the insurgent general Herrera nor signs that insurgent forces are approaching the isthmus.

General Ortiz is in command of the government troops which reached here on the steamer La Plata.

The Panama officials declare that the Colombian government had no intention of fighting Nicaragua and that Colombia, as soon as her present revolution ended, desired a period of rest from warfare.

The government has declared that public order has been restored in the departments of Boyaca and Cundinamarca. This declaration is believed to indicate the intention of the government soon to call a meeting of congress to discuss the canal question.

When the steamer La Plata, which brought 1,000 government troops to Colon, left Savanilla, there were nearly 7,000 government soldiers at that port awaiting transportation to Panama.

The arrival of re-enforcements on the isthmus and the presence of other troops at Savanilla are believed to have reduced General Herrera's chances of capturing Panama or Colon to a minimum.

GAIN IN COAL OUTPUT.

Mining In the Wyoming Valley Being Resumed.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 19.—According to reports received from the offices of the local coal companies, some of them official, the output of coal at the mines in the Wyoming region is on the increase. At the office of the Lehigh Valley Coal company it was stated that the day's output at the four collieries and one washery was some 2,400 tons. It is expected to increase the output in the next few days.

It is learned that seventy-one cars of good coal were hoisted at the Maltby mine. It is announced, but not officially, that the Delaware and Hudson company placed a thousand tons of coal on the cars at their No. 2 breaker, Plymouth, yesterday, and this coal was shipped to the headquarters at Hudson, where it was reshipped to various points in the east. It was coal of the very best quality.

Girl's Body Found.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The nude body of a young woman has been found in the Morris canal, near Jersey City, and the police believe that the discovery has brought to light a murder. The body was first seen by the driver of an express wagon while he was passing along the canal on the meadows. He noticed that there was something around the waist, and the police, whom he notified, found it was a long hitching strap and that there was a twenty pound iron weight attached to one end. On the weight was stamped "Covert Manufacturing Company," and the police think this may prove an important clew. A wound, apparently a stab wound, about six inches long was found in the abdomen.

Russian Crops Heavy.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—With the single exception of flaxseed, which is almost an absolute failure, Russia's crops for the present season are the largest that country has produced in any year during the last ten, according to a report made public at the state department from Consul Heenan, at Odessa, dated Aug. 16. The wheat harvest is exceptionally large, barley and rye have been much above the average in quantity, and sugar beets are progressing favorably.

Centenarian Celebrates.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 19.—Elijah Woodruff has reached his one hundredth birthday. In honor of the occasion a celebration was held at Navarre park, and addresses were made by many prominent citizens. Mr. Woodruff was born in Watertown, Conn., Sept. 18, 1802, and came to Toledo in 1833. He is yet quite hearty.

OFF FOR NORTHWEST

President Roosevelt Begins His Long Itinerary.

CINCINNATI THE FIRST PUBLIC STOP.

Will Attend Important Gatherings of War Veterans at Detroit and Indianapolis—Will Visit the Dakotas and Nebraska.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 19.—In accordance with the outline made public by Secretary Cortelyou, President Roosevelt began his tour to the northwest this morning.

The president, Secretary Cortelyou and Assistant Secretary Loeb left Oyster Bay at 9:30 a. m., in ample time to connect with the president's train, leaving Jersey City at 2:14 p. m., where they were joined by the balance of the party.

The most extraordinary precautions have been taken to prevent any injury or mishap to President Roosevelt during the trip.

The first public stop scheduled is at Cincinnati at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Upon arrival there the president and party are to be escorted to the St. Nicholas hotel, where an informal luncheon will be given by the general committee. In the afternoon a visit will be made to the fall festival grounds to view the exposition, and later the president will be taken to Music hall. In the evening the local committee will entertain the president and party and others at dinner at the St. Nicholas hotel, and after the dinner the president will deliver an address at Music hall.

Leaving Cincinnati at midnight, the president and party will reach Detroit early the following morning and remain there until Tuesday morning, Sept. 23. Sunday will be spent quietly without public programme. On Monday the president will attend the Spanish War Veterans' convention and will be taken later for a ride on the river. In the afternoon he will review a parade. A banquet will be given in the evening by the Spanish War Veterans.

On Tuesday brief stops will be made at Logansport, Kokomo, Tipton, Noblesville, Indianapolis and Muncie. Three or four hours will be spent in Indianapolis, where the president will attend the third annual encampment of the Spanish-American War Veterans, and the party will be entertained at luncheon at the Columbia club. One hour will be spent in Fort Wayne late in the afternoon, and Milwaukee will be reached during the night.

About two hours will be spent at Lacrosse Thursday morning, the programme including a drive to the fair grounds and an address by the president. St. Paul and Minneapolis will be visited later in the day.

On Friday, Sept. 26, Sioux Falls and Yankton will be visited in the morning. Two hours will be spent in Sioux City, Ia., in the afternoon, and stops will be made at Arion and Denison.

Several points in Nebraska will be visited Saturday.

Sunday, the 28th, will be spent quietly in Topeka, where on Monday morning the president is to address a public meeting in the Auditorium. A brief stop will be made late in the morning at Lawrence, Kan., and Kansas City, Mo., will be reached about noon.

A number of brief stops will be made on Tuesday, Sept. 30, at points in Iowa, including Clarinda, Van Wert, Osceola, Des Moines and Oskaloosa. At Ottumwa in the evening the president will deliver an address.

Leaving Ottumwa during the night, the train will go by way of Keokuk, Ia., Quincy, Ill., Hannibal, Louisiana and Clarksville, Mo., to St. Louis, arriving at the last named place about 4 o'clock and leaving the following morning.

Chicago will be reached Friday morning, Oct. 3, at 8:30 o'clock. The programme for the day includes visits to Northwestern and Chicago universities and to several organizations, an open air meeting on the lake front.

The president and his party will leave Chicago during the night and arrive at Cleveland, O., at 9:30 the following evening, Saturday, passing during the day through Buchanan, Miles, Dowagiac, Decatur, Lawton, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Jackson, Mich., and Toledo and Sandusky, O. No public programme has been arranged for Cleveland, as it is the president's intention simply to spend Sunday there as the guest of Senator Hanna.

Northern Queen Responsible.

BUFFALO, Sept. 19.—Judge Hazel in the United States court has handed down a decision in which the steamer Northern Queen is held responsible for the collision in White Fish bay, at the entrance to St. Mary's river, on July 29, 1901, in which the whaleback Sagamore was sunk. The Sagamore and her cargo of ore were worth about $150,000, which the owners of the Northern Queen will be obliged to pay. By this decision they are also held responsible for damages for the death of the captain and steward of the Sagamore, who were drowned.

Forest Fires Spreading.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 19.—Six thousand dollars in cash has been raised in this city, Oregon City and Vancouver, Wash., for the forest fire sufferers. Supplies are being rushed forward to the afflicted districts. From Denver comes word that forest fires are sweeping bare of timber sections of the Rocky mountains from the Wyoming line to central Colorado. The fires are spreading with terrible rapidity, and conditions are more serious now than at any time since the first fire was reported about a month ago.

THE COAL SUPPLY.

This question of fuel has come to be a very important one in Plainfield as well as in every other city in the land. Plainfield may be more fortunate than some communities in that it posesses a sufficient supply of the black diamonds to last it a month but there is every prospect that the end will come before any relief is in sight. As to when the strike will end, no one can tell. Mine owners and strikers seem just as firm as they were when the strike began. Of course a few mines have resumed operations on a limited scale but there will have to be a general resumption of activity in the coal regions before Plainfield will get any benefit of it. And even when that comes, it will take some time to fill the urgent demands of the large concerns all over the country before the wants of the smaller customers can be attended to. "What will we do" everybody is asking. That seems a question that nobody can answer for the present at least. There will be some soft coal but it is not only difficult but sometimes dangerous to burn it in the ranges and furnaces built for the anthracite. It will be the poorer classes who will suffer most from the scarcity of coal. At present it is possible to get along with litle or no coal. When the real cold weather comes, there will be hard times, indeed, for those who are unable to keep their homes at anything like a livable temperature. Gas is a costly substitute. Wood burns too quickly but will undoubtedly be extensively used if coal cannot be secured.

The wealthy and well-to-do classes will only suffer considerable inconvenience at best. There is little chance that they will freeze. But for the poor who suffered even under old conditions, there will be suffering and trouble. With the cold will come illness and death and sorrow will enter many a household. The winter will tax the local charitable organizations to their uttermost and it behooves those who are in comfortable circumstances to so plan their expenditures now as to be able to add somewhat to their usual contributions for those worthy organizations.

A week from tomorrow will see the opening of the football season in Plainfield. From present appearances it will be a successful one for the strongest team yet to represent Plainfield is being assembled and will on that day play its first game. Football has always been a popular sport in Plainfield and there is no reason why a good team should not draw large crowds to witness its matches.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

John Wirth, the West Front street baker, is making a specialty of fine confectionery this week. All the dainties in this line are made every day, thus insuring their freshness.

Smalley Brothers, of North avenue, are selling the choicest cuts of meat and their well-appointed meat market is the centre of attraction for the best trade. This firm always gives satisfaction.

And still the sales of Shaw's hard water soap increases. This article is made especially for use in Plainfield water and as a remedy for rough and chapped hands it has no superior. Ask for a sample.

Dudley S. Miller, the hustling Park avenue druggist, has just received a fine lot of carriage chamois, also a complete line of hot water bags, atomizers, fountain syringes. Mr. Miller has also a fine assortment of confection of the best make.

Persons desiring the best of groceries at a fair, low price, need go no further than the store of George Kirch, of Liberty street. His place of business is conducted on up-to-date principles—good goods at low cash prices. All orders are delivered free.

The local store of the A. and P. Tea Company is becoming a wonderful place for still more wonderful bargains. Something new is featured each week and the articles are always the best at a lower price than quoted anywhere in the city. Drop in some time and look around.

The hundreds of patrons of S. Schener & Company can testify to the good values received at this up-to-date grocery. The store is always well stocked with fresh goods and the prices are the lowest to be found anywhere. The firm also has a first-class meat department. Prompt service is a feature.

The steady increase in business at Charles E. Vail's jewelry store speaks well for the confidence placed in Mr. Vail by the people of Plainfield. He has a large stock of jewelry, watches, etc., and he also has a well-equipped eye-glass department. The repair department is first-class and work is promptly executed.

TRIBUTE TO MISS SHATTUCK.

What She Has Been to All of Those Who Knew Her.

To all the children who have known and loved Miss Shattuck:

You have lost such a faithful friend that the empty school, the solemn church service, the half-masted flags but poorly show your grief. All words are weak.

But you must remember and love her always for she always remembered and loved you. All your little troubles were her troubles. All your pleasures, your games, your Christmas fun, your songs—were hers. Deeply did she long for her boys and girls to be clean-hearted, honest and kind; earnestly did she hope that they might every one grow to be noble men and women; perfectly did she trust that there was something good in each heart. The slightest turning from the best in them was, to her, a lasting hurt.

Her own life was so true and pure that we feel she was ready to enter the Kingdom of God. The Bible says, "They shall walk in white, for they are worthy."

To us this sudden death seemed almost unbearable, but to her the short time of suffering was a blessing. We would not have asked it, if we could, that this brave soul should fight a long illness.

We believe that she has gone to a beautiful country, where there is no toil, no worry, no sickness. She has "entered into rest" and will never be tired again. She is not lonely for many dear friends are with her.

Our flowers have spoken of our love, but the true tribute must be in our lives. Those of us who honestly hold her memory dear will show it by a constant daily struggle for those things to which she patiently, lovingly, tried to lead us—purity, truth kindness.

A. G.

—This is just the time to can peaches. Neuman Brothers will have 300 baskets of the choice fruit tomorrow at these prices: Fifty baskets at 60 cents, fifty baskets at 65 cents, seventy-five baskets at 75 cents, fifty baskets at 85 cents, fifty baskets at $1 and twenty-five baskets of the extra large yellow peaches.

FALL ACTIVITY IS BEGINNING AT HOPE

Hope Chapel Y. M. A. Is Making Many Plans for the Fall and Winier.

ATHLETIC AMUSEMENTS.

NIGHT EDUCATIONAL CLASSES WILL PROBABLY BE STARTED.

Present Funds Will Probably be Used to Build Swimming Pool—Another Minstrel Show to be Held This Winter.

With the advent of cool weather matters with the Hope Y. M. A. are beginning to take upon themselves unusual activity that augers a busy season with this progressive organization. In a better condition than ever to carry out it projects, the members have in contemplation several enterprises which will keep them busily engaged until spring and outdoor sports begin again.

At the regular meeting which is to be held in two weeks, athletics will be thoroughly discussed and it is probable that the basket ball team and gymnasium classes will be formed. The bowlers are also active and it is probable a strong ten man team will be in readiness for games very shortly. A movement is well under way for better facilities for this latter sport among the members and it is not at all visionary that new alleys may be added.

The subject of night educational classes, which was first broached last winter, is to be revived and a special effort will be put forth in this direction to accomplish something material. It is the intention of the officials to have instructors present various nights in the week to teach the various branches of English and commercial courses. They would have been in operation last winter but for the fact that other projects broached earlier demanded the attention of the young men.

Although not yet suffering from a plethora of funds, the members have strong hopes of adding a swimming pool to the gymnasium equipment At present it has a shower bath arrangement but the value of this has been an incentive for the boys to gain further advantages in this line. The way every member has been working and with the successful carrying out of plans for getting money, it will not be a great while before a sufficient amount will be in the treasury to warrant their going ahead with the plan.

Another thing that will shortly require undivided attention will be the second minstrel show which is to be given soon after the holidays. Those who have pleasant remembrances of last spring's successful affair look forward to the second but it will eclipse even their sanguine expectations. Experience gained in the first will be applied to the second and a black face entertainment such as no local amateurs ever gave will be the result. The members who are to take part will commence their rehearsals by the first of November.

NEEDS OF THE NAVY.

Secretary Moody Has Begun a Thorough Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Secretary Moody has begun a thorough investigation to ascertain with nicety the needs of our naval establishment, his purpose being to collect the views of officers of all branches of the service and draw from them his recommendations to be submitted to congress. He has issued instructions to the naval board on construction, headed by Rear Admiral O'Neil, to look thoroughly into not only the subject of new construction, but also personnel, and make him a report on both subjects.

Mr. Moody's general idea is to discover with exactness what ships he may consider "on hand," which ones are apt to go out of active service and how those now building will affect the equation. If it then appears that the navy still is behind its ships in the matter of personnel, officers and men will be given precedence over war vessels in the secretary's recommendations to congress.

Moreover, it is understood to be the plan of Secretary Moody, after he has been provided with the views of the naval service, to have a conference with the leading members of the senate and house naval committees and the president and endeavor to determine, after discussing the matter from a nonpartisan point of view, the best method by which to benefit the navy.

JEWS WON'T WORK.

Such Is the Report From Roumania. A Great Exodus.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—In a dispatch from Bucharest, Roumania, dated Sunday, Sept. 14, a correspondent of the Daily Express says the emigration fever among the Jews of Roumania still continues and that within the last three months 4,000 Jews have left the country.

The correspondent says that a party of 350 have just left for Canada and the United States, and small parties of Jews leave the larger towns of the country almost daily. Although the reason given by the emigrants for leaving is their inability to obtain work, the Jews steadily refuse to take up farm labor. Proof of this is found in the fact that within the last three years Roumania has paid for outside Bulgarian labor something like $3,000,000, which might have gone to the Jews if they would only turn their hands to the light labor of harvesting.

Bulgarian laborers, the correspondent concludes, are well housed and excellently fed while working on Roumanian farms.

Mission Losses Paid.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—The officers of the American board have announced the receipt of $57,933 through the state department at Washington. The amount is 25 per cent of the award made to the board by the commission now in session in China for losses on mission property in the Boxer outrage of 1900. This money is said to come very opportunely to reimburse the treasury for sums already expended in rebuilding in north China and also to meet other urgent calls of the same sort. The award for the personal losses of missionaries has not yet been made, but will soon be forwarded from Peking to Washington.

Serious Trolley Accident.

MARION, Ind., Sept. 19.—A car of the Union Traction company ran into a freight train at a switch near the Soldiers' home last night, wrecking both trains and injuring over twenty people. The car was running twenty miles an hour at the time of the collision.

SHIRT WAIST SUITS.

They Will Continue In Favor During the Fall and Winter.

The vogue of silk shirt waist suits will not cease with the summer days. They will still be worn during the fall and winter, only in the latter case they will be of heavier materials. Nothing is more comfortable and becoming than the shirt waist dress, which, because it is all of one color, makes even the most undignified woman look well dressed.

The latest are the changeable silk dresses in dead leaf tints—blue and black, blue and green and dull reds. They are worn with soft little turnover collars of mull and cuffs of the same, with stitched belts of the dress material relieved by jeweled buckles.

Tailor made dresses of silk and wool are trimmed with crisscross strappings of taffeta on both waists and skirts. The loose little box plaited coat effect is still to be seen on many handsome gowns. It is combined with a softly wound girdle of a contrasting shade and collar applications of heavy lace.

A French foulard dress is shown in the illustration. It is made with a tucked yoke, giving the low bust effect, and the fullness below this forms a blouse. The sleeves are tucked to the elbow and flare in a double puff. The skirt falls in soft folds from the tucks on the hips. The trimming consists of black chantilly lace.

DRESS HINTS.

Colored Neck Ruffles to Match the Dresses—Tailor Made Coats.

Colored neck ruffles to match the gowns are among the latest of fashion's demands, and many pretty gowns are seen in delaine of the pale shades relieved in dainty floral designs, which give the leading note of color for all the little accessories.

For autumn wear charming little wool gowns and suits are being shown. A great deal of blue is worn, but it is much brighter than navy and yet not too assertive. A yellowish ivory or undecided mastic tint is newer than cream, and a wee touch of gold braid let into the trimming makes a charming relief and considerably smartens the toilet.

The tailor made coats for fall wear show longer effects and sleeves which bag decidedly at the wrists. They are elaborately strapped, and some of them have belts passing under the straight fronts.

A dainty child's frock is the one illustrated. It is made of dotted challie. The yoke is tucked horizontally and has perpendicular applications of ecru lace. The blouse waist is laid in box plaits, and the skirt follows the same fashion. The latter is trimmed at the bottom with tucks and lace.

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"What a mysterious household!" exclaimed Mr. Beldon. "Really, you frighten a quiet man like me, a simple, helpless journalist. I don't know that I'll come, after all."

"Oh, there's nothing to be afraid of," returned I. "I only hope that if you hear Baldwin calling for help——"

"I am to go up and beat his wife?"

"No," said I, "not at all. Go up and beat him for being such a fool," and I turned away.

"Oh, one thing more," I called. "Don't forget it's the left side you're to go round, if you don't want her to see you."

"Who to see me?"

"Miss Dacres."

"Who's she?"

"The new boarder—J. A. Dacres. Those are her initials on the dress suit case."

"Are they?" said he. He repeated the name, "J. A. Dacres, J. A. D. Oh, yes, I see, I see. Clever, very clever indeed! Well, I'll go along. Round to the left, you say. Presumably she's on the right side of the house. Good-by," and he was off.

I walked toward the village, pondering what he meant by those words, "Clever! very clever, indeed!"

CHAPTER III.

I plodded steadily on towards the town. As I neared the village I saw a carriage approaching me. As it passed I perceived that it held two occupants that I well knew. They were Miss Elizabeth and Miss Evelyn from the Hall, or, rather, they used to be from the Hall and would now be again. They were in deep black and were evidently on their way to the old Darlington place, where their brother had died. It seemed strange that I had almost forgotten all about the sensation of the hour because of my own troubles. The truth is, I had been thinking very deeply of the ladies when Miss Dacres came up to the gate the day before, and I had also been thinking very deeply of my own affairs. I really had not known where to turn until I found that I could let the rooms, and the completion of my arrangements had put everything else out of my mind. It seemed strange too that I should have been so forgetful of all that happened at the Hall. I had been so at home there, in days gone by, as governess to Mr. Eugene's little girl and as friend to the older ladies that I felt the death of the Squire very much, but Poverty is a master who drives away our tenderest thoughts, taking possession with his grim presence of the place which harbored them, and I was all at once aware that my anxiety as to how I was to get our bread and butter had made me somewhat forgetful of my duty. These thoughts flashed rapidly through my mind as I went onward, and then I heard the carriage stop and turn. I faced about at once.

"Isn't that Sophronia?" I heard and in a moment the carriage door was thrown open and I was drawn inside to Miss Elizabeth's kind arms.

They had both thrown up their veils, and first one kissed me and then the other.

"Drive a little way back with us, Sophronia, dear," said Miss Evelyn, "and tell us all about it."

"Gladly," said I, as I took the place into which Miss Evelyn, being the younger, pushed me, on the back seat beside her sister. I sighed as I thought of the lock unpicked and the boarder's dinner to get, but I could do nothing but go with them. These dear ladies had been my friends when I most needed friends, and when the Judge married me, though he was no judge then, they gave me my wedding from the Hall. Since they and their brother had quarrelled about his changing his religion, and they left the Hall for a home of their own, I had seen little of him, though he always gave me a pleasant enough bow when I passed him on the road. The ladies had now come from their home at Springborough, called hither by telegrams, no doubt, and I could see that, having heard the news only yesterday, they could not have arrived before.

"Tell us all about it, dear," said Miss Elizabeth. "Did he suffer very much? Was it sudden? Poor David! I little thought when—but tell us, my dear, what you know."

"I can't tell you anything at all," said I gloomily, "or very little. I know almost nothing."

"What! Sophronia, that isn't like you. Never went near poor David in his last illness? Why, how could that be? So unlike——"

"I went, over and over again," said I. "When I found I couldn't get in at the front door, I went around to the back to old Margot. Yes, she is still there. But there was no hope for me. I only heard each day that he was no better."

"But how perfectly absurd! Why couldn't you get in?"

"The priest wouldn't allow it, and there was no one to prevent. You know your brother had quar—was at odds with his old friends down in the village and over at Marchbank, and they none of them felt like interfering."

"Who took care of him?" asked Miss Elizabeth with tears in her eyes.

"A Sister of Charity, I believe. Margot told me so."

"Margot would hardly like that," said Miss Evelyn.

As I recalled the old Scotch woman's stern face, and her anger at the priest dominating herself and everyone else in the house, I shook my head. "No," said I, "Margot was very indignant, but what could she do? She could have gone off and left him with them, but that she would not do. She could not desert Mr. David, she told me, no matter how he had treated her. She would not go and leave him in the hands of his self-appointed friends, strangers to everyone about here. 'I promised the old gentleman,' she said, 'that I would never leave Mr. David, and I won't!—not for the Pope himself.'"

"She is a very bitter Protestant," said Miss Evelyn, who had leanings towards Rome.

"She had excellent reasons for being one," returned Miss Elizabeth. "She was brought up as we all were, in the Scotch Presbyterian church, and why should she change at her age?" She looked as unutterable things at Miss Evelyn as her sweet face would allow.

"We won't go into that, dear Elizabeth," said Miss Evelyn very gently. "Let us hear what we can from Sophronia before we reach the Hall."

"When did—did—my brother pass away?"

"It was night before last," said I. "Baldy Towner told me at about seven o'clock in the morning, when I went to get the eggs."

"And you went up at once, of course?"

"Of what use?" said I. "I had been so many times. They would not let me in when he was living. How should I have got in when he was no more?"

"Who nursed him?" asked Miss Elizabeth with a tremulous voice.

"She told us a Sister of Charity," said Miss Evelyn.

"They say she never left him night or day," added I.

"What was his illness, Sophronia? We have heard nothing, you see."

"The Squire broke his leg while hunting. Haven't you heard even that? It was only two weeks ago. Fever set in, I believe. He sent for that doctor he had at the seashore, a Doctor Lestrange. He thought there was nothing equal to Dr. Lestrange. Of course, Dr. Williams did not like to interfere. I believe that he did once pay him a friendly visit, but Dr. Lestrange was so distant, and your brother seemed so completely under his thumb, that Dr. Williams never went again. Margot said the Squire wasted so fast, she couldn't see how it came about. He was a healthy man. Just a fractured leg, and he had a good constitution too."

"Has anything been said about a will?" asked Miss Evelyn.

"That makes little difference," said Miss Elizabeth. "He had but a few personal effects to will away."

"Not that I have heard," said I, answering Miss Evelyn. "Margot told me, the last time I was up there, that she had heard a good deal that wasn't intended for her to hear. One day she crept up the back stairs and listened at the door. The Sister of Charity was soothing him and talking in a very intimate way, much more so than you would suppose possible for a Sister, and he said to her, 'How can I ever repay you? No—there! Let me hold your hand, it can't do any harm. Shall I leave you something in my will?' 'Oh, no!' she said, 'oh, no! We can hold no property, you know, Squire Darlington. Perhaps if you were to give me some money, I might convey it to my sisterhood.'

"'How good, how pious you Sisters are,' Margot heard him say. 'If I should put into your hands something valuable—very valuable—what would you do with it?'"

"Oh!" gasped Miss Elizabeth, "not that! Not that!" I looked at her. She was very pale.

"Go on, Sophronia," said Miss Evelyn.

I continued: "'I would turn it into money,' she said, 'and give it to the church. But I should have to have a deed of gift from you.'

"'There are some jewels,' said your brother.'"

"Not the rubies!" ejaculated Miss Evelyn. "He could not have meant mother's rubies. Oh, he could not! Could he, Elizabeth?"

THE SZECHUEN REBELLION.

Boxer Attack on Chingtufu Repulsed—Leaders Punished.

PEKING, Sept. 19.—The throne has strongly commanded the officials of Szechuen to suppress the rebellion in that province.

The Boxer attack on Chingtufu, the capital of Szechuen province, in which 30,000 Boxers made ineffectual attempts to take the city, began Sept. 15. When the rebels endeavored to enter the city, a conflict ensued. The attackers were driven back, and the gates of the city were closed and guarded by troops. Soldiers quelled the disorder within the city. Fourteen Boxer leaders and several other rebels were executed. A new viceroy and new military officials are now on their way to Chingtufu to assume charge there.

The United States minister to China, Mr. Conger, and the French minister are urging the throne to further prompt action toward subduing the insurrection.

Boxer Uprising Feared.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—China is on the verge of another Boxer uprising which may equal that of 1900, according to advices received at the state department from Minister Conger. The troubles appear to arise principally from extortionate taxation combined with resentment against the presence of missionaries, thus justifying the judgment of the department of state, which pointed out to the powers that the demand for excessive indemnities would result in serious internal troubles in China.

NEGRO LYNCHED IN OREGON.

An Unmasked Crowd Does the Deed In Broad Daylight.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Sept. 19.—Alonzo Tucker, a negro, who assaulted Mrs. Dennis near Libby Wednesday, has been lynched. A body of coal miners, heavily armed, marched into town during the evening. The marshal, who had Tucker in custody, attempted to take him from the jail just as the miners entered, and a rush was made for the negro. He managed to give his custodian the slip and jumped under the wharf into the mud flats and eluded both officers and mob for several hours. The miners stationed armed guards at every point of egress from the city. Every corner of the town was searched, and finally two boys located the fugitive under a store. The boys fired at him with air guns and drove him from his hiding place. As he emerged a ball from a rifle caught him in the right leg.

Tucker ran into a store and was followed by the miners, who started to hang him in the store, but decided to take him to the scene of the crime. A start was made, but the negro died from his wounds, and the mob hanged the body to a beam on the South Marshfield bridge. Not a masked man was in the crowd, and everything was done in broad daylight.

Zulus Menace Boers.

DURBAN, Natal, Sept. 19.—Uneasiness is felt here in consequence of reports of unrest in Zululand, where trouble appears to be imminent. The Natal Times says the feeling in Zululand between the Boers and natives demands active government intervention. Dinizulu is regaining his prestige and is regarded as dangerous. The Zulus still have the arms with which they were provided during the war. Since the Zulus were killed by the Boers in the Vryheid district, the paper continues, a bitter feeling has prevailed among the natives, and this threatens to culminate in a serious collision.

Foster's Body Exhumed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The drowning of Clarence Foster and Sarah Lawrence in Tiana Bay, New York, early last summer has again been brought to public notice by the exhumation of the body of Clarence Foster by order of District Attorney Smith of Suffolk county. After the body had been brought to the surface in the cemetery the skull was severed, and then the other portion was consigned once more to the grave. Louis A. Disbrow is now in jail, charged with the killing of Foster, having been arrested several days after the Tiana bay tragedy.

Imprisoned In a Mine.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., Sept. 19.—Louis von Ruecan, a prominent German mining expert, was imprisoned thirty hours in a Grouse mountain tunnel owing to a cavein, but was not hurt. He went out to examine the Pleasant View mining property. Entrance to the property is gained through a tunnel on the slope of the hill. No operations had been in progress there for nearly two years, and the timbers had become rotten. Von Ruecan had not gone more than fifty feet when the roof of the tunnel fell. A rescue party dug him out.

Sound Steamer Disabled.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—One hundred and twenty-five passengers who left this city last night for Bridgeport, Conn., on board the steamer William G. Paine of the Bridgeport Steamboat company were landed from that vessel at City Island, from where they continued their trip by rail. The Paine, which is one of the speediest boats on the sound, broke her paddle wheel when off Matinicock point, Long Island, and she was unable to continue her voyage.

The Oregon Ready.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The navy department has received a telegram from the commander of the battleship Oregon announcing that vessel's departure from Bremerton for San Francisco. The Oregon has been under repairs for several months. It is the intention of the navy department to send her to the Asiatic station, but she will not start for the east immediately.

POLE HUNTER FAILED

Peary Returns From a Four Years' Search.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERIES CLAIMED.

The Expedition Set Out July 4, 1898. In 1901 the Erik Brought Word of the Explorer's Safety—What Was Accomplished.

SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 19.—The arctic relief ship Windward, with Lieutenant and Mrs. Peary on board, has arrived here. Lieutenant Peary, after having pushed into the arctic regions for four years, comes back again without having discovered the pole. He, however, went farther north than ever before.

Although having reached a higher latitude than ever before on this last voyage, Lieutenant Peary refuses to make public the exact point where his journey ended.

Lieutenant Peary is recovering from an accident to one of his legs, from which he suffered last winter. He is slightly lame, although this is not especially noticeable.

The Windward's cargo includes many cases of relics from the north and a number of live animals for Central park, New York city.

The citizens of Sydney gave Lieutenant Peary a public reception in Alexandra hall the evening following his arrival. Mayor Crow presided and presented to Lieutenant Peary an eloquent address commendatory of his work, to which the explorer made a brief but effective response. "God Save the King" and "America" were sung by the audience, after which many of those present were presented to Lieutenant Peary.

Lieutenant Peary has received an invitation from the Scottish Geographical society to visit Edinburgh and receive a gold medal, its highest honor. He has also been elected an honorary fellow of the National Geographical society, whose headquarters are at Washington.

Peary and his party of explorers left for the north on July 4, 1898. In 1901 the relief steamship Erik brought back word that in the summers of 1899 and of 1900 Lieutenant Peary had twice unsuccessfully attempted to reach the pole and that he was then encamped on the south side of Herschel bay, ten miles from Cape Sabine.

Mrs. Peary had promised that she would come to Cape Sabine for him in 1902, and last July she kept her word, the relief ship Windward leaving Jersey City for Cape Sabine.

Lieutenant Peary says that on this trip he approached nearer to the north pole than ever before. The farthest point hitherto reached was made by the Duke of Abruzzi and party, who left Christiania in 1899 and, having wintered in Franz Josef Land, proceeded northward by sledge. Captain Cagni of this expedition reached latitude 86 degrees 33 minutes 49 seconds, which is twenty-three miles beyond Dr. Nansen's farthest point.

In March, 1900, Lieutenant Peary left Fort Conger, latitude 81 degrees 44 minutes north, and, with Hensons and five Eskimos, crossed Robeson channel, to the west of the Greenland coast. He proceeded north over the sea of ice to Blackhorn cliffs, and from there two natives were sent back. Two more were dismissed at Cape Britannia, 83 degrees 24 minutes north, which was Beaumont's farthest point. Lockwood's farthest north, 83 degrees 24.5 minutes north, was passed as well as Cape Washington, the headland seen by Lockwood in 1882. Here a cairn was built and a copy of the "farthest" record deposited.

Peary then pushed on to the northern extremity of Greenland, latitude 83 degrees 39 minutes north. It was then the most northerly known land in the world. Thence he advanced over the sea of ice to 83 degrees 51 minutes, where he was effectively stopped by open water. He retraced his steps to the Greenland coast, along which he went eastward to longitude 25 degrees west, about a degree from Independence bay, which had been discovered and named by him in 1892. Lieutenant Peary ended his work for this time, having demonstrated definitely the position of the northern and western coasts of Greenland and having made an accurate chart of the archipelago.

Delegates Charged With Perjury.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 19.—Circuit Attorney Folk has filed informations charging former Delegates Hannigan, Kenny, Albright and Bersch with perjury. This action was taken as the result of testimony before the grand jury by the accused, who denied any knowledge of the reported payment of $75,000 to members of the house combine by the Suburban Street Railway company to secure a certain franchise. The information, in effect, is the same as an indictment, which under the statutes of Missouri can be issued at the discretion of the circuit attorney.

General Grant Coming Home.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The war department has been advised of the sailing of the transport Logan from Manila for San Francisco, with Brigadier General Frederick D. Grant, headquarters and six troops of the Sixth cavalry, 123 sick, 8 insane, 187 casuals and 55 discharged soldiers. General Grant has been assigned to command the department of Texas.

Customs Inspectors Discharged.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Secretary Shaw has approved the recommendations of the collector of customs at New York and ordered the dismissal of five customs inspectors charged with lax methods in the examining of baggage and accepting gratuities from incoming steamer passengers.

ON THE DIAMOND.

All members of the Plainfield Consolidated baseball team which is to play Westfield tomorrow are requested to appear this afternoon at 5 o'clock on St. Mary's field for practice.

Manager Cose has decided not to take the Hope team to Red Bank September 27. The management of the team at that place was too niggardly in agreeing upon terms and it was deemed best not to make the trip. Instead, a game at another place will be arranged.

It is probable that the police and firemen may again meet on the local diamond before the season closes. The firemen undoubtedly played the better game, Monday, and its backers are anxious for another go. The matter is being considered by the captains.

The averages of the League players which are now being computed are being eagerly awaited by those individuals. Three prizes will be distributed to the teams at large, when the results are known, and several for the Safe Works' men alone will be distributed.

The Plainfield Consolidated team is practicing regularly for the coming game with the Westfields, Saturday. Every member is in good trim and the prospects point to a close contest. Competent fans who have witnessed the practice work are of the opinion that the Plainfield team is going to surprise a few people, including some from Westfield.

The batting order of the Consolidated team when it crosses bats with Westfield tomorrow has been arranged as follows: Moore, cf; Lederer, lf; Bolsterli, ss; Martin, 2b; Franklin, rf; Burns, or Dupee, p; Allen, c; Egan, 1b; Cooney, 3b. The game is scheduled to commence at 3:30 and should be a fitting final to the baseball season in this city. The Westfield line up will be the same which has been maintained all summer.

GOLF.

The next scheduled event on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course, outside the weekly events, will be September 27, when there will be play for the Reinhart cup.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club team will play a match game with the New Brunswick Golf Club team next Saturday. The match will be played at New Brunswick.

Weekly play for the Boys' and Golf Committee cups will be the attraction on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course next Saturday morning and afternoon. Both of these competitions are intensely interesting and the finish is sure to be watched closely by all members.

Owing to the rain of Saturday the talked of scratch event on the Park Golf Club was not started. For Saturday of this week there is a match between the bachelors and benedicts of the club scheduled. A similar match was played last year and aroused much interest. This is to be the first of a series of three.

TENNIS.

Much interest is being shown at the City High School in the coming tennis tournament. The tournament will consist of both singles and doubles. A small entry fee will be charged and Pim racket will be offered to the champion of the school in singles, while the members of the winning team in doubles will each receive a silver cup. Entries are coming in rapidly and already fifteen have been received. Play will probably commence on Tuesday afternoon, September 23, on the courts of the Cedar Brook Tennis Club, LaGrande avenue and Richmond street.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

The lineup of the I. C. T. football team is not yet completed and anyone wishing to play can try for places this evening during practice. Those anticipating becoming a member, kindly meet at the I. C. T. club rooms, this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Essex Stars have organized for the football season with William Hickey, captain, and Edward Harding, Jr. manager. Practice games are now being held regularly. All teams averaging ninety-five pounds wishing games are asked to communicate with Edward Harding, Jr., Spruce street.

THROWN OUT BY TROLLEY

NOW THE INJURED ONES ARE PREPARING TO BRING SUIT.

F. H. Moffett, of Stirling, and Mrs. Edward Stulz, of Rahway, Were Injured.

Lawyer Charles Moffett is now preparing papers in the suit he will soon bring against the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company for F. H. Moffett, of Stirling, and Mrs. Edward Stulz, of Rahway, for injuries received by them on Wednesday evening, September 3, while they were driving through Putnam avenue. They were on their way to the North Avenue station, where Mrs. Stulz was to take a train for Elizabeth.

Just as they were about to turn from Putnam avenue into Richmond street a trolley car came up behind them, and a collision followed. Both occupants of the buggy were thrown out and the wagon was wrecked. Mr. Moffett was thrown against the curb, his head and nose being cut and he was also bruised. Mrs. Stulz also received injuries to her head from which she has suffered a great deal ever since.

It is alleged by the plaintiffs in the case that the motorman of the car did not sound his gong and did not make an effort to avoid collision. The names of the motorman and the conductor were taken and also the names of eye-witnesses. Neither Mrs. Stulz nor Mr. Moffett have yet entirely recovered from their injuries.

O. U. A. M. TO MEET.

National Convention Will be Held Next Week in Atlantic City —The New Jersey Delegates.

An official call has been issued for the national convention of the Order of United American Mechanics to be held in Atlantic City commencing Tuesday of next week and continuing three days.

National Councilor George H. Poulson, of Trenton, has already prepared his report and it is in the hands of the printer. The report is very lengthy and shows the order throughout the United States to be in a flourishing condition. National Councilor Poulson will preside at the coming session.

The convention, which will be the fifty-sixth annual meeting of the order, will be held in Odd Fellows' Hall, New York avenue, near Pacific avenue. Official headquarters will be established in the Albemarle hotel, Virginia avenue, near the beach.

The final day of the convention election of officers will be held. Delegates will be present from nearly every state in the union. They will be chosen from the different state bodies.

New Jersey will be represented by Samuel Branson, Camden; Avery Doremus, Paterson; John Clark, Dover. In addition to the regular delegates all the ex-state councilors will be entitled to seats in the convention.

G. A. R. Veterans in Washington.

The annual encampments of the Veterans are conclaves climaxing every other kind of a convention both in interest and in vastness, and always a city is chosen which shall have ample provision for the entertainment and care of the delegates. Washington, the nation's capital, was chosen for this year's meetings and no finer place could have been selected. The broad avenues are fine for the parades—the public buildings and Capitol are the mecca for the sight-seers, and the close proximity of Washington to the famous battlefields make it the ideal meeting place for the G. A. R. The New Jersey Central or Royal Blue Route to Washington is itself famous, and the service to Washington from New York and New England points or from Scranton or Wilkesbarre regions is superb. Fast and frequent trains are run and the country traversed is not only picturesque, but interesting as well. Low rates have been arranged for this event, which takes place October 6 to 11, and if you are interested in the encampment and intend visiting Washington, drop a postal to C. M. Burt, G. P. A., New Jersey Central, Dept. G801, New York, for a guide replete with information and pictures. c

THE Elizabeth Journal States Facts that no Plainfield Republican Can Deny.

WHY WE FIGHT.

Editor Journal—If you are opposed to factional fights in the Republican party why do you continue them? Don't you know the old adage—"Where one will not, two cannot fight?" A PEACEFUL VOTER.

The old adage is true, but it does not contain all the truth. Where one will not fight and the other will and does fight, the non-combatant gets whipped. The Journal is in the present fight, not from choice, but from necessity; not to continue the factional fight, but to end it if possible.

For years past, ever since the Republican party began to be split up into factions, the Journal has exerted all its influence, in every way it could, to harmonize the factions, and to restore conditions of peace and unity. But every year the fight has grown more and more intense, more and more bitter, more and more vindictive, and more and more perilous to the Republican party in Union county.

This year it has passed all former bounds. The faction which is led by Mr. Rankin and Mr. Fowler would not permit peace. They got what they wanted, got it unanimously, got it harmoniously at the Belvidere Republican congressional district convention, and then at once began to plot the overthrow of Senator Cross, the defeat of Edward S. Coyne for assembly, and of every man who refused to bow the knee to them. This is not a fanciful sketch, it is the fact.

They opened the fight when peace prevailed. They hid under cover for awhile, but finally declared war "to the bitter end."

The fight must go on to the bitter end, simply because Mr. Rankin and Mr. Fowler have so decided. To lie down before them and let them turn down Senator Cross and Councilman Coyne would be cowardly. Mr. Rankin will either rule or ruin. He will imperil his party, in a purblind attempt to carry out his end. Every drop of blood in his veins is fighting blood, and every drop is superheated in the effort to defeat Senator Cross.

The Journal will not stand for such work. It will not permit, if it can possibly prevent, the defeat of a man like Senator Cross, when he is entitled to a renomination, and when the great, unbiased majority of the Republicans of Union county want him re-elected.

The Journal has always stood for the Repubplican party, and not for a faction, and it is standing for the party now. Nothing in the course of its experience has been more repugnant to it than the wretched, unnecessary, unwarranted factional disturbances that have continued from year to year for eight or ten years past. Nothing has been more disgusting to the great body of Republicans in Union county.

It is no pleasure to denounce the acts of men whom the party has greatly honored, year after year; but since they have declared war, there's nothing to do but fight.

This is the situation as the Journal finds it. The primaries will be held on Monday night next, and the voters will, the Journal believes, defeat the schemes of the "rule or ruin" faction.

But that faction is full of fighters, and they are fighting as never before. The primaries will, on next Monday night, be thronged with a class of voters who care little and know less about Senator Cross. They are being coralled. There is no doubt about it.

The voters who want Senator Cross, who are opposed to "rule or ruin," who are disgusted with and are determined to end factional fights, must go to the primaries in full force, if they want to make their sentiments felt at this time. Every vote will be needed.

Do not wait until election and then scratch the ticket. That is the worst policy. Settle the matter now and for all time at the primaries, settle it in the interests of good men in politics, settle it right. And then go to the polls and vote the whole Republican ticket.

The primaries are the places at which to end fational fights. Let every Republican voter attend and do his duty. 9 18 3

THE PRESS on SENATOR CROSS

The newspapers of this State have taken a deep interest in the factional fight in Union county, particularly as it is made against the renomination of Senator Cross. They all know him, they all appreciate him, and one and all they condemn any and every effort to deprive the State of his services. The following are a few extracts, out of many, that show the sentiment of the Republicans of New Jersey, both in and out of Union county:

Camden Courier—"It is a little singular that the Plainfield people are so persistent in their opposition to Senator Cross, as he has proved to be one of the strongest men Union county has sent to the Legislature."

Newark News—"For the honor of Union county and the good of the State, it is to be hoped this unholy alliance may be overthrow. Men like Senator Cross are needed in the State senate. * * * The defeat of Senator Cross for renomination would weaken the party ticket in every county of the State."

Jersey City News (Dem.)—"The unrighteous war against Senator Cross is not surprising. * * * He is too honest, independent and fearless."

New York Press (Rep.)—"It will serve no good purpose in Union to attack the public record of Senator Cross, for no man ever served the State more conscientiously or his constituents fairer than Joseph Cross."

Newark News—"Former Governor Voorhees has literally taken to the woods. The faction in Union county which is now trying to down Senator Cross ought to follow its leader."

New York Press—"It is possible that the hole dug for Senator Cross in Union may hold Representative Fowler, for if Cross fails to get a renomination through the instrumentality of Fowler or his friends there may be such reprivals in the Fifth district as well elect the Democratic candidate for Congress."

Bound Brook Chronicle—"The whole State is interested in the nomination of the best men possible for the Senate and Assembly. * * * For this reason the Republican press throughout the State is expressing its disapproval of the efforts made to defeat Senator Cross for re-nomination."

Paterson Press—"If there is any danger of factional feeling in Union county jeopardizing the return of Judge Cross to the Senate, it is a most deplorable thing. No county ever had an abler, honester or higher tried representative."

Camden Post Telegram—"Senator Joseph Cross declares that he believes he is entitled to another term. * * * That seems to be the general impression all over the State outside of Plainfield."

Cranford Chronicle—"As the representative of Union county in the Senate of New Jersey Mr. Cross has won wide renown. * * * Let well enough alone."

Paterson Press—"An attempt is making in Union to defeat the renomination of Judge Cross as State Senator, which would be a public misfortune. * * * If the strife continues and results in the defeat of Judge Cross, it will certainly be carried into the Congressional canvass and may defeat Mr. Fowler."

Summit Record (Dem.)—"The decent people of the county and State are not now seriously concerned with the question of the United States senatorship, but they are deeply interested in the outcome of a fight to humiliate an official who has been honest, able and trustworthy. And that is about what the fight against Judge Cross resolves itself into."—Elizabeth Journal. 9 18 3

COLORED VOTERS IN CONVENTION

The Representatives of Union County Organized to Obtain Better Recognition.

HELD IN THIS CITY.

Principal Session Was Held in Reform Hall Last Night—A County Committee Appointed and Organized—Addresses by Acting Mayor Coriell and Jesse Lawson.

The colored voters of Union county held a convention in Reform Hall yesterday afternoon for the purpose of forming a permanent organization in the county to devise means looking toward the advancement of the colored citizens. The object for this is that it is claimed by the colored people that in the councils of the party with which they have been affiliated they have never had representation commensurate with the strength of their vote.

The convention was called to order at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, with a large number of delegates present from all parts of the county. Hosea C. Hewlett, of Cranford, was made temporary chairman, and Walter H. Thomas, of Elizabeth, temporary secretary. The following committees were then appointed:

On credentials — Arthur Venable, Charles Irby, David Thomson, Spencer Conway, Plainfield; Solomon Brown, C. R. H. Hawkins, Elizabeth; A. L. Hughes, Rahway; J. H. Smith, Summit. On permanent organization —W. A. Kline, Charles Irby, C. MacKoy, Spencer Conway, Plainfield; James Holt, A. P. Slater, Moris Reed, Elizabeth; A. L. Hughes, Rahway; J. R. Adams, Summit; William Wallace, Cranford. On rules — Charles Shelton, T. Holland, H. Johnson, William Jones, Plainfield; S. Butler, Rahway; Obrien Gibbs, J. H. Tyler, Elizabeth; J. H. Smith, Summit; Hosea C. Helwett, C. H. Scott, Cranford. On resolutions—Jesse Lawson, James Carter, Spencer Conway, William Dempsey, Plainfield; C. R. H. Hawkins, Walter H. Thomas, Elizabeth; A. L. Hughes, Rahway; R. B. Newton, C. H. Scott, E. C. Williams, L. G. Wallace, Cranford.

The committee on permanent organization later presented its report recommending the following officers which were elected as a whole:

President, Dr. J. C. Anderson, Plainfield; vice president, A. L. Hughes, Rahway; secretary, Walter H. Thomas, Elizabeth; assistant secretary, Fred Mitchell, Cranford; sergeant at arms, R. B. Newton, Cranford; assistant sergeant at arms, Solon Maben, Plainfield; treasurer, A. P. Slater, Elizabeth; chaplain, Rev. J. W. Mitchell, Plainfield.

This concluded the business of the afternoon session and the convention adjourned to meet again at 8 o'clock in the evening. In the meantime the Plainfield voters entertained the visiting delegates at supper in the basement of Reform Hall.

Early in the evening a brass band from Elizabeth, accompanying many delegates from the county arrived at the hall amid great enthusiasm. At this meeting the policy of the meeting was outlined, the chief thought expressed being to stand by those who would stand by the colored people. Among the invited guests were President of the Common Council B. F. Coriell, as acting Mayor; Roger F. Murray, Jesse Lawson, W. R. Codington, Daniel Galbraith, besides several of the colored pastors of the city, all of whom occupied seats on the platform. E. R. Ackerman was invited but could not attend.

The meeting was called to order by the temporary chairman, Hosea Hewlett, who made a few brief remarks. After a prayer by Rev. J. W. Mitchell, Acting-Mayor Coriell was called upon and he made a short address. He was received with loud applause. Mr. Coriell gave the colored citizens a hearty welcome to the city and praised their loyalty to the Republican party, adding that he knew they would continue to stand by the party. His remarks called forth great applause.

After the singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," the permanent chairman, Dr. Anderson, took the chair and made a few remarks. In substance he said that the main effort of the convention was to protect the voters of the county. He admitted that the colored people had been recognized, but not commensurately with the strength of their ballot. He said that his people did not ask to be sent to the Senate, neither do they want to stir up any political faction. He urged that the colored people must be recognized. He stated further that the colored voters of the county are going to bind themselves together as men and not as purchaseable votes.

At this time Jesse Lawson, as chairman of the committee on resolutions, was called upon and he read the resolutions prepared, after which they were unanimously adopted. They are as follows:

We, the colored voters of Union county, in convention assembled, do hereby renew our allegiance to the regular organization of the Republican party in our county, and we call upon every colored voter in the county to sustain the hand of the chairman of the county committee in his effort to obtain for the whole ticket, and each and every member on the ticket, the largest majority that Union county has ever given for Republican nominees.

We congratulate the people of Union county upon the fact that, after many years of struggle and endeavor, and patiently waiting, they are now represented by one of their own sons in the Senate of the United States, in the person of Hon. John Kean, of Elizabeth. That such representation gives to our county a distinction she has not heretofore had the honor to bear, and it behooves every loyal son of "Old Union" to rally around the standard of Senator Kean and bear in triumph the colors of Union county to the front.

That we feel proud of the distinction achieved and the record made in our National Congress by Hon. Chas. N. Fowler, another noble standard bearer of Union county, and we call upon all the voters of the county, irrespective of party or race, who believe that the Government should discharge its obligations with the best money the world can produce, and use honorable means at their command to have Representative Fowler re-elected to Congress by the largest majority the counties composing this district have ever given to any member of Congress.

That we thank each member of the Senate and General Assembly of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey who voted for the bill appropriating $35,000 for the Industrial School at Bordentown, New Jersey, and we commend the course of the State Senator from Union county who supported that measure.

That we heartily endorse the wise and patriotic administration of Governor Murphy of this State, and that our thanks are due to him for the appointment of Hon. Chas. N. Robinson, a member of our race, to a position of honor and emolument in the State of New Jersey.

That we recommend to Congress, the passage, at its next session, of bills, S. 5002, introduced by Senator John Kean, of New Jersey, and bill H. R. 12940 introduced by Hon. Harvey S. Irwin, of Kentucky, creating a commission to inquire into the condition of the colored people of the United States, and suggesting such measures as will tend to better their condition and bring about a more harmonious understanding between the two great races in the United States.

That we call upon Congress to pass appropriate legislation enforcing the provisions of the fourteenth amendment of the Federal Constitution cutting down representation in Congress, and in the Electoral College of the States denying the right of Elective franchise to American citizens on account of race or color or previous condition of servitude.

That we favor an amendment to the inter-state commerce law, prohibiting common carriers from separating on account of race or color.

That we commend the noble sentiments contained in the matchless speech of Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, delivered at Arlington, Virginia, on the thirtieth day of May last, condemning in unmeasured terms the practice of lynch law and mob violence now prevalent in certain sections of the United States.

That, as American citizens, we should do everything in our power to uphold the American flag on land and on sea, and that in selecting persons to hold office no discrimination should be made against American citizens on account of race or color, and we pledge ourselves to stand by the friends who stand by us in our endeavor to obtain full recognition as citizens of the United States and of the State of New Jersey and as members of the Grand Old Republican Party.

Then the work of selecting a county committee, which is to be a permanent organization, was taken up. It was the desire of Wm. Kline to have the

DENIES SMITH'S STORY OF FAIR SETTLEMENT

SanFrancisco Call Gives Out Amounts Paid to New Jersey Relatives of Mrs. Fair.

SAYS TOTAL IS $185,000.

STATEMENT MADE TO THE CALL BY CLOSE FRIEND OF THE FAIR FAMILY.

Said That Mrs. Nelson Received $125,000, and That the Brothers Received $10,000 Each—The Others Were Remembered.

There have been so many stories about the distribution of the Fair wealth and the portion received by the relatives of Mrs. Fair at New Market that the following statement concerning it from the San Francisco Call of September 13, is of particular interest.

"To set at rest the wild tales of fabulous sums having been paid to the heirs of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair by Mrs. Teresa Oelrichs and Mrs. Virginia Vanderbilt as a compromise of their claims on the estate, The Call is in a position today to announce the exact terms of the settlement. The important information was received from a close friend of Mrs. Fair's relatives and one in a position to know whereof he speaks.

"In making the terms of the compromise public it is almost needless to say that the amount received by the relatives of Mrs. Fair, deceased, is not $2,500,000, nor $1,000,000, as has been variously stated, but the comparatively paltry sum of $185,000, for which the heirs forever renounce all claim or interest they may have or ever acquire in the estates of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair.

"The settlement was effected on the basis of the provisions and terms of the last will and testament of Mrs. Charles L. Fair. To her mother, Mrs. Hannah A. Nelson, of New Market, N. J., Mrs. Fair left the sum of $2,500 to be paid to her annually during her life. Mrs. Nelson is in the neighborhood of seventy years of age, and realizing that under natural conditions she has not many years of life left to her accepted the sum of $125,000 in cash in lieu of the yearly annuity. This sum judiciously invested should net at least $6,250 yearly, and the difference between that amount and what she was to receive under her daughter's will represents her gain by the compromise, not considering the principal at all.

"William B. Smith, of New Market, N. J., and Charles Smith, of Boulder, Colo., two full brothers of Mrs. Fair, each received the sum of $10,000 from the sisters of Charles L. Fair. In their sister's will they were both remembered to that amount, so they gained nothing by the compromise.

"Frank Smith, another brother, whose present address is unknown, was bequeathed the sum of $10,000 by his sister, and that is the amount he will receive from Mrs. Oelrichs and Mrs. Vanderbilt as soon as he comes forward to claim his own.

"Abraham Nelson, a half-brother, who lives with his mother in New Market, N. J., also received the sum of $10,000 in settlement of his claims. He would have received exactly the same amount had his sister's will held good in court.

"Mrs. Elizabeth Bunnell, of Union county, New Jersey, and Mrs. Joshua Leonard, of Caldwell, N. J., both sisters of Mrs. Fair, also received the sum of $10,000 each by the compromise. They were remembered in similar amounts in their sister's will.

"The foregoing amounts total the sum of $185,000 and render absurd the dispatch from New York which quotes William B. Smith, one of Mrs. Fair's brothers, as having stated that the heirs of Mrs. Fair had received the sum of $2,500,000 by the terms of the settlement. Smith is reported to have said that his mother was given $1,100,000 and that he and his brother, Charles Smith, and Abraham Nelson had received $350,000 each. In view of the fact that William Smith received only the sum of $10,000 his assertions are absurd on their face. In the dispatch no mention is made of Mrs. Joshua Leonard and Mrs. Elizabeth Bunnell, the two sisters of Mrs. Fair, who were mentioned in the will, so his statement is far from completely accurate at best.

"When Herman Oelrichs was shown the dispatch last night by a Call reporter he positively refused to discuss it as being too ridiculous for comment."

THIEVES AT FANWOOD.

PYTHIAN GUESTS LATE BUT WELL ENTERTAINED

Members of Volunteer Lodge, of Elizabeth, Came to Visit Perseverance Lodge.

DELAYED BY TROLLEY.

BUT HAD A GOOD TIME WHEN THEY FINALLY REACHED HERE.

Programme of Music and Addresses for the Visitors—Refreshments Afterwards Served in Washington Hall—The Committee.

Despite obstacles over which they had no control—namely, the inclement weather and the tie-up of the trolley road—the members of Volunteer Lodge, No. 78, K. of P., of Elizabeth, reached this city, last evening, to pay their respects to Perseverance Lodge.

The accident to the trolley line delayed them somewhat, but immediately after their arrival in the local Castle Hall, the lodge, which had an extra large turnout, entered upon its programme. That it was thoroughly enjoyed by the visitors goes without saying as it was a typical Perseverance affair.

In detail the programme consisted of piano selections by Harvey L. Patterson, vocal solos by Vice Chancellor Martin, of Volunteer, and Thomas Muir, of Perseverance, popular medleys by the Perseverance orchestra, and addresses by Chancellor Commander William N. Runyon, of Perseverance, Past Chancellor Savidge, of Ethis Lodge, Harrison, and Past Chancellor Brucher, of Volunteer. The visitors were also accompanied by a fife and drum corps which enlivened odd moments with martial airs.

The entertainment would have been much longer but for the fact that the Elizabeth Knights had to return home by regular train instead of special trolley as they intended. Following the good and welfare portion of the evening, an adjournment was taken below stairs to Washington Hall where refreshments were served. Perseverance will return the visit by journeying to Elizabeth Wednesday night.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of Samuel J. Robinson, chairman, William J. Mattox, Harvey L. Patterson, Asa Pope and David Bowden.

Mr. Johnson has a stock farm at the track and for a long time past has practically kept the place in condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Nelson and Mrs. Hannah Nelson, of New Market, who have been in San Francisco for the past five weeks, in connection with the settlement of the Fair estate, will return home this evening. MORE RURAL FREE DELIVERY

TALK OF SERVICE FOR OAK TREE AND MOUNT PLEASANT.

Postal Inspector Has Been Here Looking Over Ground With That in View.

In line with the general improvements in the postal service which the Government is constantly making, it is more than likely that within a comparatively short time a rural delivery service will be established near Plainfield. Such a delivery would have been established long ago if the people had petitioned for it but, as no petition was forthcoming, the postal authorities have been a little slow about taking the step in this matter. Recently, an inspector having charge of this part of the postal service was in Plainfield and had a conference with Postmaster Bird.

The rural service would extend in the direction of Rahway, New Brunswick, and would take in Oak Tree, Mount Pleasant and the territory in that vicinity. There seems to be an opening for this service and as many people live in this territory no doubt it would be appreciated. At present these people do not get to the Plainfield office or other nearby offices very often and it is a difficult matter to get mail or mail letters.

In many parts of the country the rural service is working very satisfactorily and it has been of great benefit to farmers and others living at a great distance from postoffices. In this way mail is collected and distributed regularly and the people have almost as many advantages as those living in places where there is a postoffice.

Postmaster Bird favors the rural service and will undoubtedly do all in his power to secure its adoption in this vicinity. In time the service will be extended to various parts of New Jersey, until a more perfect system of collecting and delivering mail is secured.

PASSENGER INJURED.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bonnell Now Wants $5,000 Damages From the Trolley Company.

Counsellor Robert M. Clark, of this city, has been retained by Mrs. Elizabeth Bonnell, of Elizabeth, to begin action for $5,000 damages against the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company, for injuries received.

In her statement Mrs. Bonnell alleges that, as she was about to board one of the company's cars on Broad street, Elizabeth, it started suddenly and threw her to the ground. An arm was broken and it was nearly pulled from its socket, besides being lacerated. Her knee was also injured and she has never fully recovered.

The case will be argued in the Supreme Court, at Elizabeth, October 2.

Press Ad Found It.

Miss Elsie Horne, of Willow avenue, dropped a pocketbook containing $50 in bills in the postoffice, Thursday afternoon. Miss Elizabeth Marsh, of 310 Plainfield avenue, picked it up. She saw a lost ad in yesterday's Daily Press and promptly returned the pocketbook to the owner by whom she was suitably rewarded. It was the ad which found it.

—Wm. F. Richards will lead the Gospel meeting at the Rescue Mission tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

MORE WIRE WAS STOLEN

Wire Thieves Stripped 1,900 Feet of Feed Wire Off Trolley Line, Last Night.

CRIPPLED THE LINE.

The Third Time This Week That Thieves Have Operated Along the Elizabeth, Plainfield Line—Trolley Officials Are Going to Act in the Matter.

For the third time within a week, the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company, has been put to trouble and annoyance and suffered a loss of wire at the hands of thieves. Last night, 1900 feet of the feed power strand was stripped from the Rahway division, near Picton. As in the previous cases, there is no clue to the perpetrators.

The removal of this last section of wire, increased the tie-up of the road caused by the boiler explosion in Elizabeth, yesterday. This morning the local employes refused to issue transfers for any point east of the city and advised all passengers to go by railroad. The Rahway division was out of business until 8 o'clock when temporary repairs were completed.

The persistency of the thieves in stealing wire has nettled the company officials to such an extent that drastic measures will be taken at once to run them down. While the money loss amounts to considerable it does not begin to compare with the inconvenience caused the traveling public. The local police have been asked to lend their aid in bringing the men to justice.

FOR ILDERAN CUP.

Plainfielders Will Enter Invitation Tennis Tournament to be Given by Ilderan Outing Club.

The Ilderan Outing Club, of Rahway, will hold an invitation tennis tournament for the Ilderan cup on the club courts at Rahway next Saturday afternoon. This is to be the first of a series of tournaments to be held every spring and fall. The first winners of the cup will hold the trophy and defend it, playing the winners of the next tournament. Three wins will give permanent ownership.

An invitation has been sent to the Cedar Brook Tennis Club, of this city, and it is probable that Fred T. VanAuken and Vincent B. Miner will be the team selected to represent that club in the tournament. Among the other entries will be Fred G. Smith and George P. Smith, of this city, as the representatives of the Westfield Club. Herbert Richardson, of this city, and Sydney Craig, of Dunellen, will probably play for the Dunellen Tennis Club. Charlock and Thomas, the crack team from Elizabeth, which recently won the tournament of the Bergen Point Tennis Club, defeating the Smith brothers, of this city, is expected to compete.

To Form Classes.

All who wish to join piano classes of four, for sight-reading and ensemble playing, are requested to send their names to Miss Anna O. Marsh, 915 Madison avenue, or to call Tuesday afternoon, September 23, at 4 o'clock, when winter plans will be considered.

Linemen Again.

The single blow of the fire gong yesterday afternoon was caused by the Western Union linemen, who are still changing pole arms. The box circuit was broken near Plainfield avenue. Lineman Herbert Chamberlain discovered the trouble and soon had it remedied.

Rev. G. M. Shott, of Scotch Plains, will lead the Gospel meeting at the W. C. T. U., tomorrow afternoon and a feature will be violin solos by R. W. Barnes and Messrs. Speer. One of the Speer brothers is quite young and is considered a fine player.

MACADAM ROAD FROM SHORE TO TRENTON

Monmouth County Freeholders Prepare to Build the Remaining "Missing Links."

TO COMPLETE SYSTEM.

MAY ADD ANOTHER WHICH WILL COMPLETE ROAD TO BRUNSWICK.

Two Small Sections Will Complete Straight Stone Road From Long Branch to Trenton—Has Support of Commissioner Budd.

Two road matters of great importance to the residents of Monmouth county have been acted upon by the Board of Chosen Freeholders. If carried out, as it is expected they will be next year, these plans will give Monmouth county a straight macadam road all the way from the shore to Trenton.

While the prospect of a coast speedway has been indefinitely hung up for want of action by the Legislature, it is expected that the plan for a straight stone road from Long Branch to Trenton will go forward without a hitch, as it has the cordial support of State Road Commissioner Budd and the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

The action of the board related to the "missing links" in the Trenton and Long Branch road, lying between Manalapan and Freehold and between Freehold and Eatontown.

Freeholder Heyer, of Atlantic, presented a resolution authorizing the committee on the Freehold and Eatontown road to have a plan, maps and survey made, and estimate of the cost of building a macadam road. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Vanderveer, of Manalapan, for the committee on the Manalapan and Freehold road, reported that Engineer Forman had made a survey and estimate of the cost of building this road of macadam. Because of the amount of grading to be done and the cost of hauling stone the road will be an expensive one.

The engineer had laid out the road in two sections. The first section, extending from Manalapan to Milhurst, is 2.95 miles in length and the estimated cost will be $21,633.

The second section, extending from Milhurst to West Main street, Freehold, is 3.38 miles in length, and its estimated cost is $25,861.75. The total length of the entire road is 6.30 miles. The board adopted a resolution presented by Mr. Vanderveer, referring the maps, etc., to the State road commissioner for his approval.

Freeholder Closo, of Matawan, presented an application from two-thirds of the property owners along the road between Matawan and the Middlesex county line, connecting with the stone road to Old Bridge, asking that it be macadamized. This is another "missing link" less than a mile in length, and when built it will give a continuous stone road all the way through from New Brunswick and Old Bridge to Matawan station.

Nasal Catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. A remedy for Nasal Catarrh which is drying or exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. Cream Balm is recognized as a specific. A cold in the head immediately disappears when Cream Balm is used, Ely Bothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

A. A. CLARK TALKS ON COUNTY BONDING

Explains to Somerset Messenger, Has Remarks Before Board of Freeholders.

AID OF GOOD ROADS.

WHAT HE BELIEVES BUILDING OF STONE ROADS WOULD MEAN.

Thinks the Increase in Valuations Would More Than Meet the Increase in Taxation—About the New County Buildings.

Now that North Plainfield has decided to remain in Somerset county, everybody in the borough is directly interested in this project to bond that county for good roads. In the current issue of the Somerset Messenger (Democratic) there is a lengthy interview with Hon. A. A. Clark on the subject. As Mr. Clark is one of the most prominent Democrats of Somerset county, his utterances will naturally command attention and will be of interest to every resident of the county.

The questions of the Messenger representative and the answers of Mr. Clark are herewith given:

Q.—Did you speak in favor of bonding the county in $500,000 for the purpose of building stone roads?

A.—That is a misapprehension. I have several times appeared before the Board of Freeholders, on behalf of the Bar Association, to urge the Freeholders to reindex the public records. Owing to the expense incident thereto, the Freeholders seemed somewhat reluctant to do it, and I have urged that the title to our lands was of so great importance that the Board of Freeholders could hardly afford to refuse to give us the greatest protection, and it was absolutely essential that the expense should be incurred. I also at the same time, in behalf of the Bar Association, urged the building of new county buildings, and in one instance I was authorized, in behalf of one of my clients, to make a donation of $1,000 for that purpose, and so told the board, and at the last meeting of the board, when asked by the Freeholders to give my views in relation to building more stone roads, I said I was in favor of a liberal expenditure of money for public improvements, whereby the taxable ratables of the county would be materially increased; and when my attention was called to three miles of road in Bernards township, which, if macadamized, would make a complete macadam road from Jersey City through the northern part of the State, running along lands which had been purchased by wealthy people who are going to make large improvements upon them, I said it would pay the county to expend money in making such stone road.

One of the Freeholders then asked me what I would do about the "other road" that was applied for through Liberty Corner. I replied that I would build that also, provided it appeared that the expenditure was a wise one, whereby it would appreciably promote an increase in valuation of taxable property. I called the attention of the board to the building of the Mine Brook road; the effect it had upon the taxable ratables showing that where formerly property had been taxed for a small sum, now it had increased fivefold in several instances; and I then remarked that it was a mistaken notion to refuse improvements in localities where the results would warrant the expenditure.

I said, supposing that we would be so extravagant as to bond the county for $500,000 at three and one-half per cent. interest, what would be the rate of taxation? It can be demonstrated to a practical certainty that three years hence our rate of taxation would not be materially increased, provided there was an exercise of sound discretion in the expenditure of the moneys toward public improvements. My reasoning was this: That wherever money was expended which would prove to be an increase in the valuation of property to any material degree, there the taxes received therefrom would be adequate to meet the increase in taxation, so that the rate of taxation would not be materially advanced in consequence of the increase of valuation; and my firm conviction is that I am right in this proposition.

Q.—Do you think that improvement of the roads in that way would be sufficient to increase the assessable valuation of property along which the improved roads run?

A.—As I said to the Board of Freeholders, they would be importuned to build roads everywhere, and they would require "faces of flint" to refuse applications where, in the exercise of a sound discretion, it was not wise to build. I have in mind such improvements as Mr. Duke is making in Hillsborough township, where now lands by reason of them are more valuable every day and increase in valuation so that the taxable rates will not be increased proportionatley at all. Land in Bedminster, Hillsborough and in Warren the same way, and I thoroughly believe that all public thoroughfares improved by stone roads, along which is property advantageously located to railroads, large towns, etc., would conduce to make such property much more desirable to purchasers, and people from abroad would come here and stay and make great improvements on their properties by expending large amounts of money, thus increasing valuations, so that the tax rate would be no higher, but the taxable ratables would be very materially advanced.

I am not in favor of, nor have I ever advised, the wholesale building of roads anywhere and everywhere simply because they are asked for, and, as I before remarked, the exercise of a sound discretion will be required; and I then said also that if these improvements could be made on these lines a bonded indebtedness was not a thing to be frightened at.

Q.—Have any other nearby counties tried the experiment of bonding to improve the roads?

A.—Union and Morris, as I understand, and they are both thrifty and advancing counties, and it is no detriment to outsiders to settling there; on the contrary, they have an inducement by reason of the improvements which they have created through the bonded indebtedness.

People who come here and spend money with a liberal hand must be met with a degree of liberality, if we expect to hold them and induce their friends to come and join them.

It is a mistaken notion to think that we must pay as we go for the purpose of keeping apace with the times. The old order of things is changed, and there is no reason why we should not go on and make our public improvements so that we have the benefit of the advantages at once, giving us a degree of thrift and fruitfulness which is manifested in other localities having no better advantages than we, when it can be demonstrated that our taxes will not be materially advanced thereby.

Supposing that we bonded for $500,000 at 3½ per cent. interest, that would be $17,500 a year, and supposing we raised $30,000 a year for the purpose of paying this interest and creating a sinking fund of $12,500, in 20 years that debt would be very largely diminished, and if we can bring in millions of property here, which will help to pay the taxes, there will be no increase in the percentage of taxation. That is the kind of expenditure I am in favor of, and I am in favor of bonding the county for producing just such results.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

It would seem as though Union county people, with the Kean-Fowler feud in full swing, ought to have enough excitement, but now comes the report that two of her editors are about to fight a duel. If they really do meet on the field of honor, the old question as to whether the pen is mightier than the sword ought to be settled, unless the belligerents should make pistols their choice of weapons. According to the reports of the cause of the expected sanguinary meeting, it appears that Editor John A. Potter, of the Cranford Chronicle, in referring to an upset from a canoe which befell his "esteemed contemporary," Editor James E. Warner, of the Cranford Citizen, declared the accident was due to the fact that Warner's centre of gravity was located near the rim of his hat. Of course Mr. Warner feels that he is entitled to an apology, but as it is not forthcoming, it is said that his friends have been unable to persuade him not to send a challenge to his traducer to meet him by the light of the moon on the banks of the Rahway river, there to settle forever the gravity question. If the editors will invite their constituents to witness the battle, it will be a paying investment. With an opportunity of seeing a duel, there is little doubt but that all the people in the contiguous territory would suddenly discover that "now is the time to subscribe" to either The Chronicle or The Citizen. The gross receipts from this source might be pooled and an arrangement made to give the winner of the bout seventy-five per cent. of the purse.—Newark News.

The defeat of the proposition to annex the borough of North Plainfield to Union county is almost, if not quite, a sure indication that the Greater Plainfield scheme cannot be carried out for some time to come. It is true that the advocates of the consolidation of the two municipalities declared that there is still hope for the success of the movement, but the grounds for their asserted faith, considering the decisive majority given against annexation by North Plainfield voters, are not easily discoverable. There is no doubt that the vote on annexation would be duplicated should the question of consolidation be submitted to the North Plainfield people. Under these circumstances it would be certainly futile to hold another election this year. It is also a question as to the advisability of creating a city whose boundaries would extend over a portion of two counties. If Plainfield and North Plainfield are ever to consolidate, as they ought to, they should be in the same county in order to avoid serious complications.

A number of causes contributed to the defeat of the annexation plan, but chief among them was the attitude of State Senator Reed, who stood accused of doubledealing in the matter of securing the needed legislation, and who was charged with breaking solemn pledges made to his colleague from Somerset and to influential constituents. The Senator has never successfully refuted these allegations, and his advocacy of a Greater Plainfield was consequently more of a detriment to the cause of annexation than it was a help.

There is no good reason, outside of politics, why the borough and the city should not consolidate. They are naturally one community. The time must come when the people of both places will demand that their separate government shall cease. When that times comes, it would be well to insist that trickry politicians be sent to the rear and kept there until the taxpayers have settled the question on its merits.—Newark News.

Some months ago the Society for Political Inquiry of Morristown offered a prize for the best article to be published in a Morris county newspaper depicting the qualities that should be demanded in a candidate for sheriff. If Morris county ever gets such a sheriff as was described in the articles submitted, the people of that county will have no need to long for the advent of the millennium.

Now the society has offered another prize, this time for the best newspaper article on "The Fowler-Flanagan Canvass of 1902 in the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey." The article, it is specified, "must not be framed in the interest of either candidate, but must be an impartial presentation of both sides of the case, a judicial setting forth of the arguments pro and con, such as will be best suited to aid an unprejudiced citizen in conscientiously deciding for which candidate he shall cast his ballot." In this instance the scope of the contest is widened inasmuch as the essays may be published in any newspaper printed in the Fifth District or in a Newark or New York newspaper widely read in the three counties of Union, Morris and Warren. Doubtless it did not occur to the zealous gentlemen offering the prize that metropolitan newspapers might not have the space to spare political essayists anxious to earn the $25 reward.

The object of the society is to secure more intelligent political action on the part of voters, a most praiseworthy purpose. It is doubtful, however, if the method pursued will show tangible results. It is a safe proposition that, in making their nominations for sheriff, neither party in Morris county will be influenced in the slightest degree by the essay which won the prize, and it is equally safe to predict that neither candidate will come within 100 miles of possessing the qualifications therein set forth, unless, indeed, the Democrats should decide to nominate Rev. Norman Fox, president of the society, in the hope of attracting enough independent votes to defeat the Republican nominee.

As to the Fowler-Flanagan contest, that will not be decided upon the qualifications of the candidates, but upon the opinions held by the voters upon national issues, and such opinions will be but little influenced by newspaper essays. The national policies of the parties represented by the two men, and not the men themselves, will decide the contest.—Newark News.

A GREAT WORK DONE BY Y. M. C. A. CLASSES

Thousands of Men Profit by the Courses of the Evening Schools at Y. M. C. A.'s.

WIDE LINE OF WORK.

THIS IS THE MONTH WHEN THE Y. M. C. A. CLASSES WILL OPEN.

Great Variety of Work Being Done All Through the Country—Have Prepared Men for Colleges and Trained for All Kinds of Work.

The Y. M. C. A.'s of the country are this month planning the opening of the evening schools.

Three hundred and forty associations enrolled 29,000 men last year and expect to make the number of students 35,000 this year. These men range from fourteen years of age to sixty, and eighty per cent. of them are employed during the day.

Some seventy-five different branches are taught, nearly half of which are commercial. Twenty-five per cent. of the students are mechanics, 25 per cent. in the general trades, and 23 per cent. clerks. The classes in civics and English branches enroll fully 75 per cent. of foreign-born young men.

Special courses are given, teaching the English language and the principles of American citizenship to these men from other nations. Increased emphasis is given to this department by leading associations this year.

Graduates from the law departments of the Boston, Cincinnati and San Francisco associations stood among the highest in the State bar examinations in their States. San Francisco and other associations have made classes in steam engineering leading features. The Electrical Club in Chicago has nearly $3,000 worth of the latest demonstrating apparatus for electrical study in its club rooms.

Students among the firemen at Minneapolis, where all the firemen are registered in the evening classes for "First Aid to the Injured," resuscitated the assistant fire chief, who was asphyxiated by wood alcohol fumes at a recent fire.

Classes are being held by the Cleveland association in the great machine shops after working hours, and in the associations of Connecticut, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania and other states, where manufacturing interests are large, classes in industrial science and commercial subjects are largely attended by the shop employes of all kinds.

The fact that 09 per cent. of the boys at fourteen are out of school and at work, is leading the association to give special attention to working boys. Almost the entire Western Union messenger force in Omaha is enrolled in the Y. M. C. A. classes and gymnasiums.

At Pittston, Pa., mining clases are natural features. Four of the students passed the State examination for the miners' foreman certificate, and two of them ranked highest in the mining district. Colorado, California, Idaho and other associations have various kinds of classes in practical mining.

Brockton, Mass., conducts classes for men engaged in the shoe trade. The civil service courses in the associations of Atlanta, Boston, New York, Cambridge, Chicago, San Francisco and other points have enabled men to secure positions in the railway mail, postoffice, netting them $10,000 per year, and of fifty-five appointed to the postoffice department from New England alone, fifteen associations trained men. The man who took first prize in the examinations were trained in the association classes.

One-fourth of the enrollment in the evening classes of the associations are studying industrial, scientific and technical subjects. These men are largely employed as apprentices, helpers, machinists and wood and iron workers in manufacturing and industrial plants.

The soldiers at Porto Rico and Manila and other points are studying under the direction of the association for commissions in the army, and many have passed and received their badges of honor.

A large number of students have been prepared for college in the association schools, and enter this fall; but the bulk of the work is in the line of supplementary education, technical training and fitting for the business of earning a livelihood and advancement in the positions in which the young men are occupied. The current number of "Association Men," the international Y. M. C. A. paper, devotes twenty-four pages to a review of the educational department of the Y. M. C A. work.

KILLED IN WILD PANIC

Fearful Accident In a Negro Convention Hall.

SIXTY-FIVE DEAD; SCORES INJURED

Supposed Cry of "Fire" Stampedes Gathering of Colored People at Birmingham, Ala., With Terrible Results.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 20.—In an awful crush of humanity caused by a stampede in the Shiloh Colored Baptist church, at the corner of Avenue G and Eighteenth street, sixty-five persons were killed and as many more seriously injured.

The disaster occurred at 9 o'clock p. m., just as Booker T. Washington had concluded his address to the national convention of colored Baptists, and for three hours the scenes around the church were indescribable. Dead bodies were strewn in every direction, and the ambulance service of the city was utterly unable to move them until after 1 o'clock a. m. The injured were attended to first, and meanwhile dozens of dead bodies were arranged in rows on the ground outside the house of worship awaiting removal to the various undertaking establishments, while more than a score were laid out on the benches inside.

Shiloh church is the largest house of worship for negroes in Birmingham, and the pastor says there were at least 2,000 persons in the edifice when the stampede began. Instructions had been issued to allow no one else to enter after the building had been filled, but the negroes forced their way inside the church and were standing in every aisle, when a cry of "Fight! Fight!" was mistaken for "Fire!" and a deadly scramble began to get out. The entrance to the church was literally packed, and the negroes were trampled to death in their struggle to escape.

Booker Washington had just concluded his address when Judge Billou, a negro lawyer from Baltimore, engaged in a dispute with the choir leader concerning an unoccupied seat. It is said a blow was struck. Some one in the choir cried, "They're fighting!" Mistaking the word "fighting" for "fire," the congregation rose en masse and started for the door.

One of the ministers quickly mounted the rostrum and admonished the people to keep quiet. He repeated the word "quiet" several times and motioned to his hearers to be seated. The excited congregation mistook the word "quiet" for a second alarm of fire and again rushed for the door. Men and women crawled over benches and fought their way into the aisles, and those who had fallen were trampled upon like cattle.

The ministers tried again to stop the stampede, but no power on earth could stay the struggling, fighting mass of humanity.

The screams of the women and children added to the horror of the scene. Through mere fright many persons fainted and as they fell to the floor were crushed to death.

A Double Railway Accident.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 20.—Two freight trains collided head on on a heavy grade at the eastern end of the Northern Pacific railroad tunnel through the Cascade mountains. H. S. Shaffer was killed, and Engineer A. J. Adams and Brakeman W. Oswald of Tacoma were seriously injured. The blocking of the track necessitated sending passenger trains over what is known as the "Palmer cutoff." On this line a passenger train which had stopped for water was crashed into by a following passenger train which came down the grade at high speed. The baggage and mail cars of the first train were telescoped, and Mail Clerks H. L. Moore and F. E. Chase and Express Messenger Charles Sauren were seriously hurt.

Fatal Peanut Roaster Explosion.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 20.—By an explosion of a gasoline peanut roaster which was in operation on the Atlantic street side of Charles H. Diggs' confectionary store Miss Bessie McGrath of Phœbus, Va., was instantly killed, while Mrs. Mary A. Palmer of Lawrenceville, Va., was injured so badly that no hope of her recovery is entertained. The wife of C. Belmecken, who operated the peanut stand, was cut about the head, and Mrs. Lavinia Raby, wife of a machinist, was injured, but not seriously.

Thieves Rob a Cornerstone.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 20.—Sunday last President Diaz laid the cornerstone of the new general post office building in this city and deposited therein a metal box containing specimens of American gold, silver and bronze coinage, photographs and plans of the edifice as well as copies of the daily papers published here. A few nights later thieves opened the cornerstone and stole the metal box, with its contents.

Convention at Jerusalem.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—It was definitely decided at the last session of the central executive committee of the International Sunday school convention to hold the next world's convention in Jerusalem during the month of April, 1904. This decision is subject to the approval of the British wing of the organization.

High Premium For Gold.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 20.—The high gold premium, which ranges around 142 and 143 for New York exchange, makes bankers and business men feel that silver has gone down to another low market.

COAL STRIKE TO END

Announcement of Settlement Next Week.

REPORT MADE ON GOOD AUTHORITY

Hazleton Lawyer Proposes a Bill to Appoint a Receiver For the Coal Companies—The State Constitution Violated.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 20.—Information has reached here through a private source that the end of the coal strike is in sight.

The report is to the effect that one of the largest firms whose representatives in New York have been discussing the situation for some time had decided upon a settlement and that an official announcement would be made early next week.

The information seems to have considerable foundation and came as an answer to inquiries sent to New York parties regarding the filling of large orders for coal in this city, intimating that the orders would probably be filled sooner than was expected because of the encouraging prospects of an early settlement.

Receivership For Coal Companies.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—Daniel J. McCarthy, a lawyer of Hazleton, Pa., visited Senator Quay at Republican state headquarters here and submitted to the senator a draft of a bill making provision for the appointment of a receiver to assume control of the anthracite coal mines under certain contingencies. The measure authorizes the legislature to appoint a receiver for the coal companies on the ground that the corporations have violated the state constitution, which provides, in article 16, section 3, that charters and franchises of incorporated companies may be revoked if the business of the corporations is so conducted as to infringe on the rights of individuals or the public welfare.

Foreign Coal Arrives.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The first consignment of Welsh anthracite coal which large dealers and consumers have found it necessary to import on account of the coal miners' strike in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania reached this port on board the British steamer Devonshire, which left Swansea, Wales, on Sept. 5. A second consignment of Welsh anthracite is expected to arrive here in a few days on the British steamer Glencoe, which left Swansea four days after the Devonshire sailed. These two shipments consist of about 8,000 tons. It is reported that orders have been placed in Wales for hundreds of thousands of tons of anthracite.

Washery Dam Dynamited.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 20.—A dam on Solomons creek, near here, from which the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company obtained water to operate its Maffet washery, has been blown up by dynamite. The Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company intended to start the washery, but owing to the lack of water the machinery could not be put in operation. Striking miners are accused of blowing up the dam.

Old Time Enemy Veterans' Guest.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Sept. 20.—A reunion of the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh regiment, New York volunteers, organized here in 1862, was held to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the mustering of the regiment into service. At Gettysburg the regiment pressed its line 200 feet further than any other command into the southern lines and suffered a greater loss than any other regiment. Colonel Robert H. Bostwick, formerly of South Carolina, whose forces in the engagement at Honey Hill were destroyed by this regiment, now lives in Hamilton and was the guest of his one time opponents.

Three Killed at a Crossing.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 20.—The Montreal express over the Grand Trunk railroad bound toward Portland killed three people at the crossing at West Pownal. The victims were Abel Bowie, aged seventy-one; his sister, Rebecca Bowie, aged sixty-four, and Addie Bowie, his daughter, aged twenty-seven. The three were driving from Durham to North Pownal, where they had been visiting, with a single horse and buggy. The train struck the team at the crossing and completely demolished it.

Island Sale Assured.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 20.—The results of the elections of members to the landsthing, the upper house of the rigsdag, as officially given out assure the ultimate sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States. The sale of the islands is now absolutely certain, and the matter will be settled next October or at the latest in November. The landsthing will be composed of thirty-seven members of the ministerial party as against twenty-nine of the opposition.

Big Fire In Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 20.—The barbed wire department of the Oliver plant of the American Steel and Wire company, on the south side, has been totally destroyed by fire. Loss about $150,000. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp, which in turn caused the explosion of a barrel of oil in the oil-room, and in a very short time the entire building was in flames.

Gold Mining Plant Burned.

HELENA, Mon., Sept. 20.—The stamp mill and cyanide plant of the Columbian Gold Mining company at York has been burned. The loss is $50,000. The plant was owned by Michigan people.

THE FACTIONAL FIGHT.

Despite the fact that much pressure has been brought to bear by both sides, The Daily Press has taken no part in the factional fued which is now shaking the Republican party in Union county to its very foundation. As far as the disinterested observer can see, it is a fight for control of the "Grand Old Party" in Union by two powerful leaders. There are, however, local candidates on the tickets of both factions. Both of them are tried public servants, men thoroughly respected in the community in which they live. If Counciman B. Frank Coriell is nominated for the shrievalty and elected in the election which follows, there is not the slightest doubt that he will fill the position well and with credit to himself and the city he represents. If City Judge William N. Runyon wins in the fight and is subseqently elected, Union county may rest satisfied that it will be well represented in the Upper House of the State Legislature.

As far as the public at large is concerned, it does not make any difference which faction wins. In either case a good man is going to win and a good man is going down to defeat. From a political point of view, however, the fight appears to be a very important one and neither side is sparing any effort or funds to win out in the contest. The fight is not confined to any one part of the county, it is being waged in every city, borough and township which goes to make up the county of Union.

The claim has been made by the Fowler advocates that they will send a solid delegation from Plainfield in favor of Judge Runyon. This is disputed by the Kean faction which declares that one and possibly two wards will be sent to support Councilman Coriell's candidacy for sheriff. At the prresent day it is impossible to say which will win out here. Both sides are working hard and contests have quietly developed not only in the Second and Third wards but in the First and Fourth as well. It's a hot fight which will not be decided until the delegates are elected at the primaries Monday night.

Mayor Smalley has announced that he is going to see that the borough ordinances are enforced. Because the saloon element happened to be the deciding factor in the election that is past is no reason why it should assume that it has the borough in its control. Some of the strongest of the "antis" are likely to be just as strongly against any such state of things as is Mayor Smalley. Now that it is decided that the borough is going to stay where it is and consolidation is delayed for a time, it behooves the borough officials to make that municipality just as attractive as they can. And there is no way that will appeal to the public more than in keeping the disorderly elements under strict control. If there are places where disorder persists in happening, then let appeal be made to the courts to revoke the licenses.

All the colleges are opening for the fall term and there is a general exodus of young people to attend them. As usual, Plainfield has a goodly representation in the principal institutions of learning.

Parks, had charge of the services, which were private, only the immediate family and a few very intimate friends being present. Mr. Shott took for his text, "Lord let me know the number of my days, and the measure thereof, that I may know how frail I am." Several handsome pieces of flowers spoke words of comfort and sympathy from sympathizing friends. During the services Elmer E. Runyon sang "Nearer My God to Thee." Interment was made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery.

FOR JUDGE RUNYON.

E. E. Jackson Talks to Colored Voters of Plainfield.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Please allow me to say to my people that the time has come for us to unite as citizens who have the privilege to exercise the right of franchise to exercise it rightly. I believe in casting our vote for the best man, I don't believe in factions, and as a citizen I find no need for them.

It is justice to the negro and his own city to concentrate his forces in the support of his own city and citizen. I ask Can any colored voter but he who is looking for fishes and loaves conscienciously vote against Judge Runyon? Would they allow a man from any other city to be exalted by them over one who lives at their door, equally as good, morally and intellectually? No, they will not, Judge Runyon has been exalted by the citizens of Plainfield on his own merits, as a Christian, and a judge; the negro claimed that such a man they needed, and such a man they have, and on Monday, notwithstanding the big demontrations and financial layout, we shall prove our loyalty to our city, and not allow this son of honor and fame to be defeated. I am expressing the sentiments of the better thinking element of my race.

E. E. Jackson.

doesn't make prosperity if the expenses are greater. Did you ever figure out what sickness costs you per year; doctors' bills, medicine bills, ect., ect., to say nothing of the suffering. Rheumatism strikes like a knife in the back if left alone; with Perry Davis' Painkiller, the terrors of this disease are headed off. Painkiller relieves muscular cramps, lumbago, neuralgia and sciatica. 25 and 50c. bottles.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

There is a superior finish about the laundry turned out by Meissner, of Watchung avenue. It is all handwork and this preserves the linen and saves the wearer money.

If you want to spend your fall and winter evenings profitably and at the same time enjoy yourself, purchase one of the excellent makes of pianos sold by G. H. Kenyon, of West Front street.

F. H. Firstbrook, the Liberty street grocer, has a well-earned reputation for fair dealing and his goods are always first-class. For the best values you make no mistake in trading at this store.

When you buy your goods at Peck's you know that they are the best to be had and there is such a peculiar satisfaction in wearing these goods that it is easy to see why Peck has such a large trade.

J. R. Blair, of Park avenue, is now prepared with a large and select stock of fall and winter goods, to serve his patrons. He has received the fall styles in men's hats, neckties, shirts, ect., and he invites inspection.

The Belleview Avenue Nusery makes a specialty of supplying potted plants for weddings and receptions and artistic designs of flowers for funerals. Competent men are also provided to do decorating work.

For first-class groceries at reasonable prices go to W. W. Dunn's store, the Park grocer, corner of Lincoln place and Duer street. An attractive feature these days is the choice assortment of fruit received fresh every day.

The well-appointed drug store conducted by E. S. F. Randolph, corner of North and Watchung avenues, is the centre of attraction for people who want pure drugs and medicines. He also keeps a full line of toilet articles.

Don't delay having those pictures framed for fear it may cost too much. The Plainfield Art Store in the Y. M. C. A. building will astonish you with the lowness of its prices. Artists will also find just what they need at this store.

Peaches are beginning to get scarce but at T. L. Walsh's North avenue market there is some decided bargains to be had. If you contemplate canning now is the time to make your selections. A few more days and the opportunity will be lost.

The latest decree in fashion can be found at Woodhull & Martin's store on West Front street, and there is a very large stock to select from. New fall and winter goods are constantly arriving and an early inspection in every department will pay you at this time.

Get 'em at Rogers' market. What? Why, the most delicious oysters you ever ate. They are coming in regularly now and will be delivered at your door for the asking. If you haven't time to visit the store 'phone your orders for anything in the seafood line.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. W. Randolph.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Great Activity In All Lines—Abnormal Situation In Steel.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Domestic trade continues active, high rates for money having thus far failed to check industrial operations or unsettle confidence. Stringency is considered only temporary and chiefly of importance to speculators, while large imports of gold promise relief. Crops are making encouraging progress despite some injury from frost. Labor disputes are few, the anthracite coal strike being the only one that retards progress, and each week shows some increase in output. Fall distribution of merchandise has begun unusually early, while the volume of orders already placed indicates much the heaviest aggregate on record.

Relief comes slowly to consumers of coke, although each week brings a new high record of output. Stocks are becoming burdensome in the Connellsville yards, but facilities for transportation show little improvement despite numerous promises that coke shall have precedent over other freight. The worst effect is the increasing importation of pig iron, Great Britain alone sending 70,000 tons during August, while arrangements are now being made for remote deliveries. Steel is also coming in freely, German producers accepting orders at gradually advancing quotations.

Cotton exports during the crop year ending Aug. 31 were 75,862 bales more than in the preceding year, but owing to the lower price there was a decrease of over $33,500,000 in value.

Reports of frost caused a sharp rise in corn quotations.

Wheat declined on account of heavy western receipts.

Failures for the week numbered 199 in the United States against 157 last year and 25 in Canada compared with 26 a year ago.

A PARTIAL OPENING.

Hudson Valley Railway Operates Some Cars.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The Hudson Valley Railway company yesterday succeeded in operating trolley cars on the Stillwater division and between Fort Edward, Glens Falls and Warrensburg, but passenger traffic was at a standstill on the balance of the 1,000 mile system. The new nonunion men were protected by Companies L of Saratoga, K of Glens Falls and I of White Hall, commanded by Captains Walbridge, Mott and Dennis, who are on duty by orders from Sheriffs Carpenter of Saratoga county, Gill of Warren county and Austin of Washington county.

There were no riotous demonstrations. Lieutenant Colonel James J. Lester of Saratoga, in command of the Second regiment, is acting in an advisory capacity to the sheriffs, with whom he is in close touch by both telephone and telegraph. His headquarters are at the armory here.

Spencer Flew Over London.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Stanley Spencer, a well known English aeronaut, has successfully accomplished a remarkable flight over London in an airship of his own invention. It is estimated that his ship traveled nearly thirty miles. From observations of those on the ground Spencer seemed to have complete control of his vessel. He started from the Crystal palace at a quarter after 4 o'clock in the afternoon and descended three hours later near Harrow.

Cape Rebels Disfranchised.

CAPE TOWN, Sept. 20.—A parliamentary return just issued shows that 3,437 rebels who surrendered under the peace proclamation have been disfranchised for life.

DRESSY GOWNS.

Veiling Still Worn—Princess Robes. Evening Sleeves.

Veiling gowns will continue to be worn this winter. They are beginning to be combined with contrasting shades in linings—blue over bright green, fawn over pale blue and black over dull red. The shades must be correctly chosen, however, in order to preserve the smart appearance so necessary.

Princess gowns are not worn so much as formerly, but they are still seen and will always be accounted fashionable. There is no style more becoming to a woman with a good figure or more trying to one who has a bad one. Very smart are those made of all over lace, rather heavy in texture and mounted over white silk or chiffon.

The sleeves of evening gowns are quite short, in some cases not reaching more than half way between the shoulder and the elbow. They are often made of a mere transparency of tulle caught here and there with jeweled ornaments.

A smart rose colored veiling dress is here shown. It is trimmed with appliques of ecru lace. The waist has a wide bertha tucked at the neck and allowed to flare into points. The sleeves consist of a full puff set into a tight undersleeve of lace. The skirt is composed of three flounces edged with the applique. The smart hat worn with this is of pale yellow satin straw trimmed with rose foulard.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FALL MILLINERY.

Odd Effects Will Be Fashionable During the Next Few Months.

The new fall millinery can be classified as eccentric. Irregular brims most of them upturned; low flat crowns and flat trimmings distinguish the hats which are being shown at present. Three shapes are popular—the French chapeau canotier, with its brim turned up all the way around, the turban and the rolling shape turned up at one side and worn tilted.

For morning and, in fact, ordinary wear the rough felt hat leads. This comes in a soft, fleecy white, trimmed with rosettes of white satin ribbon in pale blue and a certain shade of pale rose. Gray does not seem such a favorite as formerly, but black felt trimmed with scarlet are quite the thing. Whole birds are sometimes laid flat on the crowns of the hats, and the latest craze is a black rooster thus placed. It has a most lifelike head with glittering glass eyes, and a cock of red flannel.

Blue and the new shade of green combine beautifully on the felt hat, and a pretty model in this striking combination is shown in the cut.

It is made of strips of satin and braid woven together, the shade being a deep blue. It is trimmed with two green quills. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Doubly a Blessing.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Oh, I should think not, indeed," said Miss Elizabeth. "I should think not!"

"But you put them away, Elizabeth. You hid them, did you not?"

"Yes, before we left so—unpleasantly, you know, I took them from David's drawer and——"

"I remember what you said, Elizabeth. You said: 'Now Evelyn, David has turned us out. He may marry again. We do not know what he may do, and I intend to hide these jewels, which were left to all four of us. You and I have as much interest and as much right in them as David has, since Eugene is dead, and, as we represent a two-thirds share, I shall put them where he cannot get them without consulting us.'"

"And so I——" broke in Miss Elizabeth. "Well, I never told you where, but I remember, though it was three years ago, as if it were yesterday, and I can go right to the spot this minute."

"Perhaps he's changed the place," said I.

"He'd never find it," said Miss Elizabeth.

"And if he could I never will believe," said Miss Evelyn, "that David Darlington was the sort of man to defraud his sisters. You are prejudiced, Elizabeth. The Catholics I have known were the best of Christians. Margot must have heard wrong."

"I don't believe she's heard wrong," said I. "She said that he told her, I mean the Sister, that the thing he was thinking of was in the house somewhere, and that when he got well enough he would——"

"Told whom?"

"The Sister of Charity. This, in fact, was only two or three days ago—the last time that I was up there—Margot told me then, and she said the Sister replied, 'Well, there! there! Don't bother! If you can tell me where you think it is, I could look for you.'"

"What did she look like?"

"I never saw her but they told me, those that saw her, that she had a pale face and dark hair; her hair was smoothed back in bands under the cap of her order. Then your brother had a sinking spell, and the sister called the priest. Margot listened a good deal, and whenever she could creep up the stairs unknown to any of them she stood as long as she could at that back door. Once, when she heard the sister go out of the room and down the stairs, she opened the back door and came in softly. She went up quickly to the bed and said, 'Oh, Master David, Master David, my little David! What are they doing to ye?' She said he looked up with the frightened eyes of a child. 'They've got ye under their dominion. Listen to yer old Margot, who never told ye wrong. Send for the ladies, Master David, sir. Send for the ladies, they'll——'

"And then in came the priest. He took her by the arm, she said, with a grip of iron, and put her out of the back door and bolted it. The next time she listened was on the night that he died. She said that she heard the Sister speaking very sternly to him, somewhat in this way: 'You will tell me before I leave this room where those jewels are.'

"'Oh! oh! he cried out, how you have changed! How you have changed! Oh! oh! I am afraid! I am afraid!' Margot! Margot!'

"'You need not call upon Margot,' said the Sister. 'Are you going to keep your promise or not?'

"'Oh, yes! yes!' he said. 'Oh, yes! yes! They are here in this room. I will tell you to-morrow.'"

"Indeed, they were not," sobbed Miss Elizabeth through her tears. "Poor David, poor, poor David! But go on, Sophronia."

"'In this room?' said she—'you swear it?'

"'Yes, yes. So soon as I am able to——'

"And then Margot heard steps coming towards the door, and she fled down the stairs.

"That was a dreadful night. She heard the doctor and the priest talking together in the parlor in low tones, and when she tried to listen they closed the door and moved across the room. She heard a great deal of movement in the sick-chamber, much walking across the floor and opening of drawers, but towards morning all was quiet and she fell asleep. When she awoke it was broad daylight. The kitchen clock had stopped at twenty minutes to five. There was not a sound in the house. At last the stillness frightened her. She crept up to the back door; it was bolted on the inside. She listened; there was no sound. Then patient and nurse must both be asleep. She ran down the stairs, and, coming out into the front hall, she walked haltingly, feeling her way, as it were, for she had been so often turned back, poor thing! But no one turned her back that day. She saw not a soul. She looked into the parlor; no one was there. She glanced in at the dining-room; no one was there—only Julia laying the cloth for Father Darby's and the doctor's breakfast. She then began to mount the stairs, listening, listening. She stopped a moment and leaned over the balustrade.

"'Julia,' she called, 'Julia, where are they all?'

"'Ain't up yet,' said Julia, and went on setting her table.

"'It must be late,' said Margot. 'My clock has stopped.'

"'I guess it's dretful late,' said Julia, and yawned. Just at that moment Margot heard wheels and she ran down the stairs again and to the front door. She found it unbolted and unlocked. She opened the great hall-door, and found that it was the butcher, driving up the avenue. He came slowly along the drive, and turned off to go round to the kitchen. Margot waved her hand to him and stopped him. He looked surprised. She ran down the front steps and up to the cart. All at once, when she got to where Allibone stood, she burst out crying.

"'What's the matter with the woman?' exclaimed Allibone.

"'I don't know,' said Margot, 'but I'm that glad to see you. There's something queer. Will you come into the house?'

"'Why, I'm just going round to—'

"'No,' said Margot. 'Please come in with me. There's something wrong. I smell it in the air.'

"'What! In at the front door?' asked Allibone—'me.'

"'Yes, you,' said Margot. 'I darn't go back alone.'

"Just then the village clock struck ten.

"Margot listened as the strokes pealed out upon the air. As the eighth note sounded, she looked up at the butcher with a hope in her face that it would be the last stroke, but no! nine came booming over from Galtersville, and then, oh horrors! one more.

"'Ten!' she cried. 'Is that right?'

"'It be,' said Allibone.

"'Come at once,' said Margot, and ran towards the house. She raced up the great, broad steps, Allibone after her, and through the hall, and up into the Squire's bedroom. Everything stood wide. She ran right up to the bed, but though his poor eyes were open, he would never know her again. All was over for the dear Squire."

Miss Evelyn was sobbing as I ended; Miss Elizabeth was more quiet, but her tears were raining down fast.

I resumed my tale, for I saw that we were approaching my own home, and I felt now that I should probably have to give up my trip to the village for that day at least. "Allibone ran up the stairs after Margot and pushed in at the door. 'Some villain's hand has been at work,' he cried; and then Margot turned from the stare of those open eyes and looked around the room. It was in dreadful disorder. Papers were strewn about, all sorts of clothing lay upon the floor, the chairs were overturned, the coverings ripped open. In fact, it was evident to Margot that the poor Squire had been in the hands of unprincipled creatures, and that the so-called priest, Sister of Charity, and doctor had all been masquerading and in league to defraud him of his belongings. Margot began to tidy up the room, and Allibone ran down the stairs, saying, 'I'm going for the police.' And the police are in charge now."

"Do they think that—that—my brother was—was—foully dealt with?" asked Miss Elizabeth, faintly.

"Dr. Williams doesn't say. They tell me that the police have closed his mouth. They have the great detective Jennings employed on the case. I heard that there was not a scratch nor a mark on his body—the Squire's—and no blood, and no sign of violence."

"Thank God for that!" said Miss Elizabeth, reverently. Just here we came to the end of my fence, the end nearest the village, where the road turns and runs around to the Hall.

"How pretty your little home looks," said Miss Evelyn through her tears. "It seems sweet to see it again. But don't get out, Sophronia, don't! Come with us to the Hall. I cannot bear to go alone. We need some one—but—but—who are those?"

I looked out of the window across Miss Elizabeth's black draperies, and saw, to my infinite astonishment, my lower-back apparently in very interesting conversation with my lower-front

MURDER MYSTERY CLEARED.

New York Police Know the Slayer of Mrs. Pulitzer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The mystery of the murder of Mrs. Annie Pulitzer, whose nude body was found in the Morris canal near Jersey City, has been cleared up by the discovery that the woman was killed in a flat at 103 West Fifty-eighth street, where her clothing was found.

This announcement was made late last night by Captain Titus of the detective bureau, who says that the murder was committed by a man named Hooper Young, who has recently been employed in a cheap restaurant. Captain Titus has learned that the woman's body was kept for some time under the sink in the kitchen of the flat in which she was killed. Young has not been arrested and is believed to have fled the city. He is said to have shipped a trunk to Chicago. He formerly worked for the Hoboken Crusader, and the police found his picture taken with a group of employees. This picture was shown to the Hoboken liveryman, who at once picked out Young as the man who hired a buggy from him on Wednesday night.

The house in which the murdered woman's clothing was found is a cheap tenement in a block containing many stables, but is within a stone's throw of some of the most splendid apartment houses in the vicinity of Central park south.

MARINES LAND AT COLON.

The Reported Advance of Insurgent Force Is the Cause.

COLON, Colombia, Sept. 20.—Several hundred government troops were brought out yesterday morning, and it was the intention of the authorities to have them take a train for Panama. The railroad company declined to entrain the soldiers on the 8 o'clock passenger train, but subsequently placed a special train at their disposal.

Shortly after 8 o'clock eighty bluejackets from the United States cruiser Cincinnati, together with two quick firing Colt guns, were landed in Colon. This action is believed to be due to the receipt of creditable information that a representative of the insurgent General Herrera is at San Pablo, a station on the railroad. Under these circumstances the government decided not to entrain the troops for Panama. They will remain at Colon.

British Cruiser Goes to Colon.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 20.—The British cruiser Retribution has sailed from here for Colon, Colombia, in consequence of the receipt of news that the situation on the isthmus is serious.

GREAT DAY AT GETTYSBURG.

Army of the Potomac Dedicates Monument to General Slocum.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 20.—The fine equestrian statue of Major General Henry Warner Slocum, a tribute to his memory from the state of New York, was unveiled yesterday on Culps hill, where his line was located during the historical battle. The governors of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the Seventh regiment of the New York national guard, which acted as escort, and veteran infantrymen and artillerymen who served under General Slocum attended the ceremonies of dedication.

The unveiling of the statue was the principal feature of the thirty-third reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac. At this meeting Major General John R. Brooke, U. S. A., retired, was elected president, and General King was re-elected secretary. General Daniel E. Sickles was the principal speaker at the meeting.

A public meeting was held last night at which Mayor Seth Low of New York was the principal speaker.

Boxer Menace Subsiding.

PEKING, Sept. 20.—The situation at Chingtufu, capital of Szechuen province and the scene of the recent Boxer activities, has improved. British and French guards are now within ninety miles of the city. A squad of French marines has reached Chingtufu, and they are expected to return to their gunboat with the French consul there. An investigation made by the consular agent into the murder of the missionaries Bruce and Lewis at Chenchow, Honan province, Aug. 15, by a mob has disclosed the fact that the military officials of Chenchow were culpable in the matter because they refused to receive or protect the missionaries.

Cornell Overcrowded.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—From the number of papers which were handed in at the entrance examination in English at Cornell it is predicted that there will be not less than 1,000 in the entering class. Such a big increase had not been anticipated, and it means overcrowded recitation rooms, while it will be exceedingly difficult to house and board all of the students with the present accommodations. Rooms have already advanced 30 per cent.

Destructive Prairie Fire.

HURON, S. D., Sept. 20.—The most destructive fire in the history of Beadle county is reported. Not a grain or hay stack is left standing in an area 12 miles long by 5 wide, and many farmers lost their entire grain crops, the damage aggregating many thousands of dollars.

LISBON, Sept. 20.—The French steamer Thomas sank a harbor steamer here yesterday. Nine persons were drowned.

REPLY MADE TO HAY

England Takes Notice of Roumanian Matter.

A CONVENTION MAY BE CALLED.

German Press Comments Very Favorably — Says Protest of the American Secretary Is a Remarkable Act.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—So far only one answer to the state department's identical note concerning the Roumanian Jews has come to hand.

This was from Great Britain and consisted of a brief acknowledgment, with a promise to look into the subject matter, which promise appears to have been kept by the prompt issue of an invitation by Great Britain to Germany to open negotiations on the subject. It is presumed that the other nations addressed will return their acknowledgments shortly.

If they are all of the same mind as England, it may be that a conference will be called of representatives of the powers signatory of the treaty of Berlin with the purpose of bringing pressure to bear on Roumania to live up to her obligations under that treaty.

REMARKABLE POLITICAL ACT.

German Press Comments Favorably on Secretary Hay's Note.

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—"The American note to the Berlin signatories," says the Vossische Zeitung, "represents one of the most interesting documents in contemporary history and is one of the most remarkable political acts of the present day, for it is the first time that the diplomacy of the United States draws into its sphere of activity occurrences within a European commonwealth. America's controversy with Turkey was a totally dissimilar case, since the United States there exercised its natural right of defending the interests of its citizens, but in the unjust treatment of Roumanian Jews America is not directly damaged.

"The United States is moved to this step by considerations of humanity and is not willing to keep silent in the presence of international wrong. As the United States did not participate in the Berlin treaty it points to principles of international law and to eternal justice. Under any circumstances the United States has the sympathies of the civilized world, and it would be highly shameful to the governments of Europe that the wrongs should be removed by the action of America."

The Tageblatt says:

"Secretary Hay's note is one of loud appeal to humanity, which Roumania has outraged in the most disgraceful manner. The young American power inaugurates its world policy by making itself the spokesman of humanity and liberty and of religion. It shames the old civilized states of Europe by reminding them of their duties toward civilization."

Max Nordau Pleased.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Max Nordau, vice-president of the Congress of Zionists, thus expresses himself on Secretary Hay's Roumanian note: "It is magnificent. After a period of darkness, during which America seemed to be immersed in Monroeism and the furtherance of her own material interests, she has stepped forward and taken a glorious step in behalf of suffering humanity. She has torn the mask from Europe's face. Secretary Hay's circular compels the European powers who sign the treaty of Berlin to do their duty or stand convicted of conniving at the extermination of a quarter million of my brethren by the barbarians of Roumania."

Postal Supplies Award.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Acting Postmaster General Madden has awarded the contract for furnishing stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers for the postoffice department for the four years beginning July 1, 1903, to the Hartford Manufacturing company of Hartford, Conn., it being the lowest bidder. Upward of $1,000,000 will be paid this company under the contract. Their bid is approximately $85,000 less than the next lowest.

Noted Educator Dead.

CANTON, N. Y., Sept. 20.—John Stebbins Lee, D. D., LL. D., professor of church history and the first president of St. Lawrence university, is dead, aged eighty-two. He graduated from Amherst college in the class of 1845 and was the oldest educator in the Universalist denomination, having been connected with denominational schools and colleges for fifty-seven years.

Smallpox at Barbados.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 20.—News has reached here that 200 cases of smallpox occurred at Barbados, British West Indies, during the fortnight ended Sept. 15. The mortality from the disease is now comparatively small. A strict quarantine against Barbados has been inaugurated by all the other islands of the West Indies.

Earthquake In Australia.

ADELAIDE, South Australia, Sept. 20.—A severe earthquake shock experienced here last evening caused a panic among the people of the city. Buildings, including churches, were damaged, and several narrow escapes from death were recorded. Many northern towns also experienced earthquake shocks.

Crowds Welcome Boer Generals.

ANTWERP, Belgium, Sept. 20.—Generals Botha, Delarey and De Wet have arrived here and were received with great enthusiasm by crowds of people estimated to have numbered 300,000. The demonstration was not marred by a single anti-British cry.

committee composed of twelve members, but this was considered too small, and it was voted down. In its place two members from each city, borough and township was selected as follows:

Elizabeth—Sixth ward, J. E. Jones, H. VanderVeer; Seventh ward, James Holt, A. P. Slater; Eighth ward, Morris Reed, Robert Saunders; Ninth ward, John Dean, Obrien Gibbs; Tenth ward, J. H. Tyler, Chas. Oliver; Eleventh Ward, Chas. Reed, Walter H. Thomas; Twelfth ward, C. R. H. Hawkins, J. M. Green. Plainfield—First ward, David Thompson, William Jones; Second ward, Chas. Irby, James Carter; Third ward, Wm. Burden, Spencer Conway; Fourth ward, Wm. Kline, Arthur Venable. Rahway—S. Butler, A. L. Hughes. Cranford—Hosea C. Hewlett, E. C. Williams. Summit—J. H. Smith, Joseph R. Adams. Roselle—W. B. Monroe; T. H. Woody.

This committee then adjourned and organized by electing the following officers: Chairman, William Kline; vice chairman C. R. H. Hawkins; secretary, Hosea C. Hewlett; treasurer, Morris Reed; assistant secretary, A. P. Slater. There will be a meeting of the committee Friday evening of next week at Cranford.

While the committee was organizing several speeches were enjoyed. The first speaker was I. W. L. Roantree, a lawyer from Trenton. He took occasion to pay tribute to Senator Cross for his support of the bill providing for the maintenance of the Bordentown Industrial School, and he dwelt at some length upon the progress of the colored race. After his remarks, President Anderson read telegrams of regret from J. Smylie Tucker and R. M. Kellogg, of Elizabeth, who could not be present.

The next and last speaker was Jesse Lawson, of Washington, who is well-known in this city by reason of the fact that he lived here for many years. His address was a masterly effort. He spoke of the progress of the colored people and said that the improved forces of today are being used to better their condition. He mentioned the fact that the race today is forty years away from slavery and then likened this race to the children of Israel who were in the wilderness for forty years and were finally lead out of captivity. He believed that the colored people would be so led by God's guiding hand.

Mr. Lawson referred to the incident in Washington when Booker T. Washington was entertained at dinner and remarked that it was by him that Mr. Washington received the invitation from the President. Coming nearer home the speaker referred to the excellent records made in legislative halls by Senator John Kean and Congressman Fowler, and added that he knew that the people of Union county would stand behind these two representative men. He spoke impressively of the grand work accomplished by both Mr. Kean and Mr. Fowler for the colored people, and said that upon the death of Senator Sewell the power of the State was transferred from Camden county to Union county, where he hoped it would remain.

Following the transaction of business of a minor nature, the convention adjourned sine die.

SPORTING NEWS

The champion Pittsburg team is rapidly nearing the 100 victory mark. The number was brought up to ninety-seven, Thursday, and it is thought the required three will be secured very shortly.

The annual golf tournament of the Produce Exchange was held on the Richmond County course Thursday. The honors were carried off by F. M. MOVING PICTURES STOLEN

W. J. WEAVER, OF BRIDGEPORT, IS ACCUSED OF TAKING THEM.

They Disappeared From Fred W. Brown's Amusement Hall on North Avenue.

Fred W. Brown, who has been conducting an amusement hall on North avenue, reported to Chief Kiely, yesterday afternoon, that during his absence from the city, some one had entered his place and abstracted from a closet, two rolls of films of the Corbett-Fitszimmons fight for use in a moving picture machine.

Following an investigation made by the police, Brown preferred charges against William J. Weaver, of Bridgeport, Conn., an acquaintance of his who had been visiting him, yesterday morning. Word was sent to the Bridgeport police, last night, to take Weaver into custody.

The films were the property of Brown and "Tenny" Overbaugh, of this city, and are worth $150. Weaver has been connected with various amusement enterprises and if he took them, as Brown alleges, he would know where to dispose of them.

PRESS WANT ADS PAY.

THE Elizabeth Journal States Facts that no Plainfield Republican Can Deny.

WHY WE FIGHT.

Editor Journal—If you are opposed to factional fights in the Republican party why do you continue them? Don't you know the old adage—"Where one will not, two cannot fight?" A PEACEFUL VOTER.

The old adage is true, but it does not contain all the truth. Where one will not fight and the other will and does fight, the non-combatant gets whipped. The Journal is in the present fight, not from choice, but from necessity; not to continue the factional fight, but to end it if possible.

For years past, ever since the Republican party began to be split up into factions, the Journal has exerted all its influence, in every way it could, to harmonize the factions, and to restore conditions of peace and unity. But every year the fight has grown more and more intense, more and more bitter, more and more vindictive, and more and more perilous to the Republican party in Union county. This year it has passed all former bounds. The faction which is led by Mr. Rankin and Mr. Fowler would not permit peace. They got what they wanted, got it unanimously, got it harmoniously at the Belvidere Republican congressional district convention, and then at once began to plot the overthrow of Senator Cross, the defeat of Edward S. Coyne for assembly, and of every man who refused to bow the knee to them. This is not a fanciful sketch, it is the fact.

They opened the fight when peace prevailed. They hid under cover for awhile, but finally declared war "to the bitter end."

The fight must go on to the bitter end, simply because Mr. Rankin and Mr. Fowler have so decided. To lie down before them and let them turn down Senator Cross and Councilman Coyne would be cowardly. Mr. Rankin will either rule or ruin. He will imperil his party, in a purblind attempt to carry out his end. Every drop of blood in his veins is fighting blood, and every drop is superheated in the effort to defeat Senator Cross.

The Journal will not stand for such work. It will not permit, if it can possibly prevent, the defeat of a man like Senator Cross, when he is entitled to a renomination, and when the great, unbiased majority of the Republicans of Union county want him re-elected.

The Journal has always stood for the Republican party, and not for a faction, and it is standing for the party now. Nothing in the course of its experience has been more repugnant to it than the wretched, unnecessary, unwarranted factional disturbances that have continued from year to year for eight or ten years past. Nothing has been more disgusting to the great body of Republicans in Union county.

It is no pleasure to denounce the acts of men whom the party has greatly honored, year after year; but since they have declared war, there's nothing to do but fight.

This is the situation as the Journal finds it. The primaries will be held on Monday night next, and the voters will, the Journal believes, defeat the schemes of the "rule or ruin" faction.

But that faction is full of fighters, and they are fighting as never before. The primaries will, on next Monday night, be thronged with a class of voters who care little and know less about Senator Cross. They are being corralled. There is no doubt about it.

The voters who want Senator Cross, who are opposed to "rule or ruin," who are disgusted with and are determined to end factional fights, must go to the primaries in full force, if they want to make their sentiments felt at this time. Every vote will be needed.

Do not wait until election and then scratch the ticket. That is the worst policy. Settle the matter now and for all time at the primaries, settle it in the interests of good men in politics. settle it right. And then go to the polls and vote the whole Republican ticket.

The primaries are the places at which to end fational fights. Let every Republican voter attend and do his duty. 9 18 3

THE PRESS on SENATOR CROSS

The newspapers of this State have taken a deep interest in the factional fight in Union county, particularly as it is made against the renomination of Senator Cross. They all know him, they all appreciate him, and one and all they condemn any and every effort to deprive the State of his services. The following are a few extracts, out of many, that show the sentiment of the Republicans of New Jersey, both in and out of Union county:

Camden Courier—"It is a little singular that the Plainfield people are so persistent in their opposition to Senator Cross, as he has proved to be one of the strongest men Union county has sent to the Legislature."

Newark News—"For the honor of Union county and the good of the State, it is to be hoped this unholy alliance may be overthrow. Men like Senator Cross are needed in the State senate. * * * The defeat of Senator Cross for renomination would weaken the party ticket in every county of the State."

Jersey City News (Dem.)—"The unrighteous war against Senator Cross is not surprising. * * * He is too honest, independent and fearless."

New York Press (Rep.)—"It will serve no good purpose in Union to attack the public record of Senator Cross, for no man ever served the State more conscientiously or his constituents fairer than Joseph Cross."

Newark News—"Former Governor Voorhees has literally taken to the woods. The faction in Union county which is now trying to down Senator Cross ought to follow its leader."

New York Press—"It is possible that the hole dug for Senator Cross in Union may hold Representative Fowler, for if Cross fails to get a renomination through the instrumentality of Fowler or his friends there may be such reprivals in the Fifth district as well elect the Democratic candidate for Congress."

Bound Brook Chronicle — "The whole State is interested in the nomination of the best men possible for the Senate and Assembly. * * * For this reason the Republican press throughout the State is expressing its disapproval of the efforts made to defeat Senator Cross for re-nomination."

Paterson Press—"If there is any danger of factional feeling in Union county jeopardizing the return of Judge Cross to the Senate, it is a most deplorable thing. No county ever had an abler, honester or higher tried representative."

Camden Post Telegram—"Senator Joseph Cross declares that he believes he is entitled to another term. * * * That seems to be the general impression all over the State outside of Plainfield."

Cranford Chronicle—"As the representative of Union county in the Senate of New Jersey Mr. Cross has won wide renown. * * * Let well enough alone."

Paterson Press—"An attempt is making in Union to defeat the renomination of Judge Cross as State Senator, which would be a public misfortune. * * * If the strife continues and results in the defeat of Judge Cross, it will certainly be carried into the Congressional canvass and may defeat Mr. Fowler."

Summit Record (Dem.)—"The decent people of the county and State are not now seriously concerned with the question of the United States senatorship, but they are deeply interested in the outcome of a fight to humiliate an official who has been honest, able and trustworthy. And that is about what the fight against Judge Cross resolves itself into."—Elizabeth Journal. 9 18 3

WESTFIELD WON BY SINGLE RUN

"Jimmy" Montross Was the Hero of the Day When Plainfield's Best Met Westfield.

A WONDERFUL GAME.

Two Men Hit by Ball and Two Errors Gave Westfield a Run in the Second Inning—That Was the Only Run Made by Either Side—The Score in Detail.

A continuous succession of surprises marked the baseball game, Saturday afternoon, between the crack Westfields, the team which has been sweeping all before it for the past two seasons, and the Plainfield Consolidated, the playing of which was the result of the efforts of The Daily Press. Westfield won the game but the team or management wasn't so highly elated because it was by the narrow margin of one run—the only one made in the nine innings—and that single tally was about as far removed from being earned as it could possibly have been.

Surprise number one came when instead of Pitcher Thomas Burns' familiar features, the smiling countenance of "Jimmy" Montross was seen in the box for the locals. Both Burns and Dupee, who had been selected as the pitchers, were unable to get to the grounds although expected, and at the last moment "Jimmy," who was among the spectators, consented to do the twirling even though he had no uniform. When he took his position the semi-pros of the famed Westfields smiled pityingly and murmured something about "fruit."

The second thrill was experienced by them when their best batters cut slices out of the air in attempting to connect with the "easy thing's" curves. The followers of the Hope team, who have seen Jimmy pitch good games, were astounded and could hardly believe that it was indeed he who was pitching the greatest game of the season, while it was at once seen by others that "a diamond in the rough" had been added to the team.

Westfield was first to the bat and went out in one, two, three order. Barry was hit by his own batted ball, Mallen flied to Lederer and Jones died at first. The Consolidateds began touching up Robertson almost the first thing but none of them hit safely. Moore pounded out a beauty fly to left that was gobbled up by McManus and Lederer and Bolsterli went out on grounders.

The fatal second opened in a manner that sent the local fans wild with enthusiasm. Purcell and McGrath were struck out and McManus bid fair to do the same when he was struck by an in curve and was sent to first. He should have gone no further but made second on Cooney's fumble of Burke's grounder. Directly after he was advanced to third by another error made by Bolsterli, the latter missing an excellent chance to retire the side. The excitement at this time was intense and although Montross was cool and collected, he spoiled all chances of preventing a score by hitting Pollard. The bases being full McManus was forced home but there was a perceptible lack of rooting even from the Westfield enthusiasts. None of the other three men on base reached home as Barry grounded to Cooney and was retired at first.

In the remaining seven innings the Westfields were unable to get a man passed second, most of the batsmen either striking out or else knocking out grounders that failed to get out of the diamond.

Not a man on the local team reached first until the sixth inning when Cooney landed there on a clean hit to left. He made one of the greatest slides to second ever seen on the field and had hardly got to his feet when he again started off and repeated the trick at third. Unfortunately two men had been put out before he went to the bat and while he was making an attempt to reach home, Moore fanned out. The hopes of the crowd which saw visions of the tieing run coming in were thus dashed to the ground as suddenly as they had risen.

All thought it was the last time a man would get over to third but it was again accomplished in the eighth. Allen hit to center and went flying to third through Barry's error in not stopping Egan's grounder. He made an attempt to get home on a slow

A TRENTON DEMOCRAT NAMED FOR CONGRESS

Brief Sketch of Col. Perrine, Named by the Democrats in the Fourth District.

A NATIVE OF TRENTON.

WAS TAUGHT BY THE MAN WHO IS NOW HIS OPPONENT.

Is a Graduate of the Princeton University—Studied Law and Was Interested in Street Car Railroads—Has Many Interests.

The man who has been chosen by the Democrats of Somerset, Mercer and Hunterdon counties to represent them in the race for Congress in the new Fourth district is but slightly known in this section. Nevertheless, Col. Lewis Perrine is a prominent Democrat in his own city, Trenton, where he is well liked and respected. A brief sketch of his life is therefore not out of place at this time.

Colonel Lewis Perrine comes from an old Jersey family, distinguished for its Democracy and military service. His father was Major-General Lewis Perrine, who served as quartermaster-general of the State for thirty-five years, and who armed and equipped all the troops that went from the State to the Civil War.

The Congressional candidate was born in Trenton, August 12, 1859, and received his early education at the Trenton Academy, where he had for a preceptor former Judge William M. Lanning, who is now his opponent for Congress on the Republican ticket. He graduated from the State Model School in 1876 and from Princeton University in 1880, standing well up in his class and receiving honorable mention.

After leaving college he entered the law office of Levi T. Hannum, and in 1883 was admitted to the bar in New Jersey. In October of the same year he was elected secretary-treasurer of the old Trenton Horse Railroad Company and subsequently was made president and general manager. He consolidated the street railroads of the city and for fifteen years managed the system with much success. He transformed the entire system from horses to electricity as a motive power and to this enterprise is largely due the development of the miles of suburban territory hereabouts.

In May, 1881, Governor Ludlow appointed him assistant quartermaster-general, with the rank of colonel, and he was reappointed by Governor Abbett in 1884 and again by Governor Green in 1887. He refused a reappointment in 1890 and also declined to be considered for quartermaster-general of the State as the successor to his father, who died in the fall of 1889. Outside of his post as assistant quartermaster-general, Colonel Perrine has never held political or military office. He has, however, always been an enthusiastic Democrat.

Colonel Perrine disposed of his interests in the local trolley system in 1895, retiring from the presidency. Since that time he has been engaged in the practice of law and in banking and financial matters. He is a director in a number of railroads affiliated with the Pennsylvania system. He is also interested in a number of other enterprises.

For a score of years Colonel Perrine has been well known in Episcopal church circles. He is the senior warden of Christ P. E. church and has repeatedly been a delegate from the church to diocesan conventions. He attended the general convention of the church of the United States held in San Francisco last October, and is very active in church matters. For many years he has been trustee of St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, and is also a trustee of the general funds of the Episcopal church.

Colonel Perrine married a daughter of Major W. B. Slack, of the United States Marine Corps. The couple have one child and reside in a handsome home in Greenwood avenue. They also have a country place, "The Birches," located on the banks of the Delaware river, on the Pennsylvania side.

CAPT. BROWNING UNDER ARREST

Received Notice This Morning of Arrest on the Charge of Insubordination.

AN EXPLANATION MADE

Capt. Browning Tells a Press Reporter About the Cause of the Trouble—Is Over Transportation—Reason for His Resignation—About the Actions at Trenton.

The following dispatch from Trenton appeared in the New York Sun, this morning:

Troubles have arisen in the Second Brigade of the New Jersey National Guard that threaten a shake-up. Capt. W. Kempton Browning, of Company K, of Plainfield, has been placed under military arrest and relieved of his command because of alleged insubordination, the charge growing out of his refusal to obey a command of Col. Collins with reference to transportation to Sea Girt.

Charges have also been preferred against the lieutenant of Company K, who in the absence of Capt. Browning commanded the men at the funeral of Gen. Oliphant here on Thursday. It is charged that the men were disorderly on West State street while awaiting the start of the funeral cortege.

Capt. Browning has already tendered his resignation because of the treatment he received at the hands of the men of his company during the Sea Girt encampment of the guard.

Gen. Gillmore issued an order on Saturday evening, through Major Gilkyson, the purport of which is that some of the staff officers of the brigade have exceeded their authority in the issuing of orders. The order intimates that there has been discourteous deliveries of commands.

This order is considered to mean that those to whom it has been directed are quite likely to be hauled up for their conduct.

Dr. W. Kempton Browning, of East Fifth street, who is captain of Company K, was interviewed this morning by a Press reporter regarding the facts contained in this dispatch. He explained that he had just received in the morning mail orders placing him under military arrest and relieving him from command.

"The trouble," said Captain Browning, "is over the payment for transportation of the company to Sea Girt this summer. We were sent two bills for transportation, one from Inspector General of Rifle Practice Spencer and the other from Adjutant Rogers of the Second Regiment. The bill from Gen. Spencer included transportation from Plainfield to Sea Girt and Sea Girt to Plainfield and embodied all we owed. Captain Rogers' bill included only the transportation from Plainfield to Sea Girt. A special company meeting was called for Wednesday evening, September 4, and a check then drawn to Gen. Spencer for the bill as presented in full. Captain Rogers subsequently demanded payment and an explanation was forwarded to him that the bill had been liquidated. So much for the charges against me."

The lieutenant referred to, Captain Browning explained, was First Lieutenant John M. Lewis but he had not been in command of the company at all. Captain Browning then explained the circumstances. He had been very busy, he said, on the several days preceding the funeral of Gen. Oliphant and had had but little sleep. He was so tired that he first thought he would not go to Trenton at all but as his resignation went into effect October 1, he decided to go as it was probably the last time he would be called out for military duty. The company was in line at 11:30 but the funeral did not start until 4 o'clock. There would be a march of a block or two and then a long wait. He was so tired that, at every opportunity, the Captain explained, he sat down on the nearest doorstep to rest.

"It was at one of these waits," Dr. Browning continued, "that the boys were cutting up. I was sitting on a doortsep fifty feet away but the crowd was between me and the street and so, when Captain Rogers rode up, he did not see me and I did not hear his remarks. One of the boys sat on a brick, another sat in his lap, a third in the lap of the second and so they stretched for some distance. Then

PLIGHTED TROTH AS DAYS GROW SHORTER

A Pretty Autumnal Wedding Was That of Miss Emma Cutter and Frank Pearson.

ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

CEREMONY WAS PERFORMED AT THE HOME OF THE BRIDE'S BROTHER.

A Marry Party of Relatives and Friends Gathered for the Occasion—Groom Recently of England—To Reside in New York.

A pretty autumnal wedding was that of Saturday evening when Miss Emma Cutter and Frank Pearson, both of this city, were united in marriag at the home of the bride's brother, Frederick S. Cutter, on Sandford avenue, in the presence of a number of friends and relatives from Newark, New York, Rahway, Elizabeth and Plainfield.

The house was decorated in rare taste with white roses, asters, southern smilax, clubhouse clematis and potted plants. The decorations were especially attractive in the parlor, hallway and dining room. In the parlor there was a beautiful bower of smilax, roses and palms, and beneath this the happy event was solemnized.

The bride, who was gowned in white lace robe over white silk, with pearl trimmings, was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Cutter, who was maid-of-honor. The latter was gowned in grey crepe de chine and carried pink roses. There was no best man but William Townsend and Oliver Hill, of this city, acted as ushers. The ceremony was a very pretty one and was performed with a ring by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which the bride is a member. As the bridal party entered the parlor the Mendelssohn wedding march was played by Prof. Miller, of this city, and during the evening Mr. Miller rendered an excellent programme of attractive music.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Pearson were the recipients of a shower of congratulations from the guests. A wedding repast was served and later in the evening the couple departed to enjoy a short honeymoon. They will return next Saturday and take up their residence in New York, where the groom is engaged with a large firm as a draughtsman.

The bride is a most estimable and popular young woman. She has lived in Plainfield all her life and has a host of friends here. The groom has resided in this city for some time past. His home was in England, but since coming to Plainfield he has made many friends. The large collection of presents received by the bride attest the high esteem in which she is held. There were many articles in cut glass, silver and goldware, knives, forks, pretty pieces of furniture and about $300 in gold. Mr. Pearson's parents and friends in England remembered the couple in a substantial manner.

Among the guests present was Amos Woodruff, the only living uncle of the bride. He is eighty-three years old and he came all the way from his home in Memphis, Tenn., to attend the wedding.

When Mr. and Mrs. Pearson left the scene of festivities they were given the usual pleasant sendoff and showers of rice and flowers were a joyous feature of their departure.

FIGHT IS ON THIS EVENING

Contests in Three of the Republican Primaries in Plainfield This Evening.

CROSS AGAINST RUNYON

Friends of Councilman Coriell Believe He Will Get Some Support for Shrievalty Nomination From Plainfield—The Tickets in the Four Wards for Delegates.

Contests will be made at the Republican primaries in the First, Third and Fourth wards, this evening. The Second ward, in which City Judge William N. Runyon resides, has been harmonized and the fight, which threatened, will not appear. Only one ticket has been named there and that will support Judge Runyon in his fight for Senatorial nomination. Leaders of both factions claim the other wards. It is generally expected that the followers of Senator Cross and Councilman Coriell will make their strongest fight in the Third ward, Mr. Coriell's home ward.

The primaries will be held all through the county and the two factions which are striving for the mastery in the G. O. P. of Union county will make a fight in every part of the county. Both sides are confident of victory but neither is missing any opportunity to strengthen its cause. The friends of U. S. Senator Kean want the renomination of Senator Cross and favor Councilman B. F. Coriell, of this city, for sheriff. Congressman Fowler and his friends advocate the candidacy of City Judge W. N. Runyon for senator and F. W. Coyne, of Elizabeth, for sheriff. The county convention will be held at Elizabeth Wednesday afternoon. The primaries will be open tonight from 5 to 9 o'clock. The business meetings will be at 8 o'clock.

The tickets named in the wards are as follows:

First ward, Runyon ticket, delegates to the county convention—H. S. Taylor, James T. MacMurray, Caspar Steadele, Ralph I. Tolles, Samuel L. Miller, Horace G. Adams, Samuel P. T. Wilbur, Benj. F. LaVere, Samuel P. Case. For members of the county committee, James F. Buckle and David C. Smalley.

First ward, Cross and Coriell ticket, for delegates to the county convention—R. F. R. Huntsman, John Rowland, Dr. L. S. Pocock, U. B. Crane, Thomas Kane, Charles W. Hirst, Albert Barber, Adolph Kahrmann, David Thompson. For members of the county committee, Dr. Marc L. Clawson, W. R. Codington.

Second ward, Runyon ticket, for delegates to the county convention—Evarts Tracy, Charles S. Foote, Robert H. Cook, Thomas A. Cuming, William Dagnall, Charles C. Davis, Armstrong Mulford, Frederic W. Goddard, Dr. T. S. Davis. For members of the county committee, George P. Mellick, Evarts Tracy. There is no opposition ticket in this ward.

Third ward, Runyon ticket, for delegates to the county convention—Charles J. Fisk, Elliott T. Barrows, John T. Baker, John P. Mosher, Frank Whitley, Dr. Frank C. Ard, George W. V. Moy, Charles E. Brooks and Lucius Biglow. For members of the county committee, Lewis E. Waring and J. Stephen Higham.

Third ward, Cross and Coriell ticket, for delegates to the county convention—Alexander Gilbert, E. R. Ackerman, Jacob Kirkner, I. W. Rushmore, Charles F. Abbott, J. W. Murray, Jr., Ira F. PLANS TO RECEIVE GRAND ARMY VETERANS

Features of the National Encampment to be Held at Washington Next Month.

ABOUT CAMP ROOSEVELT

IT WILL REPRESENT A GREAT MILITARY POST IN CAMP.

There Will be Tents for the Different Army Corps and Five Big Ones for Meetings—Others for the Reunions

Washington is making elaborate preparations to welcome the G. A. R. men on the occasion of the national encampment which will be held in October.

Camp Roosevelt, which will be located on the White Lot, south of the executive mansion, and known as Grand Army place during the last national encampment in Washington, ten years ago, is to represent a great military post during the coming encampment. It is ideally located for this purpose, and Colonel McElroy, who is chairman of the committee on reunions, and his assistants have improved every moment of the time since an organization was effected in perfecting plans for this great gathering of men who 37 years ago laid down their muskets and went to their homes.

Camp Roosevelt has been laid off by Major Gilbert Thompson, formerly of the district engineers. In the centre is a platform and flagstaff, upon which a flag will be raised at 4:30 o'clock, October 6, in the presence of the President of the United States, Gen. Torrance, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the assembled veterans and other guests of the city. The reunion committee hopes to have present to assist in this patriotic exercise and the dedication of the camp a thousand school children.

There will be five large tents upon the grounds for the use of the armies and the ex-prisoners of war. About the ellipse will be stationed twenty-five tents for the regular infantry corps. In addition to these will be tents for the cavalry corps of the Army of the Potomac, one for the cavalry of the western armies, one for the ex-prisoners of war, one for the engineers, telegraph and signal corps; one for the navy, one for the colored troops of the division of the Mississippi, one for the provisional corps of the Army of the Cumberland, one for the Sons of Veterans, one for the Spanish war veterans. With each corps headquarters will be four or five other tents for reunions of divisions, brigades, regiments and other organizations.

On the southern side of the ellipse there will be one large tent, capable of holding 4,000 people, which will be known as the "Grant" tent. It is hoped that this will be sufficient for the largest gatherings. On the east side of the ellipse will be the "Meade" tent, which will hold about 2,000 people. On the west side will be a companion tent, dedicated to Gen. Sherman. Near the north entrance are to be two tents, which will hold about 1,000 each, to be known as the Thomas and the Sheridan tents. These will all be well lighted with arc lights, and will have platforms, besides seats and benches for the audiences.

The corps' headquarters tents will all be floored and furnished with chairs, tables and such other equipment as the particular committee may desire to place in it.

Conspicuous in front of each tent will be the well-known badge of each corps.

In addition to the arc lights already there, 30 new ones have been placed upon the grounds, so disposed about the circle as to illuminate it brilliantly.

The tents for the Sons of Veterans are just outside of the ellipse, and quarters provide for 1,000 members of the organization, who will be fully uniformed and equipped, and who will furnish the garrison for Camp Roosevelt.

Col. Israel W. Stone, who is vice chairman of the committee on reunions and chairman of the sub-committee on guards and escorts, will have this section under his supervision, and the Sons of Veterans will be under the command of the ranking officer.

There will also be a tent upon the grounds for Post 138, of Allegheny, Pa., which will camp there, and there may be other posts which will take advantage of the opportunity to once more enjoy this feature of soldier life.

POOR DAY FOR THE GOLFERS

Only a Few Out Saturday Afternoon to Compete in the Rain for Regular Events.

MATCH AT PARK CLUB.

Five Benedicts Outplayed Bachelor Team at Park Course—Honors at Hillside Went to W. L. Glenney and H. W. Beebe—Samuel Townsend Low Man at Park.

Saturday's disagreeable weather kept many away from the local golf links. There were a few, however, who braved the frequent showers and competed in the regular weekly events. The only special match was between the bachelors and benedicts of the Park Golf Club. Only five men played on a side and the married men managed to win 22 to 13. In the regular competitions at Hillside W. T. Glenney and H. W. Beebe won the honors. Samuel Townsend was low man at the Park Golf Club.

PARK GOLF CLUB.

While the rain which fell at intervals, Saturday afternoon, kept many away from the course of the Park Golf Club, the scheduled match between the bachelors and benedicts was played and resulted in a victory for the married men by a score of 22 to 13. Each team was composed of five men.

The result was as follows:

Howell	8	F. Rogers	0
G. T. Rogers	0	Morse	2
S. Townsend	5	Honeyman	0
McKelvey	9	Nichols	0

The medal scores made in this match also counted for the weekly competition for the President's cup. There were also some who competed for that trophy who did not take part in the match. First honors went to Samuel Townsend who was playing a great game. Roberts deS. Newhall made the lowest gross score. W. de la R. Anderson was out but played with Morris J. Dumont, captain of the Hillside team, and did not turn in his score for the cup. Charles B. Morse still leads for the cup with S. St. J. McCutchen second.

Saturday's scores, better than 100 net, were:

INTER-STATE FAIR AT TRENTON.

September 29 and 30, October 1, 2 and 3.

The great Inter-State Fair will be held on September 29 and 30, October 1, 2, and 3, on the Fair Grounds, three miles east of Trenton, N. J., on the New York division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to the fair grounds, including coupon of admission, at greatly reduced rates from stations within a wide radius, and special trains over the New York, Belvidere and Amboy divisions will be run through to the grounds, thus avoiding street-car transfer.

As in previous years, every department will be replete with superior and instructive displays. The blooded stock exhibit will be particularly fine, and the daily programme of races contains the speediest classes obtainable. A novel and exciting feature will be automobile races. The management of the fair has put forth extraordinary efforts to make this year's exhibition even greater than last year's record-breaking display.

FACTS ABOUT FISH POUNDS

How the Fish Pound is Operated and Some of Its Troubles—Some Other Details.

The average fish pound on the Jersey coast is said to cost about $8,000 to build, says the Toms River Courier, and it employs seventeen men who receive on an average $35 a month, and the captain and mates from $60 to $75 a month and their board. A large number of the men are Swedes and Norwegians.

A pound is commenced by sinking in forty to fifty feet of water the number of poles necessary for the size of the net. These poles are from sixty to eighty feet long and are generally pumped in. The pound consists of a pocket, which word describes it exactly, and two wing walls, one extending toward the beach, and one out to sea. As the migratory fish run up to the beach parallel to the shore, they are pretty sure to strike one of the wing walls. A fish is wary, and tries to go around an obstruction. Consequently he follows the net till he reaches an opening, enters, and is in the pocket.

The nets are heavily tarred; they get two coats of that material every year, at a cost of about $500. The plant consists of the poles and nets necessary to construct a pound, a house for the men to reside in, an ice house, which is generally filled during the winter months, from some near-by lake or pond, three or four large boats built after the pattern of the modern lifeboat and one or two teams that are utilized in hauling the fish to the depot and hauling the boats, by a tackle arrangement, up on the beach beyond high-water mark. The visits to the pound are generally made at daybreak and in the afternoon, though when heavy seas are running the nets may not be lifted for days.

Occasionally a boat is capsized coming through the surf, and drowning accidents are not unknown. There were three drowned at Long Branch last year. John Tilton, of this township, was capsized, with two men who could not swim, at Mantoloking a few years ago, and nearly lost his life trying to save his men. All three were rescued by the life-savers.

The fish caught are weakfish, bonito, porgies and seabass. Bluefish are seldom caught in large quantities any more, the fishing boats of the oil factories having driven them out to sea to seek food, by scooping up the menhaden, upon which the bluefish feed. As high as twenty tons of fish, 179 barrels weighing 225 pounds each, have been caught in one day in one pound this summer.

The fish is shipped all over the country, from Washington to Chicago, but principally to New York and Philadelphia, while hundreds of tons are put in cold storage for sale during the winter.

The season generally opens in April and closes about Thanksgiving Day, when the nets are taken in. Layout lines (trawls), containing from 200 to 300 hooks, are then used to catch codfish, which at that season of the year commence to appear along the Jersey coast.

The nets often receive visits from denizens of the briny deep that are entirely unexpected, huge sea turtles brought north by the Gulf Stream from Bahama Banks, lobsters and Spanish mackerel, this species of fish being looked upon as a perfect bonanza, as they generally bring fancy prices. Unwelcome visits are made by porpoises and sharks, and many a torn net has been the result of their inquisitiveness.

Squids, or devil fish, are also caught, and are sold to the Italians who reside in the cities of New York and Philadelphia, and who consider them a great delicacy. Rays, skates, stingarees, anglers and many other curious, but worthless for food, fish are killed and thrown overboard

In the spring some of the pounds are put in early enough to catch shad as they run up the beach.

Miss Eva Doeringer, of Vine street, has been entertaining friends from Elizabeth.

Mrs. John Little and children, of Essex street, returned home Saturday from a two weeks' stay with relatives on Long Island.

NEW YORK REPUBLICANS.

Outlook For Harmonious Convention. The Ticket Fixed Beforehand.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Not in many years has there been a day prior to the assembling of a New York state Republican convention such placidity as now exists. Undoubtedly this is because by far the majority of selections for the state ticket have been practically agreed upon, and the few offices in contention are being contested for in a friendly and therefore quiet spirit. The ticket as far as constructed reads: Governor, B. B. Odell, Jr., of Orange; lieutenant governor, George R. Sheldon of New York; comptroller, N. B. Miller of Cortland; treasurer, John G. Wickser of Erie; engineer, E. A. Bond of Jefferson; judge of the court of appeals, William E. Werner of Monroe.

Contests are being waged for the offices of secretary of state and attorney general. That for lieutenant governor has been practically ended, the delegations from New York, Westchester and Erie counties having decided to go into the convention pledged for George R. Sheldon.

It is further announced that United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew will present Mr. Sheldon's name to the convention.

For attorney general the contest is between Judge Cowan, the present deputy, and Judge Robinson, with the chances greatly in favor of Judge Cowan so far as delegation preferences are ascertainable.

Nearly all the party leaders are here. A great deal of the detail of the convention has been arranged. Lemuel E. Quigg is to be temporary chairman, and Senator Ellsworth is to be permanent chairman.

Governor Odell will be put in nomination by former Senator Clarence Lexow of Nyack and seconded by Job Hedges of New York city.

Governor Odell has sent word here that he positively will not come to Saratoga during the convention. It had been planned that he should come on Wednesday, the last day of the convention, so that he might be the personal recipient of the nomination. He says in positive terms that he believes it would be undignified for the governor of New York to attend the convention for any purpose.

DIEDRICK KEEPS SILENCE.

The Doctor Will Not Talk of His Trouble With Peary.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Dr. Thomas L. Diedrick of Washington, N. J., who had disagreements with Lieutenant Peary, the arctic explorer, and left the latter's expedition on Aug. 27, 1901, has arrived in New York after an absence of four years in the far north. Concerning the criticisms of his actions in the arctic regions he was inclined to be reticent.

"I will not discuss in any way," he said, "any misunderstanding that I may have had with Lieutenant Peary and may or may not have been the cause of my leaving the ship."

"What about the intimation that the reason you left the party was because you were not exactly in a sound state mentally at the time?" he was asked.

"The report that I was mentally unsound," he replied, "is a malicious lie."

"Are you going to make a statement in regard to the affair?"

"At the proper time I will make a statement in full of the reasons that led me to pursue the course I did both as to remaining in the arctic and as to the charges about my mental status. Pending the report that Lieutenant Peary will make about the work and experiences of the expedition, however, I do not think that any person who is identified with the expedition or may have been connected with it should do any talking. It is very hard to have been maligned as I have been and not talk, but I shall nevertheless adhere to that determination on my part. Concerning my trouble with Lieutenant Peary and my experiences while living among the Eskimos and the denial of food to me by Lieutenant Peary, even a little coffee without sugar, I shall say nothing at this time."

He was met on his arrival by train from Boston by his four brothers. For the present he and Mrs. Diedrick are staying in New York.

Preparing For Packing Merger.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 22.—What is presumed to be preparations for the merging of packing house interests began at the South Omaha packing houses today by the taking of inventories of stock and other properties. One of the largest companies paid its men in advance last week and has sent out a circular instructing agents to settle claims and take inventories during the week. The same work is under way in one of the other large houses, while it was completed in a third during the past week. A party of men said to be representatives of the proposed combine were in the city several days last week making an inspection of the packing plants and stockyards.

Killed While Hunting.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Clarence De Voe, a prominent contractor and builder of this city, went shooting with four companions in the Helderbergs near Thompson's lake, about fourteen miles from this city. A gun in the hands of a Mr. Wagner, a member of the party, was accidentally discharged, carrying away the back part and top of De Voe's head. De Voe is survived by a wife and three children.

A Jealous Man's Crime.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 22.—David M. Goughner, a well known young man, shot and seriously wounded Miss Leorena Winnebrenner, aged seventeen years, near her home in Conemaugh, near this city, and then sent a bullet into his own heart, dying instantly. Jealousy and a desire for revenge are given as the causes for the act.

STRIKERS LAWLESS.

Houses Stoned and Deputies Fired At.

NO SETTLEMENT IS YET IN SIGHT

Railway Trainmen's Brotherhood Secretly Considers the Question of Handling Coal Mined by Nonunion Workmen.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 22.—The mining town of Edwardsville, near here, has been the scene of much lawlessness during the past few hours. A crowd of men said to be strikers went in search of a man named James McGuire, who had gone to work in the mines last week. They fired stones at several houses, broke down the door in the dwelling where McGuire was supposed to live and committed other depredations. The mob also fired on the deputies at the Woodward mine. The officers returned the fire, but no one was wounded. Three men were arrested, charged with being the ringleaders who threatened the life of McGuire. In default of $1,000 bail each they were committed to jail.

The twentieth week of the miners' strike is here, and still there is no settlement in sight. Disinterested parties now believe the miners' strike history will repeat itself and that the present struggle will go the six months' limit, the same as the big strike of 1877. At the present time both sides are evidently as determined as ever, and, all the prophecies as to the duration of the strike having failed, the people are settling down to the belief that the battle must be fought to a finish.

In court Judge Wheaton administered a sharp rebuke to those who have been guilty of calling people "scabs." He says the intimidation and lawlessness that have been prevailing of late must stop, and those guilty of calling other people "scabs" will be punished.

The local operators in answer to the statement alleged to have been made by President Mitchell that there was only one mine in operation in the strike region, the Oxford, at Scranton, state that there are a dozen mines and washeries in operation in the Wyoming, Lackawanna and Schuylkill regions and that the output of coal is increasing daily.

Before a mass meeting of 10,000 workingmen in Madison square Saturday night John Mitchell declared that the striking anthracite mine workers will remain out all winter if necessary to gain their end and are in a position to do so.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen employed on all railroads centering in Wilkesbarre held a secret meeting at Kingston yesterday. The object of the meeting was to take some action on the question of the brotherhood men hauling coal from the mines where nonunion men are employed. It is understood there was a lengthy discussion over the matter. The only information that would be given out, however, was that a resolution had been adopted requesting the secretary of each local division to write a letter to Grand Master P. H. Morrissey requesting him to come here at once.

Morrissey was in the strike region some time ago and looked over the situation. He is said to have come to the conclusion then that the time was not opportune for the railroad men to do anything.

A repair house at the Empire mine of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company was destroyed by fire at an early hour in the morning. It is said the building was set on fire.

Much Coal Shipped.

READING, Pa., Sept. 22.—The Reading Railroad company has increased its coal shipments. One hundred and forty cars containing more than 4,000 tons of coal went down the main line, all of it coming from the western end of Schuylkill county, in one day. Sixty-nine cars of anthracite coal also passed through Reading en route for Philadelphia. There are 365 cars of coal of various sizes now in the yard at Cressona, Pa., all of which came from Kalmia washery and Brookside and Good Spring collieries, in Schuylkill county.

Aid For Miners From Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22.—A check for $1,000 has been sent to the striking miners in Pennsylvania as the result of a mass meeting held at Light Guard armory. Mayor Maybury presided, and Governor Bliss, who came to Detroit from Lansing to meet President Roosevelt, closed a speech of sympathy for the miners by laying $75 on the table as his subscription. President Roosevelt had been asked to attend the mass meeting, but declined.

Stratton Millions For Charity.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 22.—According to the will of the late Winfield Scott Stratton, who amassed his great fortune in mining, all except $460,000 of his fourteen million dollar estate will go to charity. The will has been filed here for probate. It is dated Aug. 5, 1902. Isaac Henry Stratton, the only son, is left $50,000 upon condition that he does not contest the will. The son never lived with his father. Mr. Stratton was divorced from his wife immediately after the birth of the boy.

Russian Boats May Pass.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 22.—An irade has been issued authorizing the passage through the Dardanelles of the four Russian torpedo boat destroyers on condition that they sail under the commercial flag of Russia, with an interval of twenty-four hours between each boat, and that they carry no armament or naval crews in order that international treaties be not violated.

THE WAR ON CASTRO

General Matos, Revolutionary Leader, Interviewed.

VENEZUELA'S REVENUES SQUANDERED

The Report That He Intended to Turn His Country's Finances Over to Foreigners Is Denied.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Sept. 22.—Five schooners, bearing about 1,500 government soldiers under the command of General Castillo, left Maracaibo, Venezuela, Saturday morning in tow of the Venezuelan gunboat Zumbador. This expedition will attempt to reoccupy La Vela de Coro, which is in the power of the revolutionists.

News has reached here from Venezuela that the revolutionary general Mendoza continues to retreat with his forces to the interior of the country in the hope of drawing President Castro from Valencia.

A press representative had an interview at Alta Gracia, in the State of Zulia, Venezuela, with General Manuel A. Matos, leader of the revolution against President Castro, on the subject of the report that General Matos intended in case of his success to turn over control of the Venezuelan finances to certain foreign powers. General Matos said:

"I know that President Castro has issued a decree declaring me to be a traitor to my country because the Cologne Gazette and the Venezuelan consul at Liverpool, England, reported that I had already made an agreement to permit the finances of Venezuela to be collected by foreign powers. This is absolutely false, and to attribute such an idea to me is stupid. The surrender, direct or indirect, of Venezuela to foreign control would be contrary to my ideas and to my character. I said recently in Paris, London and Hamburg, and I am not afraid to repeat it here, that the government of Venezuela should put an end to the squandering of the country's revenues and administer the national finances not for the benefit of the few, but for that of all Venezuelans and the satisfaction of our territory.

"Venezuela does not need to be controlled. During the ten years between 1890 and 1900 Venezuelan customs produced $74,000,000; during the same period of time the legitimate expenses of the country amounted to $70,000,000, leaving a surplus of $4,000,000. This $4,000,000 has disappeared, and instead of a surplus the country owes $7,200,000 for interest. Within six months after the re-establishment of peace in Venezuela I intend to show the financial world what the financial resources of the country are.

"It is true that I desire Venezuelan finances to be controlled, but not by foreigners; they must be in the control of an honest Venezuelan, who will administer them properly.

"In four weeks' time, when we shall have arrived at Caracas, I will further explain my plans for the future of this country."

Hudson Valley Cars Stoned.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Waterford was the scene of further outbreak in the Hudson Valley strike situation yesterday afternoon. A fusillade of stones greeted a car which arrived from the north on which were Captain Walbridge, Lieutenant Thomas and a detail of soldiers of Company L, national guard. Lieutenant Thomas was struck on the forehead and knocked down. Captain Walbridge and his men thereupon forced the crowd back. Bayonets and gun butts were used. Captain Walbridge struck John Coffey of Waterford on the head with his sword, cutting a gash eight inches long. Captain Walbridge issued a statement that unless further rioting ceased his men would use bullets instead of bayonets. The rioting thus far in Waterford has been caused entirely by hoodlums.

New Laws For Finland.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 22.—Finnish newspapers publish summaries of the new ordinances which are soon to be promulgated at Helsingfors, Finland. These ordinances set forth that officials are placed beyond judicial prosecution without the consent of their superiors, and officials and judges are removable by the senate. The governor general or his assistant is to appoint a court of chancery. Senate officials are to preside at the open sessions of the economical department, which will henceforth appoint the judges. The censorship authority is widened.

The Roumanian Question.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Cabling from Vienna, the correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says he learns that neither Austria nor Russia is willing to support the appeal made by the United States in behalf of the Jews of Roumania. It is admitted, says the correspondent, that the treatment of the Roumanian Jews infringes the treaty of Berlin of 1878, but it is only one of numerous cases in which this treaty has been violated without the signatories protesting.

Use of Boric Acid Favored.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—The Society For the Protection of the Interests of the German Chemical Industry, in session at Frankfort, has unanimously passed a resolution against the prohibition of the use of boric acid for the preservation of meats and has appealed to the bundesrath to reverse its decision in this connection in view of the present scarcity and dearness of meat.

THE BIRMINGHAM DISASTER.

Death List From Mad Stampede Reaches 115.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 22.—The total number of dead in the mad stampede at the national negro Baptist convention caused by a fight and a cry of "Fire!" is now estimated at 115.

Yesterday was a day of funerals in Birmingham, and the remains of thirty-eight victims of the panic in Shiloh church were interred in the various cemeteries for negroes around the city. All of the negro churches were crowded, and the naturally excitable nature of the southern negro was wrought to a high pitch by the eulogistic sermons over the dead bodies at the various churches, from all of which wails of the grief stricken negroes could be heard. Great throngs of mourners followed the hearses to the cemeteries.

At a meeting of the convention Dr. E. C. Morris, president, delivered a brief address on the catastrophe, deploring the shocking loss of life, after which the convention adjourned.

Dr. Morris made an appeal for the families of the dead and injured who are in needy circumstances, and a large sum was collected. Telegrams and letters were read from a number of white citizens offering aid. Practically no business has been transacted by the convention since the deplorable catastrophe.

Investigation shows that no white people were killed in the panic. A number of white visitors were in the church at the time, and several of them were hurt in the wild scramble, but none will die.

An examination of the bodies of the victims shows that very many of them died of suffocation, the congestion of humanity in the vestibule and passageway where the crush occurred being so great. Those who received bodily injuries were the ones who were crushed and trampled under foot. Many had broken limbs, and one negro threw himself over the heads of the crowd and had his brains crushed out against the wall.

In an interview after the panic Booker T. Washington said:

"When I saw that a stampede was imminent, I started the choir singing, and part of the audience joined them. I remained until the excitement had subsided. It lasted for fully thirty minutes."

Leopold Drives Out His Child.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 22.—A dispatch to the Patriote from Spa says that when King Leopold arrived there he refused to speak to the Princess Stephanie, countess of Lonyay, and compelled her to leave the royal palace. The princess consequently left Spa suddenly. She rode to the station in a hired carriage, and amid demonstrations of sympathy from the people she took a train for Brussels. Princess Stephanie is the second daughter of the late Queen Marie Henriette and King Leopold. She married the only son of the emperor of Austria in 1881 and was left a widow in 1889. She was married the second time in 1900 to Elemer, count of Lonyay. This marriage was against the wishes of King Leopold, who refused to permit it to be legalized. He has been very bitter against his daughter, and courts friendly to that of Belgium have declined to receive the princess.

South Africans Must Settle.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The Daily Mail this morning says the government has decided that the new South African colonies are to be required to pay $500,000,000 toward the cost of the South African war. The colonists are, however, to be allowed ample time in which to make this payment. It will not be collected until the extension of trade and expansion of revenue permit. Consequently the loan will not be floated for two or three years. Mining profits will probably be taxed 10 per cent more than they were before the war, and money will also be obtained by granting all kinds of concessions and mineral rights.

Irish Play Disliked.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22.—The presentation of the Irish play, "The Shaughraun," by Dennis O'Sullivan at the Grand Opera House was hissed by Irishmen, who declare the play is an unworthy representation of Irish character. The police ejected twenty or thirty men, who turned on them in the lobby, where a fierce battle raged for several minutes. Several arrests were made.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 22.—A heavy freight train grain laden from Midland for Lindsay broke in two at Grass hill in a fog. A second freight crashed into the rear section. Engineer Swanton of Lindsay and Fireman Faulkner of Belleville were both buried in the debris of the engine and instantly killed. The line is strewn with broken cars.

Coghlan has flown his two starred flag from the Olympia and awaits orders to proceed to the isthmus of Panama to assume charge of the affairs in that vicinity and to command the fleet of American warships assembling there. PELEE'S LATEST ERUPTION.

Story Told by an Eyewitness—Southern Martinique Unharmed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The Quebec Steamship company's steamer Korona has just arrived from the West Indies. Among her passengers was Captain Walker McKay, agent for the steamship company in the West Indies. Captain McKay said:

"I was at Fort de France, Martinique, Aug. 30, the day of the most recent eruption of Mount Pelee. The explosion was terrific, and the rumblings and detonations were continuous for a long time. This eruption, it is estimated, caused the death of 2,000 people and covered an extent of territory ten times greater than did the great eruption of May last. This time the track of the disaster was beyond the mountain ridge and spread out over the interior.

"I saw the mountain in eruption. There appears to be numerous apertures below the edge of the crater from which the steam is ejected. The great cone is truncated and has changed considerably in appearance. The natives were abandoning large sections of the country in proximity to the mountain. The government has warned the people to remove their effects to high ground in the interior in anticipation of a possible tidal wave.

"Martinique in the northern part is greatly devastated, but the south is in full blossom and is thriving. We are shipping more freight now than before the eruption. It is a mistake to say that the people are starving and are crowding the fertile parts of the island. The fact is that, considering so many have been victims of the eruptions, the fugitives are comparatively few in number. There is no need of food supplies. The natives will not go to work as long as they can obtain food for nothing. There is room for all, and employment is easily obtained."

La Soufriere Speaks Again.

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, Sept. 22.—There was an eruption of La Soufriere at midnight Thursday, but no loss of life. A peculiarity of this eruption is found in the fact that no dust or scoria was emitted by the volcano. Flames were seen flickering above the crater, and the sight was accompanied by internal and thunderlike explosions.

A PROBLEM FOR METHODISTS.

Iowa Conference Aroused Over a Wife Deserting Pastor.

KEOKUK, Ia., Sept. 22.—The Iowa conference of the Methodist Episcopal church has been aroused by the unexpected presentation of the case of Rev. P. J. Henness, one of its members, now living in South Dakota. Mr. Henness left his wife during the last year and refuses to state his reason. His wife is here at the conference, and her husband will not speak to her. Mr. Henness tried to have the case ventilated on the floor of the conference, but the bishop referred it to a trial by a commitee of eleven members. The charges before the trial committee, which is sitting with closed doors, are that under the conditions Henness is not a proper person to be sent out as a pastor. No question of sexual immorality is involved. The verdict will settle the policy of the church on a new question.

A second bombshell was exploded at night when friends of Henness called attention to the fact that his case is parallel with that of one of the oldest bishops of the church. They are saying that if this conference shall decide that refusal to live with a wife is unclerical conduct then the Iowa conference must memorialize the general conference of the church to take action on the case of that bishop. It is claimed that yesterday's proceedings will have results as far-reaching as Methodism.

Telegraphers Organize.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—The International Union of Commercial Telegraphers has been formed here by a convention of forty delegates representing as many cities throughout the United States. A constitution patterned after that of the International Typographical union was adopted providing for the issue of a working card to each member every three months. This is the first time that an organization of telegraph operators has been formed on these lines. In the past all efforts at organization were along secret lines. Resolutions were adopted instructing the officers of the new order to communicate with the various existing organizations of telegraphers with a view of working on a harmonious basis.

Delegate to Philippines Consecrated.

ROME, Sept. 22.—The consecration of Mgr. Guidi, apostolic delegate in the Philippines, as archbishop, which occurred in the Church of Santa Maria in Aquiro, which is owned by the Somaschian fathers, his first instructors, assumed considerable importance, as it was conducted by Cardinal Rampolla, who after the pope is the highest political personage in the Vatican. Cardinal Rampolla was assisted by Mgr. Constantini, the papal almoner, and Mgr. Gaspardi, secretary extraordinary of ecclesiastical affairs. The entire diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican, all the generals of the religious orders and a number of prominent friars were present at the ceremony.

German Socialists Gaining.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—Reports from all the electoral districts of the empire received by the executive committee of the Socialists give the party managers basis for announcing that they expect to obtain 3,000,000 votes in the general election next year and 100 seats in the reichstag as against 2,190,000 votes in 1898 and 53 seats in the reichstag. The last annual convention of the Socialist party preceding the election has just closed at Munich.

IS DETROIT'S GUEST

President Warmly Welcomed to City of the Straits.

A RESTFUL SUNDAY PROGRAMME.

An Address to Spanish War Veterans, a Ride on the River, a Military Review and Banquet Today.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22.—For the second time in its history the City of the Straits is entertaining the chief executive of the nation. President Theodore Roosevelt arrived in the city at 8 o'clock Sunday morning over the Michigan Central railroad. He found Detroit awaiting his arrival in gala attire. Flags were flying from every staff in the downtown section, and the city was bright with bunting. Pictures of President Roosevelt greeted the eye at every turn. Throughout the day the president was greeted with tumultuous cheers at his every appearance. Crowds lined the streets about the Hotel Cadillac, anxious for a glimpse at the chief magistrate, and his appearance was always the signal for an enthusiastic outburst of cheers. The weather was all that could be desired. A little cloudy during the morning, it cleared by noon and in the afternoon was bright and warm, with a pleasant breeze stirring the air and fluttering hundreds of flags.

It was a restful day for the president, although his time was completely occupied by the programme mapped out for him by the local arrangements committee. Immediately on his arrival he was driven to the Hotel Cadillac, where he occupied the corner room on the parlor floor which have been especially decorated in his honor. At 10:30 o'clock he attended services at the Fort Street Presbyterian church, driving from there to General R. A. Alger's residence, where he was entertained at luncheon. He returned to the Cadillac soon after 3 o'clock, only to leave again in a short time for a drive about the city.

During the drive he called at St. Mary's hospital, on St. Antoine street, where Thomas K. Doherty, a local veteran of the Spanish war, is dying of consumption. Doherty had expressed a wish to see the president, and General Alger learned of it. Accordingly at luncheon President Roosevelt was asked if he would call on Doherty at the hospital. The president answered that he would be delighted to do so. Doherty is unable to sit up, and the president remained at his bedside for some minutes chatting with him and expressing words of cheer and hope.

At night the president dined in the Flemish room of the Cadillac with a party of friends. Among the guests were Francis H. Clergue of Sault Ste. Marie, General Alger, Hon. William F. Quinby, General H. H. Duffield, Mayor Maybury, Secretary Cortelyou, Dr. Lung and Assistant Secretaries Loeb and Barnes.

Today a very busy time has been mapped out for the chief executive and his party. The president addressed the convention of Spanish War Veterans at 10 a. m. At 11 o'clock he was driven to the steamer Tashmoo for a ride on the river. This afternoon at 4 o'clock he will review the parade of veterans and military, a unique feature of which will be the presence of the Twenty-first regiment of Essex fusileers from Canada. At 8 p. m. he will attend the banquet of the veterans in Light Guard armory, where he will make the address of the evening.

A Quiet Visit to Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 22.—Senator Hanna states that President Roosevelt has made the request that no public demonstration be made over his visit to Cleveland as the guest of Senator Hanna next Saturday night and Sunday. The visit is not a public one, and the president wishes to spend the day as quietly as possible at Senator Hanna's home, on Lake avenue. Senator Hanna was asked what he thought of the president's speech at Cincinnati, but declined to make any comment or statement. Neither would he make any statement as to what transpired at the conference at Oyster Bay a few days ago.

Dr. Patton to Head Seminary.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 22.—Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, who resigned the presidency of Princeton university last June, will be made president of Princeton Theological seminary, this having been decided at a special meeting of the board of directors. He has accepted the position to which he will be formally elected Oct. 14. Dr. Patton was professor of theology in McCormick seminary, Chicago, for ten years and later professor of apologetics in Princeton seminary and for four years president of Princeton university. He was moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly in 1878.

Shaw Speaks In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—As an opponent of tariff revision and as an advocate of reciprocity Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw spoke to a great crowd in Mason park. The secretary was the magnet which drew thousands to the Republican rally, and, though he disappointed many in that he did not in any manner refer to the Henderson incident, he evoked applause in his treatment of the issues which are so closely connected with the resignation of the speaker of the house.

Indicted For Asking Bribes.

CONNEAUT, O., Sept. 22.—William McCall and William Betcheler, two members of the Conneaut city council, have been indicted by the grand jury on the charge of soliciting bribes. The alleged bribes were given in connection with the letting of the paving contract.

THE BASKET BALL LEAGUE.

A meeting will be held some evening this week to discuss the project of a local basket ball league. Indications point to a successful culmination of the efforts now being made toward that end. While The Daily Press is preparing to offer a trophy, should the league be organized, it is not our intention to control its conduct in the slightest. Its management will be left entirely with those who are directly interested. The Daily Press' only aim is to encourage good, healthy sport and we are confident that such a league, properly conducted, will be the means of greatly increasing the popular interest in one of the best of indoor sports, basket ball.

Basket ball, as played in Plainfield in the past, and the exhibitions of that game given in some cities, are vastly different. The sport here has always been maintained on a high level and it is sincerely to be hoped that it will continue there. In some places, the game has degenerated to a mere slugging match and rough play is constant. It is possible, however, to play the game in a clean yet scientific fashion as its originators intended and that is the game we hope to see played here. With co-operation on the part of those entering into the league, this desired end may be brought about and the people of Plainfield treated to some very interesting contests.

In order to successfully establish a league of any kind, there must be a certain amount of rivalry to start with. The rivalry between the Hope boys and St. Marys was the basis which made the City Baseball League so successful. The proposed football league fell through simply because there was no such feeling. The contests last season between the Y. M. C. A., City High School and Leal's School developed an interest upon which, it is believed, a league can successfully be built. When the series between the two schools was nearly over last spring, a league was talked of but it was then too late in the year to do anything. There is plenty of time now to organize and have everything in readiness when the season shall open.

Republican primaries will be held in the four wards of this city tonight. From present prospects there will be some kind of a fight in every one of them. The friends of City Judge Runyon are confident that the primaries will elect delegates who will all be in favor of the young Plainfielder. Equally confident are the friends of Councilman B. Frank Coriell who say that part of the city will support their candidate. And so it stands.

The local trolley system has at last felt the work of wire thieves who have been so active through all of this part of New Jersey. Bold and daring have been the men who have cut down the wire on the public thoroughfares and yet they have met with almost unvarying success. When any offenders of that nature are captured, the courts should make a strong example of them so that others may be detered from following their example.

A shoe manufacturer who says the competition in his line has been keener than in most, relates the Philadelphia Record, has had a steady and enormous growth in his sales year after year. The increase last year over four years ago was 818,014 pairs of shoes. This he credits chiefly to his newspaper advertising. He says the increase of sales invariably corresponds with the increase of his newspaper space.

Jesse Lawson, who was the principal speaker at the county convention of the colored voters Friday night, is one of Plainfield's sons who has won himself a high place at the National Capital. He is a man of much ability which has been recognized by many prominent in the Republican ranks.

The Elizabeth Journal has been very strong in its support of the candidacy of Senator Cross for the senatorial nomination of the Republicans. Past history has shown the Journal modestly on the side of the Kean faction. This campaign has brought it out very strongly on that side.

DUNELLEN.

In the hottest kind of a baseball game, the Dunellen team defeated a team from Raritan, Saturday afternoon, on the Madison avenue grounds by a score of 7 to 5. Whitley, of the New Market team, pitched an excellent game for the locals, striking out a large number and allowing few hits. In the last three innings he struck out eight of nine men up. At one time Raritan was 5 to 1 in the lead but by hard and consistent batting, Dunellen pulled the game out of the fire in the last inning.

The house on the old Vail place, in Greenbrook, was totally destroyed by fire Friday evening. The place has been occupied by Mr. Grogan and family, who are at present staying with Soren Sorenson. The Vail place was one of the oldest in this part of the country and has been until recently occupied by the Vail's for generations.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the Presbyterian church, expects to return the visit which the Rahway society recently paid them some time ago on Thursday evening. If a sufficient number signify their intention of going a special car will be chartered.

The Silver Leaves played the Laurels, of Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon. The game was called in the fourth inning on account of rain with the score 3 to 0 in favor of the Laurels.

J. B. Close, of this place, has been called to the chair of French at a large private school in Boston. He will leave for there October 1.

J. H. Fleming gave a gospel talk in Apgar Hall yesterday afternoon. A considerable number was present.

Mr. Campelbl, of Martinville, expects shortly to move into a house on Dunellen avenue.

FOUND DEAD ON TRACKS

TWO BOYS DISCOVERED BODY OF MICHAEL KELLEY AT ROCK AVENUE.

Discovery Made at 9 o'Clock Last Night—Supposed to Have Been Struck by Train.

Two boys, Samuel Dennick and John Wearren, while walking along the tracks of the Central Railroad at 8:30 last night, discovered the body of Michael Kelley, of 549 South Second street, lying between the rails at the Rock avenue crossing.

The boys immediately summoned Patrolman McGinley who, after ascertaining that the man was dead, had the body removed to the undertaking establishment of George N. Cole, on Second street.

The man had evidently been struck by a train while crossing the tracks. His head was cut open and death must have been instantaneous. There were no other wounds on the body.

Kelley was fifty years old and was a blacksmith in the employ of the Pond Tool Works. A wife and four children, three of whom live in this city, survive him.

The funeral of the unfortunate man will be held from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The Republican primary to elect three delegates to the county convention, which meets at Elizabeth, Wednesday afternoon, will be held in the parlors of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company tonight at 8 o'clock. Two members of the county committee for one year will also be elected. The Fanwood delegation will probably go to the convention unpledged, but there is a sentiment that Senator Cross is entitled to another term, and the township's strength will, no doubt, be thrown into the Cross camp on Wednesday.

An Italian, hailing from Orange, went before Judge Clark Sunday afternoon and wanted to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Antonio Marrow, an Italian boarding house keeper on Front street, charging him with selling beer without a license. The Judge thought from appearances that there was something behind the charge, besides a desire to have the law enforced. So he advised the man to take his evidence before Prosecutor English, of Elizabeth.

On account of the rain Saturday the benefit baseball game for the benefit of Mrs. Frentz, was postponed until Saturday, October 4. This will carry the season along one week longer than Manager Johnston's schedule called for but as the local are to go to Plainfield on Saturday of this week to meet the St. Marys. This was the only arrangement that could be made. All tickets will be good on the postponed date.

As the local ball team was unable to play Saturday afternoon, many of the boys of the game journeyed to Plainfield to see the All Plainfield-Westfield game.

"The Expanding Life" was the topic of an interesting weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. held in the parlors of the Baptist church Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hollingsworth, of Plainfield, spent Sunday with Mr. Hollingsworth's father, Loftus Hollingsworth.

Mrs. John R. Cochran, who has been spending a few days with Miss Susie Parse, returned to her home in Brooklyn yesterday.

Rev. G. M. Shott, of the Baptist church, made the address at the W. C. T. U. meeting in Plainfield Sunday afternoon.

Saturday and Sunday passed by without an arrest, not even an automobile chase to raise some excitement.

John E. Flannery, of Plainfield, spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. George H. Johnston, of Westfield avenue.

The regular weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held in the Methodist church last night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Miss Nellie B. Manning spent Sunday with her friend, Miss Hattie Dickerson at Denville.

The children in town were amused Saturday by two showmen with their performing bears.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Manning spent Sunday in New Brunswick.

WESTFIELD GOLF CLUB.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Sept. 22—In the semi-final play for the Gladwin trophy on the course of the Westfield Golf Club, Saturday, M. L. Fouquet defeated Charles Hansel, 4 up and 2 to play, and R. I. Townley defeated W. J. Bogert, Jr., 5 up and 4 to play. The finals will be played Saturday, when Mrs. Gladwin, the wife of the president, will give a tea. THREE NEW BRIDGES.

Somerset County Freeholders Open Up Their Hearts in Three Directions.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 22—At a meeting held at Far Hills Friday, the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders decided to erect three more new bridges. One of these will be built near George Wright's, another near Elias Clark's and the third by the Somerset Inn school house. The following committee was appointed: Messrs. Whitenack, Philhawer, Mobus, Codington and Lutkins. Bids for these structures will be opened in the Court House here Wednesday.

grounder to third made by Cooney but was caught out at the plate by the fraction of a second. So close was the decision that many of the spectators insisted that it was a safe touch. The remainder of the game was devoid of any exciting points.

Although Plainfield lost the game, it has established the fact that it possesses amateur players who can adminster defeat to the crack team of the county. Every man on the nine, Saturday, played faultlessly barring, of course, the three errors of which both Bolsterli's and Lederer's were excusable. Montross was backed up in the best of shape and it is surprising too when it is considered that the team never played together before. The team work of the visitors was superior to their opponents but they were below them in batting. But three men of the Consolidateds went out on strikes and four each made a hit against three on the other side.

A second game is to be played on the Westfield grounds, Saturday, and it is needless to say Montross will be in the box. In the event of Plainfield winning out, a third game will immediately be arranged.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The Gospel meeting at the W. C. T. U. rooms, yesterday afternoon, was a helpful and interesting one. Rev. G. M. Shott, of Scotch Plains, was in charge and made an address, in which he urged the members to be obedient, earnest and consecrated. During the service there was good music on violin by R. W. Barnes and Robert Speer, accompanied on the piano by William Speer.

Acted as Superintendent.

In the absence of G. H. Batchelor, who is away on his vacation, George F. Brown acted as superintendent of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, yesterday.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. W. Randolph.

somebody kicked the brick out from underneath the first man and the whole line tumbled over. It was not conduct for a funeral and I so told the boys afterwards. Captain Rogers came up and demanded to know who was in command. He was told Capt. Browning. He couldn't see me because of the crowd and nobody knew where I was at that moment. So he held Lieutenant Lewis responsible. Lieutenant Lewis was not in command at the time. I was and I alone am responsible for any disorder that may have occurred.

"That's a barefaced lie," exclaimed the Captain when he read the paragraph in The Sun article referring to his reasons for resigning. "There was no conduct by the men of my company at Sea Girt that was discourteous to me in the slightest. In fact, I consider that my company was more courteous to me than were the great majority of the companies to their commanding officers. There is absolutely no truth in the story which recently appeared in a Trenton paper as to the treatment of the commanding officer of Company K by the men of that company. My reasons for resigning are purely on account of my profession. I find it simply impossible to practice medicine and devote the time which should be given to the company. If I desired to have an average company, I could give enough time for it but the personel of Company K demands that time shall be given to make it the best company in the National Guard."

QUEER OLD MANSION.

Known in History as the Clean Drinking Manor.

Was Built in 1750 and Still in Excellent Condition—Washington's Name Associated with It.

[Special Washington Letter.]

ALTHOUGH the law of entailment is fixed in the common law and the statutory laws of Great Britain, there has never been any effort made to engraft that excrescence of aristocracy upon the laws of our land. Therefore it is strange and almost anomalous to find an estate which has been in one family for more than 200 years on this continent, and near the capital city of our great republic.

As the French origin of the word is well known it will not be necessary to explain to readers that the law of entailment is a "cutting off" of an estate from all other estates, so that it proceeds directly from one heir to another, through many generations. Although the law is a rule by which estates are fixed it also extends in some instances to incorporeal hereditaments in law. It was with reference to this that Prior wrote of "Joab's blood, entailed on Judah's crown."

Driving over the country roads north and northwest of this city it sometimes happens that the oldest residents here come upon places of historic interest which are not known to the public and have no place in history. Such a place is Clean Drinking manor, within an hour's drive of the executive mansion, on a road over which not less than three score of our people travel every day in their peregrinations for pleasure and recreation. The old manor house is sheltered by foliage and does not attract the attention of casual observers. It is half surrounded by a broad veranda as beautiful originally as any of the verandas of colonial and ante-colonial days.

Built in 1750 the venerable frame mansion is yet in good condition, although time has dealt unsparingly with it, giving the outer timbers a weather-beaten appearance and wearing away some of the interior woodwork. But there are very few evidences of decay in any portion of the place. There have been no changes nor alterations made in the house. On one side is clustered what remains of the old kitchen and servants' quarters, built of bricks made in England.

On the other side, surrounded by an old-fashioned stone wall, is the manor garden, now overgrown with hedges of boxwood, which at one time bordered the trim, fancifully-shaped flower beds, but are now so thick that they completely hide the little beds they used to outline. Round the entire garden, inside the stone wall, is a magnificent hedge of tall boxwood. This is reputed to be finer even than the famous "box" at Mount Vernon, planted at about the same time. Roses and vines, lilac and other old-fashioned plants and shrubs, run riot now over porch, wall and outbuildings, making the house quaintly picturesque amidst its setting of tall cedars, locusts and hemlocks. When servants were numerous, all of these plants received greater attention than can be given now.

The old manor house, which, from its appearance and close surroundings, would seem in place perhaps a hundred miles removed from the bustle and dine and movement of modern life, lies within a few minutes' walk from this city's limits, and but seven miles from the gates of the white house. It is located on what is known as the Jones' Mill road, and is beautifully situated, overlooking miles of the surrounding country, and at its feet flow the historic waters of Rock creek. On the slope of the hill, about a hundred yards beneath the house, is the spring from the purity of whose waters the curious name of the manor is taken.

On expressing a desire to see the spring we were taken down to it, passing through the old apple orchard on our way. As we regaled ourselves with the really fine water we were told that we were then standing on the stone slab on which Washington stood to drink when he stopped there on his return from Pittsburg, after the defeat of Braddock, in 1775. He was accompanied by a few of his men, and the party afterwards went up to the manor house to rest and visit the family. Another event that this recalls and adds to the historic interest of the place, is that during the British invasion of Washington, in 1814, Mr. Thomas Monroe, then postmaster of Washington city, took refuge at Clear Drinking manor, Mr. Monroe keeping the post office open there till after the British had gone. The United States mails were taken to a log house then standing opposite the manor house. From this point were seen the flames of the burning of the capitol.

The estate of Clean Drinking manor has been in the family whose descendants live there to-day since 1680, when it became the property of Col. John Coates, who was the grandson of either John Coates or Col. Henry Coates, who came from Sproxton, England, in 1639. It descended to Elizabeth, the daughter of Col. John Coates, who married Charles Jones, gent., who built the present manor house in 1750. The land records of Maryland show this gentleman to have been a man of great energy, having recorded 17 deeds for land, built a mill, the ruins of which still stand near the house, and to have been a member of the first court of Montgomery county, Md., also a member of the committee of safety. A granddaughter of this Charles Jones, gent., Eleanor Selden, married John Augustine Washington, the grandnephew of Gen. Washington, and last member of the Washington family to own and reside at Mount Vernon.

The estate of Clean Drinking manor covered originally 1,400 acres, but it has been divided among the various members of the family, and sold, until but 25 acres are left of the original estate. The interior of the manor house is of a type well known in Maryland and Virginia, containing large square rooms of hospitable dimensions. In the drawing-room, which is entered directly from the porch, stand numerous family heirlooms. On a high, triangular-shaped gilt-legged table are a pair of handsome gilt candelabra, beside various other ornaments of rare and quaint workmanship. Above the high mantelpiece is a long gilt-framed mirror and on the table beneath a group of family portraits. One of the most interesting of these represents a handsome boy of 14, John Coates Jones, taken while a cadet at West Point. He was born in the manor in 1801, and his widow survived him until within three years.

Built into a corner of the drawing-room is an old-fashioned cupboard, inclosed by an arched glass-paned window. Beside this stands a high backed oak chair of our grandmothers' times, and near it another of greater antiquity. The latter is of black walnut, triangular in shape, with dark red leather covered seat. It is more than 200 years old. From the drawing-room we passed through another large square room, and thence visited the family graveyard, which lies a few yards to the rear of the manor. Here are buried the remains of all of the members of the family who have been born, reared and died upon the estate.

Until recently there have been retained in the manor some of the heirlooms, the venerable widow of John Coates Jones having taken great pride in their preservation. She willed them to the Daughters of the American Revolution. There was a punch bowl of India ware which once belonged to Col. Robert Hanson Harrison, a close neighbor and friend of George Washington, and it was a recognized fact that Washington had often been on familiar terms with that same punch bowl. There was also a pair of fluted and irons which also belonged to Col. Harrison. The venerable widow who so long dwelt as mistress of the manse, until long past her ninetieth year, was a daughter of Copeland Parker, who served in Washington's army, and also as collector of customs at Norfolk while Washington was president; and who served in the same capacity during Jackson's presidential terms. Whether the office sought the man in those good old days doth not appear in the family traditions. It is only known that the man held the office.

Two hundred and twenty years have elapsed since this estate became the property of Col. John Coates, and the frame mansion has been the home of generations for more than 150 years. Considering the fact that there is no law of entailment in this country, it is a remarkable fact that one family should have retained possession for so long a period of time. Members of the family claim that there is no other estate of that age; they use the word antiquity, which scarcely fits anything yet in this new world.

Visitors to this city might well spend a couple of hours going to Clean Drinking manor. The driveways are excellent and the country beautiful all the way.

SNAKES STRANGLE CUB.

Plucky Young Bear's Teeth and Claws Are Unavailing Against Reptiles' Folds.

A struggle to the death between a bear cub and two immense bull snakes has been witnessed by three hunters near Mount Tacoma, Wash. Len Longmire, Burt Hall and Charlie Price, the three woodsmen who saw the fight, declare that the spectacle exceeded in thrilling interest anything ever seen in their long and varied experience in the big forests and mountain fastnesses of Mount Tacoma.

The three men were on the trail headed for Indian Henry's Happy Hunting Grounds, when a singular noise in the bushes a short distance to one side of the trail attracted their attention, and on breaking their way through the underbrush in the direction whence the noise proceeded, their eyes rested on a spectacle rarely seen in the animal kingdom.

A small but plucky bear cub, which had evidently been left by its mother only a short time, was having a fierce battle with two large bull snakes. It proved to be an unequal conflict. In vain the little bear used his claws and teeth, though putting up a vicious fight.

One of the big reptiles succeeded in winding itself around the body of the cub, and getting in position to squeeze the breath nearly out of him. The other snake, after a hard struggle, got a coil around the cub's neck, and then managed to drag him up over the limb of a tree, thus effectually hanging him, and ending the struggle in a few minutes. Hunters say these big bull snakes are rarely seen. They are afraid of men, and seek the seclusion of the rocks and woods.

HE WAS THOUGHTFUL.

Baggage Man Kicks Valise Under His Wagon to Save It from Having a Trunk Fall on It.

"I don't know when," said Mr. Grizzleby to a New York Sun reporter, "I have seen any more pleasing act of thoughtfulness than one which I witnessed this morning on the part of the driver of a baggage wagon.

"Of a number of pieces of baggage which this driver had to deliver at one point, the last two that he took off the wagon were a valise and a trunk. The valise, when he pulled it clear of the dashboard and let it fall on the ground, did not bound at all, but just squashed right down where it dropped. Now, the act of thoughtfulness was this:

"If he had been a careless or reckless man, this driver would now, when he came to pull the trunk off the wagon, have simply let it drop on the valise lying there on the ground directly under the tailboard. But he did nothing of the sort. No, sir.

"When he was all ready to let the trunk drop, but before actually letting it fall, he kicked the valise out of the way, underneath the wagon. And then he let the trunk topple and fall, to drop with a crash upon the pavement.

"The owner of that valise may think when he gets it, as very likely he will think, that it's been pretty roughly handled; but what would he have thought if it had chanced to fall into the hands of a man who wouldn't have taken the trouble to kick it out of the way, as this one did, but who would have let that trunk fall on it?

"It was a thoughtful act, indeed, that kicking of the valise out of the way, and I don't know when I have seen anything more pleasing."

Very Pleasant for Baby.

A Canadian firm recently placed with the Montreal and Toronto newspapers an advertisement of a new nursing bottle it had patented and was about to place on the market. After giving directions for use, the "ad" ended in this manner: "When the baby is done drinking, it must be unscrewed and laid in a cool place under a tap. If the baby should not thrive on fresh milk it should be boiled."

A Woman College President

IN the brief sketch given in the encyclopedias of Dr. Mary Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr college for women, it is noted that after obtaining her diploma of A. B. from Cornell university she studied a year at Johns Hopkins university, then went to Europe and was three years at Leipsic, then for a time at Gottingen, again changing to Zurich, Switzerland, before taking finally the degree of Ph. D., for which she had been working. Why did she change so many times? The reason shows what manner of woman she is, how dauntless in the first place and how loyal to her own sex in the second.

Miss Mary E. Garrett, to whom let all girl students be grateful, gave $320,000 to Johns Hopkins to secure the admission of women. They could then compete for its degrees, and Miss Thomas entered as a student of languages. She soon found, however, that not yet were girls there on equal terms with men, for they were not allowed to enter the regular classes for instruction, but must get their learning privately outside as best they might. Then M. Carey Thomas migrated to Europe and to Leipsic, in old Saxony, refusing to take a degree from an American university that was so unfair to women. At Leipsic she and a friend, Miss Gwinn, were students three years, the only women in the department of modern languages. The second year of their stay the Prussian government made a request of Saxony that it close the doors of its university to women students. This was because some Russian women taking the medical course at Leipsic were suspected of being socialists. But nobody demanded the doors of Leipsic be shut against men because of the known masculine socialists among its students. Queer world this.

M. CAREY THOMAS, PH. D., A. M.

At that point in the game some of the professors at Leipsic did a remarkable act, considering they were in a state school under a government of militarism. They themselves had been so impressed with the brilliant attainments and gifts of the American girls that they personally faced the Saxon parliament and said they would not put women out of their university till the two American ladies had finished their course. That settled it for the time, but when the women sought to obtain the degree which was the just reward of their devotion to learning it was refused them.

"I will have my degree," said Miss Thomas.

She applied for it at Gottingen. "It is not advisable to give degrees to women," the faculty said.

From Gottingen the girls journeyed on to Zurich in pursuit of that degree. At Zurich Miss Thomas continued her researches in modern languages. At the Swiss institution of learning she prepared for examination in Anglo-Saxon and English, also in Gothic, old and middle high German and in German literature. In eight weeks she was ready.

Even at Zurich everything short of positively refusing her a degree was done to prevent her securing it. Really sometimes one cannot help wondering what sort of judgment will be meted out to men for their centuries long persecution of gifted women. To begin, the examinations were oral and in presence of all the Zurich faculty. These learned gentlemen even meddled with the matter of the candidates' attire and ruled that Miss Thomas must appear before them in full evening dress, with train and white gloves.

In that, for the occasion, absurd and uncomfortable costume M. Carey Thomas sat three hours, while the professors plied her with questions, the hardest they could think of. She came off triumphant at every point, and the professors were then her most enthusiastic applauders. They gave her the highest honors in their power, her degree summa cum laude, and from that day to this Zurich grants degrees to women on equal terms with men. Following Zurich, Dr. Thomas studied a year in Paris, then returned to her own land, where she has been ever since identified with Bryn Mawr, first as dean and professor of English literature and since 1894 as its president.

MARY EDITH DAY.

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"They—they—are some boarders I—I—have taken," I stammered. Miss Elizabeth stretched out her hand and took mine within it. "My poor Sophronia! Has it come to that? My poor Sophronia!" As the carriage passed I saw my lower-back look towards it, then turn suddenly and run around the house and disappear. Miss Dacres leaned back in my rocker and closed her eyes.

"Are they friends?" asked Miss Evelyn, with some interest.

"No! Never saw each other before this morning to my certain knowledge. They are utter strangers to each other," said I. "He hated the idea of her being there, and she is disgusted with the thought of his coming. I hoped to get rid of her to-day, but now I suppose I'll have to keep her until to-morrow."

"Why?"

And now I began to show some emotion on my part, as I told my kind friends in what an unpleasant predicament I had been placed.

"And you were going for a locksmith when we turned you back. Poor little Sophronia! You must go back in the carriage!"

We drove on past my home, past the farmland next it, by the mill, "Marchbank," and "The Larches," and then a sudden turn brought us in at the gate of Darlington Hall. Miss Elizabeth looked out with streaming eyes.

"I often think what it would have been to have brother Eugene back again," said she. "Things might have been different then. He had a good deal of control over David, more than any of us had, though he was the youngest of all."

"I suppose you are certain about his death?" said I.

"Yes, oh, yes. His wife, you know, died long before he did. What I worry about most is the child. It was a girl. I have never been able to discover any trace of her. Our lawyers, Smither and Blake, think they have certain proof of her death also, but I can't bear to believe that she is dead."

"How old would she have been had she lived?"

"Don't say 'had she lived,' Sophronia. Say 'how old is she now?' I will never believe that little Amaranthe is dead until I have better proof than I have to-day."

"Amaranthe!" I said, slowly.

"Yes, why not Amaranthe? Why not? Why, Sophronia? You remember our little Amaranthe, surely?"

"Of course I remember her; I have heard the name lately, that is all."

I had noticed a constable at the gate as we turned in at the grounds of Darlington Hall, but though he looked scrutinizingly at us, he did not attempt to stop the carriage, which was, or had been, the Squire's own, sent by Dr. Williams for the ladies. Their deep mourning also saved them from closer inspection, and then too, I was with them, and John Sommers had known me from a child. He was our annual, perennial, ever-vernal constable, and as such knew every man, woman and child in the village and for miles around. As we approached the house, we saw that there was another man in plain blue clothes standing by one of the great pillars of the old colonial porch, and before the carriage stopped Dr. Williams came hurriedly out of the house, bareheaded and properly solemn. He opened the carriage door. He and the man in blue clothes helped the ladies from the carriage.

"Thank you, Jennings," said the doctor. "Thank you." So this was the great detective, Bob Jennings! He looked slight and simple enough, though I knew later that he was about 38 years of age at this time.

"Won't you come in with us, Sophronia?" asked Miss Elizabeth.

"If you really need me," I said, "but I have so much to occupy me——"

"We do not need Mrs. Brathwaite," said Dr. Williams, kindly.

"Very well, then, Sophronia. Good-by, my dear. Come up when you can. We shall see you to-morrow, shall we not?"

"Oh, yes," I cried.

"Take Mrs. Brathwaite back to the village, John," said Miss Elizabeth to the old coachman, whom she had known since her childhood, "and when she has finished her errands drive her home."

I found the locksmith at home. I did not like to ask him to drive up in the Hall carriage, but he started on his wheel as I left his shop, and after I had got my stamps I saw that he was ahead of us, and so he kept all the way home. When I arrived at my gate he was standing on the porch looking over his keys and the little crooked pieces of iron with which he was accustomed to pick locks. I took him at once to my room and showed him the desk.

"Somebody's be'n tamperin' with this key," he said.

"I should think so," replied I. "I have worked at it until my fingers are bare."

It was but a few moments before he had the broken key out of the lock, another one fitted, and the desk open. I paid him the trifle that he asked, and he went out and I closed the door.

Then I opened the little drawer. It was quite empty! Could I have made a mistake? I opened all the drawers, rapidly, in succession. There was nothing there in the shape of money except the few remaining bits of change that had been left after I had paid the locksmith. I sat down to think, and my suspicions could fall upon but one person. Then I arose wearily. I went to Aunt Jane Mary's room to answer her repeated calls.

"What's the matter?" she asked, as I staggered in at the door. "How white you look."

"I am tired," said I. "What can I do for you?"

"Just rub that right leg, will you? I declare, I get less attention than anyone in the county. Where have you been?"

I began to rub Aunt Jane Mary's leg and to talk while I rubbed—answer questions rather.

"I have been to the locksmith's" said I.

"Did he come?"

"Yes."

"Did he open the desk?"

"Yes," said I.

"Well, well, was everything all right? How you do have to be poked and prodded, Sophronia. One would think I was a dentist drawing teeth! I never had such a time with any one——"

I made no reply; I could not.

"Are you going to answer me?"

"Oh, yes," said I, "if you want to be made as miserable as I am. The money's gone!"

"The money! What money?"

"The money Miss Dacres gave me to keep for her."

"Who is Miss Dacres?"

"The new boarder." I had forgotten that I had not told Aunt Jane Mary her name.

"I dont' believe you ever put it there."

"Yes, I did. I know I did. I am worried to death." I stopped rubbing Aunt Jane Mary's leg and burst out crying. "How shall I ever repay her?"

"I wouldn't worry about it," said Aunt Jane Mary, "it's in the house somewhere."

"I am afraid it isn't," said I. "That's what comes of taking in people without any recommendation."

"Whom do you mean?"

"Miss Dacres."

"Well, you are stupid! What should the woman want to steal her own money for?"

"I forgot that," said I. "Oh, dear! What shall I do?"

"Have you suspected anyone else?" asked Aunt Jane Mary, with what I thought a sly look at me.

"I don't see how anyone could get into it—the desk, I mean. The key was broken off in the lock."

"No! that puts a new face on it," said Aunt Jane Mary, sitting up in bed. "What other strangers have been about the house?"

"Well, the lower-back didn't come until after the lock was broken, and, besides, he has splendid references, and there's no one else." Just here someone came hurriedly up the back stairs.

"Kin I git thet stew-pan, Miss Jane Mary?" said Glorianna.

The Disposition of Garbage as Applied to Public Sanitation

By ED. R. PRITCHARD,
Secretary Chicago Board of Health.

IN DISCUSSING the problem involving the sanitary and economic disposition of city wastes, it is not the purpose in this paper to advocate any special method or device, but rather to present as clearly as may be the basic principles underlying the whole subject matter.

It will not be claimed, for instance, that some particular make of incinerator is a failure, while another has been found to give satisfaction in every respect. Neither will it be asserted that incineration is the only method to be employed in garbage destruction, or that, on the other hand, the reduction or utilization process is alone deserving of serious consideration.

I am well aware that, at the present time, almost the only available literature on this certainly important subject, is made up of arguments and data in support of either one or the other of the two systems mentioned. The trouble is that the discussion has been carried on mainly by writers who were interested in their subject more from a commercial than from a sanitary standpoint.

Looking for a moment into the history of garbage disposition, it may be asserted that it dates back to the time when the human race first dwelt in anything like thickly settled communities. A study of the Old Testament discloses the fact that Moses was the first sanitarian of which history makes any mention. That great lawgiver, in addition to the moral code which he laid down for the people, also instructed them in what would to-day be called some of the elementary principles of home and municipal sanitation. In his day disinfectants, such as are now in use for the suppression and prevention of contagious diseases, were not known; but Moses knew that fire, although costly, would do the work. He therefore told his people that in all cases where washing a dwelling inside and out failed to cleanse it of infection, it must be burned.

Only a year ago, and while the Asiatic plague was raging in Honolulu, the health authorities adopted the plan suggested by Moses and applied the torch to dwellings in certain portions of the city wherever the scourge seemed to thrive and from which it could, in no other way, be stamped out. Of course, it must be understood that modern methods of sanitation do not include such heroic treatment, save in time of great public danger, when it is clearly apparent that nothing else will so speedily and effectually protect and save human life.

A consideration of the question of garbage disposal, or putting it more broadly, that of city waste and refuse matter generally, takes us back to the days of ancient Jerusalem. As a layman, I, perhaps, should avoid entering upon a discussion of Bible interpretation; but I know that there are Bible commentators who assert that the Valley of Gehennon, referred to in Holy Writ as the place where the "fire is unquenched and the worm dieth not," was simply the dumping ground for that ancient and splendid city of the Jews.

A SANITARY GARBAGE COLLECTION CART.

According to these same commentators, it was to this valley that the garbage and refuse matter of that great city were brought and disposed of by open air incineration. It was also the custom to compel those convicted of crime, presumably those guilty of the minor offenses, to work in the valley tending the fires, which were kept constantly burning, in order, no doubt, to destroy, as thoroughly as possible, the great mass of matter that formed the daily output of a city of that size. This is why, argue these clever commentators, the Valley of Gehennon is referred to in the Bible, in a figurative way, as a place of punishment and torment for evildoers.

In a general way, the term garbage is taken as including any and all forms of household waste. The sanitarian, however, does not class ashes, cinders, tin cans, rags, waste paper, etc., as garbage. True, all these articles go to make up what may be correctly termed household refuse; and all constitute material, the proper collection and disposition of which, should be such as to facilitate to the greatest possible extent its sanitary and economic disposition. And first in the process of collection is the matter of securing a classification or separation at the source of production. It is now conceded by sanitarians who have studied the matter at all, that it is more economical to separate garbage from all other waste material than it is to collect it in mixed form. Separation greatly aids in the disposition of it in a sanitary way. This is true, no matter what the method of disposition may be; it is understood, however, that in our study of the garbage problem the out of date, not to say barbarous dump system is not to be could not be taken into consideration as having anything at all to do with either the sanitary or economic disposition of a city's waste and refuse matter.

It should also be kept in mind that the people have a work to do in helping carry out a public service of this kind. They produce the garbage, and they can and should aid the municipal authorities in getting rid of matter the presence of which is a constant menace to the health of the entire community. The first duty devolving upon the garbage producing citizen is to make as little of it as possible. Next he should aid the city, which assumes the work of removing and disposing of the waste and refuse material, by putting it into as convenient form as possible for collection and removal.

Conceding the correctness of the principles thus far advanced as governing the solution of the garbage problem, a practical and effective scheme of collection might be outlined as follows:

1. The provision by the householder of separate receptacles for the family waste—one for garbage, one for ashes and cinders and one for general rubbish.

2. Garbage to be collected in wagons which hold nothing else or wagons having boxes provided with a partition, by which it can be kept separate from the general rubbish.

3. Ashes and cinders to be collected in wagons used for this purpose alone, as they are easily disposed of and in some localities have a market value, for filling purposes, which should be sufficient to pay for the cost of collection and removal.

General rubbish, being made up of paper, straw, rags, bottles, old iron and metal of all kinds, including tin cans, pieces of carpet, old shoes, mattresses, cast-off stockings, barrels, brushes, twine and many other articles, too numerous to mention, has a value. All of the articles named, when rescued from the common pile and properly assorted, have a fixed market value and are as readily convertible into cash as are government bonds or No. 2 winter wheat.

In many cities matter of this character is carefully picked over at the places of dumping by people trained in the business and who are usually employed by contractors who pay for these privileges. New York, it is said, derives an annual revenue of $50,000 from this source alone. After the picking has been completed, the otherwise worthless rubbish remaining may be incinerated and in this process be made to serve as fuel for municipal lighting and heating plants.

Garbage, proper, however, contains, as a rule, so large a percentage of moisture as to make it both difficult and expensive to reduce it to ashes. Besides, it is contended, that it is far too valuable to be disposed of in this way. In what its value consists and how it is made to yield a revenue is, in itself, an interesting study; but newspaper limitations will not permit its presentation in the present paper

Browsing on Banknotes.

Probably one of the oddest claims ever made against a bank is recorded as having been made against the National Bank of Belgium. An old peasant woman had laid on the grass a jacket containing banknotes of small denomination to the amount of $240 in the pocket, and while she was at work her pet nanny goat had got at the notes, which it had eaten. The beast was killed and the chewed paper recovered from the stomach was submitted in support of a claim for compensation, which the bank paid after verifying the facts by chemical analysis and other inquiry.

Bishop McFaull Visited St. Joseph's Church Yesterday, Said Mass and Confirmed Class.

Right Rev. Dr. James McFaull, Bishop of the Diocese of Trenton, was in the city yesterday and administered the sacrament and confirmation services at St. Joseph's church, to a class of sixty children.

The Bishop, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Norris, Rev. Dr. Tyrell, Rev. Mr. Shanlan, of Stony Hill, and Rev. Mr. Corey, of Carteret, conducted a high mass at St. Joseph's church, at 8:20 and then went to Stony Hill, where he confirmed twenty children in St. Mary's church, returning to Plainfield in time to conduct the confirmation services at 3 o'clock.

St. Joseph's church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Candles burned upon the altar and the chancel was almost covered with cut flowers and palms.

Following the confirmation the Bishop delivered an address to the children. He explained at length the importance of the sacrament, stating that it meant to them, not only obedience to parents but to the church also. Father Miller, pastor of the church, also spoke.

Lutheran Membership Increasing.

The Swedish Lutheran Congregation held communion, yesterday afternoon in Grace Episcopal church. Nine persons, not including children, were admitted to membership. Special music for the occasion was furnished by Aaron Johnson, of the Elizabeth Swedish Lutheran church.

GAVE GAUL'S "HOLY CITY"

CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH CHOIR RENDERED CANTATA VERY ACCEPTABLY.

Assisted by a Chorus of Local Voices —The Large Congregation Was Very Much Pleased.

With the assistance of a large chorus, the choir of the Crescent Avenue church rendered A. R. Gaul's beautiful cantata, "The Holy City" at last evening's service. A congregation which filled the large edifice to its capacity expressed in warm terms its commendation of the manner in which it was conducted.

Most of the singers were familiar with the parts and with the leadership of Herbert Hemingway Joy, the organist, they seemed to bring them out in a sympathetic and intelligent manner. The shading and expression were alike accurate and noticeable. While the service was quite long, it at no time became monotonous as the choruses, solos and other parts were so evenly divided.

The solos were taken by Miss Martha M. Henry, soprano; Miss Grace J. Carroll, contralto; Carl E. Anderson, tenor; Arthur H. Chamberlain, baritone. Assisting in the women's quartette were Mrs. Asa Collier, Miss Julia Ketcham and Miss Alice Carroll. Miss Henry's solo, "These Are They," was delightful as were also Miss Carroll's "Eye Hath Not Seen" and the baritone solo, "Behold I Create New Heavens" allotted Mr. Chamberlain.

The rehearsals of the oratorio and the rendition were in charge of Mr. Joy, organist of the church, who has been untiring in his efforts to make the service a success. He was assisted greatly by the chorus and choir which entered into the spirit with the result that "The Holy City" was never heard better in a local church.

MORE PAY FOR TEACHERS

EDWARD LOVE SAYS THEY ARE DESERVING OF MORE.

Says That They Should be Given Salary Enough for Them to Live Comfortably.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

By the death of Miss Shattuck of the Bryant School, Plainfield has lost one of a noble band of Christian women to whom is entrusted the care of our youth. Beautiful and full of self sacrifice was her life. Her strength, her very life was spent in the effort to do her duty and she did that duty well to the very hour death entered her chamber. As one of her fellow teachers writes, "She has now entered into rest and will never be tired again." Miss Shattuck was one, not the only one who for years has served the city with pure retiring modest life. The passing away of Miss Shattuck, the funeral service, the closed schools, the flag at half mast, all seemed to bring before me that body of good men and women who make up the rank and file in our schools. The public school of the United States is certainly one of the most important branches of the public service. It is neither right nor wise that the salaries of men in that service should be so graded as to bind most of them to a life of celibacy. The salary of the women teacher should not be so graded, that should the slightest claim arise upon her from a mother or sister it is an impossibility to meet it.

To my certain knowledge some of them have often been tired because of cares which should not be laid upon them. The arduous work of teaching, the strain upon the nerves, arising from a continuous effort to keep the children good and to show daily sympathy with them in their life and work is enough. There should not be added the care arising from insufficient support. It is not right that any of our teachers should be compelled so carefully to consider every dollar, yes, almost every cent to provide a home for themselves and to present that decent appearance which our well-to-do city demands of them.

The best tribute to the memory of the dead is to treat the living with more kind and more just consideration.

Edward Love,
229 East Ninth street.

VALUE OF TRUE LOVE

It's a Hard Thing to Estimate It in Dollars and Cents.

Seems to Vary in Price from Thirty Cents to Life Itself—A Few Cases Illustrating the Fluctuations.

No one has yet lived who was able to place a true value upon love. Attempts along this line have been made in the courts by men and women seeking redress for the alienation of affection, but they usually grow fictitious in their estimates and seldom have the satisfaction of seeing their calculations borne out by the votes of 12 jurors. The tendency in such litigation is to rate love at a figure considerably higher than facts will substantiate, and, as might be expected, values vary according to the conditions attaching to each individual case.

There is, however, in Indiana a man who has satisfied himself on this question. Harvey Tallerday, of Elkhart, made up his mind how much his wife was worth to him and without attempting to fix a standard for the guidance of other husbands put a value on her and placed her on the market. She was sold. Mr. Tallerday may have been influenced by the fact that he needed the money, but this condition does not enter into the general proposition of the value of a wife, because when a man is within a few cents of absolute bankruptcy he is apt to realize all he can on whatever he has to sell. Tallerday's available assets were one wife, so when he went home and found her talking to Morgan Gordon he calmly, coolly and reflectively announced that Mrs. Tallerday was for sale and that 30 cents would buy any man the foundation for a home—a wife.

Thirty cents was all that Mr. Tallerday asked for Mrs. Tallerday, because he considered her worth no more than that amount. It happened that Gordon was looking for bargains and it happened also that Mrs. Tallerday was willing to be sold, so the transfer was agreeably made and everybody involved in the incident was satisfied.

But this case, says the Chicago Tribune, is one of the adverse extremes going to prove that there cannot be any fixed value upon love. How unnatural and contrary to all established rules of sentiment such an incident must seem to the heroic figures in a real, heart-consuming romance. While the Indiana man was willing to dispose of his spouse for the paltry sum of 30 cents there are others who go to the other extreme in order to secure a wife. And it must be admitted that stories of the latter class are more in keeping with what the world calls heart interest. Take, for instance, the recent marriage of Miss Ruby Simonds and J. P. Jansen at Clinton, Tenn. In this case love rescued a young woman from the arms of death.

The marriage ceremony itself was a weird affair, but the story attaching to it is full of romance, which began in a Chicago hospital while Miss Simonds was a professional nurse. It was the old, old story. She went to Minneapolis on a visit, met Jansen, and they fell in love. His station in life was not equal to hers and she was afraid to tell her parents of her love affair until she went to Clinton to visit. There she fell ill with typhoid fever, and when fearing death she unburdened her heart and let out the secret. Jansen was sent for and he went south from Minnesota. A speedy marriage was agreed upon, and the ceremony was performed while the girl apparently was on her death bed. But love proved a great restorative, and the moment Miss Simonds became Mrs. Jansen she began to improve. Now her ultimate recovery is assured.

Love must be of some value when it is rated higher than even life itself. Etta Cook, of New Haven, Conn., killed herself in the presence of Alfred Austell, her lover, because he told her he was going away and might never see her again. She didn't want to live without his love, so she took carbolic acid and died.

Another strange case of lifelong devotion came to light recently in Milford, Pa., where George Gledhill, aged 60, and Anna Mayo, aged 76, were united in marriage. They had admired each other from early childhood, yet did not decide to marry until both were old with few years yet to live. After the ceremony was performed they began making [illegible] for death. Within a [illegible] of their house Gledhill had built a mausoleum for himself and [illegible]. The tombs have been prepared [illegible] suitably inscribed with [illegible] bearing the names of [illegible] groom.

Decisive was the victory won at the Republican primaries last night. The forces marshalled by U. S. Senator Kean succeeded in electing 163 out of 222 delegates to the county convention, to be held at Elizabeth tomorrow afternoon, thereby ensuring victory for their candidates, Senator Cross for a renomination and B. Frank Coriell, of this city, for the shrievalty, over City Judge Runyon, of this city, for the senatorial place, and F. W. Coyne, of Elizabeth, for sheriff, who have been supported by the faction headed by Congressman Fowler. There were contests in every part of the city and the bitterness of the fight caused both sides to go to any lengths in the attempt to win.

Out of the ninety-eight delegates in Elizabeth, but one Runyon man was elected. He was chosen in the Ninth ward which was the scene of the hottest fight. In the First ward of that city, two primaries were held but the Cross advocates captured them both. Rahway surprised everybody by giving Runyon nineteen out of twenty-one delegates. Roselle borough also supported him. The fight broke even in Fanwood borough and township. Elsewhere, through the county outside of Plainfield the Kean forces were in power. In Westfield and Cranford, a fight was made against the "regular" organization and it was defeated.

FANWOOD PRIMARIES.

Cross and Runyon Broke Even in Primaries in the Township and Borough.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Sept. 23—The Republican voters met in Excelsior Hall, last night, to elect delegates to the county convention which meets at Elizabeth tomorrow. From present indications the delegates from the township will stand Cross, one; Runyon, two. Johnston and Ball being the Runyon delegates, while Robison will no doubt support Cross. James Johnston and Edw. L. Hand were elected members of the county committee for the coming year.

The borough Republicans held a harmonious primary, only one delegate being chosen, Alfred McKeown being the man. He is pledged to support Cross. Dr. F. W. Westcott was elected member of the county committee. This leaves Cross and Runyon splitting even between borough and township.

DELEGATES TO CONVENTION.

For Runyon and Coyne.....32
For Cross and Coriell.....9

That was the story of one of the fiercest factional fights that ever stirred the Republican party in Plainfield. There were contests in every ward and the vote polled at the four primaries was of record-breaking figures. The attempt of the political allies of U. S. Senator John Kean to break up a solid Plainfield delegation for City Judge William N. Runyon as senatorial candidate was successful. When Councilman B. Frank Coriell entered the race for the shrievalty as running mate for Senator Cross it proved a master stroke, for Mr. Coriell's home ward, the Third, gave him a majority of forty-one, thereby breaking the solid delegation for Runyon.

It was generally understood that the Second ward would be immune from any contest. At the last moment an opposition ticket was sprung but it came too late and the support it received was so feeble that it counted for nothing. It was generally admitted that the hottest fight of all would be at the Third ward primary and it was. It was not until nearly every vote was counted that it was known which ticket had won. In the First and Fourth wards, there were brisk young fights but the "regular" ticket, which was supporting Runyon, had no touble in winning out by comfortable majorities.

As a result of last night's primaries, which were easily the most exciting ever held here, the delegates from Plainfield to the Republican county convention at Elizabeth tomorrow afternoon will be divided according to the figures already given.

FIRST WARD.

At the First ward primary, held in the old U. S. Express Office on North avenue, the Runyon ticket was successful by a majority of 229. There were in all 590 votes cast, of which 407 were straight tickets, and 178 in opposition. There were five tickets rejected, in some cases two tickets being cast together. There was one Fourth ward ticket in the box.

All day the workers were busily engaged in looking after the voters in the ward and before the polls opened at 5 o'clock it was plain to be seen that the vote would be a large one. This belief was strengthened very much after the polls opened for the voting was heavy from the start.

At 8 o'clock a business meeting was held when Horace G. Adams was made chairman. The only business transacted was that in reference to empowering the delegates to fill their own vacancies.

The following ticket was chosen:

Delegates to the county convention — H. S. Taylor, James T. MacMurray, Caspar Steadele, Ralph I. Tolles, Samuel L. Miller, Horace G. Adams, Samuel P. T. Wilbur, Benj. F. LaVere, Samuel P. Case. For members of the county committee, James F. Buckle and David C. Smalley.

The opposition ticket which was defeated was as follows:

For delegates to the county convention—R. F. R. Huntsman, John Rowland, Dr. L. S. Poocock, U. B. Crane, Thomas Kane, Charles W. Hirst, Albert Barber, Adolph Kahrmann, David Thompson. For members of the county committee, Dr. Marc L. Clawson, W. R. Codington.

The election board consisted of A. J. Stiglitz, Davis S. Dunavan and Frank Smalley. It was nearly 11 o'clock when the count was finished, although it could be told at an early hour which ticket would win.

SECOND WARD.

City Judge Runyon's own ward, the Second, came out strongly in his favor at the primary held in the Bryant School building last night. While a contest had been talked of several weeks ago, harmony apparently reigned as the day for the primary approached. At the eleventh hour, an opposition ticket was sprung but it failed to develop any strength and its support was largely confined to a portion of the colored voters.

Although no attempt was made by Judge Runyon and his lieutenants last night to get out any vote, the vote polled was remarkably large. At only one previous primary has a larger number been cast. This unusual interest when it was generally supposed that there was no contest was generally understood to mean an endorsement of Judge Runyon's candidacy by the people of his own ward.

It was not until the polls had been opened for nearly an hour that the discovery was made that there was an opposition ticket on the field. It was watched closely at once. It failed to show any signs of power and so no attempt was made to get out a vote.

More than the usual interest was taken in the business session as it was rumored that an attempt might be made at that time to instruct the delegation for Cross and Coriell. Even if it had ever been contemplated, there were no visible signs of it at the meeting. City Judge Runyon, as a member of the county committee, called it to order and was made chairman. Armstrong Mulford was chosen secretary. The delegation was empowered to fill vacancies and the meeting immediately adjourned.

Many remained about the building until the polls closed at 9 o'clock when all but a faithful few went forth to see how the battle progressed in the other wards. There were 283 votes cast, of which 256 were for the entire Runyon ticket which was as follows:

For delegates to the county convention—Evarts Tracy, Charles S. Foote, Robert H. Cook, Thomas A. Cuming, William Dagnall, Charles C. Davis, Armstrong Mulford, Frederic W. Goddard, Dr. T. S. Davis. For members of the county committee, George P. Mellick, Evarts Tracy. There is no opposition ticket in this ward.

The opposition ticket, which was headed with the name of B. Frank Coriell, was as follows: For delegates to the county convention—M. S. Ackerman, J. van Herwerden, W. F. Hobbie, D. F. Ginna, J. W. Drayton, J. VanWinkle, Rev. E. J. Crudup, C. C. Irby and E. Thames. For county committee, W. H. Drayton and J. van Herwerden. There were twenty-seven of these, all straight.

The primary officers were J. Hervey Doane, judge; W. P. Spangenburg, inspector; W. R. Townsend, clerk.

THIRD WARD.

Every possible maneuovre known to politicians was used in the Third ward to get the voters out and the result was the hottest fight of any ward in the city, with Senator Cross and Councilman Coriell, whose home ward it was, the winner by forty-one votes.

Workers were sent with carrigaes to the farthest end of the city to bring in the lame and the halt while the Runyon faction ran a special trolley car from the West End for the convenience of voters. The crowd at the Casino, where the polling took place, was greater than any seen during an election. Not until each citizen saw his ballot safely deposited did the buttonholers give up their work and it was not infrequent to see three of them around one man at a time.

The moment the counting began it was seen by the large crowd of spectators it was going to be a close fight and their surmises were correct. It was nip and tuck until the first two hundred ballots were recorded after which the Runyon ticket began to drop to the rear, slowly but surely. When the tallying was concluded the poll stood 272 for the Cross-Coriell ticket and 214 for Runyon. The following were the delegates elected: Alexander Gilbert, E. R. Ackerman, Jacob Kirkner, I. W. Rushmore, Charles F. Abbott, J. W. Murray, Jr., Ira F. Randolph, Martin R. Lantz

FIGHTS SEEMED IN FASHION LAST NIGHT

Details of Four Were Aired in the City Court This Morning.

PUNISHMENT VARIED.

SAMUEL TAYLOR AND EDWARD NUTTALL BATTLED IN SILENCE.

Their First Words Were to Apologize—George Ferguson and Louis Lelinger Were Able to Use Their Tongues Freely.

A rough and tumble fight, which was conducted on the lines laid down by the late Chesterfield, landed Samuel Taylor and Edward Nuttall in the city jail, last night.

The fracas started in a local cafe ovre a pool game when Nuttall made a shot that didn't exactly suit Taylor. Without more ado, not even the slightest word, they grasped each other, swayed to the door and fell through. When they reached the sidewalk they exchanged some good hard blows but neither gave vent to a sound. They were taken to police headquarters by Patrolman Vanderweg and placed in the same cell. There they spoke for the first and then only to apologize to each other. This morning each was eager to take the blame but they were so good natured about it and as the patrolman had no additional charge, City Judge Runyon suspended sentence. They left the court room shaking hands.

George Ferguson and Louis Delinger also engaged in a row in a saloon, last night, only their's was the variety that includes all the invectives known to cussiologists. The proprietor ordered their arrest and this morning Delinger was fined $5 and Ferguson was released with a suspended sentence.

A third fight that took place last night had for principals, Harry Bundy and Lewis Randolph, both colored. They were prevented from carving each other by Special Officer James Babbitt who escorted them to cells. Their case was adjourned until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

One of the most frequent juvenile visitors in court, William Roy, better known as Wyckoff, bobbed up all smiles, this morning. He threw a stone yesterday afternoon, which cut a gash in Sam Soleman's head. The smiles changed to tears when the court sentenced him to thirty days until arrangements could be made to place him in an institution.

A fourth fight was recounted when Harry Mattis was arraigned by Patrolman Flynn. He disclaimed being the aggressor but was fined $3 or ten days. Then police are looking for the other fellow.

FRIENDS HELPED THEM.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Henry Celebrated Their Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Emmons Henry, of 440 West Front street, celebrated the twenty-eighth anniversary of their wedding yesterday and last evening a large number of their friends from this city and vicinity called and left their good wishes for many happy returns of the day. The evening was passed in a pleasant social manner, during which there was a programme of music. Before the guests departed refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Henry have a host of friends and they are very popular. The event of yesterday gave them an opportunity to show their appreciation of them by helping to give them a good time and thus make the affair one long to be remembered.

Saw Huge Snake.

While one of the Elizabeth-Plainfield cars was passing the woods just west of Galvin's Park, yesterday afternoon, several of the passengers noticed a large snake which appeared to be at least five feet in length, stretched out alongside the tracks. They alighted, but at their approach the reptile glided away into the underbrush.

Nevins Recovering.

Michael Nevins, the trolley conductor, who was felled to the ground from his car, Thursday, is gradually recovering at his home on Lee place. The crushing blow he received left him dazed for several days but, as the skull was not fractured, he will resume duty next week.

—The price of peaches at Neuman Brothers at this season is remarkably low. They will sell 200 baskets all white fruit tomorrow at a very low figure.

BOY'S HIP BROKEN.

Severe Accident Befell John Day, of Liberty Street, While at Play Yesterday.

John Day, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. James Day, of Liberty street, met with a peculiar and serious accident while at play with companions, yesterday afternoon.

With a number of other boys he was engaged in a rough and tumble football game, when one of the crowd kicked young Day in the side. It was seen at once that he was hurt and he was taken home by some young men who were nearby. Drs. Endicott and Gaston were called and it was found he had a bad fracture of the hip. It was necessary to place the young lad in a cast after the broken parts were reduced.

RECEPTION TO PARENTS.

Teachers at the Randolph-Cooley School Receive and Explain the Courses for Coming Term.

The annual reception to parents of children about to enter the institution was given at the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate School, last evening.

For several hours after the opening, the visitors continued to arrive and enjoyed a survey of the school building. The teachers were in charge and explained in detail the methods of instruction. Shortly before 9 o'clock the guests seated themselves in the main study room while Miss Caroline Randolph outlined the year's courses. Her talk was instructive from a parental standpoint.

RETURNED TO STUDY.

Former Plainfield Woman Taking Course at Bible Normal College.

Miss Emma V. Fish, who has been visiting Miss Minnie G. Morse and Mrs. E. Frank Vail, of this city, has returned to Hartford, Conn., where she is taking a course at the Bible Normal College. The aim of this college is toward the betterment of the teaching in the Sunday-school and the more complete preparation of those who desire to enter the mission field either at home or abroad. Its regular course is three years, but there is a special one year course for those who wish to gain a better working knowledge of the Bible and to become more efficient in the art of teaching it, but who cannot spare either time or money for a long course.

The course embraces four principal subjects: The Bible, psychology, including child study; the principles of teaching applied to religious training, and household economics, invaluable in city mission work. Students from this college are scattered all over this country and a few are working in foreign lands.

DeHart, of 905 South avenue, to Miss Ella Aeonard, daughter of James Aeonard, of Harrisburg, Pa., took place Thursday evening, September 4, at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. John Kohler, Steeton, Pa., in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Gartbart, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Steeton.

After the ceremony and wedding supper, the bridge and groom left for a wedding trip through Pennsylvania. They returned to Plainfield last Thursday and are living at 905 South Second street for the present. The groom is an employe at the Pond Tool Machine Works.

ADMINISTRATORS NAMED FOR FAIRS' ESTATE

San Francisco Call Tells of Issuance of Letters of Administration in Fair Case.

ISSUED SEPTEMBER 15.

THE PUBLIC ADMINISTRATOR HAS WITHDREW ALL CLAIMS.

Letters Issued to Hermann Oelrichs, Joe Harvey and Charles Neal—Details of the Case Which Has Attracted Much Attention.

Further details of the settlement of the Fair estate are given in the following which appeared in the San Francisco Call of September 15:

Judge Cook in the Superior Court this morning issued letters of administration in the estates of the late Charles and Caroline Fair to Hermann Oelrichs and Joe Harvey and Charles Neal respectively.

The hearing of the case was a love feast in every way. Public Administrator Farnham withdrew all objections to the issuance of the letters and filed a written consent to the appointment of the administrators.

In the matter of the estate of Chas. Fair, Attorneys Knight and Heggerty presented a written order from Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs asking that her husband, Hermann Oelrichs, who is now a citizen of this city, be appointed administrator to act for her and her sister, Mrs. Vanderbilt. Accordingly Mr. Oelrichs was appointed and was ordered to give bonds in the sum of $150,000.

At the same time Judge Cook issued an order restraining Oelrichs from removing any of the personal property from the vaults in which it had been deposited by Mr. Fair, without an order from the court. He can merely handle the income until the estate has been finally divided.

In the matter of the estate of Mrs. Fair the appointment of Messrs. Neal and Harvey was requested by Mrs. Hannah Nelson, the mother of Mrs. Fair, who appeared before the court in person. It was stated that in this estate there was an income from realty amounting to $1,500 a year and that all the rest of the property was of a personal nature. Bonds in this case were fixed by Judge Cook in $5,000 each and the same order in regard to the removal of the property was issued.

Public Administrator Farnham was present all through the proceedings and gave his consent to each move made. It is admitted that he would have little chance to prevent the final administration of the property, but it was also said in court that if he so wished he could have greatly delayed the settlement of the case.

Carleton Greene, the attorney who acted for Public Administrator John Farnham, said the suit had been withdrawn for a consideration and that an amicable settlement had been reached with the Fair heirs. What the consideration was Mr. Greene would not state, but said it was a sufficient amount to satisfy all the claims of the Public Administrator.

"If the application of the Public Administrator for special letters to administer on the estates had been granted even today by the court," said Mr. Greene, "he would have but such a short time to serve that the fees he could collect would not pay him for the trouble of carrying on the suit. Had that application been granted or denied in case no compromise had been effected, we proposed to apply for general letters of administration and attack the claims of Mrs. Oelrichs and Mrs. Nelson that they were not residents of this county, and consequently could not act as adminstrators of the estates. We would contend also that Mrs. Fair was the latter of the two to die, and in that case she and her heirs would be entitled to all of the estate of the late Mr. Fair. The compromise made with Mrs. Nelson by the Fair heirs would have no significance in this case. In support of such a contention we could require the testimony of witnesses of the accident, and it might be three or four years before a final decision would be given by the courts.

"The Fair heirs felt that they did not care to have the estate tied up for that length of time, even if the verdict did result in their favor. They were willing to compromise and they named a sum that Mr. Farnham thought reasonable.

"The compromise was effected in the office of Attorney Reuben Lloyd, and the money was paid over to Mr. Farnham this morning by that lawyer acting for the Fair heirs."

A GREAT BOOM HAS STRUCK PHILLIPSBURG

Location of Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company Means Much for That City's Growth.

NOT AN EMPTY HOUSE

TO BE HAD IN THE CITY, IT IS SAID, FOR LOVE OR MONEY.

Drill Works Will be Built Just on the City Line, and Its Capacity Will be Doubled Within a Year —The Details in General.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Phillipsburg, Sept. 23—A boom has just struck Phillipsburg such as has never been known before in its history. It has just been made public that the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company, of New York, will move its works from Easton to the McCormick farm, just on the city line, and will then double its present capacity within a year.

The Ingersoll-Sergeant drill works at Easton is one the largest concerns of the kind in the country, now employing about 1,600 men. It makes air compressors, rock drills and general mining machinery and employs skilled labor at first class wages.

It has been known for some time that the company was crowded for room at Easton and it has been a matter of a great deal of conjecture where the plant would go.

The recent floods swamped the works twice during the last season and made it decide to move immediately, for it lost thousands of dollars in ruined machinery, not to speak of the loss of time.

It is rumored, although officials neither deny nor affirm it, that the firm intends to start a new plant to make Corliss engines If this should turn out to be true that would mean at least 4,500 men in its employ.

Real estate has begun to boom already and an empty house cannot be found for love or money. A large number of houses were put up this summer, but they were taken before the foundations were laid.

There is now talk of making a greater Phillipsburg, so as to take in Firthtown, Delaware Park and Green's Bridge and thereby increase the population by about 3,000, giving these people the benefit of the street lights, fire protection, police control, electric cars and good streets.

A Pittsburg firm is looking for a site for a large steel mill here.

ROAD RESUMES TRAFFIC.

Hudson Valley Railway Strike Seems to Have Failed.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 23.—While the motormen maintain that their strike is still in force on the Hudson Valley railway, the company is gradually resuming its regular passenger service, which was interrupted for over three weeks. Cars are being moved on two of the trolley divisions in Saratoga, Warren and Washington counties, and the full schedule has been in a measure restored on the third section of the 100 mile system.

Waterford, for several days the storm center of mob violence, is now comparatively quiet. Stationed there is Captain John K. Walbridge and thirty men of Company L of Saratoga. They acted as guard to the cars sent to Mechanicsville and Stillwater. There were no riotous acts as the cars and troops passed through the several towns. Several cars were run on the Saratoga division, and there were no incidents of a sensational character. Between Fort Edward and Glens Falls, the northern terminus of the line, regular trips were made during the daylight hours, and there was a large increase in the passenger traffic. All the cars on the system were accompanied by national guardsmen.

At Fort Edward and Sandy Hill, where Company I of Whitehall is stationed, there was no trouble. The strikers still declare they will win.

FOOLISH DOUKHOBORS.

Government Takes a Hand in Keeping Them Alive.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 23.—The reported fanaticism of the Doukhobor colony around Yorktown and their abandonment of their live stock in pursuance of their belief that it is a sin to hold cattle or use any beast of burden to assist in their labor have not only been confirmed, but the government itself has taken steps to rescue the Doukhobors from their folly.

Government agents have seized all the cattle, sheep and horses which were turned at large by their owners, and the live stock will be sold at auction and the proceeds used to provide for the Doukhobors during the winter.

MURDERER IS FOUND

Man Arrested In Derby, Conn., Admits Killing Mrs. Pulitzer.

IDENTIFIED AS W. HOOPER YOUNG.

Prisoner at First Denied His Identity, but Finally Gave Up and Expressed a Willingness to Return to New York.

DERBY, Conn., Sept. 23.—William Hooper Young, for whom the police of New York have been searching in connection with the murder of Mrs. Anna Nelson Pulitzer, has been found. He has admitted his identity and is also said to have made a confession regarding the killing of Mrs. Pulitzer.

In the guise of a tramp he had been wandering about the country for several days when he was arrested by the Derby police on suspicion. Although his description corresponded closely with that sent out by the New York officers, the prisoner at first stoutly denied any connection with the murder, and even when he was confronted with a man who was formerly a fellow workman he still denied his identity. But later upon the arrival of a man with whom he was intimately acquainted the prisoner acknowledged that he is William Hooper Young. He consented to go back to New York without the formality of requisition papers.

It was to MacLevy, a physical culture instructor of Brooklyn, and Detective Sergeant Edward Hughes of New York that the prisoner admitted his identity. MacLevy and the detective on their arrival were conducted at once to the prisoner's corridor in the jail by Chief of Police Arnold and Police Commissioner Atwater of Derby and Detective Sergeant Peter A. Finley of New York. The suspected man, who up to this time had insisted that he was Bert Edwards of Portland, Ore., was taken from his cell and met MacLevy in the corridor.

"Hello, Hooper!" exclaimed MacLevy as soon as the prisoner appeared. There was no response and no sign of recognition from the suspected man. But when MacLevy again saluted him he said calmly, "I don't know you."

"Of course you know me," MacLevy said. Placing his hand on the prisoner's shoulder, he spoke in a low tone for several minutes. Suddenly the prisoner raised his voice, remarking to MacLevy: "You should be sure of your identification. This is a terrible crime for which I am held."

Then at the command of one of the officers Young began to divest himself of his clothing that MacLevy might complete his identification, but before he had finished he was led back into his cell, Mr. MacLevy and Detective Sergeant Hughes accompanying him. Then the officer told the prisoner formally the reason for his arrest and the nature of the crime of which he is suspected. The prisoner then for the first time admitted that he is William Hooper Young. He talked with the officer regarding his return to New York and expressed a willingness to go back at once without requisition papers.

While Detective Sergeant Hughes was talking with Young an acquaintance of the latter, Dixie Anzer of Hoboken, passed by his cell and looked in. Mr. Anzer, who was formerly a business partner of Young, was somewhat in doubt about the identification of Young, but as he went by the prisoner raised his head and exclaimed, "Hello, there's Anzer!"

While Mr. MacLevy's identification of Young and the latter's own admission cleared up all uncertainty regarding the case, the police had been positive for several hours they had the man they wanted.

During the interview with the officers which followed Young's admission of his identity he is said to have made a confession regarding the crime. The exact nature of this confession was not made public. It was said that Young had spoken of an accomplice, but one of the officers when questioned about this replied, "If you say simply that a confession has been made, you will tell the whole story."

Young's Western Career.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 23.—Hooper Young, alleged murderer of Mrs. Annie Pulitzer in New York city, was well known in Portland and other points on the coast about two years ago. For a time a newspaper man in San Francisco, later in the employ of one of the leading business houses of this city, he finally went to Seattle and started a newspaper known as the Saturday Court News, which was suppressed by the officers on account of the obscene publications. While in Portland he was a very studious fellow and carried a Bible with him all the time.

A CALL FOR TROOPS

Strikers Lawless In Lackawanna County.

SHERIFF IS POWERLESS TO CONTROL

Arrest of Disorderly at Shenandoah Accomplished With the Aid of Military—Eleven Jailed at Williamstown.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 23.—Sheriff Schadt of Lackawanna county late last night telegraphed Governor Stone to send troops to his assistance.

The sheriff had just given to the newspaper men a proclamation announcing he would call troops if the lawlessness did not cease when he received a series of telephone calls to quell disturbances up the valley. He found on investigation that the situation was such that he could not cope with it and sent a call for troops. Adjutant General Stewart called the sheriff by telephone at 9 o'clock and had a long conference with him. The adjutant general suggested that a posse of members of the Citizens' alliance be called.

Another day of innumerable petty outbreaks in all parts of the county moved the sheriff to issue his proclamation.

The Oxford colliery of the People's Coal company has shut down on local orders for coal at pre-strike prices. The company is getting $10 a ton for coal at tidewater and proposes to make local consumers pay the same price. The company is turning out 450 tons of coal a day and is getting an average price of $8 a ton for all it can deliver.

The worst of the night's outbreaks occurred at Archbald. A crowd of 200 strikers, mostly foreigners, ransacked the quarters occupied by the forty men employed at the Raymond washery of the Ontario and Western company while the men were at work and afterward met the men as they were returning and drove them back to the refuge of the washery. The mob then returned to the colliery proper, drove out the engineers, firemen, pumpmen and guards and took possession of the breaker. The plant of the Crescent Electric Light company, which is supplied with steam from the breaker, had to shut down, and the whole region around was left in darkness. In the attack on the breaker two men were shot, one a striker and the other a workman. Their names or condition could not be learned.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Miles McAndrew was attacked and shot at by a mob at Olyphant. The steam pipes of the Pennsylvania Coal company's colliery at Old Forge were blown up with dynamite. Two colored cooks at the William A. colliery were rescued by deputy sheriffs from a crowd that was threatening to lynch them.

Excitement at Shenandoah.

SHENANDOAH, Sept. 23. — This town was in a state of excitement for several hours yesterday. Sheriff Beddal and half a dozen deputies arrived in town about 1 o'clock and attempted to arrest the strikers who have been taking coal from mine breaches on the Girard estate. The men resisted arrest, and the sheriff appealed to General Gobin for assistance. The general ordered the Second City troop to the scene to protect the sheriff in the discharge of his duty. Meantime a mob of about 5,000 people had gathered in the vicinity of the breaches. With the protection which the presence of the troops afforded the sheriff's men arrested three coal pickers, but the rest succeeded in escaping. The prisoners were taken to the Pennsylvania railroad station surrounded by troops and followed by the mob, hissing and jeering.

Eleven Strikers Arrested.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 23.—Eleven strikers have been arrested by Sheriff Reiff and deputies at Williamstown, charged with disorderly conduct and brought to Harrisburg. The strikers are alleged to have stoned the homes and otherwise injured the property of the men who are working in the mines at Williamstown. They were committed to jail for a hearing tomorrow before a Harrisburg magistrate.

Troops Ordered Out.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 23.—The Thirteenth regiment has been ordered out. The headquarters of the regiment is Scranton.

THE LABOR PROBLEM.

Hon. Carroll D. Wright Says Decalogue Is a Good Labor Platform.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 23.—Hon. Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor statistics, delivered an address before the national convention of employers and employees here last evening. Mr. Wright took as his subject the question, "Is there any solution of the labor problem?" He said in part:

"The question is not how to kill or to remove the cause, but to soften the struggle. If any effort has proved fallible, it is the attempt to secure good, pure, individual character of statutory enactment. Laws for the betterment of sanitary conditions have wrought many reforms, but they have not touched the heart of the problem. Lessening the hours of labor has proved beneficial, but to a very limited extent.

"As for arbitration, while I am favorable to the system in adjusting differences between nations or between employers and employees, yet I cannot see in it a solution. Arbitration simply means the interference of the public in the relations of the employer and employee. But law has always failed to adjust wages, and its efforts in that direction have done more harm than good.

"The Decalogue is as good a labor platform as any. In religion we find the highest form of solution yet offered. Next to religion comes constructive evolution—that evolution which believes in the potency of effort. The economic man is growing into the co-ordinative man. We are to have a new law of wages, grown out of religious thought. The old struggle was for existence; the new struggle is for a wider spiritual margin. The application of this religious idea is the true solution of the labor problem. The whole question must be placed on an altruistic basis. Man's average conduct is not better than his character. His treatment of his fellows is consistent with his sense of justice.

"Out of this new struggle is growing a new political economy which looks largely to the care and comfort of the men. Religion forecasts the social destiny of man. The remedy may effect a relief, but not a cure. This position reaches into the coming revival of religion which shall hold in its power the church, industry, commerce and the whole social fabric."

Jews Invade Switzerland.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—In a dispatch from Geneva the correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says great indignation has been aroused at Basel, Switzerland, by the arrival there of hundreds of Roumanian refugees who have come in the hope of finding refuge in England or the United States. Most of them are utterly destitute and have no means of proceeding farther on their journey. The Swiss authorities will not allow the refugees to settle in Switzerland because they are destitute. They have been relegated to one common room in the station and are receiving temporary aid from the local authorities.

Great Fire In Turkish Town.

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—The executive officers of the American board have received from Rev. James McNaughton, a missionary of the board's western Turkey mission, a letter, dated Afion Kara Hissar, Sept. 4, giving an account of a great fire there. The city has a population of 25,000. The fire raged thirty hours, destroying 900 dwellings of Christians and 300 Turkish houses. It will be months before building is resumed, and meanwhile the population is in dire distress, more especially the Christians. Mr. McNaughton describes the sanitary conditions as something frightful and fears an epidemic will break out.

Treaties Exchanged.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 23.—The formal exchange of the treaties between Argentina and Chile providing for arbitration and the limitation of armaments took place yesterday amid great ceremony at government house in the presence of President Riesco, the Argentine minister, Senor Portela, and delegates from the diplomatic corps and the local authorities. It is reported that a prompt settlement of the questions in dispute with Bolivia is likely and that it will result in stability to this part of the world.

Elephant Stirs Up Things.

VINCENNES, Ind., Sept. 23.—An elephant on exhibition at the Elks' carnival here went on a rampage and broke through a window at the home of Clarence Duncan, a candy manufacturer. With its trunk the elephant upset a bed on which Mrs. Duncan and two children were sleeping and hurled one child across the room. The elephant then broke down the door of the house before it was subdued by its keeper. Mrs. Duncan is in a critical condition from fright. The child was badly hurt.

Trying to Cross the Great Sea.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—Count de la Vaulx is making a second attempt to cross the Mediterranean in his balloon Mediterranean. He made a favorable start from Palavas, on the coast of France. His destination is Algiers. Five aeronauts accompany the count, and as latest accounts the balloon was twenty-five miles to the southward.

Seven Moro Forts Taken.

MANILA, Sept. 23.—Up to Sunday the force commanded by Captain John J. Pershing of the Fifteenth infantry, operating against the Moros in the island of Mindanao, had met with slight resistance in the Macin country and had captured seven forts, killing twenty-five and wounding twenty Moros. There were no American casualties.

BIG DAY IN DETROIT

President Closes His Visit With a Banquet.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS REVIEWED

City of the Straits, Filled to Overflowing With People, Gives Mr. Roosevelt a Great Popular Ovation.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 23.—President Roosevelt's two days' visit to Detroit came to an end last evening at the conclusion of a banquet tendered him in Light Guard armory by the Spanish War Veterans, the opening of which third annual reunion he attended in the morning. It was a brilliant event. Nearly 800 men sat at tables on the floor of the big armory, and the galleries were crowded to their utmost capacity by brilliantly gowned women and their escorts. The armory was decorated with green and white maple branches, and electric lights were everywhere.

When the president rose to begin his address, which was the first of the evening, he received an ovation. The men on the floor stood up and cheered again and again, while the clapping of hands from the gallery was like the crackle of musketry.

In closing his address the president said:

"I speak in the presence not only of the men who fought in the Spanish war and the Philippine war, which was the aftermath, but in the presence of the veterans who fought in the great war, and, more than that, I speak here in a typical city of the old northwest, of what is now the middle west, in a typical state of our Union. You men of Michigan have been mighty in war and mighty in peace. You belong to a country mighty in war and mighty in peace—a country of a great past, whose great present is but an earnest of a still greater future. The world has never seen more marvelous prosperity than that which we now enjoy, and this prosperity is not ephemeral. We shall have our ups and downs. The wave at times will recede, but the tide will go steadily higher. This country has never yet been called upon to meet a crisis in war or a crisis in peace from which it did not eventually prove equal, and decade by decade its power grows greater, and the likelihood of its meeting successfully any crisis becomes even more assured.

"I preach the gospel of hope to you men of the west who in thought and life embody this gospel of hope, this gospel of resolute and confident belief in your own powers and in the destiny of this mighty republic. I believe in the future, not in a spirit which will sit down and look for the future to work itself out, but with a determination each of us to do his part in making the future what it can and shall be made. We are optimists. We spurn the teachings of despair and distrust. We have an abiding faith in the growing strength, the growing future, of the mighty young nation still in the flush of its youth and yet already with the might of a giant which stands on a continent and grasps an ocean with either hand. Succeed? Of course we shall succeed. How can success fail to come to a race of masterful energy and resolute character which has a continent for the base of its domain and which feels within its veins the thrill that comes to generous souls when their strength stirs in them and they know that the future is theirs?

"No great destiny ever yet came to a nation whose people were laggards or faint hearted. No great destiny ever yet came to a people walking with their eyes on the ground and their faces shrouded in gloom. No great destiny ever yet came to a people who feared the future, who feared failure more than they hoped for success. With such as these we have no part. We know there are dangers ahead as we know there are evils to fight and overcome, but we feel to the full that pulse of prosperity which we enjoy. Stout of heart, we see across the dangers the great future that lies beyond, and we rejoice as a giant refreshed, as a strong man girt for the race, and we go down into the arena where the nations strive for mastery, our hearts lifted with the faith that to us and to our children and our children's children it shall be given to make this republic the greatest of all the peoples of mankind."

In the afternoon President Roosevelt participated in and afterward reviewed the military parade, which was the greatest demonstration of the sort ever seen in the city, with the exception of the G. A. R. parade during the national encampment here eleven years ago. Never were such crowds seen in the streets, and never was a man given a greater popular ovation in this city than the president received.

Escorted by Gilbert Wilkes Naval, commander of the Spanish War Veterans, President Roosevelt, in an open barouche, drove over the entire line of march, nearly four miles. The streets were roped off, and the street cars and all traffic were stopped. From the Hotel Cadillac, which the president left just before 4 o'clock, to the reviewing stand, which he reached two hours later, the chief executive was given a continuous ovation. People were jammed in ten and twenty deep behind the ropes on the entire line of march. A great wave of enthusiasm stirred the shouting, flag waving multitude and marked the advance of the president's carriage along the line of march, to reach a climax at the reviewing stand. The president stood up in his barouche, waving his silk hat at arm's length, in recognition of the people's tribute.

It is estimated that more than 150,000 people were jammed into the streets along which the parade passed.

UNION COUNTY'S PRIMARIES.

United States Senator John Kean has again demonstrated the fact that he is the leading factor in Republican circles in Union county. As a result of his victory at the primaries held throughout the county last night, Senator Cross will be renominated for senator at the county convention at Elizabeth, tomorrow afternoon, and Councilman B. Frank Coriell, of this city, will, in all probability be the shrievalty candidate on the Republican ticket. Thus comes to an end one of the bitterest factional disturbances known in the history of the Republican party of Union county. While the fight may be carried onto the floor of the convention, the result is now a foregone conclusion.

Plainfield has taken a decided interest in the progress of the fight. Early in the campaign, City Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, announced himself as a candidate for the senatorial nomination and was supported by the faction which looks to Congressman Fowler for leadership. Subsequently Fred W. Coyne, of Elizabeth, came to the front as his running mate for sheriff. The next event of importance to Plainfield was the statement made by Councilman B. Frank Coriell, of this city, that he was a candidate for the shievalty nomination. He was paired with Senator Cross by the friends of U. S. Senator Kean.

Had it been possible to pair off the two Plainfield candidates, there would have been no question at all as to where the voters of Plainfield would stand. As they were arrayed against each other on opposing tickets, the independent Republican voter found himself between two fires. Both men are extremely popular and no one could say aught against either one. There were other considerations, however, and they decided the fight. While Judge Runyon was roundly endorsed in his own ward, the Second, and carried the First and Fourth by comfortable majorities, the friends of Councilman Coriell came to the fore in the Third and carried Mr. Coriell and his running mate, Senator Cross, to victory by the narrow margin of forty-one votes. This broke the solid delegation for Judge Runyon on which his friends had been so anxiously counting.

To the politician, the result of the fight at the primaries last night is fraught with much import. To the public at large, however, there was the assurance that, no matter who won, the Republicans of Union county would nominate two able men for senator and sheriff. As it stands now, each thoughtful citizen may retire to his couch tonight with the full consciousness that the men who the Union county Republicans will, without doubt, nominate tomorrow afternoon are perfectly capable of filling the offices for which they have been chosen with credit to themselves and satisfaction to the public at large. Senator Cross has already served in the State Senate with honor and dignity. He has proved himself one of the most able men of that body. As president of the Common Council of Plainfield and deputy county clerk, Mr. Coriell has shown himself an efficient and thoroughly conscientious public official. That he could fill the office of sheriff with equal success, there is no doubt.

The defeat of City Judge Runyon was greatly regretted by a host of friends in Plainfield and other parts of the county. There are few men who are more deservedly popular than he. Although a young man, he has made evident that he is possessed of unusual ability and had he been chosen as senatorial candidate, it is quiet certain Union county would have found him a worthy representative. F. W. Coyne bears an excellent reputation in Elizabeth and would have undoubtedly filled the place of sheriff with success.

The question, which was decided last night, was not really the relative merits of the men on the two tickets but rather the leadership of the Republican party in Union county. The bitterness between the two factions has been steadily growing and it now remains to be seen whether, when the candidates are nominated tomorrow, the victorious and the defeated forces can work side by side or whether the rivalry will be carried to the polls on election day.

That was a great game of baseball which was played in this city Saturday afternoon between the pick of Plainfield's amateurs and Westfield's crack semi-professional aggregation. What little luck there was in the game was on the side of the visitors. Had it been with the Plainfielders, the latter would have won. Such even playing has not been seen here for many a day. The confidence of The Daily Press was perfectly justified by the final results. It was a defeat that no team need be ashamed of. In fact, Westfield has worried more over its narrow escape than Plainfield has over defeat. The general concensus of opinion was that Westfield would win but there were a few who were confident that Plainfield was going to do something. So the result was of the nature of a happy surprise.

As long as the National game continues in popularity in Plainfield, the story of "Jimmy" Montross' great game will be told. He was called out of the grandstand Saturday afternoon to pitch for the Plainfield Consolidated team against Westfield. The semi-professional players could not touch his delivery at all. "What kind of a town is this anyway," remarked one of the Westfielders, "when they pick up such men out of a crowd on the grandstand. Surely they know how to play baseball here." And they do. Just wait until next Saturday at Wesfield.

The Royal Trust Company Bank, of Chicago, which increased the number of its savings accounts by 300 per cent. through advertising in the newspapers, did not draw these new depositors from other banks is the statement made by the Philadelphia Record. Its advertising induced them to become savers, and thus the banking business of the city has been extended. This bank used space in the leading newspapers only—mainly in the four prominent morning papers.

The military arrest of Captain W. Kempton Browning, of Company K, of this city, was a surprise to both those in the company and out of it. The Daily Press was glad of the opportunity, yesterday, of giving in full Captain Browning's explanation of the incidents which led up to his arrest.

Unity Asked to Go.

The members of Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., have extended an invitation to Unity Lodge, of the same order, to accompany them on their visit to Olive Branch Lodge, of Elizabeth, tomorrow evening. The special trolley car leaves the North avenue terminus at 7:30.

—The quality of the peaches being sold by Neuman Brothers continues to be extra good. Tomorrow 200 baskets all white fruit will be offered.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

At the fair, which will be held in the Presbyterian church this fall, a number of novel features will be presented but probably the most novel of all will be the presence of the giant policeman from Asbury Park. He is very tall and is familiar to all who have ever been to Asbury. He is an acquaintance of Rev. N. J. Sproul and will be present as his guest.

An employe at Levering & Garrigue's factory at West Dunellen met with an extremely painful accident while at work yesterday afternoon. His hand became caught in some machinery and before he could release it he received several severe cuts. He was sent at once to Muhlenberg Hospital and it is thought that he will not lose his hand.

At present there is scarcely any coal in town and as there is no prospect of getting any more it looks as if wood would have to be used to a great extent for fuel this winter.

An auction sale of the personal effects of Mrs. Mary Vail will be held September 30. Mrs. Vail expects to move to Pennsylvania.

The Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club held its regular weekly practice liast evening.

William Manning, of Plainfield, spent yesterday with friends in town.

Lewis Tinsman is spending some time with relatives at Port Murray.

Adam Dealaman has been slightly worse during the last few days.

Judge Warden spent yesterday in Plainfield.

NEW MARKET.

An auction sale will be held on September 30, of the personal effects and house furniture, along with some live stock, belonging to W. J. Davis. The sale will be held rain or shine. After Mr. Davis has disposed of all his property here it is his purpose to move to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Nelson arrived home from San Francisco on Saturday evening, after the settlement of the Fair estate. Their future plans are not known.

W. B. Smith has made a contract with Contractor Meeker for four new houses on the Davis property which he has recently purchased.

The Friendship dancing class will resume the fall activity October 7. Ogden Meeker and Charles Wenzel will be in charge.

Whitley, pitcher on the local ball team, pitched a star game for Dunellen Saturday, beating Raritan 7 to 6.

W. B. Smith yesterday took possession of the grocery business which he purchased from W. J. Davis.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Frederick Ivamy had rather an exciting experience at the freight depot Monday afternoon. While unloading freight his horse became frightened at a passing train and started upon a mad run down the track towards Plainfield. Mr. Ivamy was thrown out and bruised. The animal's wild race was brought to a stand still by a section hand, but not until he had traveled nearly a mile breaking the harness and scratching himself quite badly.

Thomas Kane, of Plainfield, was brought before Judge Clark last night charged by his wife with assault and battery. Several witnesses were heard and Judge Clark held the prisoner under bonds to appear before the Grand Jury.

Owing to various troubles during the past week the trolley company's schedule has been upset every day. Cars have run most any way, but considering everything the service has been better than no service.

The local baseball team will take a large crowd of rooters with it on Saturday afternoon when it journeys to Plainfield to cross bats with the St. Mary's, of the City League.

John Miller, who was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital two weeks ago suffering with typhoid fever, is reported as improving slowly, the crisis having been passed.

George Allen, who has been enjoying a weeks' vacation, has returned to his position with the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Company, of Plainfield.

The Ladies' Circle, of the Baptist church, will hold its monthly meeting in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Miss Treat, who has been spending a week with the Misses Marsh, of Park avenue, has returned to her home in Orange.

Harry Lyons, who has been visiting at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Billings, has returned to New York.

Frank R. Allen, of Passaic, has been spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Allen.

Robin Frazee and family have taken possession of their new home on Cook avenue.

The Board of Education will meet in the parlors tonight at 8 o'clock.

John Meserole, who has been quite ill for several days, is improving.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The cool and wet weather has kept the corn fields in a backward state, but although the crop is quite green the farmers say it is ready for cutting.

A notable feature of the pleasant home of R. B. Manning is the adornment of cleamatis and scarlet sage about the porch in front.

R. B. Manning will attend the reunion of the Thirteenth Regiment in Newark, as the guest of Governor Murphy, tomorrow.

Archie Steengraff has been appointed a member of the Republican county executive committee.

Charles Manning, who has been ill and at the Newark Hospital for some time, is much improved.

Mrs. Marguerite Kaine left town yesterday for a visit with friends in Indianapolis.

JOYFUL AGAIN.

That Famous Organization Has Taken on New Life.

The quarterly meeting of the O Be Joyful Club was held last evening in the rooms on North avenue. There was a full attendance of members and the following officers were elected:

President, Bert Clark; vice president, George Aller; treasurer and manager, W. B. Kennett; secretary, George L. Bird; sergeant at arms, Cecil Pittis. After the election of officers, six new members were received.

The club has taken on new life and a successful season is promised. The rooms have been handsomely furnished with new furniture and carpet and everything has been done to make the place bright and cheerful. The club is planning to give a dance in the near future at a place to be decided upon later.

Bird-Randolph Suit Settled.

An amicable settlement has been reached in the suit brought by Fred Bird against L. V. F. Randolph over the small piece of ground owned by the former around which Mr. Randolph laid out his botanical garden on East Front street. Mr. Randolph ended the controversy by purchasing the ground.

May Join Choir.

Miss Clark, of East Front street, will, it is stated, shortly become a member of Trinity Reformed church choir. She sang in the choir last Sunday morning and evening, and the church is making an effort to secure her services permanently. Miss Clark is an accomplished alto singer.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Get in line. Don't delay. Those fine fall suitings that Harry Werner is displaying are too good to last long. They are just the thing you have been looking for—good wearers, fine fitting—but get in line.

One of the best and most complete lines of shoes for men, women and children can be found at John H. Doane's store on West Front street. His prices will compare favorably with those in New York.

Fine furniture makes nice homes. And after all it doesn't need any great outlay to fit homes in excellent shape, provided you do your trading at Powlison & Jones. The line of furniture they have at present is the best in the city.

If you will visit the oriental store on West Front street kept by P. G. DuBois, you will find many things to attract your attention. He carries a complete line of oriental goods, including the best teas, coffees and delicacies, such as you cannot get anywhere else in this city.

It is said that "he who hesitates is lost" and while that may not exactly apply to Fowler's cream, just the same those of you who have hesitated buying are losing a good thing. Fowler's ice cream is used all the year around in every part of the city and is pronounced excellent by all who have tried it.

Mr. Shupp of the firm of Hill & Shupp, has gone this week on a business trip to New York State and Canada, in the interests of the local store. He will undoubtedly secure a line of the best goods for fall and winter. Some of these goods are now being received and before making purchases it will pay you to examine this stock.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—There will be a business meeting of the First Baptist church tomorrow evening.

MARINES AT COLON.

The United States Auxiliary Cruiser Panther Arrives.

COLOMBIAN REBELS RETREATING.

Commander McLean's Action In Disarming Troops During Their Passage Across the Isthmus May Cause Trouble.

COLON, Colombia, Sept. 23.—The United States auxiliary cruiser Panther, from the League Island navy yard, with a battalion of marines on board, has just arrived here. Efforts are being made to secure suitable quarters here for the American marines.

Government soldiers who were captured by General Herrera at Agua Dulce and who were compelled to join his army and who succeeded in escaping have arrived here. They confirm the report that the whole revolutionary army has abandoned its camp near Chorrera and is retreating toward Agua Dulce.

It is reported that Herrera has incorporated in his army all the guerrilla bands he can induce to join him.

The abandonment of the Chorrera camp, it is claimed, dispels all fear of an interruption of traffic on the railroad line and renders it impossible for a battle to occur at Panama or Colon.

Re-enforcements of Colombian troops continue to arrive on the isthmus, which, it is alleged, undoubtedly caused General Herrera's retreat.

TROOPS DISARMED.

Commander McLean's Action on the Isthmus Questionable.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Officials of the Colombian legation here predict that a storm of disapproval will arise in Colombia as a result of Commander McLean's action in disarming the Colombian troops before their passage across the isthmus. It is stated here that Colombia's agreement with the Panama Railroad company specifically provides for the transportation of Colombia soldiers by the railroad when occasion arises, and the commander's action is regarded at the legation here as a direct infringement of Colombia's sovereignty over the isthmus.

Commander McLean in having the troops transported in a separate train from their arms is acting apparently in accordance with his construction of that part of Secretary Moody's instructions cabled on Saturday.

The following is the cablegram from Commander McLean of the cruiser Cincinnati reporting the occurrence referred to above:

"The United States guards and guarantees traffic and the line of transit. I have permitted the exchange of Colombian troops from Panama to Colon, about 1,000 men each way, the troops without arms, in train guarded by American naval force in the same manner as other passengers; arms and ammunition in separate train guarded also by naval force in the same manner as other freight."

Rebellion Collapses.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The following important dispatch has been received at the Colombian legation here from Governor Salazar of the department of Panama: "Rebels have retreated to Agua Dulce. Railway traffic perfectly free. The interior of Colombia completely pacified. Additional re-enforcements reached Colon from Barranquilla. Rebels admit hopelessness of their cause." The legation officials assert that the retreat of the rebels to Agua Dulce marks practically the collapse of the rebellion.

The Trial of Blondin.

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 23.—Hon. John H. Morrison, counsel for Joseph Wilfred Blondin, who is charged with murdering his wife, whose headless body was found in a wood lot in Chelmsford in June, 1901, has received a letter from Attorney General Parker announcing that the trial will take place the first Monday in December. It will be held in Boston, as the authorities are convinced that the murder occurred there. Blondin was captured in New York city several months after the commission of the crime.

Botha Asks Aid For Boers.

ROTTERDAM, Sept. 23.—General Botha, the former Boer commander, in a speech here said he had received $100,000 in aid of the destitute Boers from Arthur White, an American, and appealed to others to follow his example, as the generals' purpose of obtaining further compensation for property destroyed had failed. They had no intention of changing the peace conditions, but they appealed for assistance for the 16,000 wounded, many of whom were incapable of working, and for those who had lost everything.

Naval Board Exonerates Coghlan.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The report of the naval board of inquiry, headed by Rear Admiral Watson, which met at the Brooklyn navy yard last Thursday to investigate the circumstances attending the accident to the cruiser Brooklyn in Buzzard's bay during the recent joint maneuvers has been received at the navy department. The court exonerated Rear Admiral Coghlan, Captain Todd and the Brooklyn's crew from all blame or responsibility for the accident.

Injured by Falling Scaffold.

PHENIX, R. I., Sept. 23.—As a result of the collapse of a scaffolding at a new weave shed of the Hope company's cotton mill, in process of construction here, nine of the twenty bricklayers and helpers who were at work were precipitated thirty-five feet to the ground and were severely injured, two probably fatally.

A REPUTATION.

How It Was Made and Retained in Plainfield.

A good reputation is not easily earned, and it was only by hard, consistent work among our citizens that Doan's Kidney Pills won their way to the proud distinction attained in this locality. The public endorsement of scores of Plainfield residents has rendered invaluable service to the community. Read what this citizen says:

Mr. C. D. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says: "I was a victim of kidney complaint and dreadful backache, so bad in damp weather or when I caught cold that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the troubles. I was at my worst when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster, Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lamb, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

A Few Hints on the Buying and Cooking of Meat.

The proper buying and preparing of meat is a more important subject than most housekeepers seem to think. In the first place, there are certain kinds of meat which are better at certain seasons of the year. Beef and mutton are seasonable at any time, veal in the spring and summer, lamb in the spring, summer and autumn, pork in the autumn and winter. A clear, cherry red distinguishes good beef. Press it with the finger, and if it rises quickly it is a sign of its freshness. Should the dent remain or rise slowly, the meat is inferior. Should the meat be slippery in surface or contain any greenish tints do not buy it at any price. Lamb and mutton ought to be a bright red and veal fine grained and pink in color, the fat white and clear. The flesh of fat animals is more tender and juicy than that of lean ones because the latter contains a greater amount of water in proportion to the fibrin, albumen and gelatin. Of course the nutritive value of meat depends upon these last qualities.

PRESS THE MEAT WITH THE FINGER.

The most expensive cuts are obtained from those parts of the animal where the muscles are but little used, and the meat is accordingly fine grained and tender. The muscles which are used the most are the toughest, but because of the fact that the blood circulates through them more freely they contain more juice and are therefore useful for stews, soups, etc. Although they are less expensive, the nutritive value is equally great.

The proper way to cook meat in order to retain its nutritive qualities is to subject it first to a high degree of heat and then to a lower temperature. The intense heat causes the albumen on the surface of the meat to harden, forming a coating which seals the juices within, and so the inner meat remains soft and tender.

Never stick the fork through meat in cooking, as this allows the blood to escape. When it is time to turn it place the fork in the fat.

MARGARET WELTON.

THE NEW FURNITURE.

It Is Distinguished Chiefly by Its Severe Straight Lines.

There is a distinctly new departure in furniture. I am not speaking now of the "art nouveau," but of something which has branched out beyond it. The "art nouveau" aimed to reproduce the colorings and shapes of nature. Its furniture had arms and legs shaped like branches, inlaying and locks like leaves and flowers. The new furniture has none of those curves. It is built on straight, severe and simple lines. The woods are stained a natural brown or green, with rush bottoms or leather cushions in dull reds, blacks and yellows. The effect of this is quaint, but, on the whole, restful.

The hall illustrated is filled with just such furniture. The colorings are dark green, yellow and brown. The walls are pale yellow. The furniture is of fumed oak. The grandfather's clock has a brass face and a grillwork of brass. The quaint desk has its upper portion arranged to accommodate books, bric-a-brac, etc., and the fittings are of brass. In addition there are a quaint high backed chair, a settle relieved by a gilt beading and a small stand to hold a card salver. The hard polished floor is partially covered with a green rug. R. DE LA BAUME.

AN UP TO DATE HALL.

The Tyranny of Dress.

The tyranny of clothes over the feminine sex is something appalling. The oriental female wore swaddling clothes and a veil. Western civilization took off the veil and added the iron corset and the uncomfortable, high heeled leather shoe. That is practically the only change that has been made in woman's clothes since Jacob collected his cattle, his children, his wives and handmaidens and took French leave of Father-in-law Laban in Bible days. Whether the change is for the better, judge for yourselves.

Self Conscious Little Prigs.

Whatever you do, don't let your girl children be self conscious little prigs, always watching out of the side of an eye to see if other persons are noting their sayings, doings and dress.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Oh, yes, there is!" said I, "I forgot," and Aunt Jane Mary and I looked at each other in silence.

I went about my work sad and silent. When my lower-front came in for her late dinner—everything was belated that day—she asked me if I had got the desk open.

"Yes," said I.

"Oh, that's all right," said she. Then she added, "Who is that thumping round on the floor over my room? It makes me dreadfully nervous."

"No one," said I. I have a proverbially quiet step, and no one ever went to Aunt Jane Mary's room but myself.

"Perhaps it's that new woman," said she.

"I don't think Glorianna had been in there until I came home. Do you mean lately?"

"No, I mean when you were away at the village. It sounded like the tramp of an elephant. If that's going on, I may as well leave at once."

Oh dear! Oh dear! Leave! How could she leave?

"I think I'll go this afternoon. You know you as much as gave me warning this morning, and on that account I need not pay for more than I have had, or longer than I have stayed."

"I was surprised to see you in very animated conversation with the lower-back!" said I, changing the subject to gain time.

"When?"

"As I drove back from the village with the ladies."

"What ladies?"

"Squire Darlington's sisters. They were going to the Hall."

"Were those his sisters?" She asked the question in the most interested manner. "Well, I thought one looked like—but what do you mean about the lower-back? He hasn't come, has he?"

"Why, I saw you talking with him as I drove past."

"Oh, was that your new boarder? Why, I thought he was the locksmith, he looked so shabby. He asked if you were at home, and I told him you were not, and then he asked whom he could see, and I told him there was a giant in the back yard who would answer his questions, and he laughed and ran around the house. Was that really your new boarder? Well, well!"

"The locksmith knew that I was behind him," said I.

"How should your new boarder know that, or how should I? I didn't know where you were. I haven't been at your heels all day."

"Oh, no," said I. "If you had, then you would know a terrible thing that I have to tell you. I really don't know how I am to tell it."

"What can there be so terrible that you——" She suddenly stopped and gasped, and then arose and stood by the piazza rail in a dazed sort of way. She clutched it as she had before, and steadied herself by it. "Go on," she said. "Go on. What can you know—what can you have to——"

Again she looked at me with scared face. She had flushed crimson, as naturally pale persons sometimes do. "Go on."

"I suppose you suspect what it is from my anxiety," said I. "Your money is gone!"

I shall never forget the look of relief that overspread her features.

"Oh!" she said, "oh!" and suddenly sat down and hid her face in her hands. "I thought something had happened to mother or to Waldemar, or the lad. I thought—you can't tell how much you have relieved my mind. Only the money. Please don't frighten me that way again."

"It seemed to me the worst thing in the world."

"Why?"

"Because you might suspect me—or—or some one in the house. I haven't an idea where it is, but I know it's gone."

"Well, it does rather complicate matters. I suppose I'll have to stay until you find it."

"I suppose so, and that's worse than all."

"You're very complimentary," laughed Miss Dacres. "Well, of course you can understand that I cannot afford to go away without my money. I was counting on that to pay my board for ever so long. You can see that, can't you?"

"Yes, I can see that, of course. You don't think for a moment that I have taken it, do you?" I cried, the tears coming to my eyes.

"Your face is as good as a Trust Company," said she, laughing and showing her white teeth. "No, I should never dream of accusing you. In fact, I think it's dreadful to accuse anyone. Have you any plan to go upon?"

"No," said I, "unless I consult the police."

"I wouldn't do that yet," said she. "Perhaps it's only mislaid. My idea is that the old lady above stairs took it to frighten you."

"She couldn't get it," said I. "She can't get out of her bed alone."

"Oh, can't she? Tell that to the marine—I mean, I do not agree with you. She has given me evidence enough this morning that she can and will get out of bed when occasion offers."

"Absurd!" said I. "You don't know Aunt Jane Mary."

"And I'm sure you don't," said she. "What do you mean?"

"Oh, nothing," said she.

"Well, you'll have to remain, I suppose, for the present," said I.

"I'll see about that," she answered. "It depends on how you treat me. I'm sure I'm very good to stay when I hadn't done anything to cause you such distrust of me."

"I must have your room swept tomorrow," said I. "Can you go out for a while?"

"I don't know why my room should be swept to-morrow. I've been here only 24 hours all told. Besides, I don't want that little vixen"—she nodded her head towards the kitchen—"in my room."

"You came so suddenly, and your shoes, you remember, were muddy." I thought she gave an impatient jerk of the shoulders at my remark, but she said nothing.

"No, I can't sweep your room to-morrow, after all. I must go to the funeral. I forgot that."

"Whose? Oh, yes, I know."

At about six o'clock I came down and found the parlor door open and the sun streaming in. Astonished at the freedom of some one, I knew not who, I went in at the door. There I found Mr. Beldon sitting, reading the Star Union. He jumped up as I came in, and stood while I said:

"Are you ready for your tea now?"

"Yes," said he, "that's what I'm waiting for." I preceded him into the dining-room, where a light meal had been laid. He seated himself, saying, "First rate! Just what I like!" and fell to.

"You seem to have got over your horror of my boarder," said I, to make conversation.

"How is that?" said he, looking up quickly.

"Why, when I drove past here this morning, going to the Hall, I saw you apparently in deep conversation with her."

"Was that your other boarder? I thought it was one of the family. I asked her how soon she thought you would get back."

"She said you posed as the locksmith."

"Oh, no! she couldn't have said that."

"Well, she said she thought you were the locksmith."

"That's a different matter. Very complimentary, I'm sure. Now, another cup of that nice tea, and I'm off to old Haight's dungeon. You don't know how he works us fellows."

I saw him run lightly down the steps in the dusk, jump on his wheel, and spin down the road. I went into his room. He had been on the bed, but not in it. I called Glorianna to help me tidy the room. There were bits of newspaper lying about and scraps of letter-paper, with Star Union at the top and parts of articles such as young men write, or as I suppose they write, for the daily journals.

At seven I gave Miss Dacres her supper, and then sat down to rest, but there was no rest for me. Aunt

"DO YOU KNOW THAT GIRL'S A BOY?"

Jane Mary called me. Then I had to settle an argument between Baldy and Glorianna, and by the time I got to bed I was very tired and slept like a log.

I got up early the next morning and went into Aunt Jane Mary's room.

"Do you know what?" said she, sitting up in bed, the rabbit's ears sticking up in apparent exposition of the horror of her soul.

"Do I know what?"

"Yes, do you know what? That girl's a boy."

"What girl? Glorianna? How absurd! Why, we've known Glorianna——"

What Has Become of the Famous Cyclists of a Few Years Ago?

WHAT has become of the great cyclists who, a few years ago were the subjects of columns of newspaper talk? A field more fruitful in interesting reminiscences than this one once possessed by the world's famous pedalers cannot be found. Freshness is given to incidents in the life of M. A. Hollbien, the great Cuca cup English rider, by his latest exploits in cycling to swim the English channel. Hollbien a decade ago, with Shorland, electrified thousands of spectators with his terrific 24-hour bicycle grinds. He swims for eight or nine hours at a time in the angry waters of the channel, buffeting tide and waves and the press of the world gives him attention. He has forsaken the bicycle path for good.

What of Willie Windle? Like Billy Sunday, the once famous baseball player, Windle has become an evangelist and religious papers tell of his good deeds, of the souls he has saved and how he finds time for his business—he's a commercial traveler—to engage in preaching in tents and halls. Be it said to Windle's credit that his labors in the evangelistic field are entirely gratuitous. Once there was a time when he would not "turn a wheel" unless there was a rich prize in sight.

And famous "New Jersey Skeeter," Arthur A. Zimmerman, who in his prime, as a rider traversed a mile in 2:05 and got into the line light of international favor. "Zimmy" is a moniface now in his native state, but may break out again as an attraction abroad, where he was one of the best drawing cards the path has ever known. In his day on the path he had tandems, "trips," etc.—human pace—but never had the benefit of gasoline motors until recently he essayed to follow motor pace and reduced his mile record to 1:49.

Then there was Harry Tyler, who ten years ago was regarded as one of the best riders in the world. "Gentleman Harry" was his sobriquet. He is now said to be a "gentleman farmer" down in New England. Old devotees of cycling will recall his sportsmanlike action in the mile open championship in 1893, when "Pye" Bliss, his great rival, slipped a pedal when near the tape and Tyler beat the little fellow out. Tyler refused to take the honor and insisted that Bliss would have won but for his accident. Bliss refused to take the first prize, and for a time the racing board had a championship on its hands. Finally after pressure was brought to bear on Tyler he took credit for the victory.

The Taylor family was great in cycling a few years ago. It is still prodigiously "aggressive" with its well-known representative, "Majah" Taylor, the colored rider who holds the mile record of 1:19, and who has worked his way up into exclusive Bay state families by his courage, his education, his refinement and his steadfast purpose to remember the Sabbath day and not race, although in France, where he made a lot of money, he could have signed a valuable contract to appear only Sundays on the Parisian courses.

George F. Taylor, who held the mile record for a long time—2:11, I think it was then—is a prosperous dentist in a thrifty Massachusetts city. Occasionally he goes to the cycle races to cheer on his namesake, the speedy colored lad. Edouard Taylor, the MILE-A-MINUTE MURPHY.

French rider, is somewhat eclipsed now, but no one doubts that the boy who rode a mile in 1:35 and startled his countrymen, has not gleaned plenty of francs from his avocation. He may be seen any pleasant evening in one of the boulevard cafes in Paris sipping his refreshing drink and smoking a long cigar. A genuine "boulevardier" he must have means to support such a luxury.

Then there was Johnny Johnson, undoubtedly one of the most versatile men the cycling world ever possessed. He is a merchant in the northwest and Minneapolis people—some of them—delight in recalling the days when "Johnny made this and that record." Johnny was a cyclist who made money for himself and a reputation for a manager. And the latter has continued during all of these years of hard knocks for the pedaling game, to make a comfortable livelihood out of the business. As a skater, swimmer and salesman, Johnson was a success. He invented a racing skate that is used generally in the big races, and it is said that the Johnson idea has even gained a foothold in the old country where skaters adhere fondly to the old-fashioned "rockers."

Arthur Gardiner, another of the galaxy of stars, has retired from the business and is a prosperous dealer in automobiles. It is said that Gardiner realized his ability to ride and felt so keenly certain defeats alleged to have been brought about by "team work" against him that he quit riding in disgust.

Herbie Githens also has gained a mark in the automobile business. He was a rider of no small courage and many a cyclist found him hard to beat. Art Lumsden, one of the most tireless pedalers of his time on the path, went over to England and "got in on the ground floor" in a rubber business and is said to be very wealthy.

That veteran prize and medal winner, N. H. Van Sicklen, whose jersey used to "groan" under the weight of the many medals he had won in his racing career, and the man who early developed high powers of conducting cycling shows and business deals, will not ride a wheel again unless somebody dares him to pilot a bicycle in the old-timers' New Year's day race. He has an important place in the guidance of a subordinate branch of the wire trust. "Old Van" was particularly proud of his amateur standing and never sold a clock, piano, a watch, a horse or anything of that nature won as a prize. But the veteran says that when he once won a barrel of flour he was tempted to put it up for a raffle but changed his mind upon seeing a hungry boy press his nose against the cycle store window. Rushing out he found out the boy's name and address and soon a sorrowful widow found her larder enriched by 196 pounds of winter wheat flour.

Tom Cooper, than whom no bicycle rider has received more newspaper adulation—and his picture was printed regularly in the big "ads" of a famous bicycle house—cares nothing about the appointment of a receiver for the bicycle trust or the deterioration of the cycling game. He is wealthy, and annually takes long trips into the gold hills of the far west to inspect his mines. And before he got a reputation as a great rider he was a drug clerk in Detroit. It is said that he once dispensed prescriptions for the magnificent salary of $5 per week. After getting a fair financial start out of the cycling path he invested funds judiciously in local corporation stocks in Detroit and soon got on "easy street." Eddie Cannon Bald, who used to read the percentage list of the speed merchants, has essayed to ride again this year after a long absence from the path. But contrast his winning of a third—two per cent. in the championship table—with his former accomplishments and you may soliloquize on the shelving of a former wheel favorite.

Earl Peabody, whose exploits as an amateur rider took him to the topmost round, is in the railroad business. His sporting inclinations lead him to bowling and he has gained considerable substantial reward in that line. Gus Steele, another rider who "burned up" the track, also is a bowler and has prospered by reason of the development of that sport.

"Mile a Minute" Charles Murphy is not satisfied unless working at some hazardous task. Since he gained distinction by riding a mile on his bicycle behind a railroad train in :57 4-5 seconds, he has been hurled from his wheel while following equally fast pace and has joined the Greater New York police force. Connected with Deputy Commissioner Ebstein's office in Brooklyn he has startled the scientists by making some assertions regarding airship navigation. He thinks he can become a worthy successor to Santos-Dumont, who was not at all pleased with the reception American capitalists gave his plans for future experiments in this country. No air machine can go too fast or ascend too dizzy heights for "Mile a Minute" Murphy.

There are many others of the "old-time" class, but they have passed into semi obscurity. Jimmy Michael, the "Welsh Rarebit," who might have been a millionaire, has tried the turf and the path and he is not a success. Still others are working in shops and offices contented to think of the old days when money "came easy" and went as rapidly as did the opportunities for getting permanent wealth.

KEAN SWEEPS THE COUNTY

and Emil Woltmann. The members of the county committee elected were William T. Kirk and Robert Rushmore.

The election board consisted of Albert I. Littell, Charles W. Runyon and George B. Wean.

FOURTH WARD.

The largest vote in the history of the Fourth ward was cast at the primary held in Reform Hall last evening. There were 886 tickets cast in all.

The fight was spirited from the start and not until the polls closed at 9 o'clock did the workers cease their labors. That the "machine" got in its good work was evidenced by the overwhelming defeat of the opposition ticket. The Runyon ticket was given a majority of 357. There were 614 "regular" tickets voted and 257 opposition tickets. Two tickets were thrown out and there were thirteen split ballots. Of the thirteen, four were Runyon tickets and nine were Cross tickets.

The colored people figured largely in the voting in this ward and for some time it was a question which ticket they were voting. Judging by the majority given the Runyon ticket, it is certain that the colored people supported it to a large extent. From the hour the polls opened until they closed there was a large crowd around Reform Hall, and it seemed as though the voting would never end. It started in briskly and a continuous line of voters made the rounds during the four hours the polls were open. There was little or no trouble. After the first 200 tickets were counted there did not seem to be any doubt but what the Runyon ticket would win. It was only a question of majority.

Assemblyman Newcorn called the business meeting at 8 o'clock and Fred Firstbrook was made chairman and Freeholder William A. Westphal secretary. The only business considered was that relative to giving delegates power to fill their own vacancies. The meeting did not interrupt the voting and adjourned promptly after transacting the small amount of business before it.

The election board was composed of William Newman, Fred Huff and Harry C. Runyon.

The successful ticket is as follows:

For delegates to the county convention—William C. Peck, James Chamberlain, James Stewart, John Owens, E. E. Jackson, C. L. Murphy, W. A. Westphal, H. D. Thompson, Frank D. Randolph, Fred Firstbrook, John Morton, Nathan D Pollard, Garrett Dunham, John Bowman. For member of the county committee, William Newcorn, Frank H. Smith and James Morrison.

The ticket which met defeat is as follows:

Cross and Coriell ticket, for delegates to the county convention—Henry Liefke, Herman Weber, Daniel Galbraith, Charles Shelton, Arthur Venable, D. S. Pound, Edward Maynard, J. Sachar, Richard B. Norwood, James Martin, Edward B. Ryder, Frank R. Vanderhoef, John H. Bear, Abram Angleman. For members of the county committee, Herman A. Weber, Daniel Galbraith and Abram Angleman.

Six New Members.

Six new members were received into the Crescent Avenue church, a week ago Sunday.

John Lewis, of New York, is a guest of Mayor N. B. Smalley, of Mercer avenue.

C. S. Guion, of LaGrande avenue, who has been very ill for sometime past, was much worse yesterday, being unconscious nearly all day. This morning he was slightly improved.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. Randolph.

The Scotch Plains team comes to this city, Saturday, to cross bats with the St. Mary nine. It was to have been the second game but owing to rain, the first was postponed indefinitely.

Cooney's two slides in his efforts to get around the bases, Saturday, are still the talk of the local baseball world. They were the longest seen on the field this season and surpassed anything he ever did like it before.

Robertson, the former Yale man who pitched Saturday's game for Westfield, will not be in the box for the second game the coming Saturday. The team's former pitcher, VanZandt, who is at present pitching in the Connecticut State League, has been communicated with and will do the twirling.

CONTRACTOR GOETSCHEUS IS READY TO SIGN THE CONTRACTS.

He Will Practically Rebuild the Entire Structure—Will Do It in Five Months.

Within the next few days, William H. Goetscheus, a general contractor of New York, will sign the necessary papers and begin at once the re-construction of the Babcock building. With the exception of the iron work, which will be done by Levering & Garrigues, of West Dunellen, he will re-build the entire structure.

The new plans call for many improvements over the ruined building, notably the location of a large open court in the center, hot and cold water throughout, the use of white marble in the main entrance and the whole to be of strictly fireproof material. All work will be done without changing to any great exent the exterior appearance as it was known. Goetscheus has given his bond that the work will be completed within five months after starting.

EASY VICTORY FOR POLICE

They Defeated the Policemen From Elizabeth in One-Sided Game Yesterday Afternoon.

THE SCORE WAS 21 TO 7.

Second Time the Local Police Nine Has Smothered the Baseball Efforts of the County Seat Force—Fairly Even for Five Innings—Then They Were Left Behind.

Yesterday afternoon's baseball game between the Elizabeth and Plainfield police teams, demonstrated one fact, and that is, that the former is not in the same class with the locals. It was the second time the two had met this season and in both contests the locals walked all around the aggregation from the county seat. The first time the visitors were defeated by a score of 21 to 4 and yesterday they got the wrong end of a 21 to 7 tally.

Somehow, the Elizabethans didn't really know themselves, the visitors managed to stay with their opponents until five innings had been played. Then of a sudden they were left far the rear and every member became so disheartened that with one accord they resolved to play no more than seven innings and they carried out their determination. In the fifth Plainfield tallied twelve runs without half trying. Every man that went to the bat connected with the first ball Ward threw and every one sent the sphere in the distant parts of the outfield. Charley Flynn made a clean three bagger, McGinley landed a two base hit and Conroy, who has a reputation for two baggers, did some great base running. "Carrie" Higgins tried hard to emulate Cooney's wonderful sliding act to second and did plough up the ground in great shape, but unfortunately he was tagged out. Ward was taken out of the box in the sixth but his successor, Rabig, wasn't much of an improvement.

Winn was not in his usual form and struck out but eight men and allowed three hits. He was either a little erratic in his curves or else the visiting batsmen were bewildered by them as he hit four men. One of the best plays on the opposing side was made by Third Baseman Ulrich who caught a red hot fly straight from the bat. This will probably be the last game between the two teams, this season.

After the contest, victors and vanquished journeyed to the Waldorf Hotel where they partook of an elaborate supper prepared by Mine Host Windham. When the viands were disposed of a social hour was enjoyed, vocal selections and whistling solos by "Buck" Ward enlivening the occasion.

Following is the summary of the game.

SUIT OVER RIG.

Owner Claims That Man Who Hired It Roughly Treated It.

Mrs. Emira Roberts has brought suit against Joseph Tronolin, of this city, to recover $25 that being the amount claimed in damages to a rig hired by the defendant recently. Tronolin, accompanied by John Vetromile, of the West End, started out with the rig for a drive of two hours about the city. Instead they drove to Newark and during the time they were away, it is claimed, the buggy was damaged considerably. One wheel was wrecked and the wagon was otherwise damaged. Mrs. Roberts offered to settle for $3.75, but the defendant refused to pay that amount, hence the suit. Assemblyman William Newcorn represents Mrs. Roberts.

CAPTAIN FOR COMPANY K

TALK OF CAPTAIN WM. B. MARTIN, OF ELIZABETH.

He Will Accept Charge If Company Wants Him and Colonel Will Let Him Go.

Now that Captain W. Kempton Browning has resigned as captain of Company K, there has been considerable talk about a successor. The name of City Judge William N. Runyon was mentioned but Judge Runyon has taken the same stand that he did when the company was first organized and declared that it will be simply impossible for him to accept. The possibility of getting Captain William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, has also been suggested.

Captain William B. Martin is one of the most prominent figures in the National Guard. He was a lieutenant previous to the Spanish War and was made battalion adjutant during that war. When the Guard was reorganized he was chosen captain of Company I, Second Regiment, of Elizabeth, but afterwards resigned and was made inspector of rifle practice of the Second Regiment. He has long been famous as one of the best shots in New Jersey. Last year, he won the Wimbleton cup and is a member of the crack New Jersey rifle team.

Captain Martin was approached on the subject and said, "If Company K decided they wished me and the Colonel decided to let me go, there is nothing that would please me better than to be captain of such a company. With the material that is in it, it would be possible to do almost anything."

As a drill master, Captain Martin bears a very high reputation and he is also well liked by those Plainfielders who have met him.

GOING TO BRUNSWICK.

Warren Engine Company Decides to Parade There and Go in a Special Car.

A special meeting of the Warren Engine Company was held last night. The report of the committee on the Atlantic City firemen's parade, in which the local company participated last month, was read, showing that a balance of $14.05 of the funds collected at that time remains in the treasury.

It was decided at the meeting that the organization should take part in the New Brunswick firemen's parade to be held October 7. The local company will journey to New Brunswick at 7:30 in the morning in a special car. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps will accompany them.

—Silas Yerkes, of East Sixth street, has moved to New York city.

DIFFICULT TASK IN BUILDING NEW BRIDGE

How Jersey Central Will Accomplish This Feat Without Delaying Travel.

PLAN OF NEW BRIDGE.

PRESENT DRAW TO BE REPLACED BY ROLLING LIFT BRIDGES.

Will Work on One Track at a Time and Thus Part the Bridge is to Remain in Use for Travel All the Time.

What is to be probably one of the most intricate pieces of engineering attempted in this section is the building of the new Newark bay drawbridge on the line of the New Jersey Central between Bayonne and Elizabeth.

The present drawbridge (217) feet long) comprises two seventy-five feet openings at right angles with the thread of the channel. It is proposed to replace this structure by two Scherzer rolling lift bridges, placed back to back, and so arranged that either can be operated independently of the other. Each of these new spans will give a clear opening eighty-five feet wide, and as there is no smoothing-iron extending either side of the bridge, there will be no possible obstruction to vessels in passing. Seven concrete piers will support the new draw and those to support the most westerly lift will be erected immediately. When this portion of the work is completed the western lift will be placed, and the old draw will be put out of commission, work on the easterly span will then be taken in hand.

It will be necessary to raise the elevation of the present tracks two feet in order to work on the superstructure, and it is this operation upon which work has been commenced. Massive caissons will be sunk and the piers will be constructed on a foundation of piles, stone and cement. This will necessitate the abandonment for a while of the east bound tracks, but when the new grade is established traffic will be diverted thereto and the work of bringing the wseterly track to the same grade will be undertaken, after which there will be little or no delay to travel.

The two opening of the new bridge are further apart than in the present structure, although both in the main channel (which is wide at this point), so that the draws can readily be used for passing in opposite directions without interference by one vessel with another. The proposed bridges can be lifted either singly or together, as may be required. It is not expected that it will take more than half a minute to raise the bridge under ordinary circumstances, and for smaller craft very much less than this.

The management of the New Jersey Central has so arranged matters that the delays incident to the change will be as slight as possible and every influence will be exerted to expedite the completion of the work.

CRAMPS AND WHISKEY.

Combination Was Too Much for the Sufferer Who Prescribed for Himself.

Not wishing to go to the expense of a doctor, Frank Marquardt prescribed for himself, yesterday, when he became attacked with cramps. He thought whiskey would drive the trouble away, but not being well up in medicine he was at a loss as to how much would be required. To make sure he took several drinks, and then lost all account of the number and the cramps also. Patrolman Vanderweg found him wandering about Park avenue last evening and took him in tow.

This morning, Marquandt told City Judge Runyon the cramps were still with him, but that he would seek other remedies if he was let go. On that condition sentence was suspended.

RESIGNED AND WEDDED.

Two Important Events in the Career of An Somerville Pastor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 24—Rev. Frank A. Smith has resigned as pastor of the Baptist church here to take effect November 1. He has accepted a call to the church at Haddenfield. Mr. Smith has been here ten years and his congregation regrets very much to lose him.

Last evening he was married to Miss Blanche Voorhees, of this place, daughter of the late Rev. Henry Voorhees, of North Branch.

FOUNTAIN MOVED.

W. C. T. U. Drinking Fountain Will be Placed Near City Park.

The public drinking fountain, which was erected on North avenue opposite the railroad station by the W. C. T. U. and Loyal Legion, has been removed to West Eighth street where it will be stationed in front of the city park. As already known the merchants on North avenue continually objected to the fountain on the avenue, and the street committee for some time was searching for a suitable spot for it. The place selected is a good one and will no doubt prove a blessing to man and beast. It will be put in position this week.

Ceremony Took Place at the Home of the Bride at Somerville Last Evening.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 24—A brilliant social event was the wedding last night of Miss Blanche Angeline Voorhees, daughter of the late Rev. Henry V. Voorhees, of North Branch depot, to Rev. Frank A. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist church, which took place at the home of the bride on Cliff street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. Preston Searle, of New Brunswick, and Rev. E. T. Tomlinson, pastor of the Central Baptist church, of Elizabeth.

The bridemaids were Miss Jennie T. Voorhees, sister of the bride, and Miss Anna L. Smith, sister of the groom. They wore Persian lawn trimmed with lace and green ribbon. The bride's gown was of white satin sorano, trimmed with white chiffon and Brussels point lace. She wore a veil of tulle and carried a shower bouquet.

The best man was Rev. Charles H. Knowles, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Flushing, Long Island. The ushers were C. M. Tremmaine, of New York, and John V. Martin, of Newark. The guests were received by the mothers of the contracting parties and Mrs. Samuel Birdsall, an intimate friend of the families.

After the ceremony there was a reception at which abundant refreshments were served. The couple left for a three weeks' tour.

Rev. Mr. Smith, who is secretary of the State Baptist Educational Society, has been pastor here for ten years, but on Sunday he resigned to take a larger charge at Haddonfield.

BEST RECORD.

Company M's Last Year Has Been Most Successful in Its History.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 24—This season Company M. of this place, regardless of the stories that were circulated to the effect that it would be disbanded, made the best record it has since its organization fourteen years ago. Captain Wehrly and Private Hooey qualified as experts. There are eleven sharpshooters and sixteen marksmen.

The company has now been recruited to the full number allowed by law and there is no reason to think that it will not hereafter rank well up with the other companies of the Second Regiment.

Stabbed With Wagon Shaft.

A horse, belonging to Joseph Randolph, of Elmwood place, had to be shot yesterday as the result of a peculiar accident. The animal became frightened at a passing train, and while Mr. Randolph was endeavoring to get him under control, one end of the shaft penetrated the animal's foreleg. A veterinary was sent for, but upon examination it was learned that nothing could be done to save the beast.

Street Repairing.

Park avenue, between North avenue and Second street, is being repaired in conjunction with the work of improving North avenue. A top dressing of stone with a little binder has been spread over the surface and is now being rolled down.

CAUGHT BETWEEN THE TRAINS

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH EXPERIENCED BY TWO PERSONS.

Were About to Board Car When Blue Line Express Bears Down Upon Them—Penned In.

William Craig, of Dunellen, and a young woman friend barely escaped sudden death at the Grant Avenue station, Monday evening, as they were about to board the 7:10 train. Presence of mind on Craig's part was all that saved them.

As they crossed the platform the thick, black smoke from the stationary engine hid from view the approach of a Royal Blue express. They were directly in its path when the locomotive burst through the smoky pall almost upon them. Craig forced his friend ahead of him against the standing train just the express swept by. They managed to secure a grip on one of the cars and by so doing prevented themselves from being whirled off their feet by the rush of air.

Both were terribly frightened but escaped without the least injury. The occurrence was witnessed by the crew of the west bound train, but they would have been powerless to prevent their being struck.

PASTOR CADWELL TO LEAVE

PASTOR OF THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, WESTFIELD, RESIGNED.

Goes to a Church at Denver, Col.—Has Been Pastor in Westfield Twenty Years.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Sept. 24—Rev. Newton W. Cadwell, who has been the pastor of the First Presbyterian church, this place, has resigned to accept another one with the Hyde Park Presbyterian church, of Denver, Col. He received the call to the western church on July 28, and has just decided to accept it. When Mr. Cadwell made the announcement last Sunday morning there was a large congregation present and the announcement was received with the deepest regret by every member of the church.

At the close of the sermon Sunday morning, Mr. Cadwell gave a brief history of the twenty years' work in the church of which he has been pastor. During the first year of his pastorate in this church there were 117 new members received during a revival. He said that he had no hard words for anyone, that he had done his best to keep the church at peace. Mr. Cadwell stated that his resignation would take effect two months hence.

The history of this church dates back to 1720, when the parish was first settled. When Mr. Cadwell came to the church the town had no street lights, sidewalks and few roads. The retiring pastor has been requested to preach a historical sermon before he leaves Westfield and it is quite likely that he will make it a farewell discourse.

TO INVESTIGATE AUTO ACCIDENT

Somerset County Grand Jury Was Instructed by Court to Find Who Was to Blame.

AUTO SCARED HORSE.

Ran Into Carriage and Killed Mrs. W. V. Snyder, of Newark, at Bernardsville — Three Millionaires on Grand Jury—A Number of Licenses Were Granted.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 24—The Grand Jury sworn at the opening of the Somerset County Courts here yesterday morning was a remarkable one in many respects. Three millionaires, Harley Fiske, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Evander H. Schley and C. Ledyard Blair, all New Yorkers who have built palatial houses in Bernards township, were on the list; also Dr. Henry M. Weeks, of the New Jersey State Village for Epileptics and Abram A. Cortelyou, president of the American Livestock Breeders' Association. Those from North Plainfield were Andrew Lutkins, Andrew Love, Sr., and Thomas R. Taylor.

In his charge to the Grand Jury Justice Garretson said that the accident in Bernardsville which resulted in the death of Mrs. W. V. Snyder, of Newark, should be thoroughly investigated. She was sitting in her carriage at the depot when a team that had been frightened by an automobile crashed into her vehicle, throwing her out.

He said it was the jurors' duty to find out if this auto was running at an ordinary rate of speed, or if in a reckless and careless manner. "If you find that the machine was run heedlessly it is your duty to indict the one who was driving it for manslaughter."

It has since been learned that a Mr. Watson and a woman friend who were stopping at the Somerset Inn were riding in the automobile.

The following licenses were granted: Hotels—Frank Linke, Smalleytown; Ellis M. Handville, Martinsville; John H. Graceley, North Plainfield; Henry E. Walters, Bernardsville; John Burns, Raritan; Emma M. M. Laury, Somerville; M. H. Rupell, North Branch; D. B. Hoffman, Kingston; Oscar Vleit, Gladstone; A. R. Holcombe, Neshanic; Frank T. Wiest, Mt. Bethel. Saloons—Wm. M. Hanon, Raritan; John Fazekas, Bound Brook; Rafael Pizzo, Bound Brook; John Cagnassola, Raritan. Wholesale — Jacob Miller, Somerville.

MASTER CLOCK.

Placed in Western Union Office and Regulated by Telegraph.

Manager C. H. Schermerhorn, of the Western Union Telegraph office, has received a new master clock which will soon be placed in the telegraph office. The one now in use is rather small and has been doing duty for a number of years, hence the advisability of a new clock. This clock is synchronized and every hour it is set by telegraph from Washington.

At 12 o'clock noon it is not only set from Washington, but it sets all of the other Western Union clocks in this city. At five minutes to 12 o'clock, and every second up to the noon hour a signal is given on the telegraph key. This marks off the exact seconds so that there may be no mistake in the time.

Thousands of clocks all over the United States are set in this way and it is next to impossible to have the wrong time.

HOW 'TWAS EARNED.

One of the Features of Endeavor Social at Park Avenue Church.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold a social tomorrow evening. A number of pleasing features have been provided, in addition to which Hiram Jones, of Bristol, Conn., will entertain the audience in his characteristic style. Not long ago the society pledged $25 toward church expenses. The members have been earning this money in their own way, $1 each. On Thursday evening they will tell in verse how the money was earned. In each case the poetry will be original and will afford plenty of amusement.

LITERARY.

Settling down for the winter, getting one's home and wardrobe in order, catering for the family, beautifying the home and incidentally a few, good, complete stories are features of the October issue of The American Queen; which magazine is considered the best 50-cents-a-year monthly publication issued anywhere in the world. Its fashion department is unexcelled, practical and beautiful. Office of publication, 31 East Seventeenth street, New York.

The Century Magazine is about to print a series of articles by Prof. Justin H. Smith, of Dartmouth College, author of "The Troubadour at Home," covering the story of the Canadian campaigns of Montgomery and Arnold in the first year of the Revolutionary War,—what the author calls "The Prologue of the American Revolution." Professor Smith has undertaken to do his work, as far as possible, from original sources of information, and he has personally gone over the routes of Montgomery's troops from New York to Quebec, and Arnold's from Boston to the same point. He has given special attention to Arnold's expedition through the Maine woods. The first article, which will appear in the November Century, covers Montgomery's Montreal campaign. All of the papers will be richly illustrated.

The October issue of "Success" is a welcome one, for it offers a wide range of reading matter that is highly representative of the progress of American matters. The list of contents this month contains a number of prominent names, notable among them being that of Henry Cabot Lodge, United States Senator from Massachusetts, who provides an interesting and valuable discourse on "Good Citizenship," a subject which the growing youth of the United States cannot know too much about. John R. Spears, who has written many interesting articles of the sea, contributes an instructive paper entitled "Farming the Ocean," in which he describes how Uncle Sam keeps the ocean stocked with fish for food, and the methods employed in their protection. Robert H. Thurston, of the faculty of Cornell University, contributes an article of intrinsic worth, entitled "How American Captains of Industry Are Made." Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick has pleasingly described how Betty, a charming young bride, entertained her first guests at a "high tea." Mrs. Herrick gives many valuable hints to the inexperienced housekeeper, and tells how one may be hospitable without being extravagant. Among other valuable and timely articles are "Psychurgy," (an interview with Elmer Gates,) by Emily Lee Sherwood; "Why Women Study Law," by Mrs. Theodore Sutro; "How to Become an Honest Millionaire," by Robert Waters; "A Devoted Slave," by Rufus Rockwell Wilson; "The Evolution of the Sleeping Car," by Cy Warman; "The Light of the Future," by Hudson Maxim; "The Heroism of Coal Miners," by F. A. Smink, and the "Making of an Orator," by Henry M. Dowling.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

M. B. Huff, of East Somerville, whose thrilling experience some month ago in an encounter with tramps is still an exciting theme of comment in Somerset county, and who has since had an exciting time in dodging other hoboes who were going to kill him to prevent him from testifying against their companions in jail, ran the gauntlet of superstition last week by celebrating his thirteenth wedding anniversary. About thirty friends gathered at his residence and spent an enjoyable evening with dancing, music and refreshments. The fact that John Clark, one of Huff's alleged assailants, had escaped from the Middlesex County Jail just previous to the celebration, and was reported to be travelling in the direction of Huff's home, did not disturb the host's peace of mind or the enjoyment of the evening, although it was rumored that a special officer had been placed on guard outside of the residence.—Newark News.

THEATRICAL.

On October 6, at the Academy of Music, New York, there will be presented by Frank McKee, a new play entitled, "Ninety and Nine," written by Ramsay Morris, and which on this occasion will have its first production on any stage. The title of the piece it is hardly necessary to say, is identical with that of one of the best known, most cherished, and as many have found most helpful hymns in the Christian world. It was made famous by Evangelist Ira D. Sankey, who composed the music for it, and who, to quote his own words, has sung it to millions of people throughout the world, during the remarkable series of revivals held by him and the late Mr. Moody. That Mr. McKee's presentation of this play, which bids fair to be one of the most stupendous productions yet seen on the New York stage, will attract widespread attention from regular theatre patrons, there is no question. It is equally without doubt, that a play inspired by Mr. Sankey's appealing, and at the same time, strikingly dramatic hymn, will bring into the playhouse an element not usually found there, and which will be drawn by the guarantee that Mr. Morris's "Ninety and Nine" is a tremendous sermon, unfolded through the medium of a powerful dramatic story, and treating with the greatest reverence Mr. Sankey's hymn, which figures in a most impressive manner, during the course of the play. This production will be awaited with an unusual degree of interest.

In continuance of his usual policy Mr. Keith inaugurates the fall and winter season by the importation of the leading foreign acts. For the coming week the headline position on the always excellent bill at his Union Square Theatre will be occupied by the Miles Stavordale Quintette, the greatest novelty in the way of musical act ever seen in this country. These people produce with their stringed instruments such a wonderful imitation of the human voice that it is sometimes difficult to persuade the audience that the effect is not produced by ventriloquism. There is, however, a standing reward of $250 offered to anyone who can discover any hidden chorus or ventriloquism in connection with this act. Second on the bill are Charles E. Grapewin & Company, who present their farcial sketch "Above The Limit," one of the most laugh-producing offerings ever seen in New York. The three marvellous Merrills, comedy bicyclists, one of the best acts of its kind in the business; Montrell, the juggler, and his comedy assistant; Joe Maxwell & Company, in a unique comedy sketch "The Fire Chief," which introduces special scenery showing the interior of the New York Fire Department Headquarters; Hedrix & Prescott, in their dancing specialties; Rice & Walters, the acrobatic comedians; Klein & Clifton, in a comedy sketch; Alburtus & Miller, club jugglers; Satanma, the Japanese wire walker, and a score of other first-class acts figure on the programme of the Union Square. Noon to 11 p. m., 50 cents.

A QUARTER CENTURY OF SILK BUYING MEANS SUPREMACY IN SILK SELLING.

THE SILK MAKERS are producing some wonderfully pretty silks at popular prices. Only a few years ago silks that are today within easy touch of women of ordinary means were a luxury which only women of wealth could think of possessing. What would have been an extreme novelty then is now commonplace. And the variety of patterns and colorings is so stupendous that the average buyer entering the wholesale markets is simply bewildered.

Here is where our buyer has an advantage over many. He has been buying silks for the patrons of this house for more than a quarter of a century. He knows the markets thoroughly. He knows silks from A to Z—his finger tips are a true guide to quality. Equipped with this knowledge, and knowing accurately the demands of the people of this vicinity, he is better able to select silks that will give fuller satisfaction than those less experienced.

The Fall stocks are not yet full ready, but there's a generous assortment of new silks here, and we will be glad to show them to you any time you come.

You will find here the largest variety of fine goods in the State. Every fashionable weave finds representation in the stock. There is nothing good missing.

Combined with this excellence of quality and variety of design and weave is the W. V. Snyder & Co., system of low prices. Unlike other good class houses we do not exact exorbitant profits. PRESIDENT RETURNS

Goes Under the Knife at Indianapolis.

ABSCESS RESULT OF RECENT ACCIDENT

The Bruise Received at Pittsfield Proved to Be More Serious Than at First Reported—Case Is Not Alarming.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 24.—President Roosevelt has been forced to abandon the remainder of his trip to the northwest and to undergo a surgical operation. The accident which befell him at Pittsfield, Mass., when a trolley car crashed into his carriage is responsible for the sudden ending of the president's trip and his being compelled to undergo the operation. In that accident his knee was badly bruised, and an abscess soon formed which gave him some trouble, but not enough at first to interfere with his plans.

The hardships of his present trip, however, aggravated the trouble, and Dr. Lung, his official physician, together with Dr. Richardson, who accompanied him on the trip, thought it advisable to consult other doctors. Accordingly Drs. Oliver and Cook were called to the Columbia club, where the president was entertained at luncheon. They decided that an operation was necessary and that it should be performed at once. The decision was arrived at before luncheon, but was not allowed to interfere with that meal. At the conclusion of the luncheon Secretary Cortelyou issued the following statement to the press:

"As a result of the trolley accident at Pittsfield, Mass., the president received several serious bruises. One of these on the left leg between the knee and the ankle has developed into a small abscess. The president is entirely well otherwise and has continued to meet the several engagements of his itinerary, but in view of the continuance of the abscess and out of an abundance of caution Drs. Oliver and Cook of Indianapolis were requested to meet Dr. Lung, the president's surgeon, at Indianapolis, Dr. Richardson of Washington being also one of the number.

"In the opinion of the doctors the trouble necessitates an operation, which they think should be performed at once at St. Vincent's hospital, in this city. As after the operation the president will require entire rest, probably for at least ten days or two weeks, it has been necessary to cancel all the remaining engagements of his trip, and he will go directly from Indianapolis to Washington.

"The physicians say that the case is not in any way serious and that there is no danger whatever. This statement is made so that no false rumors may disturb the people and that they may be authoritatively advised of the exact nature of the case."

The announcement came as a startling surprise. The president is in such good health otherwise that it was hard to believe he was about to submit to an operation. He had delivered an address earlier in the day before the Spanish-American War Veterans and also had addressed the citizens of Indianapolis from the balcony of the Columbia club. He was the picture of health, and many comments were made during the early part of the trip upon how well he looked. It was noticed, however, that he walked with a slight limp.

The president was driven from the clubhouse to St. Vincent's hospital, where he was taken to a private operating room. He was accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou, Assistant Secretaries Loeb and Barnes, Governor Durbin and Senators Beveridge and Fairbanks. It was about 4:15 o'clock when the doctors began the operation. It was performed by Dr. John Oliver, assisted by Dr. Cook.

The operation was finished and the president was removed to his room. He did not take anæsthetics. The president is cheerful.

The hospital was guarded by a detachment of twenty soldiers, all of whom served in the Spanish-American war, under the command of Colonel Russell B. Harrison. Colonel Harrison was instructed to arrange with the sisters in charge of the hospital that no information as to the president should be given out by telephone.

At the conclusion of the operation the physicians authorized the following statement:

"As a result of the traumatism (bruise) received in the trolley accident at Pittsfield, Mass., there was found to be a circumscribed collection of perfectly pure serum in the middle third of the left anterior tibial region, the sac containing about two ounces, which was removed.

"The indications are that the president should make a speedy recovery. It is absolutely imperative, however, that he should remain quiet and refrain from using the leg. The trouble is not serious."

At 7:45 o'clock last evening the president, accompanied by members of his immediate party and escorted by a company of infantry, was carried on a stretcher from St. Vincent's hospital to his car, and the train left a few minutes later for Washington.

The president's train will run on a slow schedule of about thirty miles an hour and is due to arrive at Washington at 6:30 o'clock this evening. He will be taken to 222 Jackson place, where the temporary executive offices are located. It is learned that the determination to abandon the trip was reached Monday, and notices to this effect were sent out from Detroit and yesterday from Indianapolis to those interested in the plans the president was to visit. No inkling of this decision was made known to the members of the president's party on the train, excepting to his physicians and secretaries, until Secretary Cortelyou issued his announcement.

The president did not speak to Dr. Lung, his official physician, of the pain in his leg until a few days ago. The pain became so intense that it was decided to take no further risks by continuing the trip.

The president regrets exceedingly that he has been compelled to abandon his trip. He has received a large number of telegrams of condolence.

President Roosevelt was the guest of Indianapolis for four hours. The special train bearing the presidential party arrived shortly before noon. The party was driven directly to Tomlinson hall, where he addressed the Spanish-American War Veterans now holding their annual reunion in this city.

Immediately after the speech at Tomlinson hall the presidential party entered carriages and was escorted by a military parade to the Columbia club, where, after a brief rest, the party sat down to luncheon.

When the president appeared on the balcony accompanied by Senator Fairbanks, who introduced him to a crowd of 15,000 or more gathered around the Soldiers and Sailors' monument, the enthusiasm was unbounded. It was several minutes before the president could speak. His remarks were necessarily brief. He congratulated the people of Indiana on the completion of the great monument erected in commemoration of the soldiers and sailors who had given their lives for the preservation of the Union.

His speech in the main was eulogistic of the dead heroes of the civil and Spanish-American wars.

President Roosevelt's 7,000 mile tour that he has just abandoned with startling suddenness commenced on Friday morning last. The fact that it commenced on Friday will probably be again pointed to by the believers in omens who harped on the fact that the trip during which occurred his narrow escape at Pittsfield also began on Friday and ended disastrously on the thirteenth day of his New England trip.

All Washington Surprised.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The illness of President Roosevelt and the consequent abandonment of his western trip came as a total surprise to everybody in Washington. Secretaries Moody and Wilson both had planned to join the president this week and accompany him for a time. Now, however, that the president is returning to Washington Mr. Moody will postpone his visit west until the time for his address before the Marquette club of Chicago, which engagement he will keep. An official report of the president's condition came to the navy department from Dr. George A. Lung, the surgeon who was detailed to accompany the chief executive on his trips. It was addressed to Rear Admiral P. M. Rixey, chief of the bureau of medicine and surgery, and in his absence from the city its text was not made public. Dr. John F. Urie, the assistant chief of the bureau, and who for a time was detailed to act as physician to the Roosevelt family, took the report to Secretary Moody. It was very much in accord with the statement issued by Secretary Cortelyou from Indianapolis. From the information at hand Dr. Urie is of opinion that the president will be all right in a very short time. Such wounds as that described are apt to be more painful than serious. The doctor thought from his present information that a rest of a week or so would cause the wound to heal nicely and the cause of the disturbance to disappear.

WAR AGAINST MOROS.

Position at Macin Too Strong For Present Attack.

MANILA, Sept. 24.—Captain John J. Pershing of the Fifteenth infantry, operating against the Moros in the island of Mindanao, has found the Moro position at Macin, island of Mindanao, to be strong and has delayed his attack on it. He must throw a pontoon bridge across a swamp and possibly receive re-enforcements before engaging the enemy.

The captain made a reconnoissance close to the Moro position and found a fort on an elevation close to the lake shore, flanked by swamps, virtually making the promontory an island.

The Americans built rafts preparatory to attacking the Moros from the lake and then decided to bridge the swamp and make an attack from all sides.

The sultans of Macin regard the position as impregnable and have refused to treat with Captain Pershing.

Brigadier General Samuel S. Sumner will send the Moros an ultimatum demanding peace and the return of stolen property. If his demands are rejected, the place will be assaulted.

Captain Pershing has carefully examined the position and its surroundings and is confident of his ability to capture it without serious losses.

Young In the Tombs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—William H. Young, grandson of Brigham Young and self confessed murderer of Mrs. Anna Pulitzer, has been locked in a cell in the Tombs. He was brought from Derby, Conn., the town where he had been captured, by Detective Sergeants Finlay and Hughes of the detective bureau. At the Grand Central station a large crowd had assembled to see Young, and it was with considerable difficulty that the police got him to the carriage that was in waiting.

PACING RECORD EQUALED.

Dan Patch Comes Up to Star Pointer's Race at Readville, Mass.

READVILLE, Mass., Sept. 24.—Dan Patch, the famous pacer, went against the world's record of 1:59¼, made by Star Pointer on the Readville track five years ago, yesterday afternoon and in a truly magnificent performance equaled the record.

Depending upon memory, it seemed to horsemen who saw Star Pointer's performance that the conditions yesterday were identical, and that meant as near perfect as a day could be.

Dan Patch was brought out for a warming up mile with a runner as pacemaker. Without an effort he went the distance in 2:13. Half an hour later the handsome black pacer came out for his trial against time.

As in the other mile a runner was sent out ahead. No time was lost in scoring, and Myron McHenry nodded the first time down for the wire, and a hundred watches caught the start. The pacer had his stride from the word, and there was not a skip for the whole mile, his legs moving with perfect regularity. It was not until the third quarter that every one felt convinced that the record was in danger. Up the stretch came the pacer, beating out the runner and flashing under the wire a worthy mate for Star Pointer, his time being 1:59¼. Driver McHenry was wildly cheered.

Major Powell Dead.

HAVEN, Me., Sept. 24.—Major J. W. Powell, director of the bureau of ethnology at the Smithsonian institution at Washington, is dead at his summer home here. He had been critically ill here for some days. Major Powell had been placed by scientists in the foremost rank of the geologists and anthropologists of the world. He had been identified with the scientific work of the government since the early sixties. Major Powell's most notable scientific work, from the viewpoint of scientists here, was his exploration of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado in the sixties. His fellow workers say that he was not only the first man who ever went through the Colorado canyon, but the only one who so far ever has traveled its entire length from Green river station to the mouth of the canyon.

Secretary Root at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 24.—Secretary of War Root arrived here Monday, but the newspapers and people generally did not know it until yesterday, when it developed that the secretary had been inspecting the different sites offered in this neighborhood for army posts. Neither Senator Fairbanks nor Senator Beveridge was aware of the presence here of Mr. Root. The secretary refused to discuss the conclusions drawn from his visit. The secretary of war was in consultation with the president in a private room at the Columbia club before luncheon and again later.

Finnish Liberty In Danger.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times, referring to the new ordinances soon to be promulgated by Russia in Finland, says they will completely destroy all Finnish liberty. Unless the czar interferes, it says, at the last moment to prevent this new coup d'etat Finland will be struck off the roll of European nations and degraded into a mere province of a semioriental empire.

Trolley Strike Wanes.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The company has increased its car service in Washington, Warren and Saratoga counties, and many of the trolley cars on the Glens Falls division were run without accompanying national guardsmen. Captains Walbridge, Mott and Dennis, who are in command of the troops, reported late last night that there were no sensational incidents on the line of the road during the day.

DISORDERLY MINERS

Troops May Be Needed In Wyoming Valley.

LAWLESSNESS ON THE INCREASE.

Lackawanna Region Becomes More Quiet Following Arrival of Thirteenth Regiment—Soldiers Called to Lebanon.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 24.—If the lawless outbreaks in the Wyoming region continue, Sheriff Jacobs will undoubtedly follow the example of Sheriff Schadt of Lackawanna county and call upon Governor Stone for troops. Several squads of deputy sheriffs have been kept busy suppressing disorders. Last evening five carpenters employed at the Conyham mine of the Delaware and Hudson company while on their way home were held up by a crowd of men and boys. The carpenters discharged their revolvers in the air, which brought a large number of coal and iron police to their rescue. The officers fired a volley into the air, and the crowd fled. A stray bullet from one of the deputy's guns lodged in the shoulder of a boy named James Roland, who was at work in the yard of the Sheldon Axle works, some distance away. A deputy named Joseph Kessler was arrested, charged with the shooting, and was committed to jail for a hearing.

Unknown parties placed several sticks of dynamite under the house of Joseph Harrison, at Plymouth, but a timely discovery prevented the explosion.

Two nonunion workmen at Plymouth were held up and beaten. Twenty-five deputy sheriffs went to Warrior Run to quell a disturbance there in which nonunion men were attacked.

At Hughestown, near Pittston, a crowd of men derailed a train carrying a number of nonunion workers to a washery. The engine and two cars left the track, and two men sustained slight injuries. A number of coal and iron police dispersed the crowd.

President Mitchell, District President Fahy and National Board Member Fallon discussed the latest phase of the strike situation yesterday, but the only one who would talk was Mr. Fallon. Mr. Mitchell declined to make any comment on the placing of troops in the Lackawanna region. Mr. Fallon said the strikers had nothing to fear because additional troops were stationed in the strike region. The ranks of the strikers, he said, remained intact in the Schuylkill region in the presence of the troops, and they would remain firm in Lackawanna too.

TROOPS GUARD IRON MILLS.

Workmen Have Been Idle For Five Months.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 24.—General Gobin, who is in command of the troops in the hard coal strike region, has been ordered by Governor Stone to send the First battalion of the Twelfth regiment to Lebanon to assist the sheriff in preserving the peace where the iron and steel workers of the American Iron and Steel Manufacturing company have been on strike for nearly five months. The battalion, which has been on duty at Shenandoah ever since the troops were sent there, left that town at once for Lebanon in command of Colonel Clement. The troops reached Lebanon last evening.

A delegation from Lebanon called upon the governor and requested that troops be sent to that city, where rioting occurred among the strikers. After consultation with Adjutant General Stewart and Attorney General Elkin the governor ordered General Gobin to send the First battalion of the Twelfth regiment to the relief of the sheriff.

Troops Preserve Order.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 24.—The calling of the Thirteenth regiment had a quieting effect upon the riotous strikers, and this section has been comparatively free of lawlessness since. The only serious affair occurred at Olyphant, a short distance from the camp of the soldiers, an hour after their arrival. Two brothers, Bert and Charles Lundon of Jefferson township, while on their way to work at the Temple company's Lackawanna colliery were ambushed and shot down in the road. Bert is probably fatally wounded. The other received only a flesh wound and will recover. The calling out of the troops had no apparent effect on the strike situation proper. No new collieries opened up, and the companies reported that there was practically no change. They expect, however, that with protection assured many men will return to work.

Movement of Coal.

READING, Pa., Sept. 24.—The Philadelphia and Reading Railway company brought but twenty cars of coal from the Schuylkill regions yesterday. Officials claim to be taking out a great deal more coal in the collieries of western Schuylkill county, but they say it will not be moved until the latter part of the week. Twenty cars of coal were brought down on Monday.

Nonunion Man's House Burned.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 24.—The home of John Sherman of Nuremberg, a nonunion pump runner employed at the Derringer colliery of Coxe Bros. & Co., has been burned to the ground. Sherman and his family had not been living at Nuremberg since he returned to work.

Macedonian Insurrection Growing.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 24.—Advices from Macedonia show that the insurrectionary movement there is increasing. The railroad and telegraph lines are damaged in many places.

WHAT WILL BE THE OUTCOME?

What will be the outcome of this fight for leadership among the Republicans of Union county? Monday evening's primaries only served to give added interest to the subject but an answer seems just as far off as ever. U. S. Senator Kean won a victory but it only served to widen the breach between the two factions and intensify the bitterness which already existed between the partizans of the two sides. Heretofore the rival factions have been content to do battle in the primaries and then sink personal differences to work together for the ticket which happened to be nominated. If some of the leaders in this city were in earnest in the remarks they made after the primaries were over Monday night, then this year will see the factional fight carried to the polls.

At present, Union county is normally Republican. The Democrats are gradually recovering from the severe blow they received during the Bryan free silver campaign and each year sees them making a better showing. If the dissension in the Republican ranks grows large enough, it does not require any great ability to see the inevitable result of it all. The county will become Democratic. Once Democratic it may be some time before the G. O. P. can recapture it.

It any political party, no matter which one it is, persists in employing methods such as were used in Plainfield and all over Union county Monday night, it is bound to lose the votes of many reputable men who will become disgusted with such tactics. It was not confined to either faction. In the wild desire to win, even respectability was forgotten at times and methods employed which completely disgusted every fair minded person that saw them. Such a course will just as surely have the opposite of the desired effect. Instead of gaining votes by questionable methods, many more votes will be lost by the feeling aroused against such a course.

This factional fight is directly responsible for this state of affairs. Its continuation will mean ruin for that party. The happenings at the county convention at Elizabeth this afternoon will be watched with special interest for then it will undoubtedly be demonstrated how wide the breech is today.

The Elizabeth Journal printed a report that Company K, of this city, was likely to disband on account of the trouble in which two of its officers are now involved. Such a thing is furtherest from the truth. Even if the two officers should be found guilty, as many do not believe, the company would continue its career. Although the youngest company in the Second regiment, it has shown its superiority over the other companies of that regiment and it will take a far greater obstacle than that to stay its successful advance.

Business men, observes the Philadelphia Record, have spoken of newspaper advertising as "the life-blood of trade" and "the nervous system of commerce." Among the majority of business men it is considered as much a part of the production and distribution of articles as are the materials and machinery in which money is invested. Every day the importance of newspaper advertising increases.

Just as surely as Assemblyman William F. Hall is renominated for the lower house of the Legislature by the Republicans of Union county, he will be met with defeat. Mr. Hall's record at Trenton is one that has turned against him many Republicans who supported him in the past. While they will support the rest of the ticket, they have declared their intention of knifing Hall at every opportunity.

Most voters have not realized the fact that Plainfield elects a mayor at the November election this fall. Mayor O. L. Jenkins has filled that office very acceptably and there is more or less talk among his friends of persuading him to stand again.

Robertson, the Yale twirler, is not good enough for the Westfield team and that contingent is going to bring back its old pitcher from the Connecticut State League to face the Plainfield Consolidateds Saturday afternoon.

If Councilman B. Frank Coriell should not desire to be returned by the Republicans of the Third ward this fall, it is quite possible that Dr. F. C. Ard may be settled upon as a candidate.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS ORGANIZE

THE BOYS DEPARTMENT BECOMES A FORMAL ORGANIZATION.

Officers Were Elected and Committees Appointed at a Meeting Yesterday Afternoon.

The younger members of the Y. M. C. A. held a meeting at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and perfected an organization to be known as the boys' department. The object of the organization is to encourage among the boys the athletic, social and religious work of the association.

These officers were elected: Francis A Anderson, president; Raymond M. Guinn, vice president; Martin B. Stutsman, secretary. Hudson Burr was appointed chairman of the membership committee; Martin Dewey chairman of the athletic committee; Theodore Gavett chairman of religious work; Gaston Nash chairman of the committee on rooms; and Arthur VanArsdale chairman of the social committee.

The various committees will meet at an early date and perfect plans for the coming season. Seventy-five boys belong to the new organization. A constitution and by-laws have been adopted.

Several witnesses were sworn and upon motion of Lawyer Francis J. Blatz, the complaints against Allen and Lederer were dropped. The case then hinged upon the veracity of witnesses as to whether Moore and Wilhelm used insulting language. After hearing the case Judge Clark concluded that the evidence produced would not warrant a conviction so dismissed the complaint.

The local baseball team will hardly know what it feels like to get into a uniform again. Owing to the weather no games have been played since the Y. M. C. A. game at Plainfield nearly three weeks ago. But the rooters are looking forward to one more game when the team goes to Plainfield Saturday afternoon to meet the St. Marys.

SMASHED HAND-CAR.

Engineer of a West-Bound Train on Jersey Central Failed to Look Out for the Hand-Car.

Shortly before 6 o'clock last evening train No. 15 on the New Jersey Central, running west, crashed into the hand-car belonging to the Fanwood section.

The section gang, which is in charge of James Hannan, had been at work along the track near Graceland and, after loading the tools on the car, started for the section house at Fanwood. The car had travelled but a short distance when the westbound train loomed up in the distance. Hannan ran back with a red light, but the engineer failed to see the signal soon enough.

The car was badly wrecked and the tools were scattered in all directions. Fortunately the men had left the car and no one was injured.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Foss & Jeter, the Park avenue seafood dealers, want every lover of oysters to try their bivalves. They have an unusually fine flavor. Their fish supply is received direct from the nets every day.

Charles L. Stanley, the florist, has branched out and taken another store adjoining his old store on North avenue. This was made necessary by the increasing trade. The display of flowers is well worth seeing.

Powlison & Jones, the hustling furniture dealers, are receiving their shipment of new goods and a good opportunity is offered those who want to refurnish their homes. There is no better stock in the State than at this store.

The borough may feel proud that it has such a well-appointed pharmacy as the one conducted by John Powers on Somerset street. For anything in the drug line go to this store and you will find it. Prescriptions are carefully and accurately compounded on short notice.

There are many kinds of confections which sell simply on their name, while the material used is no better than in those less known. The material used by Campbell, the confectioner, is absolutely pure and equals the best made. This is also true of the ice cream made by Campbell.

Just at this season of the year there are many things that need to be placed in the family medicine cabinet. Why not have Nagle, the West Front street druggist, do the supplying? His prescription department is one of the best in the State and he has all the standard preparations. As to prices, compare them with others.

J. W. VanSickle, of North avenue, has had years of experience in the meat business and when he purchases supplies he is perfectly competent to select only the best. His market is a model of neatness and he never sells anything but the choicest cuts of mutton, beef, veal and lamb. Orders telephoned will be carefully filled.

During the past few weeks a number of families have had trouble with the milk they have been purchasing, and it is only a question of time when this kind of milk will be barred from Plainfield. Wm. Lindsay & Son, of Mountain avenue, sell certified milk, which is produced under the very best known hygenic methods. Every one of their customers is a satisfied one.

ONE MORE CHANCE.

Oliver Peel Before the City Judge, But Promised to Reform.

Oliver Peel, a young lad known as an irrepressible by the police, faced City Judge Runyon, this morning, on a charge of playing "hookey" from school and also throwing stones at passersby from the top window of his home. He readily came out with the familiar promise to be a better boy and was let go with the solemn assurance that it as his last opportunity to keep out of jail.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

WORLD APPEALED TO

Boer Generals Ask Help For Their People.

BRITISH AID IS INSUFFICIENT.

The Small Amount Given by Great Britain if Multiplied Tenfold Would Not Cover War Losses Alone.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—The Boer generals Botha, De Wet and Delarey have issued a manifesto in the shape of an appeal to the civilized world. This document recalls how after the terrible struggle in South Africa and the Boers were compelled to accept the British terms of peace the generals were commissioned to proceed to England and appeal to the new government to allay the distress which is devastating the colonies and in the event of the failure of the mission to appeal to the civilized world for charitable contributions.

Continuing, the generals say that, having failed to induce Great Britain to grant further assistance, it only remains for them to address themselves to the people of Europe and America.

After setting forth how sweet it had been during the critical days they had passed through to receive constant marks of sympathy the generals take this opportunity to express on behalf of the people of the late republic fervent thanks to all those who had assisted charitably the women and children in the concentration camps, prisoners, etc. "The small Boer nation," goes on the manifesto, "can never forget the help it received in its dark hours of suffering. Our people are completely ruined. It has been impossible to make a complete inventory, but we are convinced that at least 30,000 houses on Boer farms and many villages were burned or destroyed by the British during the war. Everything was destroyed, and the country was completely laid waste. The war demanded many victims, the land was bathed in tears, and our orphans and widows were abandoned. We are appealing to the world for contributions to assist the destitute and help in the education of children."

The generals repudiate all desire to inflame the minds of the people and declare, "The sword is now sheathed, and all differences are silent in the presence of such misery."

They say the small amount given by Great Britain even if multiplied tenfold would not suffice to cover the war losses alone.

"We solicit the hearty co-operation of all existing committees in the various countries which we are on the point of visiting with the object of establishing a satisfactory organization."

The manifesto is signed by General Botha, General De Wet and General Delarey.

Famous Crooks Pulled In.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Robert J. Evans, alias "Evansville Slim," alias "Bridgeport Billy," alias William Turner and several other aliases; "Pawtucket Johnnie," alias John Sanford, and John Conklin, alias W. K. Black, all well known crooks, suspected of attempted robbery of the banks at Holland Patent and Bridgewater, Oneida county, and of robbing the Fayetteville (Onondaga county) postoffice of $700 a week ago, are under arrest at the Syracuse police station. They were captured in a raid on a disorderly place by the police last Sunday morning, and since then the authorities have been busy establishing their identity. A number of Pinkerton men and officers from other cities and postoffice inspectors are here to assist in the work.

German Matchmakers In Trouble.

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—The German matchmaking business, in which about $8,750,000 of capital is invested, has been brought within measurable distance of ruin by the output of the American Diamond Match company's new factories near Mannheim. Matches that six months ago were sold from the German works at $20 a case are now selling at $16 a case, or $1 below the cost of production by the old fashioned process. The Diamond company uses machinery from the United States. Their German branch has been in operation for five months, and it always sells at prices below the offers made by the old companies.

A Disgrace to Army, Says Roberts.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—As an outcome of the recent Gregson incident Earl Roberts, commander in chief of the forces, has notified all commanding officers of the necessity of suppressing with a strong hand any such practices as "ragging," which he declares to be a disgrace to the army and most pernicious and prejudicial to the whole spirit of discipline. Earl Roberts declares that officers who show zeal and love for their profession deserve all honor and encouragement.

Beyond Reach of the Law.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 24.—Merritt B. Furry, proprietor of the Railroad House, was found dead in his room. Firmly inserted in one of his nostrils was the end of a rubber hose connected with an open gas burner. Furry had been indicted for selling liquor on Sunday and suborning a witness, and his trial was to have taken place this week.

A Strike at the White House.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Because the contractors in charge of the White House improvements employed four additional plasterers yesterday in order that the work might be hastened the five men who were doing the plastering quit their jobs. No other reason was assigned. The contractors say the strikers will not be allowed to return to work.

ANOTHER BREAK OUT.

Colombian Revolution Assumes a New Aspect.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The Colombian revolution has broken out in a new place, according to information received at the navy department. An American fruit company transmitted to Secretary Moody a cablegram from its agent at Santa Marta, a place on the north coast of Colombia, near the mouth of the Magdalena river, saying that conditions there were very much disturbed, that the telegraph and railroad communication had been interrupted and requesting the department's attention.

The dispatch was sent at once to the state department, and our consul at Barranquilla, a place near Santa Marta, was called on for an immediate report concerning the situation. This report is expected soon, and until it is received no action looking to the dispatch of a warship will be taken by the navy department.

In case the conditions of affairs at Santa Marta should demand the presence of a vessel the navy department has decided to send the gunboat Marietta, now at La Guayra, but the condition of affairs at the latter point is such that if the Marietta is obliged to leave the Montgomery, at Cape Haitien, will be ordered forthwith to La Guayra, and the latter's place on the Haitian coast will be taken temporarily by the San Francisco, which sailed from Norfolk today.

Rear Admiral Coghlan, who will have all the warships in West Indian waters under his immediate control, is expected to sail on his flagship, the Olympia, from Boston within two weeks. On his arrival at Cape Haitien the San Francisco will return to Norfolk for general repairs.

Silk Mills Under Guard.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Sept. 24.—Sheriff Baker and four of his deputies are on guard at the Stirling Silk company's works at Stirling. There has been a strike of the 350 men employed at the silk works, which has lasted three months. The men demand recognition of the union. Wages and hours of work are not in dispute. Several days ago the firm posted notices that the mill would reopen yesterday and all the former employees who returned to work would find positions waiting for them. In the morning twenty of them returned to work. The company coupled with its order to return to work a notice that those who did not do so must vacate the houses belonging to the company which they now occupy.

Princeton Professor Takes Poison.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 24.—As a result of an overdose of hydrate of chloral, taken to ease a severe toothache, Professor Willard Humphreys of the German department in Princeton university is in a very critical condition. The chloral was taken Sunday night, and Monday morning the professor was found in a deep stupor by a member of his family. Dr. Wikoff, who was immediately summoned, found him in a dangerous condition, artificial means being necessary to keep up respiration. He has not yet returned to consciousness, and the doctor says his recovery is doubtful.

Hotel Keeper Left Fortune.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Hotel Keeper John P. Huggins' will has been filed for probate. The estate is valued at $1,050,000. Outside of bequests of $1,000 to the Methodist Episcopal church, East Wolfeborough, N. H., and $10,000 to Miss Anna Madden, who had been for several years in his employ, the entire estate is given to immediate relatives.

The New Woman Moves On

FRENCHWOMEN are advancing so rapidly that it is possible they will earn and receive their full rights ahead of American women. In business enterprises none of the feminine sex is so capable as the Frenchwoman. She has at length invaded a field which no woman has before occupied. Mlle. Jeanne de Villeneuve has been appointed secretary to the French general consulate in New York city. The consular service is one to which woman is peculiarly adapted—that is to say, the new woman. She is well educated, takes broad views of things and is resourceful in every emergency. The college women ought to be consuls to foreign ports and cities, a beginning being made, of course, in the smaller places. The educated American woman is a better linguist than the average intelligent American man. The duties of a consul are in no sense connected with state diplomacy. The consul must look after the interests of his countrymen in the place where he is stationed—that in general. In particular he must acquaint himself thoroughly with the industrial resources and conditions of his territory and make report to the United States government. These social and economic reports are really the most important department of the consul's duties. Industrial, economic and educational matters are themes that appeal to all intelligent women, for woman is the natural economist and purveyor of the race. President Roosevelt is in favor of political equality for the feminine sex and the fullest opportunity for them industrially. Women have applied for consulships under other presidents, but were refused. Now let Mr. Roosevelt immortalize himself and aid women by giving to some thoroughly well qualified ones a few small consulships at least.

"Women, like men, are swayed by class sympathies," says an English writer, commenting on the effect of feminine voting in Australia. Just so. We are every one of us, man or woman, swayed by our sympathies, and it is a credit to us too.

The reason married life sinks into such a grind of commonplace is that it is generally a union between commonplace people.

That gifted lady, Mrs. Elizabeth Akers Allen, who gave happiness to millions when she wrote the little poem "Rock Me to Sleep," has just published a new book called "Sunset Song and Other Verses."

There are men and women, not a few, so ugly that one wonders how they could ever find anybody to marry them, yet they generally do.

The Italian university at Milan has a woman professor of anatomy, Dr. Rina Mastio. Has any American university a woman professor of anatomy?

In the midst of the muddle of "views" on the woman question one thing has at length become clear—a self supporting single woman willing to continue supporting herself after marriage can always get a husband.

The girls newly employed to take the place of the much striking telegraph messenger boys in Chicago should know the eyes of all the world are on them. If they are prompt, faithful and courageous, equal to their duties in all respects, they will give the woman's cause a great big lift.

Here is a woman with a noble war record. Agnes Young was graduated from the Nurses' Training school of the Asbury Deaconess home in Minneapolis. She was appointed an army nurse and went to Cuba, serving till the war ended. Then she accompanied her regiment to China and remained during the troubles there. After they were settled Miss Young went next in her professional capacity to the Philippines, where she remained on duty until her return to the States recently. She had four years' active service in war and comes home in excellent health. What man has served his country more faithfully than she?

Strong women adore strong men, but strong men are usually attracted to weak women, while weak men are drawn to strong women. So it comes about that eagles seldom mate with eagles.

The person who says audiences of women never applaud or hiss is evidently not familiar with women's club meetings.

These California girls do go ahead of most! There is one, May Longest, only sixteen years old, who is a skilled sign painter. She has lettered and painted all kinds of show work from ice wagons to barn roofs and theater curtains. Though only sixteen and wearing her hair in braids, she is equal to the best men her employers have in their service. Her first work was at her home in Pueblo, where she lettered a shop window and was so proud of her achievement that she lingered around the window and gazed long and lovingly at it. This is the true artist spirit.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Glorianna. I should think not—Glorianna! No, the lower-front. She's a boy."

I looked at Aunt Jane Mary in amaze! "How do you know?" said I.

"Cigarette smoke. I thought so last night, now I know it."

"Nonsense," said I. "It might be the lower-back or Baldy Towner. You forget that we have two real men in the house, now."

"You told me the lower-back went into the city for the night, and Baldy Towner sleeps over the stable—what used to be the stable."

"Yes," said I, sighing—"what used to be the stable. Well, if the wind was this way——"

"Sophronia Willoughby Brathwaite! You know no man was ever allowed to smoke in that barn, not in the Judge's time, nor yet in mine."

"He might have done it all the same," said I. "We have to shut our eyes to a great deal in this world."

"That's true," said Aunt Jane Mary. "But there's one thing you can't shut if you try, not unless you put a clothespin on it, and that's your nose; the smell came right up through the floor."

"Perhaps Mr. Beldon came home early, and it was he who smoked."

"He has no business to come home early. He said——"

"Oh, yes, he has," said I. "He has a right to use the room at any time. But Miss Dacres may even smoke and not be a boy."

"And look at her hair!" exclaimed Aunt Jane Mary, "and her slang! You'll never convince me she isn't a boy until——"

Aunt Jane Mary did not say when that time would come, and I must say that what she had given voice to stayed by me and had its effect on me to a certain degree.

"Miss Dacres has a boy's ways and tones and manners; and her hair! If I ever saw boy's hair, it is her short, coarse curls."

"Well," said I, "boy or no boy, she has got to stay until I find her money. I'm going to the funeral now, and when I come home I shall bring either John Sommers or his advice with me. You needn't mind any of them coming up to wait on you, there's nothing to steal." I sighed again. "Here's your bell," and I ran hurriedly down the stairs.

Aunt Jane Mary's bell rang before I got to the front door. I had put it too near her. I went back wearily.

"Well?" I exclaimed, somewhat impatiently, I fear.

"There's another thing. You run off so! I heard voices under my window last night."

"Oh, dear! Aunt Jane Mary, don't tell me of any more mysteries. I am so tired of them. Her brother came out to see her the night before last. Perhaps he came out last night. I can't help it. She may be a liar or a murderess, anything in the wide world, but here she must stay until I find that money," and I ran down the stairs again and ran out of the house and out of the gate and halfway to the Hall.

I found the people assembling in the great hall, but Miss Elizabeth sent Margot to tell me that she wanted to see me upstairs, that I was to come down with the family to the library. I went up as I was bid. Miss Elizabeth drew me into a small room off the chamber where her brother had died. She kissed me, and whispered in my ear, "They're here! I've found them. Just where I put them three years ago."

"What?" asked I in an awful whisper.

"The jewels," she whispered. "The jewels, my dear mother's rubies. I think those were what they were looking for, those wretches! And I think that in some way they compassed my poor brother David's death." She drew down the shade, closed the door, and locked it. Then she went to the fireplace. "Here," she said. "This upright slab was always loose. I often pulled it down as a child. When I went away, I drew it out so," she suited her action to her words. "I deposited this case within and then sealed it up with a little plaster-of-Paris. I took the rubies from a drawer in the library, a secret drawer; we all knew the secret. They were mine, as much as his, and you see now how wise I was. Had I not done so, those wretches would have had them today." She had in her hand the blue velvet case which I knew so well. She opened it, and even in that darkened room the wonderful rubies shone forth with a million dazzling rays. There was a knock at the door. Miss Elizabeth hurriedly replaced the case. "Yes, yes," she called, "I am coming; I will be there at once." She pushed the slab in place, stuck a folded piece of paper underneath the mantel to keep it firm, and then unlocked the door. Miss Evelyn stood there. "I was showing Sophronia where they have been hidden all these years," she whispered. "It is my belief that David never tried even to look at them after we left. And until he promised that Sister of Charity something of value he never thought of getting them out of that secret drawer. Then, too, he could not move, Margot says, and when they began to threaten him—oh, yes! Margot has told me all about it—he found what a foolish thing he had done, and, would not tell them anything. David was always stubborn, even if he died for it, and probably did. Poor David! Poor David! I wish he had died at peace with us." Miss Elizabeth wiped her eyes. "I was always at peace with him. But let us go down."

We decended the broad stairs. Dr. Williams met us at the foot in deep black, with the clergyman of Miss Elizabeth's old church, and we went into the library and sat while the service was read.

I went with them to the grave, and then they insisted on my going home with them. This I did, and remained all day. It seemed so like old times. We talked of many things, Miss Elizabeth, Miss Evelyn, and I—about the Squire and his queer ways; about my marriage from the Hall, and, above all, of their brother Eugene and his young wife and little daughter. It was because of the child that I had gone to the Hall to live. I had had entire care of Mr. Eugene Darlington's little girl. She was the sweetest little thing. Hair like a sunbeam; eyes as large and blue as corn-flowers. It was only when Mrs. Eugene grew so ill, and pined to see her mother and father, that Eugene consented to take her away to the west where they lived. Wisconsin was the state, I remembered. We talked of Mrs. Eugene's death, of Eugene's wandering life after that, of his going out to India, and of his death there.

"And the child, the child," whispered Miss Elizabeth. "Sometimes I think she may be living; sometimes I think she may have died. Sometimes I think we have a trace of her; again it is lost. Oh! to think of having the little thing running about the house!"

"Little thing!" said I. "You forget, Miss Elizabeth, that she would be 22 had she lived until now."

"So she would," said Miss Elizabeth; "so she would. Little Amaranthe! little Amaranthe!"

That was why the name of Miss Dacres had struck me so strangely. It was so unusual a name, and I had never heard it since I had been nursery governess to little Amaranthe Darlington.

CHAPTER IV.

The next morning when the breakfast things were washed I knocked at Miss Dacres' door. I heard the slamming of a drawer, and then she came hurriedly across the room. When she opened the door her face was flushed.

"What is it?" she asked. "Oh! to sweep. Well, I'll let you come in, but I won't have that Vinegar Cruet out there in the kitchen inside these walls. Now promise me. I'm getting rather rested, and I want to take a long spin on my wheel."

"I'll sweep it myself," said I. "I promise you. By the way, Miss Dacres, have you heard any unusual noises round the house?—at night, I mean."

Her face flushed again. "What do you mean?" she said. "Oh how you do love to frighten people! What sort of noises?"

"Why, voices talking—very low voices. My aunt says she hears——"

The color faded, the usual pallor returned to her cheeks at my words.

"Your aunt is a ridiculous old chum—I mean, she is very easily frightened. I think she is fanciful. There have been no voices. I should certainly have heard them if there had been."

"She says she smells cigarette smoke, and——"

"Oh, do you object to that too?" Why, it's a sort of Sunday school out here, isn't it? Well, I may as well confess. I'm the culprit. I smoke cigarettes. It's quite the fashion, you know. I have done it since I was fifteen, but if you are really opposed to it——"

"How old are you now, if I may ask?" said I.

"I was 22 last February—the 17th," she answered, without the smallest sign of being annoyed at my familiarity. "It's funny about that. There was always a discussion about that between my mother and father. Father always insisted that I had been born on the 18th because he declared it was two minutes after 12 on the night of the 17th. My mother said that I had been born on the 17th because the clock on her mantel pointed to five minutes of the hour. At least father used to tell me so. That was when we were traveling in India. I don't remember my mother very well, I was a small girl when she died, and so much has come between—— But I must be starting, or you won't have time to——"

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 2, 1902.

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

Gentlemen: I have the honor of informing you that the City Council of the City of Elizabeth, at a meeting held last evening, adopted the following: Resolved, that the City Clerk be requested to communicate with the Board of Chosen Freeholders, and request some disposition of petition forwarded by Council to said Board, about May 1, 1902, concerning an extension of crosswalks at intersection of Bay Way and Westfield avenue, made necessary by widening of said avenue, which said Board authorized. Most respectfully yours, (Signed)

James J. Manning, City Clerk.

Freeholder King said that the former petition as mentioned had been referred to the County Attorney and as the County Attorney was now present, he would ask that the duty of this Board in such matters be defined.

County Attorney Codington said it was not encumbent upon this Board to lay crosswalks, and after some further discussion it was ordered on motion of Freeholder Brucklacher, that the County Attorney advise the City Council of the position of this Board in such matters.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the Committee on Elkwood avenue bridge at Summit:

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 4, 1902.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

Gentlemen: Your Committee appointed to consider the advisability of repairing the bridge over Elkwood avenue, Summit, would report that they have examined the same and find the parapet and wings in a very bad condition and of insufficient height, and would recommend that the said walls be torn down as far as necessary, and rebuilt to such a height as will insure safety of travel. The cost of said improvement not to exceed $850. Respectfully submitted, W. H. Swain, J. Robison, Jacob Brucklacher, John N. Cady, Committee.

Freeholder Farrell moved the report be received and recommendation therein contained adopted, which was so ordered on roll-call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee on Crane street bridge, Elizabeth:

(Signed) Benjamin King, John Farrell, Henry Krouse, Joseph McCandless, Jacob Brucklacher, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder King, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as said Committee, Freeholders Robison, Connoly and Pierson.

By Freeholder Farrell: Resolved, that the bill of The W. T. Kirk Company for $1,090 for mason and iron works on bridge in Springfield Township, be paid when properly audited by the committee.

SPORTING NEWS

GOLF.

Saturday on the Westfield Golf Club course there will be the final play for the President's cup and Mrs. Gladwin, wife of the president, will give a tea at the clubhouse in the afternoon. There will also be a clock golf competition for women.

Judging by recent scores there is some work left for the handicap committee from the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. Some unusually low scores have been turned in lately and the handicaps have been unusually large. This is not considered fair to the best players in the club.

According to the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club schedule, there will be play Saturday for the Reinhart cup, in addition to the weekly competition for the Boys' and Golf committee cups. There will also be the regular approaching and putting contest for the Schoonmaker cups.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club team has about concluded its team matches for the season, and it is doubtful if any more will be played. The team has had fairly good success, defeating a majority of the opposing teams. Captain Dumont has endeavored to have a strong team represent the club, but there were times when some of the best players could not play.

The fall outing of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club on Saturday, October 4, will no doubt be one of the most enjoyable events of the fall season. The dinner-dance, the third of the series, promises to be a decided feature as those previously given have been a great success. During the afternoon there will be a number of golf and tennis events and the social features at the club will be an attraction.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Consolidated team will meet for practice tomorrow and Friday evenings on Hope Common.

"Smiling Jimmy," who will be in the box, Saturday, is trying out with Catcher Allen, and they will be in fine form for the coming struggle. The Plainfielders have strong hopes of winning the second contest.

Managers Denman and Johnston, of the Westfield and Scotch Plains teams, have reached an agreement whereby the two may possibly meet before the season closes. If the Plainfield Consolidated team loses Saturday, Scotch Plains will be played by Westfield the following week. If the Plainfield team wins it will be given a third game and Scotch Plains will be relegated to the rear.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

It is quite likely that there will be additional entries for the matinee races to be held on the track of the Plainfield Driving Club next Saturday afternoon. The card will be one of the strongest presented in a long time.

The matinee races scheduled for last Saturday on the Plainfield Driving Club track will be held next Saturday. The weather of last Saturday was too disagreeable and the track was too heavy for good racing. At the races next Saturday admission to the grounds and grand stand will be free.

PING-PONG.

The results of the ping pong tournament held at the Y. M. C. A. last night, resulted as follows: Hand defeated Lane 6 to 4; Breward defeated Robbie 7 to 5; Æ. McCarthy defeated Denton 6 to 4 and Radford beat Miller 6 to 0.

PRICE OF COAL ADVANCES

ANTHRACITE NOW RETAILS AT $10 PER TON AND MAY GO HIGHER.

Supply in Local Yards Almost Exhausted and one Firm Orders Soft Coal.

Another dollar was added to the price of coal today. This necessary commodity is now retailing at $10 per ton, almost double what it was at this season last year, and it is almost impossible to get it at that figure.

The local dealers who are fortunate to have any anthracite on hand are dealing it out more sparingly than ever. It is now impossible to get more than one ton at a time and it is only at a few yards that orders will be booked. Many Plainfielders who have been holding off with the hope that the strike would end before cold weather are now seeking to fill up their bins at the present price but without success.

McDonough Brothers, who have probably the most coal of any Plainfield dealer, have placed orders with the operators for large shipments of bituminous fuel to be disposed of to householders. It is the belief of this firm that it is the only way out of the difficulty as the soft article can be used without annoyance after a little experience. They have already sold a good many tons and the buyers have expressed satisfaction with its qualities.

Pythians to Visit.

Sixty members of Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., and many from Unity, will go by special trolley to Elizabethport, this evening, to visit Olive Branch Lodge. The car will leave the Watchung avenue terminus at 7:30. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps will furnish music for the occasion.

In Justice Huff's Court.

Justice Huff has issued papers in the following contract cases, all returnable September 26: Howard Marchant against Patrick Loughlin, Allan Laing against Alfred Park, Nischwitz & Stoker against Jesse Ryno, William B. Marchant against William B. Stratton, Unger & Co., against A. Titsworth.

Endeavor Meeting.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church will hold its regular business meeting tomorrow evening, at the home of Mrs T. Edward Burroughs, of 326 East Fifth street.

Contract for Mason Work.

Seaman Williams has the contract for the mason work on Woodhull & Martin's new building and he will commence work within a short time.

Lumber Sale Adjourned.

The sale of the old lumber from the bridges on Farragut and Clinton avenue bridges, was adjourned yesterday for one week.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. ARE DRAWING TIER'S POND

WILL RID ITS WATERS OF THOUSANDS OF CARP.

These Natural Enemies of the Other Fish Will be Removed.

Any Plainfielder who is fond of fish can see any number of carp, bass, catfish, suckers or eels by going over to Tier's pond on Watchung avenue late this afternoon. He may even be presented with a carp or so, for the pond is being drained today and it is estimated that several thousand of these specimens of the finny tribe will be removed from its waters. Carp will probably be rather cheap about town for several days.

Carp are the natural enemies of all other fish and wage a constant warfare against them. Consequently the owner of Tier's pond discovered that if he wants to keep his lake stocked with bass, catfish or anything else the carp must get out. Hence the draining off of the waters.

The draining began about 9 o'clock this morning. Wire netting and large fish nets were stretched across the outlet and the gate opened. A large number of people watched the water pouring out all this morning.

When the pond is drained the State Fish Commission will take possession of the best specimens of carp and transport them alive to other waters. State Commissioner Hawkins and District Commissioner Henry Hurand will have charge of the work. Mr. Hawkins arrived in the city at 2 o'clock.

DUSS COMING.

What the New York Telegraph Has to Say of Him.

Duss and his great band of performers, instrumentalists and vocalists, is to appear at the Casnio, Thursday afternoon, October 23.

The Telegraph of New York, said of the great band:

"More people from Fifth avenue and the Central Park region are wending their way to the St. Nicholas Garden these evenings than have graced any entertainment during the past season, with the exception of the grand opera. The magnet which draws them is Duss, the mililonaire bandmaster. All of the society people seem to possess a desire to see how a rich man appears while leading a band. Not that there are no other bandmasters with wealth, but that they acquired wealth through their bands. Duss is the opposite, and because it is this rich man's hobby to conduct an army of blaring brass instruments, the other rich folk nod their heads indulgently, applaud and encourage him in his work. And it is this, as much as the quality of music rendered, which draws the representative audiences to the St. Nicholas o' nights.

FUNERAL OF MICHAEL KELLEY.

Victim of Railroad Accident Buried From St. Mary's Church Today.

Funeral services over the remains of Michael Kelley, who met a violent death Sunday night on the tracks of the New Jersey Central, were held from St. Mary's church this morning. Rev. Father Egan was in charge and conducted a solemn requiem mass. The edifice was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends, among whom were many of his former shopmates from the Pond Tool Works. Floral tributes were much in evidence, the number being sufficient to cover the casket.

Following the church service the remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery.

Not to Attend As a Body.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., met last evening and, after a lively discussion decided not to go to the National Encampment at Washington in a body. No doubt a number of the members will go individually, but the effort to have the whole Post go together was not thought advisable.

Charged With Being Disorderly.

Charged with being disorderly on North avenue, Monday evening, Fred Drake was arraigned in the city court, this morning. The absence of a witness rendered necessary a postponement of the case until tomorrow.

Contract Case Adjourned.

The suit of the McCormick Harvester Company against E. J. Bebout was adjourned in Justice Hand's court this morning, for one week. It is a case on contract.

—Neuman Brothers are receiving at present 200 baskets of white and yellow peaches, good for canning and preserving. The quality is fine and the price is low.

No Substitute Wanted.

No! I did not ask for a bottle any cheaper or twice as large, or one made by yourselves. I did ask for and will not have any substitute for Perry Davis' Painkiller; I have used it, my father used it and I would not be surprised if my grandparents did so too; there is no imitation that can equal it. That I am sure of—for stomach ache.

PEACH FESTIVAL.

Successful Affair Given by Ladies' Aid Society of German Reformed Church.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the German Reformed church, gave a most successful peach festival yesterday afternoon and evening in the basement of the church.

There was a large attendance of members and friends of the church. Peaches, coffee, cake, ice cream and candies were served at the various tables presided over by the women of the society. Cut flowers, potted plants and palms furnished the decorations, and there was both instrumental and vocal music, Miss Windham being the pianist.

Following are the names of those who were in charge of the entertainment: Mrs. Joseph Angerbauer, Mrs. Bach, Mrs. Blimm, Mrs. Hook, Mrs. Finzal, Mrs. Mohring and Mrs. Barold.

It was after 10 o'clock before the festival ended. A good sum, which will be used for the benefit of the church, was realized.

Arrangements are being made by the Ladies' Aid Society to give a magic lantern exhibition in the near future.

—The Germania Beneficial Society will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow night.

CROSS AND CORIELL NAMED, BUT HARMONY WAS LACKING

Factional Fight Was Carried Into Republican County Convention at Elizabeth Yesterday Afternoon.

BITTERNESS IN LOCAL DELEGATION

CITY JUDGE W. N. RUNYON WAS NAMED AGAINST SENATOR CROSS, BUT NOMINATION WAS THEN MADE UNANIMOUS.

A Forlorn Hope for Frank H. Smith for Sheriff Was Sprung at the Last Moment, and Simply Served to Split the Plainfield Delegation on the Shrievalty Nomination—B. Frank Coriell Was Chosen by Overwhelming Majority—J. T. MacMurray and Roger F. Murray in Open War.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Elizabeth, Sept. 25—This is what the Republicans of Union county did at their county convention, held yesterday afternoon:

For senator, Joseph Cross, of Elizabeth.

For sheriff, B. Frank Coriell, of Plainfield.

For surrogate, George T. Parrot, of Elizabeth.

For assembly, William Newcorn, of Plainfield; William F. Hall, of Cranford; Edward S. Coyne, of Elizabeth.

For coroner, Dr. R. H. Shierriffs, of Elizabeth.

All this was not brought to pass, however, according to the usual Republican methods. The fight, which was so bitterly carried on at the primaries Monday night, was taken onto the floor of the convention although the result was a foregone conclusion. While the senatorial fight eventually had a most harmonious ending, the battle over the shrievalty developed a bitterness of feeling among some of the Plainfield leaders which refused to be comforted. And so, unlike the usual Republican conventions in Union county, the harmony was not universal and there was coolness between erstwhile friends. Now what everybody is wondering is how far that feeling is going into the coming campaign.

ASSEMBLYMAN NEWCORN.

When the friends of the Cross-Coriell ticket won such a decisive victory at the primaries Monday night, the general impression prevailed that the contest was over and that the advocates of City Judge Runyon's candidacy would be content to accept the inevitable. The contest had been too hot, however, to permit it to die so soon. There was a lengthy and earnest conference on the subject early in the afternoon and the result was the final stand made in the convention.

It was 3:10 o'clock when the delegates had assembled at Jacobs Theatre and Hamilton Fish Kean, chairman of the county committee, called them to order and introduced Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of Plainfield, as temporary chairman. In his little speech, Mr. Gilbert remarked that now and then there was a contest and a bitterness of feeling was displayed at the primaries but it soon runs its course and should never enter the hall of convention, whereat there was much applause.

Frank D. Randolph, of Plainfield, John R. Moxon, of Elizabeth, and Charles H. Angleman, of Rahway, were named as temporary secretaries. In the appointment of committees, John Robison, of Fanwood, was a member of the one of credentials, City Clerk J. T. MacMurray, of Plainfield, was chairman of the one of permanent organization, Former Assemblyman Chas. S. Foote chairman of committee on resolutions and Councilman Frank D. Randolph, of Plainfield, on the one on rules.

Then there was a recess of fifteen minutes, after which the routine business, including the receiving of the committee's reports, followed. The only stirring thing was the reading of the report of the committee on resolutions by Charles S. Foote. The resolutions endorsed everything Republican.

The excitement began when nominations for senator were called for. Frank Bergen, from the Eleventh ward of Elizabeth, presented the name of Senator Cross. When the call came for Plainfield, Formerly Assemblyman Foote, as chairman of the Second ward delegation, named City Judge Runyon in a rousing speech. He called attention to the fact that it was Elizabeth which had been filling so many offices but that they always cast longing eyes on Plainfield election day and never in vain for Plainfield always came down with rousing majorities.

"And when this year comes," he declared, "whether it is your candidate or ours, you'll find us just the same."

Former Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, chairman of the delegation from the Third ward of Plainfield, seconded the nomination of Senator Cross. The Rahway chairman had his troubles because his delegation split and he ended by explaining that "half the ward nominates Runyon and the other half nominates the other fellow."

Then came the voting which was almost identically the same as was published in The Daily Press after the primaries. Elizabeth was solid for Cross with the exception of one vote. From Rahway's twenty-one, but two and a half were for Cross. Roselle borough, the First, Second and Fourth wards of Plainfield, together with half of Fanwood's delegation, stood by Runyon. When it was all over, Chas. S. Foote sprang to feet and moved to make the vote unanimous for Cross. Runyon's other supporters did likewise and there was a fleeting glimpse of harmony.

There was an immediate return to the realities of life when Andrew McCardell, chairman of the Plainfield Fourth ward delegation, asked for a recess of half an hour. His motion was howled down. An attempt to get a fifteen minute recess also met with defeat. Then Roger F. Murray wanted the shrievalty nomination taken up at once but he was ruled out of order by the chair and the Assembly candidates were next taken up.

Elizabeth's Tenth ward had Edward S. Coyne for a candidate. The Plainfield chairman all declared they had no nominations to make but the Fourth ward discovered its error in a moment and Councilman Clarence L. Murphy sprang to his feet. In a few words, he announced that he presented the name of "William Runyon—no, I mean Newcorn." As it had been rumored that Runyon's name might be substituted for Newcorn's on the Assembly ticket, the effect of the mistake was somewhat exciting at first. Cranford named William F. Hall as a candidate for renomination and Roselle borough wound up by bringing up the name of Robert M. Kellogg, of Elizabeth. The vote was Coyne, 219; Newcorn, 218; Hall, 212; Kellogg, 7. The vote was promptly made unanimous for Coyne, Newcorn and Hall.

It didn't take long to extend the nomination for surrogate to George T. Parrot, of Elizabeth, for the fourth term, there being no contest.

Everybody was expecting developments when the shrievalty nomination came round and they were not disappointed. There was no delay about it. The First ward of Elizabeth gave way to the Third ward of Plainfield and Ernest R. Ackerman took the floor. "I have been requested by the delegates of the Third ward of Plainfield to present the name of their candidate for sheriff," began Mr. Ackerman.

"At the outset let me say, that notwithstanding the heated primary campaign in which the Republicns of the Third ward have been engaged, I have the personal assurance of every member of this delegation, without exception, that they will work with might and main for the ticket headed by that representative Congressman—the Hon. Charles N. Fowler.

"Let not our Democratic friends, or any one else, take any hope from the fact that in the heat of the fight or in the exultation of victory rash statements against any faction were uttered, for whatever the outcome of this convention, be it what it may, you will find the workers of the Third ward and those here present working for the ticket from the top to the bottom.

"I am going to present to you the name of a gentleman who has spent his entire life in our city; one who has devoted nearly half of his time in the service of his fellow man in many gratuitons positions. For nearly seventeen years he has served his fellow citizens in a non-political position as a member of the Plainfield fire department, serving part of the time as its chief. For seven years he has acceptably served all classes of citizens, while vigorously upholding the principles of the Republican party, as their chosen representative in the Plainfield Common Council, three years of which he has served as its president. By reason of this fact he is at present acting mayor of the Republican stronghold. A kind friend, a true citizen, he will make a fine public official if he is nominated and elected; therefore, the Third ward of Plainfield takes great pleasure in presenting as a candidate for the shrievalty the name of Hon. B. Frank Coriell."

B. FRANK CORIELL.

It might be just as well to explain that he had reference to a remark made by Roger F. Murray at the city offices in Plainfield late Monday evening after the primaries. There was an argument and Mr. Murray is quoted as having said that he would vote for Flanagan, the Democratic nominee for Congress.

After Summit had a chance to put forward its man, Stephen R. Mullen, the First ward of Plainfield was called on. J. T. MacMurray, who headed the delegation, remarked that he didn't doubt Mr. Ackerman's statement but he would rather have the man, who was present, make the statement in person.

It didn't take long for Roger F. Murray to get on his feet. "I suppose I'm the man you refer to," he began. "I did say that I would vote for Flanagan. He was interrupted by a storm of shouts and hisses. "Put him out," yelled a man in the back of the theatre.

"I did say I would vote for Flanagan," he continued, "If Mr. Fowler did not stop stirring up strife in the county and Mr. MacMurray stop trying to split the Plainfield delegation. I have given Mr. Ackerman my promise that I will vote and work for Mr. Fowler and I intend to." The convention was in a tumult and required the efforts of the chairman to obtain something like quiet.

John Owens, of the Fourth ward of Plainfield, named Frank H. Smith as a candidate and there was a significant exchange of glances. It was very evident that harmony did not reign among the Plainfield delegates and that Smith was named, not with any idea of nominating him, but simply

K. OF P.'S VISIT ELIZABETH

SIXTY MEMBERS OF PERSEVERANCE LODGE ENTERTAINED ROYALLY.

Journey to County Seat by Special Trolley—Speeches, Banquet and Entertainment.

Sixty members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., journeyed by special trolley to Elizabethport, last evening, to extend the hand of fraternal friendship to Olive Branch Lodge, No. 78. In addition they were accompanied by several members of Unity Lodge and the Independent Fife and Drum Corps.

Arriving at the county seat, the Plainfielders were warmly welcomed and after seeing the third degree worked, addresses were made by members of Olive Branch and Chancellor Commander William N. Runyon, Past Chancellor J. E. Flannery, of Perseverance, and Assemblyman William Newcorn, of Unity.

This part concluded the visitors were escorted to Laury's cafe where supper was served and vocal and instrumental selections were contributed galore. Olive Branch had left nothing undone to make the affair a success and the Plainfielders were highly delighted with the treatment accorded them. The Knights reached this city on the return trip at 1:30.

The committee in charge of the visit from Perseverance consisted of David Bowden, Thomas Muir Donald McInnis and S. J. Robinson.

BRISK RUNAWAY.

Horse Dashed Through City Streets, But Didn't Do Much Damage.

A horse, attached to a delivery wagon of the Mangles & Schmidt Bread Company, ran away at 9 o'clock this morning. The driver left the animal standing on North avenue opposite The Daily Press office while he entered a store, and the horse, becoming frightened, dashed down the avenue, broke away from two men who were trying to hold him and rounded the corner of Park avenue. Here he fell and cut himself a trifle. Before anyone could grab him, however, he got to his feet, ran down Park avenue and up the alley alongside VanZandt & Voorhees' office, eventually "pocketing" himself in the abutment by the U. S. Express Company's office.

Save for a broken whiffletree the wagon was uninjured. The horse was bleeding from a few small cuts but seemed as frisky as ever when he was unhitched. A small army of boys and men followed the runaway until it was caught.

Through his counsel, Codington & Swackhamer, of this city, J. B. Mills, the well-known builder, has instituted suit for $10,000 against the Elizabeth Times Publishing Company, which is the owner of the Evening Times. He alleges the paper printed an article with reference to himself that was libelous and false. The case will be heard in the January term of court.

Macadamizing City Streets.

The work of macadamizing on Park avenue is being extended to Front street from North avenue. The dressing is mostly stone and when rolled down will make a fine surface for traveling. This repair work will be of great benefit and save the city much money later on.

DRAGGING POND FOR CARP

TWO WAS THE NET RESULT OF YESTERDAY'S OPERATIONS.

Better Luck Today, But the Thousands of Fish Have Not Been Discovered.

Those who went down to Tier's pond, yesterday afternoon, confidently expecting to see some enormous catches of carp were, as the boys say, sadly left. The two men who operated the drag net caught twelve fish. They placed these carefully in a tank full of water. Last night ten of them were stolen, so that two lonely carp was the net result of the day's work.

Today's operations in the drained pond were, however, more profitable. Fifty and more of the elusive amphibians were captured. Tonight a guard will be placed over the captives and if any of them are stolen there will be "something doing" in the way of excitement on Watchung avenue.

A large and interested audience has watched the fishing for two days. If the onlookers did not see many catches they at least had plenty of fun. Every few minutes the men at the nets, in their wanderings around on the muddy bottom of the pond, got stuck. Every time they got stuck they were cheered and laughed at. Whenever the boat used in the work rammed its head into a mud bank, obliging the men to jump out and shove it off, the crowd went wild. As all this happened at frequent intervals, the time spent on the shore of the pond was, in the crowd's opinion, not all wasted.

Henry Hawkins, the fish commissioner of this district, has taken possession of some of 'the best specimens of carp in behalf of the State Commission. Some of these weigh from eighteen to twenty-five pounds.

Mr. Tier, who said to a Daily Press reporter yesterday that there were thousands of carp in the pond, modified his statement somewhat this afternoon. He says now that there are several hundred. He believes that the fishermen will get most of them—if they keep at it long enough.

THE THIEF CAPTURED.

Man Who Fred Brown Says Stole Picture Films Brought From Bridgeport, Conn.

Wm. J. Weaver, the young man whom Fred Brown, of North avenue, alleges stole picture films worth $150 from him, was arrested by the Bridgeport, Conn., police, Tuesday. Word was sent to Chief Kiely, and proceeding to the Connecticut city he returned with the prisoner last evening, Weaver having consented to waive requisition papers.

To Chief Kiely, Weaver admitted stealing the pictures and said he had sold them for $5 in New York. They cost Brown $150. This morning the prisoner was arraigned before Justice Huff and through Counsellor F. J. Blatz entered a plea of not guilty. He was remanded to Elizabeth for trial.

NO TENNIS TODAY.

Second Round for Tennis Championship of City High School Played Yesterday Afternoon.

The second round, championship singles, in the City High School tennis tournament was played off yesterday afternoon. Rocap defeated VanEps, 7-5, 6-0. Long put up a hard fight against VanAuken but was finally forced down to defeat, 6-2, 7-5. Beers won from Travell, 6-3, 6-0.

There will be no play this afternoon on account of the bad weather, but tomorrow the remaining match of the second round and the semi-finals will be played. Rocap will play VanAuken. Briggs will play Beers in the second round and the winner of this latter match will play Miner in the semi-finals. The doubles will be played off next week.

Two hundred young people attended the T. A. B.'s first invitation dance of the season, held last evening, in its hall. Professor O'Reilly furnished music for the occasion and its excellence kept those in attendance gliding over the floor until an early hour this morning. Refreshments were served during the midnight intermission.

The committee in charge consisted of Edward Lynch, chairman; Michael O'Keefe, Thomas O'Keefe, Patrick Melvin, Richard Birmingham, David Doyle, Thomas Mack, James Kane, Clarence Waldron and Thomas Carty.

Garrett Dreier, of New Brunswick, was the guest today of relatives in Plainfield. His trip to this city was partially on business and pleasure.

SOMERSET FOR SENATOR REED

Republican County Committee Refused to Accept His Resignation as Chairman.

ALTHOUGH HE INSISTED

By a Unanimous Vote, the Committee Refused to Accept His Resignation and That of Mayor N. B. Smalley as Member of Committee—Give Him a Vote of Thanks.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 25—An important meeting of the Republican county executive committee, of which Senator Reed is chairman, was held here yesterday afternoon.

After long discussion over proposed changes in apportionment of delegates from various townships, it was decided to make no change, except to give North Plainfield and Bridgewater one extra delegate each. This plan was favored by Senator Reed and his friends, while the Somerville people wanted some method based on the vote cast adopted, which would increase the representation of the larger townships at the expense of the smaller.

Senator Reed reviewed his course as leader during the past six years and, referring to the North Plainfield annexation matter, stated that he had been systematically misrepresented about the county in that regard by persons belonging to the faction which had always opposed him. He then tendered his resignation as chairman of the committee. Mayor Smalley also offered his resignation as a member of the committee.

By unanimous vote the committee refused to accept either resignation, and extended to Senator Reed a vote of confidence and thanks for his loyal and successful service to the party, and requested him to remain in the committee. He insisted that his resignation be accepted, but the committee adjourned.

SOMERSET WAS HOST.

Juniors of Somerset Council Gave an Entertainment to Its Members and Sister Councils Last Night.

Under the auspices of Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., a pleasant entertainment was given last evening by the Vans Entertainment Company, of Newark. In addition to the members of Somerset Council, there were present members from the other Councils in the city and all were given a cordial welcome.

The programme consisted of comic songs by Kenneth Richmond, monologues by DeWitt Paxton, illustrated songs by Lewis Hoffman and songs by the entire company. Each member of the company was recalled several times and received hearty applause throughout. Following the entertainment refreshments were served by a committee from Somerset Council consisting of J. Scull, J. Kettenring, W. G. Creveling, A. W. Pangborn, Frank Kohler and Walter C. Walker.

The rest of the evening was spent in a social manner, during which some of the members enjoyed pitching quoits. The committee on entertainment consisted of F. G. Weed, chairman; George Ball, A. C. Atkins, F. DeCamp and Jos. Sheppard.

RAILWAY CRIPPLED.

Accident to Power House Prevents Schedule Time Being Kept—Are Rushing Repairs.

Since the accident to the power house at Elizabeth, the service on the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway, east of Westfield, has been anything but satisfactory. Cars are constantly delayed by lack of power and it has been almost impossible to maintain a regular schedule. Repairs to the damaged boilers are being rushed, but there is no telling when the trouble will cease.

The railway officials have asked the contractors to hurry with all possible haste the construction of the new power house at Cranford, which will furnish current enough to obviate future difficulties.

THE COAL STRIKE.

"Uncle Joe," the Staff Poet of The Daily Press, Makes a Few Pertinent Comments.

Summer's sort of driftin' off
An' October'll soon be here,
The price of coal is goin' up
An' things is lookin' queer.
Anthracite is twelve a ton,
An' hard to get at that,
It keeps a feller guessin'
How he's goin' to warm his flat.

The meat trust sort o' bothered us,
Fur it made the prices gee,
But alongside of this here coal strike
It wasn't one, two, three.
A man can live without much grub
When it comes right down to that,
But a chap can't live in this here town
Without heat in his flat.

I'm not a constant kicker,
I'm an easy goin' cuss,
An' I like to make my livin'
Without a bit of fuss.
But I'll tell you fellers frankly,
If that strike don't end real quick,
There'll be a poet less in Plainfield,
Fur your Uncle Joe is slick.

Your Uncle Joe'll go down south,
Where the weepin' willers wave,
An' he'll sit around an' smoke, an' sweat,
An' watch the people bathe.
He'll drink ice beer—an' other things—
An' laugh at this here town,
Where shiverin' folks is waitin' to see
The price of coal go down.

Yes, Uncle Joe'll go down south,
You can put your coin on that.
I'm goin' to tell my landlord
He can have his darned old flat.
I'm goin' down to New Orleans,
Where the green palmetters grow,
An' I'm just a goin' to sweat an' booze
While you folks shovel snow.

NO CREPE.

The Little Newsboy Proved a Fakir and the Dead Brother Didn't Exist.

A dilapidated looking youngster, carrying under his arm a much battered copy of a New York newspaper, stood in front of The Daily Press office last evening sobbing bitterly. He was crying so hard that the tears plowed furrows through the dirt on his cheeks and his small frame shook with sorrow.

A sweet faced elderly woman in passing noticed the child and, stopping, spoke to him. "What's the matter, little boy?" she inquired kindly.

"Brudder's dead," sobbed the boy, "and we aint got money enough to bury him wid. Buy de paper, lady! Only a cent."

"You poor, poor child," said the elderly woman, "certainly I'll buy the paper. Here is a quarter and hope it will help you. I only wish that I could give you ten times as much."

The youngster took the money, wiped his eyes with his coat sleeve and shuffled off. Fifteen minutes later the Press reporter found him shooting craps on a neighboring street. He lost the quarter, fought the winner, got licked and then went home. The reporter followed him but saw no crepe upon the door of the young man's house. And so another case of misplaced confidence must be recorded in Plainfield's history.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

Philadelphia North American Gives Opportunity to Get Employment.

The Philadelphia North American maintains a free employment bureau at 1309 Filbert street, Philadlphia, to assist all those who seek situations, or employers who are looking for help.

At the present time there is a dearth of servant girls in Philadelphia, and many applicants for servants, through necessity, are disappointed. There is a great demand for first-class German, Swedish and American girls for domestic work.

If the young women in the communities throughout the State who are desirous of securing positions in Philadelphia will communicate with The North American Free Employment Bureau it will obtain places for them without charge. Positions are daily being secured for both men and women, who express themselves as being highly pleased with the service. The bureau will be pleased to receive applications for all young men and women who contemplate positions in Philaldephia and vicinity.

William M. Stillman, of West Seventh street, is slowly recovering from a recent attack of nervous prostration. He is able to be at his office a portion of the time.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. MAY ADMIT FOREIGN BORN

IMPORTANT AMENDMENT TO BE CONSIDERED BY THE O. U. A. M.

National Council Begins Its Session at Atlantic City This Morning.

What will doubtless prove to be an important meeting of the National Council, Order of United American Mechanics, will be held in Atlantic City, commencing today. The question of amending the eligibility laws to the extent of allowing men of foreign birth, but who have been naturalized, to become members, will be presented by the representatives from New Jersey, and other States will also favor the change. The subject will, it is said, cause a lengthy debate. The representatives will divide over the amendment, and one side is certain to argue and vote to keep the qualification clause as it has been ever since the order was started, and it is considered by some as one of the foundation stones of the organization. As the law now reads, only the native born man can join.

Those on the other side of the question argue that many of the naturalized citizens of the country are just as patriotic as the native born, and when they are given full citizenship they become Americans, and should be entitled to all the privileges accorded to those who are Americans from birth. Years ago a proposition of this kind made to a patriotic fraternity would, it is said, be given but little consideration, and it would have been very difficult to find a representative with courage enough to sign an amendment so as to bring the subject in line for discussion.

During the past few years, however, sentiment has changed to a certain degree, and some of the patriotic fraternity members go so far as to predict that the time is not very far distant when the naturalized citizen will be eligtble, other condtiions being equal, to membership in the societies now exclusive in this respect. It is impossible to find a representative who will venture a prediction as to the result of the vote to be taken by the National Council at the coming session. It is alleged that the forces are about equally matched as to votes, but as the proposed amendment will alter a constitutional law, a two-thirds vote is necessary to effect the change.

The statistical reports will show a membership of about 49,000. There are nineteen State councils and 721 subordinate councils. The total receipts of these councils for the year ending June 30 last amounted to $359,095. Benefits amounting to $157,263 were paid durnig that period and the year was closed with a total cash balance of $589,265.15.

The Loyal Legion, which is the name by which the uniformed rank is known, has a total membership of about 2,000.

The Order of United American Mechanics was organized in Philadelphia, July 8, 1845. New Jersey was the second State into which the order entered, and Delaware followed. During the Civil War most of the councils disbanded, but the lost ground was recovered within a few years after peace was declared.

The order established the Junior O. U. A. M. in 1853, to be used as a school for the boys. The maximum age limit was fixed at twenty-one, at which age, it was calculated, they would join the parent order. The new branch grew rapidly, and in 1885 it terminated its dependent relationship and became a separate order. The O. U. A. M. also organized the Daughters of Liberty in the year 1882 that order made its laws so as to read "any white woman between the ages of eighteen and fifty, any member of the O. U. A. M. and any member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. is eligible for membership."

FALL CHANGES AT Y. M. C. A.

SOME NEW THINGS PLANNED IN EDUCATIONAL AND PHYSICAL WORK.

Final Plans Not Yet Completed for the Formal Fall Opening October 4.

Although the entire programme of the formal fall opening of the local Young Men's Christian Association, to be held Saturday, October 4, has not as yet been completed, it is announced that Prof. G. T. Ford, the well-known entertainer, will be one of the principal attractions of the evening. Ira W. Travell, principal of the City High School and chairman of educational work for the association, John Valiant, chairman of the committee on physical work, and other prominent men will speak, and the entertainment promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the institution.

The committee on educational work held two meetings this month and, as a result, many changes and improvements in this important branch of the organization are contemplated. George L. Eager and Joseph F. T. Fuller will, this year, be in charge of the mechanical class, while Noble C. King will become instructor of mathematics. In many respects the plan and scope of the educational work will be enlarged, and it is the committee's intention to make the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association pre-eminent along this line.

Due attention will be paid to the physical department, however, and some changes that will materially improve this branch will, it is expected, take place later in the season.

October 13 the first of the Star Course of entertainments will be held. The programme of these has not been entirely made up, but General Secretary Manning states that they will be an important factor in the social life of the association this winter.

A 1914.

"There is a certain city down towards the center of the State of Illinois which is very proud of its brand new court house," said a traveling man for one of Chicago's big wholesale houses. "I had to stay over night in that town one night last week and as I had some time to kill after supper, I thought I'd go around and see the new building. It certainly is a very imposing structure, built of granite and occupying a great big square in the center of the block, with lawns running up from the street to the different sides of the building. I found the janitor and he took me all over the place, turning on the incandescent lights to show me the handsome frescoes and finishes of the different rooms. What particularly caught my attention was the spotless cleanliness of everything. The mosaic floors, the quarter-sawed oak woodwork, the stair cases, the rotunda railings, the roomy elevators—all were as bright and free from dust and tarnish as the proverbial new pin. Just fancy court rooms and offices looking that way at the ordinary county seat. "How do you do it?" I asked the janitor. He smiled but said nothing until he reached his store room. Then he showed me a whole case of Gold Dust which he kept in stock. "This washing powder," he said," is the only thing that will be used around this place as long as I am janitor. I have been doing this kind of work all my life and have never had such a snap keeping things clean as since I began using Gold Dust. You can imagine what a job I would have here without it.

OPENING FOR CENTRAL INTO JERSEY CITY

Another Tunnel Projected Which Will be of Great Value to Jersey Central.

UNDER HUDSON RIVER.

WOULD ALSO CONNECT CENTRAL TERMINUS WITH JERSEY CITY.

As Planned it Would Work in Cooperation With Trolley Tunnel Already Being Built—Erie, Central and Pennsy Favor It.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, Sept. 25—The tunnel to be built under the Hudson River from the Erie station to the New Jersey Central terminus, touching at the Pennsylvania Railraod station, with an entrance in the vicinity of Exchange place and Hudson street, is an enterprise backed by New York men, of whom William C. McAdoo, president of the company which is building the trolley tunnel from Fifteenth street, this city, is said to be one.

The new concern, which was organized a few days ago with a capital of $100,000, is an independent formation having no financial connection with any of the steam railroads or trolley lines terminating in this city or county. The Jersey City Journal publishes an interview with a well known corporation man who claims to know of the plans and purposes of the promoters of the new scheme.

"The new tunnel," said this informant, "is intended as a feeder for the trolley at Fifteenth street, and will connect the downtown section of Jersey City and the three railroads—the Jersey Central, Pennsylvania and Erie—by trolley directly with that rapid under-river route to New York. The charter of the new company permits the construction of a tunnel as far north as the Erie station. The charter may be amended so as to carry the tunnel upward to Fifteenth street, where it will connect with the trolley tunnel now building, or the trolley cars may be run overland from the Erie station to the mouth of the Fifteenth street tunnel and as near to the river front as possible so as to shorten the distance.

"These details have not yet been determined. There is no intention, however, of building a second downtown trolley tunnel to New York. The one now in course of construction will be ample for a good many years to come, if not for all time. Besides, the depth of water on the New York side of the river below Franklin street, being from sixty to sixty-five feet, is too great to make the construction of a trolley tunnel feasible. On this side of the river the water ranges from twenty-five to thirty-five feet.

"The projectors of the trolley tunnel to New York were quick to realize that its weak point lay in the fact that it did not connect directly with the three great railroad systems whose terminals are in Jersey City. It was for the purpose of overcoming this disadvantage that the new auxiliary tunnel scheme has taken shape. The Erie, Pennsylvania and Jersey Central Railroads, while not interested financially in the project, favor it. Otherwise the scheme could not be carried out.

"The Jersey Central and other railroads terminating across the Gap are especially interested, because those roads are now cut off completely from Jersey City. Passengers wishing to come to this city from the Central station, or vice versa, are compelled to cross to New York and return by ferry.

"The new enterprise will, to a certain extent, compete with the ferries, but an arrangement is to be made, I understand, whereby train passengers transferred to the tunnel will be a source of profit to the railroads under a rebate system. In another way the tunnel will be a great advantage to the railroads. It will take passengers directly to a section of New York which is destined to be the wholesale business centre of the future, if it is not so even now, that part radiating from Union Square.

"I am not in a position to state when work on the auxiliary trolley tunnel will begin. The capital stock will first have to be increased, for $100,000 is not enough even to start with. A great number of preliminary details will also have to be looked after, including the securing of rights of way and the like.

"It may be that the auxiliary tunnel will not be an accomplished fact for years. There is no telling. The first step has been taken, however, and that is something.

"The new tunnel will be a good thing for Jersey City, and it can be constructed none too soon to suit local needs. The down town business section will especially benefit by having a direct trolley connection with all three railroad stations and with New York."

The new company is named the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company.

SAFE IN WASHINGTON

President None the Worse For Return Journey.

MRS. ROOSEVELT AWAITS HIS COMING

Pain In the Leg Operated Upon Disappears, and Dr. Lung Declares His Distinguished Patient to Be In Fine Condition.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—President Roosevelt returned to Washington at half past 6 last night via the Pennsylvania railroad from Indianapolis, where he was compelled to abandon his western trip because of an abscess on his leg which developed as a result of the trolley accident at Pittsfield, Mass. He stood the journey from Indianapolis remarkably well, and when he was carried in a wheel chair from the railroad car to his carriage he was in excellent spirits and appeared to be free from any pain.

With Mrs. Roosevelt the president was driven directly to the temporary White House on Jackson place, where, according to the present arrangements, he will remain until the wound is healed and he is able again to be on his feet. The president was taken to his room on the second floor of the house and made comfortable and his wound dressed. This morning's reports are entirely reassuring, and the expectation is that within ten days the president will be himself again.

The trip home from Indianapolis was an uneventful one. He remained in bed all day, and executive business on the train practically was discontinued. Few letters or telegrams were written or received. A telegram was put on the train at Pittsburg from Mrs. Roosevelt stating that she had left Oyster Bay for Washington. The president slept soundly all through the night until 8 o'clock in the morning. Even the noise in the depot at Pittsburg, where the train remained in the early morning for about twenty minutes, failed to awaken him.

When Dr. Lung went to the president's stateroom shortly before 9 o'clock, he found his patient in rare good humor and excellent physical condition barring the wound on his leg. The slight fever which the president had Tuesday afternoon had disappeared, and his temperature was normal. In fact, he felt so well that he told the doctor he would like to get up and go into the parlor of his car. Dr. Lung strongly protested against this, telling the president that it was absolutely necessary for him to remain quiet, and President Roosevelt good naturedly gave in. The pain in his leg had practically disappeared, and the conditions there were so favorable that the doctor did not think it necessary to redress the limb.

The president's leg is tightly bandaged, and Dr. Lung does not look for a recurrence of the swelling, although this would be nothing unusual and would cause no alarm. During the forenoon's run in describing his condition to a caller the president said he could feel that something had happened when he thought about it and that was all. After eating a hearty breakfast the president called for a book, remarking that as he was an invalid he proposed to enjoy himself. He was propped up in bed, with his left leg on a pillow, and spent most of the day in reading.

The running time of the train was slow in order to reduce the jar, and as few stops as possible were made. Wherever the train stopped crowds gathered about the president's car, but there was no cheering. All the people seemed anxious to secure the latest information regarding the president's condition, and the members of his party who stepped from the train were plied with questions.

After dinner the president expressed a desire to see the members of his party, and they went into his stateroom a few at a time. He chatted pleasantly with all of them and expressed his great disappointment at not being able to continue the trip. He said he had strongly opposed the decision of the doctors to have the operation performed at Indianapolis. He wanted to continue his journey and make the speeches he had planned, but finally yielded to the strong pleading of the doctors, who represented that there was danger if not promptly attended to; that the bone might become affected and an affliction result that it would take months to cure. The president yielded, but remarked that in his younger days he had broken a rib and his collar bone at a sheep herding, but had not allowed it to interfere with his work.

In his talk with his callers the president make known his determination to visit the northwest next spring, when he will extend his trip as far as the coast, during which time he will visit all the states in which he intended to stop on the trip just ended. The president feels very close to the people of the northwest, as many years of his life were spent in that section, and it was there that he raised his regiment of rough riders at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. He will allow nothing to stand in his way of going there in the spring.

He had nothing but kind words to say of the treatment he received from the sisters who have charge of St. Vincent's hospital at Indianapolis, where he was operated upon. One of them was a nurse at Montauk when the great hospital was established on Long Island after the Spanish war, and she reminded the president of the fact that she had often seen him there and had admired him for the way in which he looked after the comforts of his men. The president was delighted at meeting her and conversed with her for some time.

When the train bearing the president rolled into the station at 6:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon on schedule time there was a large number of people around the railroad station awaiting its arrival, but a special detail of police and detectives kept them in the rear so that few were able to see him. Mrs. Roosevelt, who had reached the city during the day from Oyster Bay, has been one of the earliest arrivals at the station. She was accompanied by Rear Admiral P. M. Rixey, formerly the physician attached to the president's household.

Secretaries Moody and Hitchcock and Dr. John F. Urie joined them before the train's arrival. As soon as the train came to a stop Mrs. Roosevelt boarded it, followed by the cabinet officers and the others who had come to welcome the president home. They remained aboard for fifteen minutes chatting with the president before he was removed from the car. An invalid wheel chair was backed up against the platform, and into this the president, borne in the arms of Dr. Lung, Richardson and Rixey and another gentleman, was lifted and wheeled across the narrow platform out through the baggage entrance onto the pavement next which the White House carriage was standing.

The president took his infirmity good naturedly and extended a hearty greeting to several persons whom he recognized as he was being wheeled to the carriage. He was attired as usual, except that the shoe on the left foot was off. He jokingly remarked to a crowd of officers and trainmen who were standing around looking on sympathetically that he felt better than he looked. He was in excellent spirits and apparently suffered no pain from the wound in his leg. As he was lifted into the White House carriage he was given several hearty rounds of applause by the bystanders. Mrs. Roosevelt had already taken her place in the vehicle, and they were driven to the temporary White House on Jackson place, facing Lafayette park.

Secretary Cortelyou makes the following statement concerning President Roosevelt's condition:

"The president's physicians report that he stood the trip home very well and it is believed that the local inflammatory symptoms will subside in a week or ten days if the leg is kept absolutely at rest."

It was stated that no further operation on the wound had been performed. So satisfactory is the president's condition that it was not deemed necessary to have even the services of a trained nurse.

Attorney General Knox called during the evening and remained for some time. When he came down stairs, he reported the president to be in splendid spirits.

Ten Years For Treachery.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A dispatch from Cape Town to the Central News says that Max Ernest Henschel, a German subject, has been convicted of treachery and sentenced by a military court at Pretoria to ten years' imprisonment at hard labor. The evidence in the case showed that last March, after having taken the oath of neutrality, Henschel started for Germany, carrying with him a number of Kaffir curiosities, among which were found when the curiosities were examined at the frontier certain documents addressed by Commandant Beyers to former President Kruger and Dr. Leyds, the Boer representative in Europe. The prisoner pleaded ignorance as to the contents of the documents, but admitted that he had been promised $5,000 for delivering them.

America Must Not Meddle.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—"The American government must very soon be given plainly to understand that Europe politely but decidedly forbids foreign intervention in its affairs," says the Kreuz Zeitung, which plays upon the point that if the United States is permitted to have its way in Roumanian affairs America may acquire the habit of meddling in European affairs, "notwithstanding that its own position on the Monroe doctrine is against every such attempt, whatever the motive may be, and an energetic front must forthwith be interposed."

The Late Belgian Queen's Will.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 25.—The will of Marie Henriette, queen of the Belgians, has been opened. It directs that she be buried beside her son and that there shall be no public lying in state. The queen bequeaths her twelve horses to her private secretary, Baron Goffinet, upon whom King Leopold yesterday conferred a commandership in the Order of Leopold in recognition of the baron's devotion to the late queen. The other bequests made by her majesty were of a private character.

Aged Physician Dead.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Dr. Joshua Ward Ostrom, for fifty years a practicing physician of Goshen, N. Y., and widely known throughout the state, is dead at his home, Laze Station, aged eighty-seven. He was prominent in establishing the Homeopathic State hospital in this city and was a member of the first board of trustees.

Carnegie Visits the King.

THE COUNTY TICKET.

The Republicans of Union county have selected their candidates for the county offices to be filled at the election this fall. Their choice was made at the county convention, yesterday afternoon, and the selection made was what everybody supposed it would be. It was not accomplished, however, without a struggle for the faction, which was defeated at the primaries Monday night, carried the fight into the convention. It was a foregone conclusion as to what the result would be long before the convention was called to order. Interest centred in the possibilities of what the opposition might do and what the existing bitterness might lead to.

It was over the offices of senator and sheriff that the chief fight was made. From an impartial standpoint, it must be conceded that the men nominated for those offices are excellent candidates. Both are able, conscientious public servants who have already proved that they were able to fill a public office with credit and honor. Senator Cross has been a powerful influence in the upper house of the State Legislature while Councilman B. Frank Coriell has won many friends both here and through the rest of the county by his faithful services as councilman and deputy county clerk. Although the fight against both of these men was hard and bitter, their opponents have naught to say against them personally. Unless other influences are brought to bear, the personality of the two men will lose them no votes in their own party.

As to the rest of the ticket, three out of the four are up for re-election. Surrogate Parrot has served the county in that capacity for fifteen years and the fact that he was nominated without opposition for a term of another five, shows the popularity of the man. Edward S. Coyne is the only new man for the Assembly. He is highly thought of in Elizabeth and seems likely to poll the full party vote. William Newcorn has some opposition against him. He has, however, made by far the best showing of any of the last trio of Union county Assemblymen and has attended to his duties in the Legislature honestly and conscientiously. As for William F. Hall, there are many Republicans who say that it was a great mistake that he was put back on the ticket and there seems reason to believe that he will meet with strong opposition from his own party at the polls.

The general opinion of the unprejudiced ones seems to be that, although there are some strong candidates on the Republican county ticket this year, the turmoil in the Republican ranks offers the Democrats the best opportunity that have ever had to elect one or more candidates. If the Democrats pick their very strongest men for their ticket, the election next November promises to be considerably closer in Union county, at least, than it has been for many a year.

TO NEW JERSEY'S CREDIT.

In an editorial in Monday's issue of the New York Mail and Express, reference is made to a recent crime in New York City where the confession of the criminal followed his capture and the plea is made for a just payment of the penalty for the crime. The editor in urging that justice be done speedily holds up New Jersey as a State where punishment follows fast on the heels of crime. He says: "The credit for the detection of the criminal belongs to the New Jersey police. Their promptness would be equaled by the promptness of the courts if the trial were held in New Jersey. Because it will be held in New York is no reason why tedious legal trickery and dilatory prosecution should impede the execution of justice and insult the intelligence of the public as they have in many recent trials."

An old-time business man, according to the Philadelphia Record, affirms that since the art of advertising has become more widely understood the percentage of mercantile failures has had a great fall. He mentions a number of establishments which have been saved from ruin by a vigorous advertising campaign.

Wooden weddings will be very popular this winter if something doesn't happen to the price of coal. It took another jump yesterday and the local supply is almost exhausted.

The Daily Press is indebted to the Elizabeth Journal for the pictures of the Republican candidates, Messrs. Cross, Coyne, Hall and Coriell, which appear in this issue.

INTER-STATE FAIR COMING

SOME OF THE ATTRACTIONS NOW BEING ARRANGED FOR IT.

Trenton's Big Event Will Start Next Monday, and the Plans Are Nearly Completed.

Anaconda, with a mark of 2.01¾, and Prince Alert, whose record is 2.00¾, have been secured to go a mile for a purse of $5,000 to beat the half-mile track record, at Trenton, on Wednesday, October 1, during the Inter-State Fair, which opens next Monday. In view of the fact that both horses are in spendid condition, and the track, famous for speed, has never been faster, it is confidently expected that the record will be broken.

Another big feature of the speed programme of the fair is the double team race, wich is scheduled for Thursday, and in which are entered the fastest two-horse teams in the country.

The race programme includes twenty-two events, in which there are entered more than two hundred of the speediest and best horses in this section.

The race programme, however, has been so arranged that it will not interfere with the production on the big open-air stage in front of the grandstand of the most up-to-date and novel aggregation of vaudeville acts ever attempted by an outdoor fair.

The exposition features have not been neglected by any means, and the entries in the agricultural, domestic and industrial departments far exceed those of former years.

The midway has received the especial consideration of the fair's management this year, and the conclusion has been reached that the features in this department of the fair will be even more attractive than in former years, and that they are of so high class and standard a character as to add much to the drawing qualities of the fair.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

RIOTING INCREASES.

Troops Out In Five Coal Producing Counties.

STRIKE ASSUMES A SERIOUS ASPECT

Reports From Every Section Cause Apprehension—Nonunion Men Are Shot and Clubbed and Houses Fired or Dynamited.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—Of the ten anthracite coal producing counties of Pennsylvania state troops are camped in five. Despite the presence of the troops in these districts rioting and general lawlessness continues in the entire hard coal territory, from Forest City, Susquehanna county, on the north to Williamstown, Dauphin county, on the south, a distance of more than 100 miles. The section of the strike region in the vicinity of Forest City, which has been comparatively quiet ever since the strike began, was greatly wrought up yesterday by crowds of strikers interfering with and beating men who had returned to work, and as a result Sheriff Maxey of Susquehanna county last night asked Governor Stone for troops to assist him and other civil authorities to preserve the peace.

At the present time there are four full regiments, two companies of another and two troops of cavalry in the field. The Thirteenth regiment is camped at Olyphant, six miles north of Scranton; the Ninth is quartered at its armory in Wilkesbarre, the Eighth regiment and the Second Philadelphia city troop are under canvas on the top of a hill overlooking Shenandoah, one battalion of the Twelfth and the governor's troop are in the Panther creek valley, and one battalion of the Twelfth is preserving order in the city of Lebanon, where the iron and steel workers are on strike. If the disorder continues, Governor Stone will be compelled to call out additional soldiers.

While there has been no big general riot, the disturbances have been of such a serious nature as to cause the authorities much apprehension. Every effort is being made by the sheriffs of the several counties affected and the troops to prevent disturbances from growing to such an extent as to cause bloodshed. Reports are coming in from every section of nonunion men and others being either shot or clubbed. Houses of workmen have been burned or dynamited, and attempts have been made to hold up coal trains or derail them.

Coal is being shipped from many parts of the coalfield to market; but, compared with the normal output, the quantity is insignificant. The output for this week will be considerably less than the average normal production of one day, which is about 300,000 tons. The strikers claim that very little of the coal is freshly mined and that it is mostly coal "washed."

TROOPS AT WILKESBARRE.

Ninth Regiment Ordered Out to Quell Outbreak of Strikers.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 25.—In compliance with the request of Sheriff Jacobs and numerous citizens of Luzerne county Governor Stone issued an order for the Ninth regiment, Pennsylvania national guard, to mobilize at Wilkesbarre. The regiment has its headquarters here, and three hours after the order had been received Colonel C. B. Dougherty, the commanding officer, had the regiment, with the exception of the Hazleton companies, ready for the field. The regiment consists of twelve companies and has a membership of about 750. There are quite a number of mine workers in the regiment, but all responded readily to the call.

It was the original intention to camp out at Westside park, on the opposite side of the river from this city, but owing to a heavy rain which fell all day the grounds are not in a fit condition, and the soldiers remained in the armory ready to respond to any call. President Mitchell refused to make any comment on Sheriff Jacobs' action in asking the governor for troops for the Wyoming region. He said the presence of the militia would not interfere with any of his plans, which were to push the strike to a successful issue. Some of the Mitchell lieutenants think the sheriff acted rather hastily and that the bringing of the troops here was for the purpose of enabling the mine owners to operate their collieries.

Sheriff Maxey Asks For Troops.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., Sept. 25.—An urgent request for troops has been made to Governor Stone by Sheriff Maxey of Susquehanna county. Yesterday morning No. 2 colliery of the Hillside Coal and Iron company at Forest City resumed operation, and in the evening as the men were returning from work they were set upon by a mob of between 200 and 300 men, women and boys, followed to their homes and pelted with sticks and stones. Shots were fired on each side, but none of them took effect. After the men were driven to their homes the mob surged through the streets, and by order of the burgess all of the saloons of the borough were closed. So serious is the situation that Sheriff Maxey called the leading men of the borough together and after conferring with them asked the governor for troops.

ODELL AND HIGGINS

New York Republicans Nominate at Saratoga.

THREE NEW NAMES ON THE TICKET.

Friction of First Day Ends In Harmony—Sheldon, Forced to Decline, Has No Grievance—Platform Strongly Indorses Roosevelt.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Completing in three hours a state ticket and promulgating a platform of principles without the least indication of friction and amid much enthusiasm, the state Republican convention adjourned sine die.

The ticket nominated was: For governor, B. B. Odell, Jr., of Orange; lieutenant governor, F. W. Higgins of Cattaraugus; secretary of state, John F. O'Brien of Clinton; treasurer, John G. Wickser of Erie; comptroller, N. B. Miller of Cortland; engineer, E. A. Bond of Jefferson; attorney general, H. B. Coman of Madison; judge of court of appeals, William E. Werner of Monroe.

The candidates, with three exceptions, are at present state officers. The planks in the platform which attracted most attention were those protesting against combinations and trusts and the declaration for improved canals.

The platform also indorses the administration of President Roosevelt and Governor Odell, calls attention to the abolition of the direct tax, discourses on the economy that has characterized the administration of state affairs, considering largely increased responsibilities; congratulates President Roosevelt for laying the foundations of local government in the Philippines, indorses the relief furnished local education in the state, calls for good roads and improved canals, indorses the constitutional amendment allowing the legislature to regulate the hours of labor for workingmen, calls for the preservation of the protective tariff in the interest of the workingman, favors legislation to get more speedy results in supreme court actions, favors a high standard of state care for the insane with a care to careful expenditure, favors appropriations for the forest preserves and favors recognition of the veterans of all wars.

The friction which developed the first day of the convention and which threatened to result in a party breach had entirely disappeared when the delegates met to name the ticket. Senator Platt said that if he made any aspersions on Mr. Woodruff he had forgotten them. Mr. Woodruff failed to remember any criticism of Senator Platt.

Governor Odell left early in the morning after having effected the retirement of Mr. Sheldon, and the delegates almost as a unit approved of the decision.

Senator Higgins, who was named by the convention for lieutenant governor, was the original candidate of Senator Platt.

Mr. Sheldon said after the convention: "I have positively no grievance. My business connections, it would seem, bid fair to lay the ticket open to criticism had I been nominated, particularly in view of the fact that before the convention such criticisms had begun to be made."

A committee of representative leaders of the party was appointed to meet in Albany Oct. 7 and officially notify the nominees of the convention.

One of the surprises of the day was the announcement that George W. Dunn, chairman of the Republican state committee, would not be a candidate for congress in the Thirtieth congressional district to succeed Congressman Ray, who resigned to accept an appointment as United States district judge. The candidate for congress in that district will be John Dwight of Tompkins county.

Chairman Dunn was induced to retire from the congressional race because it was believed that his services will be needed to conduct the campaign. He is a member of the state railroad commission, and it had been planned that if he was elected to congress he would resign the commissionership and that Congressman Sherman of Utica would succeed him. Now that Mr. Dunn is out of the race for congress Mr. Sherman will be a candidate for re-election to congress.

Deadly Duel In Florida.

OCALA, Fla., Sept. 25.—In a duel between Moses Brown and W. T. Frierson, Brown was shot and killed and Frierson dangerously wounded. The trouble is said to have been caused by Brown's attentions to Frierson's wife. Brown was a prominent young business man of this city. Public sympathy appears to be entirely with Frierson.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Tell me a little more about yourself," I said. Her words had awakened a train of thought that would not down. I heard just such a discussion regarding a birth of which I knew. "Who was your father? Where did he live? Where did he die?"

"Who said that my father was dead?" She smiled a little.

"You did—no, not exactly that, but you gave me to understand——"

"I can't tell you anything more now, I must get out this lovely day; besides," she smiled again, "how do you know there is anything more to tell? Good-by, I'm off. Keep Vinegar Cruet out of my room," and she flung out of the door and down the steps. I looked out of the window and saw her mount her wheel and ride away.

My mind was filled with many strange thoughts. I closed the door, opened all the windows, covered the bed with the dust sheet, and went to the closet door to hang up some of Miss Dacres belongings. The door was locked. "She does not trust us over much," thought I. I then began to move the furniture to the middle of the room. It was tiresome work, and I pushed and tugged at the old, heavy pieces, which seemed as if glued to the floor.

The bureau was the most difficult of all to handle, but I managed to get it away from the wall. I pulled one side out into the room, and was just about to begin to throw my tea-leaves behind it when I saw something on the floor. I stooped and picked up a parcel. It seemed to be a bundle of letters. I laid them upon the top of the bureau, and was resuming my duties—but stop! There was something else. Two little square things lay upon the floor. I stooped to pick them up, when there gazed upward at me from each of the old-fashioned tintypes the faces of little Amaranthe Darlington as I had seen her last, on the day that her father and mother left the Hall for their trip to Wisconsin. And then I saw a case half hidden under the bureau, and dragging that out, I opened it. I felt that I had the right, for again Amaranthe looked forth at me, as she might have looked a year or two after she had parted from me. To say that I was astounded, overcome, does not half declare my feeling. Amaranthe! Amaranthe Darlington! here, and in the possession of Miss Dacres!

I turned towards the package of letters; I hesitated not.

Aunt Jane Mary began to thump with her cane, but for once I was deaf to her summons. I untied the rusty black ribbon. Yes, yes, they were family letters, letters addressed to Eugene Darlington, Esquire, from his "Affectionate brother David." Letters from Miss Elizabeth beginning, "Much loved and widely-parted brother." There were letters from Miss Evelyn, calling him "My dear boy," and there were letters to little Amaranthe. I read them through, as many as I could, and then I looked at the clock, to see how the time had flown. I had been there an hour. Oh dear! If I could but read the rest! What was I to think. What was I to feel! Could this young woman have known the little Amaranthe of my earlier days? Stop! Could she be little Amaranthe herself? Would she have remembered me if I had not changed my name from Willoughby to Brathwaite? Where had she come from? Was she here to search out her relatives? Of that I could not be in doubt. It came upon me suddenly. All at once I seemed to understand her appearance among us. She had said that her purpose would find its outcome by August. Was she really the little child whom I had taught? I recalled little Amaranthe's eyes of heaven-blue and her light hair. I should have said that it was much finer hair than the hair of my boarder, but after all, I must not forget that keeping the hair short makes it coarse. I took the letters in my hand, determined that I would get them again some time and copy them, and show them to the ladies at the Hall. I laid the package back on the floor and the portraits also. I was not as yet prepared to have Miss Dacres know that I had seen them. I pushed the bureau back against the wall and began my sweeping. I worked desperately to get my work done before my boarder should return, but it was late afternoon before I saw her again. At about half after five she came down the road from the direction of the country, and ten minutes later Mr. Beldon came spinning along from the village.

She ran hastily into her room and closed the door, just giving a backward glance down the road. Mr. Beldon came up on to the piazza and stopped for a moment.

"I took a day off to-day," said he. "My father isn't well, and I had to go and see him. It's pretty hard to do one's legitimate work, sit up all night in a newspaper office and visit a sick man in the daytime."

"Yes, it must be," said I, feelingly. "Nursing is hard at the best of times."

"I shall take a rest until seven," he said. "Call me, please, at that time. I won't trouble you for any tea to-night. I'm going in to the city again as soon as you call me."

When I went to call Miss Dacres to tea, she said, "Who swept my room this morning?"

"I told you that I should," said I, "and I did. Isn't it done to your satisfaction?"

"Well, not exactly; I'm rather particular. I've been moving the things to see if it was clean, and I'm sure you never swept behind the bureau."

"No," I confessed, "I didn't."

"Why not?"

"Well, the bureau's a heavy piece of furniture, and I am not very strong, and you would not allow me to bring Glorianna in, as you said—"

A REPUTATION.

How It Was Made and Retained in Plainfield.

A good reputation is not easily earned, and it was only by hard, consistent work among our citizens that Doan's Kidney Pills won their way to the proud distinction attained in this locality. The public endorsement of scores of Plainfield residents has rendered invaluable service to the community. Read what this citizen says:

Mr. C. D. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says: "I was a victim of kidney complaint and dreadful backache, so bad in damp weather or when I caught cold that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the troubles. I was at my worst when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 28—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Missions: missionary heroes. "Cheerful amidst adversity."—Acts xxvii, 22-36.

The roll of Christian missionary heroes is a long one. It begins as far back as the time when the disciples were sent out on their first missionary tours by Christ Himself. It reaches its highest Scriptural climax in Paul, the apostle to the gentiles, and it comes down through Ulfilas, the missionary to Germany; the abbot Augustine, the missionary to England, and St. Patrick, the missionary to Ireland, Judson, Livingstone, Moffat and a Carey to the patriarch Paton of the New Hebrides and the thousands of other missionaries who are serving their Master in foreign fields today.

Christianity is essentially a missionary religion. The mission of the Christian church as marked out by its head and founder is worldwide in its scope. All nations are to be led to Christ, and the only way in which this can be done is for the disciples of Christ to go as missionaries and tell all men the story of Jesus and His love. This has been done in accordance with Christ's commands from the very earliest days. It has been done in the face of difficulties and hardships and sacrifices that are incapable of apprehension and description. In connection with these various missionary enterprises and missionary leaders there have been many heroic deeds and thrilling instances. Paul himself passed through many thrilling episodes and performed many heroic deeds in his missionary labors. Thrice he was shipwrecked. The topical reference is taken from the record of one of these shipwrecks, and it places the great apostle before us as a hero indeed.

While others were discouraged and downhearted Paul's faith in God was undaunted and he alone was able to call upon the others to be of good cheer, and revealed to them the fact that they were to escape destruction. In this respect as in many others Paul has been the ideal missionary. In Africa, in China and in Japan and in the islands of the sea many missionary heroes have displayed the finest qualities of heroism under the most trying circumstances, and many of them have not failed to heroically give their lives when called upon to do so as martyrs for the cause in which they were interested and for which they labored.

The missionary heroes teach us many useful and important laws. Their heroic courage should inspire us with the willingness to serve God under any circumstances that may present themselves to us. New plans and new methods, if they assure success, are not to be abandoned simply because of the prejudices of some against them. Wherever God calls us to labor we should be willing to go and to use the most successful method possible in the prosecution of His work. This has been the principle of our missionaries, and with cheerfulness they have met every adversity that has come to them in carrying forward their plans.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. lii, 7; Nah. i, 15; Matt. v, 11, 12; xxviii, 18-20; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 14, 15; Acts i, 6-14; viii, 26-40; xv, 25, 26; xvi, 8-12; I Cor. iii, 5-10; ix, 19-22; II Cor. xi, 23-33; II Tim. iv, 6-8; Heb. xi, 36-40.

A Duty That Comes to All.

In Christ we are new creatures—we are Christians. Our hearts are put right. We are brought into tune and placed in right relations to the infinite. We cease to look afar off and to serve as with an eye service, but live the right life because of the inherent love of purity and righteousness, and thus we realize true living. And one saint of this type will carry more life to heaven than a whole drove of saints driven that way by fear or led on by the lure of promise. Now, this putting the loves right and changing the inner dispositions and working for results through the development of Christian principles is not easy nor speedy. It demands refined instrumentality. It takes patience. It calls for skilled workmen who have an enthusiasm for the deeper and diviner essences. The injunction of the wise man is the secret also of holy living. We are to "keep the heart with all diligence." This is the duty that comes home to all, and from this will spring the noblest principles and the best kind of religion.—Universalist Leader.

Hidden Things.

There are richer stores of wealth by man unfound, thoughts deeper than line of man can fathom; there are stores of knowledge to which no Newton can attain, of wisdom of which the wisest of men fail to perceive. Yet these are known to God, who hides them from the prying ken of man in Christ, the keeper of His treasures. He has the key, and when He will He opens the door of His treasure house. The light of His countenance illumines all things. He takes therefrom fitting ornaments of grace wherewith to deck His beloved ones. He removes the veil from their eyes that they may perceive His glory, for His presence brings joy, comfort and cheer.—Friend.

Christian Endeavor Statistics.

The latest statistics as compiled and recently announced by General Secretary John Willis Baer of the United Society of Christian Endeavor show that there are in the United States 44,052 Christian Endeavor societies and in foreign lands 18,140, making a total enrollment for the world of 62,192 societies. A substantial growth is demonstrated for the past year. Among new societies organized are twenty in Persia and three in Manila. The Philadelphia union—the largest city union in the world—reports the addition of thirty-nine new societies.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 28, "Cheerful Amid Adversity." Text, Acts xxvii, 22-36.

"I exhort you to be of good cheer." There is no possible way to avoid trouble in this world. No one entirely escapes. Some appear to be freer than others, but none is immune. We need, then, to learn how to best bear it. Some counsel us to drown our sense of pain and by some anæsthetic of pleasure try to get the most possible of joy and escape so far as we can all consciousness of discomfort.

To many this seems weak and unworthy, and to others it is impossible. Suffering comes in spite of all our attempts to dull and cheat our senses. So we are told to endure with grim fortitude and harden ourselves into a callousness and carelessness and so defy and overcome our pain.

But this fails with most, for the ache becomes greater than the power of endurance.

What makes much of our trouble heavier is the fact that so much of it is unnecessary. If others would only be reasonable, we could escape much damage. The faults of others cause us an immense amount of suffering. This aggravates the matter with many.

Paul found the only way out. He had suffered from shipwreck more than once before this voyage. He was a veteran traveler and knew the dangers of the sea. He warned centurion, captain of the vessel and owner against the risk to property and life and was not heeded. He had endured a long, enforced fast with all the others on the ship, but his abstinence gave him occasion to commune with his God and grow strong while the others grew weak. The angel from the Divine presence gave him assurance of something better to him than mere security of life. He was made confident of God's care for him and his guidance. Life was to be continued that he might witness still further for God before the great and lovely. Adversities awaited him to which shipwreck and hunger were small. Death itself was likely to come in some form particularly trying. But in life and death he was God's man and messenger, and God would care for His own.

He was cheerful, not at prospect of escaping death by drowning, but because no death, no adversity, could separate him from the love of God which was in Christ Jesus his Lord.

He was made glad by the angel that he should stand before Cæsar, not as so many of his countrymen had done, to ask some favor, but to witness for Jesus the Lord of lords. He could eat now, even if the tempest was unabated, for the end was assured. He could encourage others to break the long fast. He could give them counsel in saving themselves from the wreck and assist in all the work necessary in landing on an unknown shore.

The only way to be cheerful under adversity with real heart cheer is to have the heart fixed by faith on God and rest confidently in His protecting care. Come what may, He knows our need and our strength. He can and will make all things work together for our good if we trust Him.

How Character Is Formed.

Character is formed as the years go on. Final character is what a man is when he has finished his earthly years. In the Christian it is the lines of the likeness of Christ furrowed and scarred upon his soul by the Divine Spirit, through the means of grace and the experiences of his own life. I saw a beautiful vase and asked its story. Once it was a lump of common clay. Then it was crushed and ground in the mill, then put upon the wheel and shaped, then polished and tinted, then put into the furnace and burned. At last it sat on the table, a gem of graceful beauty. In some such way nearly every noble character is formed. Common clay at first, it passes through a thousand processes and experiences until at last it is presented before God faultless in its beauty, bearing the features of Christ Himself.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

Making or Marring the Past.

We make or mar the past. A son takes his father's or his grandfather's name, and that name, whatever it has been in the past, is going to be a different thing by what that son shall make of it. It may have been high in an honor which shall be almost obliterated in its degradation. It may have been wholly unknown and become widely, honorably mentioned. A nation takes the heritage of the pilgrim's travels and trials, and what that nation goes on to become shapes to a measure the reputation of the founders. They become greater and more worthy as it becomes greater and more worthy. So we of the present day hold in our hands not only our own welfare and reputation and the shaping of our future, but the reputation of those who went before us, whose works we pass on to their final fulfillment or their final failure.—Sunday School Times.

Perplexity and Prayer.

Trouble and perplexity drive us to prayer, and prayer driveth away trouble and perplexity.—Melanchthon.

Submission.

Sorely troubled, weak and weary,
Never knowing what is best;
Oh, to see this truth more clearly—
In submission there is rest!

Why should worldly cares perplex me
When my Father knows it all?
Naught can harm and naught should vex me;
Saviour, at Thy feet I fall!

Holy Spirit, teach me ever
On this blessed truth to rest,
Naught from God my soul can sever
What He sends is always best.
—Christian World.

SPORTING NEWS

ON THE DIAMOND.

Tuesday's game with the Elizabeth bluecoats will probably close the season for the local police team. Chief Kiely has no contest in view at present and if he should arrange one it will be for a benefit of some local institution.

The deprivation of George Keene from the St. Mary team will not prevent the game with Scotch Plains, Saturday. Although Keene, who is captain, will be greatly missed, the reserve players will be called upon to supply his place. Keene is getting along as well as can be expected but it will be many weeks before he will again don a uniform.

There is a strong talk of one of the local baseball teams having enclosed grounds, next season. This is something which has long been needed and which would undoubtedly pay with large returns. The attendances at all the League games this summer were very large but the receipts were vastly low in contrast. The team in question has had estimates furnished for the erection of a fence about a field and will act upon the matter before spring.

GOLF.

It is believed that Princeton University will this year have the strongest golf team of any of the colleges. Among the crack players are Louis James, winner of the National amateur championship tournament; Percy Pyne, Jr., Frank O. Reinhart and L. Conklin. This quartette is considered almost invincible.

The schedule has been announced for the Princeton University golf team. The dates follow: September 27, Morris County Golf team, at Morristown; October 1, University Championship; October 4, Lawrenceville, at Princeton; October 10 and 11, Open Championship, at Garden City; October 18, Baltusrol, at Baltusrol; October 21, Inter-Collegiate Championship, at Morris County.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

All lovers of good horse racing should not fail to witness the events, Saturday, on the track of the Plainfield Driving Club. There will be several good races. No admission fee will be charged either to the grounds or grandstand.

TENNIS.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will hold its annual championship tennis tournament, men's singles, Saturday afternoon, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. Entries may be made to either T. M. Day, Jr., or F. W. Goddard before 6 o'clock Friday night.

PING-PONG.

Three couples participated in the ping-pong tournament held at the Y. M. C. A. last night. The scores were: E. Neal, 4, vs. Whifford, 6; Mundy, 6, vs. Brokaw, 1; Denton, 6, vs. Heywood, 2.

LITERARY.

Ray Stannard Baker's papers on "The Great Southwest," with Maxfield Parrish's illustrations, have been a feature of The Century during the past year. It is announced that Mr. Baker will do for the northwest what he has already done for the southwest, and that The Century will print during 1903 a series of illustrated papers on the resources, industries, characteristics, and outlook of that growing part of the United States.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. James H. Walker, of Elizabeth, has returned home after a visit with Mrs. Chas. L. Moffett, of West Front street.

Cadet Officers' Met.

The first regular bi-monthly meeting of the officers of the Plainfield High School Battalion was held at 2:30 yesterday afternoon in the commandant's room of the City High School. Aside from the discussion of the topic, "The School of the Soldier," directions were given for tomorrow's drill and various plans for the season were discussed.

Fined for Disorderly Conduct.

A fine of $3 or the alternative of ten days was imposed upon Frank Drake in the city court this morning, after he had been found guilty of disorderly conduct. With another young man, who was fined the same amount three days ago, Drake caused a disturbance on North avenue Monday night, which resulted in their arrest by Patrolman Flynn.

Will Winter South.

A. Vanderbeek, who is at Cardinal, Va., has written a letter to his nephew, A. M. Vanderbeek, of the borough, in which he says he is enjoying good weather, good fishing, rowing, etc. His health seems to improve and he and Mrs. Vanderbeek will probably spend the winter at Cardinal.

Much Doing With I. C. T's.

The members of the I. C. T. Club are completing arrangements for a "stag" to be held in the club rooms, October 9. It will be similar to the several successful affairs of this kind conducted last season. The club anticipates holding its second masquerade the latter part of November.

Increase in Deposits.

The money stringency in New York does not seem to have affected the local financial institutions. The First National Bank reports their individual deposits yesterday as $1,048,350, an increase of $375,000, over their deposits of one year ago.

Talking of New Quarters.

The business men's club, formerly with headquarters over VanArsdale's shoe store on East Front street, is contemplating leasing the rooms on the second floor of A. Vanderbeek's building on Park avenue, now occupied by Joseph Satte's.

Dr. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, was taken suddenly ill with a severe attack of colic, last evening about 8 o'clock. Today he is much better and will be out again in a few days.

CROSS AND CORIELL NAMED

to have another Plainfield candidate in the race.

The vote showed a difference of opinion in several of the Plainfield wards, the First and Second giving votes to both Coriell and Smith. The final result was Coriell, 179; Smith, 31; Mullen, 1. Most of Mullen's supporters wandered over into the Coriell column at the last moment in an attempt to make the nomination unanimous but the opposition in Plainfield was stubborn and refused to follow the usual custom.

Last on the programme was the nomination of a coroner. Elizabeth had two men, Dr. Russell H. Shierriffs and Dr. Carl R. Kepler. The former won, 134 to 77. It was generally expected that the Third ward of Plainfield was going to present the name of Dr. Anderson, a colored physician in that city, but the chairman of the delegation declared "no nomination." Dr. Anderson had been very active in the recent convention of colored voters of the county and had been an avowed candidate for the place.

In conclusion, E. R. Ackerman and James T. Galvin were appointed a committee to fill vacanies and C. S. Reese, of Westfield, Robert T. Kirtland, of Elizabeth, and J. T. MacMurray, of Plainfield, were named to escort the candidates to the hall.

This was done and they also brought Congressman Fowler who immediately led the convention in giving three cheers for Senator Cross. Each candidate had a very pleasant word to say after which the Congressman talked, serving out a little dissertation on the subject of harmony and the need of it. After that they all went home or somewhere else where it could all be talked over. It had at least the merit of being the most eventful convention that the Republicans of Union county have conducted in a long time.

Y. M. C. A. DINNER.

Affair in Honor of Baseball League Will be Well Attended.

Invitations have been issued by the committee on physical work of the Y. M. C. A. for the dinner which is to be tendered by the association in honor of the Plainfield Amateur Baseball League, Monday evening.

Beside the members of the four teams and the officials of the League, prominent citizens will be present. In all it is thought sixty persons will be in attendance. Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood will be in charge of the affair and City Judge William N. Runyon will preside as toast master.

FUNERAL OF MRS. HAFRIAN.

Services Were Held From St. Mary's Church This Morning.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Sarah Hafrain were held from St. Mary's church, this morning, with Rev. Father Egan officiating. The edifice was well filled with mourners consisting of relatives and friends. At the close of the mass, the remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery. The pall bearers consisted of James Mottley, James Ryan, Michael Callahan and John Kelley.

Had No License.

Patrolman McCarthy arrested William Rose in the business section of the city, yesterday, for peddling without a license. He was arraigned before City Judge Runyon, this morning, and on his promising to leave town, sentence was suspended.

Beware of the Knife.

A BANQUET TO EARLY CLOSERS

Given to the Merchants by Members of Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association.

AT HOTEL KENSINGTON.

After An Excellent Repast Speeches Were Made in Which Employers and Employes Agreed That the Early Closing Movement Had Been a Complete Success.

An event of much pleasure and profit and one which evidenced the good fellowship existing between employer and employe, was the banquet given last evening at the Hotel Kensington, by the Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association to the early closing merchants of Plainfield and a few outside guests, including several public officials. It was the first affair of the kind ever given in this city and it was so successful that it bids fair to become an annual one. It was an occasion when the peculiar benefits resulting from the early closing movement were recited and all agreed that it had thus far been a success.

When the guests sat down to the table, which was handsomely decorated with palms and ferns, it was 9:20 o'clock and for nearly two hours thereafter the inner man was well taken care of. A most excellent menu was prepared and served by "Mine Host" Staats to the delight of all present. Prior to the banquet and while the guests were gathering, Prof. F. G. Finigan, of the borough, entertained those present with popular songs, with guitar accompaniment.

W. D. Williams acted as toastmaster at the dinner and a happy vein of humor permeated his address of welcome, as well as his remarks in introducing the various speakers. In welcoming the guests Mr. Williams gave a history of the early closing movement from its inception to the present time, and related the benefits thus gained by the employer and employe. He cited the fact that the association is entirely independent, and that in addition to paying sick benefits, also pays death benefits. He urged a continuance of the early closing and hoped that more merchants would be induced to join in the same.

At the beginning of the speeches Mr. Williams read letters of regret from J. W. Gavett and J. V. E. Vanderhoef, and also made an excuse for Mayor Jenkins, who could not be present owing to pressing duties upon his recent return from a vacation. Then short addresses by the following merchants were given: Morris' C. Van-Arsdale, C. K. Shupp, representing Hill & Shupp; H. A. Bonn, J. A. Powlison, of the firm of Powlison & Jones; Edson C. Martin, of the firm of Woodhull & Martin; I. H. Boehm, J. J. Kenney, N. K. Barnes and Herman Schwed. There were also remarks by Chief Doane and Chief Kiely, representing the city, and H. P. Greenwood, representing the clerks' association. All had good words for the association and the good work being accomplished.

Among the guests present included the following merchants of the city: John H. Doane, Floyd T. Woodhull, Edson C. Martin, H. A. Bonn, I. H. Boehm, Horace M. Sherwin, Norman K. Barnes, C. K. Shupp, J. J. Kenney, H. E. Gayle, Morris C. Van-Arsdale, J. A. Powlison, Frank W. Jones, Herman Schwed, also A. L. Force, of The Daily Press; F. W. Runyon, of the News; Chief of the Fire Department T. O. Doane, Chief of Police P. S. Kiely, and Postmaster Elias H. Bird.

The following members of the clerks' association were present: A. C. Hoagland, James Downing, John Becker, D. J. Galbraith, Edward Baker, A. L. Koch, James McLean, L. B. Bruker, W. H Daly, H. P. Greenwood, Charles H. Greer, J. M. Struble, W. D. Williams, F. G. Finigan, Caspar F. Waglow, F. C. Conkey, J. Plume, Wm. Schacht and W. Shack.

The committee in charge of the banquet comprised H. P. Greenwood, chairman; A. C. Hoagland, Caspar F. Waglow, A. L. Koch, James McLean and L. B. Bruker.

The officers of the association are as follows:

President, A. C. Hoagland; vice president, H. P. Greenwood; recording secretary, J. V. E. Vanderhoef; financial secretary, W. D. Williams; guide, F. C. Conkey; guardian, W. H. Daly; trustees, Caspar F. Waglow and James McLean.

EIGHTEEN INDICTMENTS MADE

THE SOMERSET COUNTY GRAND JURY COMPLETES ITS LABORS.

Several Cases Tried Before Justice Garretson at Present Term of Court.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 26—The Grand Jury has finished its labors for the term, in the Somerset County Court, and returned eighteen true bills of indictment.

For the past two days several cases have occupied the attention of Justice Garretson. That of William H. Brown against Dennis Wyckoff was tried on Wednesday and completed yesterday. It was a suit in replevin to establish the right of ownership to a rig that had been seized by defendant under an execution. The defense was for the purpose of showing fraud. The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff. A. M. Beekman was counsel for the plaintiff and James J. Bergen represented the defense.

The case of Henry J. Garretson against Joseph H. McIntosh was next taken up. Mr. Garretson sought damages, which he claimed had been done to his lands by water, caused by a dam built by the defendant across a stream. The jury's verdict was in favor of the defense. H. K. Gaston was counsel for the plaintiff and H. C. Suydam appeared for the defendant.

The next case taken up was that of Boice, Runyon & Company against Brooks Carson, on contract. G. W. V. Moy, of Plainfield, is counsel for the firm and W. S. Angleman, of Plainfield, for the defense. Mr. Moy asked for an adjournment late yesterday in order that he might produce more books in evidence. Justice Garretson thought he had aplenty already, but put the case off until Monday next, when it will be finished. The dispute is over some book accounts.

There will be no more Supreme or Circuit cases tried until next Monday.

FOOTBALL IS QUITE UNCERTAIN

EXPERTS ARE LOOKING FOR SURPRISES IN COMING SEASON.

This Week Opens the Season for Most of the Big Teams—Much New Material.

Uncertainty that forecasts a year of delightful surprises is that keynote at present of the football season of 1902, which begins this week when Pennsylvania, Yale, Harvard and Princeton play their opening games. To be sure, every football season is uncertain at the start, but this year promises to be especially problematical. It looks, indeed, as if it might be a season similar to 1901, when followers of the gridiron sports had a tremendous end-of-the-season surprise in Harvard's sweeping victory over Yale, the almost universal favorite.

Reports from all the big teams are at present most encouraging, and no college is exactly complaining of its outlook. It is curious to note, however, how almost every team has suffered alike in the loss of last year's veterans, so that the question of their ability this season is one that is to depend quite largely on the ability of the new material. It is a coincident that where the line is practically intact from last year the back field is badly depleted, and where the 1901 offensive players are still untouched an almost new line has to be developed.

So widespread do these conditions obtain that anything like an accurate forecast of what the season may hold for the six big college teams is impossible. It seems to be pretty true in football that the safest way to pick a winner is to figure out which of the two elevens has the best chance of form and past performances, and then bet on the other one.

From the management's point of view this season promises to be unparalleled in point of interest. The game of football has been steadily increasing in popularity for several years and this season looks to be a record-breaker.

In anticipation of the Harvard game at New Haven, the Yale managers have added 5,000 extra seats to the grand stand at Yale field. This means an increase of something over $10,000 in the gate receipts, and this brings to mind the enormous sums that the Yale and Harvard teams net to their university athletic funds.

—Don't delay buying peaches. Neuman Brothers will sell tomorrow 200 baskets of extra good fruit. Quality better than earlier in the season while the prices will be 50, 65, 75 and 85 cents each.

FOOTBALL SEASON TO OPEN HERE TOMORROW

Alis A. A. Will Play a Practice Game With the Eleven From Orange Field Club.

ON ORANGE F. C. GROUND

MANAGER CHANDOR HAS ANNOUNCED SEASON'S SCHEDULE FOR ALIS A. A.

After Tomorrow Afternoon's Game the Alis Boys Will Play on Hope Common—All Game Will be at Home This Season.

Tomorrow will see the inauguration of the local football season. The Alis A. A., which will probably have the most representative team in the city, will open its season tomorrow afternoon with a practice game against the Orange Field Club on the latter's field. The Orange Field Club has secured the use of the field at the corner of Arlington avenue and Randolph road for its gridiron and it is there where the game will be played. There will be no charge of admission.

As the Orange Field Club is concededly not in the same class with the Alis boys, the stronger team will use the game as an opportunity to try some of its new candidates. By using substitutes, the Alis eleven may even things up so the contest will be more interesting to the spectators. The Orange Field Club players are a sturdy little aggregation and play good hard football so the game promises to be worth seeing even if it is in the nature of a pratice game.

Alis' real season will commence a week from tomorrow when the Alis boys will appear on their own gridiron on Hope Common against the I. C. T. Club eleven. The I. C. T. Club has formed quite a powerful eleven this season. Many on that team were those who played with the Scotch Plains team last season. So far it is rather an unknown quantity but the I. C. T.s are hoping to make a good showing in their initial game. Commencing with the I. C. T. game, the Alis A. A. will play on its own grounds every Saturday afternoon during the season. By paying heavy guarantees, Manager Harold A. Chandor has arranged to have all the games at home and thus the football loving public will have plenty of opportunity of seeing good games.

Manager Chandor is now able to give out the schedule for the season which is practically complete. It is as follows:

Saturday, September 27, Orange Field Club on Orange Oval, Arlington avenue.

Saturday, October 4, I. C. T. Club on Hope Common.

Saturday, October 11, Company C, of Elizabeth, on Hope Common.

Saturday, October 18, Westfield on Hope Common.

Saturday, October 25, Company K, of this city, on Hope Common.

Saturday, November 1, Cranford on Hope Common.

Tuesday, November 4, (Election day afternoon) Rutgers "scrubs" on Hope Common.

Saturday, November 8, Roseville A. A. on Hope Common.

Saturday, November 15, Riverside A. C., of Newark, on Hope Common.

Saturday, November 22, open.

Thursday, November 27, (Thanksgiving Day morning) Bergen Point Field Club on Hope Common.

Final practice before tomorrow's game will be held this evening, weather permitting, on the grounds in the rear of Captain Roy T. Phillips' residence on Madison avenue. Lewis E. Wairng, who was captain of the famous Plainfield A. A. eleven and who also played with the Elizabeth A. C. in its palmy days, is coaching the team.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS.

At Convocation of Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., Last Night.

At a stated convocation of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., held last night, the degree of mark master was conferred upon three candidates. Among the distinguished visitors were Grand High Priest Nelson Y. Dungan, Somerville; Grand King Edgar L. Brown, Jersey City; Past Grand High Priest John B. Bertholf, Jersey City; Grand Principal Sojourner Daniel C. Adams, Plainfield; Grand Master of the First Veil Charles P. Sparkman, Paterson.

At the close of the ceremonies the craft enjoyed a collation at Warnock's. Covers were laid for thirty-seven members of the fraternity.

TOMORROW'S GAME.

Plainfield Consolidated Nine and Westfield Meet in Second Game of Series at Westfield.

Providing the weather is clear, all roads, or at least a part of them, will lead to Westfield tomorrow. It is there the second game between the Westfield team and the crack Plainfield Consolidated nine will take place. The former carried away the honors in this city, last Saturday, but by so narrow a margin that many fans are confident that Plainfield will bring them back.

The Consolidated lineup will remain the same as last week with Montross and Dupee in the box. Westfield's batting order will remain the same with the exception of pitcher, which position will be filled by Walsh who has not lost a game this season. There will be special trolley service and the bleachers and grand stand accommodations at Recreation Park will provide for all who attend. There is also plenty of carriage room within the grounds.

STILL AFTER CARP.

Gigantic Specimens Are Being Captured in Tier's Pond—Will Continue Several Days.

Continued interest is manifested in the fishing operations at Tier's pond. Today over a hundred people stood around on the muddy banks watching the men who, with their large nets, dragged the pond in the pouring rain.

Some good catches were made today. More than a hundred carp, weighing all the way from fifteen to thirty-five pounds, were captured from the muddy waters. As fast as they were landed men from the Harrison Packing Co., of East Newark, transferred them to wagon tanks in which they will be driven to the works of the concern.

The work of ridding the pond of these beligerant fish will be prosecuted for several days or until the pond is free from the largest specimens of them. The company that has secured the fish will salt them down for winter use.

STARTED SEWERS.

Contractors Have Begun Work at South Avenue and Central Street.

James Maybury & Son, of Passaic, who have the contract to build the five miles extension of sanitary sewers, commenced the work, Wednesday, at the corner of South avenue and Central street. From present indications the work will not be completed this fall. No doubt some little trouble will be experienced in getting pipe on time and the weather is almost sure to be unfavorable for the work. The firm now has several carload of pipe en route to this city and it is expected most any day.

SUCCESSFUL DIME SOCIAL.

Held by Martha Washington Council at G. S. Martin's Home.

Under the auspices of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, a successful dime social was held, last evening, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Martin, of Somerset place. It was well attended despite the inclemency of the weather. Several hours were passed in a pleasant way, playing games, while musical selections added to the enjoyment. Refreshments were served at the close.

Must Serve His Time.

Chief Marshal Campbell, of the North Plainfield police, arrested Lewis Miller, yesterday, and today took him up to Somerville. Miller was given a thirty days' sentence a couple of weeks ago for being drunk and disorderly. As he had only served half his time when the Chief found him at large, he was rearrested.

Going to Build.

Charles P. Sebring is having his mother's property on West Front street, adjoining the Babcock building, cleared preparatory to making arrangements for placing a building thereon. As yet no plans have been drawn for the new structure.

Nearly Ready.

The committee in charge of the anniversary celebration of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order Red Men, are rapidly completing the details for the affair. It is expected that a number of tribes and the Great Chiefs will be present.

Settled Insurance.

Elston M. French, of North avenue, yesterday paid in full the amount of the insurance policy covering the buildings on the Grogan farm, which went up in smoke a few weeks ago. The total amount claimed and paid was $1,500.

—"Peaches, peaches"—200 baskets extra fine fruit at Neuman Brothers tomorrow. Prices low for this occasion. Buy now ere it is too late.

IMPORTANT MERGER OF FOUR LAND COMPANIES

Columbia Realty Company Formed by Four Companies of Trenton Capitalists.

ALL DRAKE'S COMPANIES

S. D. DRAKE WAS ORGANIZER OF ALL FOUR AND HOLDS OFFICE IN NEW.

Out of 1016 Shares of Stock in the Four Companies That Were Represented, Only Eighty-One Voted Against Merger.

Three years ago Silas D. Drake purchased the Denton property now known as Woodland Park and he organized the S. D. Drake Realty Company. For two years Mayor O. L. Jenkins, J. W. Johnson and F. S. Runyon were directors in this company, when Trenton capitalists purchased the stock held by these men and secured control of the company. About two years ago Mr. Drake purchased three farms now known as Dewey Park and organized the Middlesex Land Company. Following this Mr. Drake organized the Watchung Realty Company, which now owns ninety acres at Hillcrest, Trenton. Again the Trenton capitalist secured control of this property. Last fall when Mr. Drake purchased the property at Lincoln when the receiver gave a deed for the same and organized the Union Realty Company, the Trenton capitalists supported Mr. Drake in this enterprise.

These four companies have been in a flourishing condition. Recently, the Columbia Realty Company, with a capital stock of $500,000, was organized, and yesterday papers were filed with the Secretary of State by this company which has absorbed the four above-named companies. The vote of the stockholders of the company resulted as follows: Out of 1,016 shares of stock issued by the four companies, 872 voted for consolidation and eighty-one voted against it. Within a few days the Columbia Realty Company will issue a prospectus to the stockholders. The present appraised value of the property of the four companies is $328,405; liabilities, $76,000; stock, $116,000, leaving a surplus of $136,415.

The directors of the Columbia Realty Company are among the substantial business men in the world of finance. S. D. Drake is a director and manager for the company and much credit is due him for the success of the enterprise.

LEAL'S SCHOOL ELEVEN.

Will Play Opening Game With Pingry's School at Elizabeth Tomorrow Afternoon.

Last season saw much activity in scholastic football in Plainfield. This year, the Plainfield High School has announced that it will place no eleven on the field. Both the North Plainfield High School and Leal's School are anticipating a representative eleven on the gridiron.

Under the coaching of A. Willis West, the boys of Leal's School have been at practice for the past two weeks and will play their first game tomorrow afternoon at Elizabeth with the eleven from Pingry's School, of that place. On the start, the team will probably line up as follows: right end, Max Perkins; right tackle, Robert Abbott; right guard, Faber; centre, Martin; left guard, Brokaw; left tackle, Buckle; left end, Pinto; quarterback, Schoonmaker; right halfback, Lovell; left halfback, Gordon Abbott; fullback, Biglow. It is probable that a number of substitutes will be tried during the progress of the game.

FIRST BIG MEETING.

Charles H. Yatman Will be Speaker at Y. M. C. A.

Charles H. Yatman will address the first of a series of "big meetings," at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Charles L. Lewis, of the Lotus Glee Club, of New York, will sing and there will be selections by a string quartette from the Y. M. C. A. orchestra. The admission will be by ticket until 3:55 o'clock.

Tickets may be obtained at the Association office and at city drug stores.

To Reorganize Choral Club.

The chances are that the Plainfield Men's Choral Club will soon be reorganized for the coming season, after which plans will be made for giving concerts during the winter. The affairs given by the club last year were greatly enjoyed and no doubt this year's efforts will be equally appreciated.

WHO WILL BE NEXT MAYOR?

MAYOR JENKINS DOES NOT CARE TO TALK ON THAT SUBJECT AT PRESENT.

Believed That He Would Accept If Nomination Was Unanimously Tendered to Him.

Now that the county ticket has been chosen, the local Republicans are beginning to think of the city ticket which is to be elected this fall. Most important of all the city offices to be filled this year is that of mayor, now occupied by Dr. O. L. Jenkins. Almost the first question asked has been, "Will Mayor Jenkins be renominated?"

Many politicians have been of the opinion that the local Republicans will be glad to tender a renomination to Dr. Jenkins if he will accept it. His administration has been a good one and his long list of friends has grown rather than diminished since his election to the chief executive office of the city. The only question seemed to be whether Dr. Jenkins would accept the position.

Immediately upon his return from the sea shore, Mayor Jenkins was approached by a reporter of The Daily Press. The Mayor was disinclined to talk on the subject so early in the campaign. He explained that he did not care to say anything at present until he knew the feeling of the whole city on the subject. He said that he did not know whether he would be acceptable to all. He referred to the factional dispute in the Republican ranks and rather gave the impression that he would not want to run if the factional disturbances were not settled. He did not say, however, that he would not run if the nomination was offered him.

INFORMATION DESK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The Work Will be Resumed October 1 As a Department by Itself.

WHAT ITS OBJECT IS.

REMARKABLE VARIETY OF QUESTIONS THAT ARE ANSWERED THERE.

Aims to Answer Questions as to the Use of Library and Catalogues, or to Assist Searchers for Information of Any Kind.

The work of the information desk at the Public Library which was discontinued in June, will begin again With October 1, at which date either the Librarian or the Assistant Librarian will be at the information desk in the reading room to answer questions as to use of the library, catalogues, or to assist searchers for information in any way in their power. To such an extent has this work of assisting readers grown that it became expedient last year to set it aside as a department by itself, since which time it has been consulted for a variety of purposes.

It may be interesting to The Press readers to know the sort of questions answered at this desk. Taken at random from a long list are the following: The origin of the U. S. secret service, relative importance of war and peace in civilization, work of the institutional church, Davy's safety lamp, American short story writers, is it ever right to tell a lie? history of the Friends' meeting house in Plainfield, account of Robert, duke of Normandy, interior of Santa Sophia, social life in England in the eighteenth century, commerical prospects in the Philippines, loyalism in New York in the revolution, colored illustration of apple blossoms, the number of times Christ used the word "woman," how to make a camera, boundaries of Tryon county, New York, account of the song-writer, Chaminade, Sir Galahad, improvement in mail transportation facilities in the nineteenth century, comparison between the Jew of Malta and the Jew in the Merchant of Venice, State control of railways, moral influence of soap, religion and government of ancient Egypt, how to make a small dynamo, Saracenic architecture, monopolies, how to raise violets, Carthagenain life and customs, how to clean old brass, etc., etc.

Among questions frequently asked and difficult to find answers for are those bearing on local history. It is necessary to refer such to files of local papers, bits of New Jersey histories, and the Library's small collection of newspaper clippings on the subject. Any interested in the preparation of local records and all matter bearing on the history of Plainfield, would do well to place these in the Public Library where they will be preserved and made accessible.

In addition to assisting readers and students, the Librarian will during these hours show strangers about the Library, explain to those interested the use of the card catalogue, and the arrangement of the stack and reference books. The hours set apart for this work are daily, Sundays excepted, from 2 to 5 p. m. While the library is at all times ready to assist inquirers, it is hoped that as far as possible, searchers for information will come during the hours mentioned.

STOPPED ON HIS FOOT.

Wheel of Heavy Ice Wagon Crushed George Apgar's Foot.

George Apgar, an employe of the Hygeia Ice Company, has a badly crippled foot from an accident which befell him, Wednesday.

In making a jump to regain his seat on one of the company wagons, he slipped and fell to the ground. Before he could arise, the heavy vehicle loaded with nearly a ton of ice was on his foot. To make matters worse, the horses stopped while the wheel still rested upon him. He retained presence of mind to shout at the team and it backed off.

Two of the toes were crushed and the limb was painfully bruised. Dr. Lufburrow dressed his injuries.

Horse Taken Ill.

A valuable horse, owned by James Maybury & Son, of Passaic, sewer contractors, was taken ill in this city, Wednesday, after being brought here from Paterson. Dr. Herbert, the veterinary, is looking after the animal and every effort will be made to save the horse.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Did you ever get a transfer?
Then perhaps you may know
What it is to go down town,
To go down town very slow.

Did you ever feel disgusted
When the car you want, alas!
Goes slipping 'round the corner
And you must let it pass?

Just because the trolley magnates,
Granting no accommodation,
Say, "No transfers here we give,
You must go on to the station,"

Then in the jostling, curb-stone crowd
You receive a little slip,
Wait and walk, and think and talk
About that dreadful trolley trip.

Weary minutes must go by,
And you scarce know what to do,
While you stand and wait and wait,
Waiting for Car Number Two.

Do you wonder people grumble?
Do you wonder that they talk
About such bungling service,
And much prefer to walk?

A Codington avenue family have hit upon a clever scheme to keep warm this winter. Coal at $10 per ton does not appeal to their liking, but both husband and wife are enthusiastic ping-pongers. Jumping about keeping the little sphere in motion brings perspiration and it's cheaper than coal.

A Plainfield woman stopping at a sea shore home was attracted by a dog called "Bije" belonging to the family. The woman's niece joined the party later and being attracted also by the dog, asked her aunt what the dog's real name was, and was told that she supposed it was "Abijah."

Some days after, the young woman called the dog "Abijah" when a member of the family exclaimed, "His name isn't 'Abijah' at all. My brother found the name 'By Joe' in a French book. There is a theatre in New York by the same name."

Then the party of women, who were all good French scholars smiled almost audibly, recognizing the French word Bijou, a jewel, for the real name of the dog "Bije."

THEATRICAL.

Goolman's cats and dogs will be the feature act in the Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre bill of continuous vaudeville. James J. Morton will be heard in an entirely new monologue as an extra attraction and the four Olifans will offer their eccentric comedy sketch as an added attraction.

The Fifth Avenue Company will be seen in "The Crust of Society," a modern society play in which Minnie Seligman will be seen to especially good advantage.

The Drury Lane production of "The Great Ruby," with all its scenic splendors, sensational scenes and thrilling situations, will be presented at the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, exactly as seen at Daly's Theatre.

The Proctor Stock Company will be seen in "Jim the Penman" at the Fifty-eighth Street Theatre.

Splendid vaudeville continues to attract great crowds to Proctor's Newark Theatre. There is no increase in the popular scale of prices which served to attract great throngs all summer and it is admitted that the Proctor bills are models of cleverness and entertaining qualities. Press Eldridge in an entirely new black-face monologue and song offering will be the topping feature. Georgie Gardner and Joseph Maddern, offering their little comedy skit, "Too Many Darlings," will be an extra attraction.

FOR BETTER HORSESHOERS.

Master Horseshoers Want Members of Trade to Pass Examination.

The master horseshoers throughout the State will look to the coming session of the New Jersey Legislature to elevate their craft to the standard which it now enjoys in New York and other states. An act to this effect will be introduced, compelling all horseshoers to pass an examination.

By a more thorough knowledge of the anatomy of the horse's foot the members claim that it will lessen the injury which many animals sustain because of lack of experience among some of those who now pose before the public as practical horseshoers.

Miss Maude Uhler, of Grove street, is detained at home by illness.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and its Citizens.

Senator Kean and his cohorts have come out first best in the fight for delegates for the Senatorial convention in Union county. The contest was almost unprecedented in point of vigor and pecuniary expense to the contestants. In the stress of the battle no less a personage than the last Governor of New Jersey was defeated for the ordinarily modest post of ward delegate. Senator Cross's unquestioned ability and splendid record as a legislator should make all the factions rally to his support in November.—New Brunswick Home News.

If a Republican senator shall be elected in Union county this fall United States Senator John Kean, Jr., will be the choice of Union for United States Senator in 1905, and Union's Senator will present his name in the legislative caucus that year. The renomination of Senator Joseph Cross, of Union, clinches the choice in favor of Kean against Congressman Fowler.

Senator Cross's success in the primaries was largely due to his excellent record in the Senate. That is especially true of his success in Plainfield, the home of Judge Runyon. Probably no other Elizabeth man could have commanded a like support in that city against Runyon. Senator Kean was most fortunate in his candidate.

The bitterness of this contest will hardly be allayed before the November election, and it is likely to crop out in both the Congressional and county elections in Union, which is the pivotal county in the Congressional district. How well the Democratic organization in Union is prepared to take advantage of a disaffected spirit in the enemy's camp is doubtful. Cross was elected in Union county by 2,471 plurality in 1899. Fowler's plurality in 1900, in his old district (the Eighth), was 9,611. The change in the district lines, however, cuts this plurality down one-half, the new district having given 4,721 Republican plurality on Congressman two years ago, Warren and Morris about offsetting each other.—Newark Advertiser.

The Republicans in Union county had a warm primary last night and the result insures the nomination of Judge Cross as Senator to succeed himself. Senator Cross is an admirable Senator and a credit to the county. It is unfortunate that a faction fight involved him in a squabble at the primaries. If he had been a candidate without being involved in the factional difference which really does not affect the Senatorial position, Judge Cross would have been the choice by acclamation. Now that the party has decided in favor of Cross, the factional feeling should be allowed to subside.—Jersey City Journal.

The decisive manner in which the Kean faction defeated the Fowler cohorts in the Union county Republican primaries last night was a greater victory for the Senator than had been expected, though during the last few days the indications had been favorable for the renomination of former Judge Cross for State Senator by a small majority of the delegates in the county convention.

It is fortunate that the defeat of the Fowler faction was so overwhelming. The outcome should convince the Congressman of the futility of fighting longer against the wishes of the majority of his party. Now that the rank and file of the Republicans have registered so forcibly their allegiance to Judge Cross, Mr. Fowler should make it plain that he proposes to give the candidate for State Senator his hearty support, and his friends should also swing into line. If he does this it is not to be doubted that the Kean forces will reciprocate and give Mr. Fowler the aid at the polls that he deserves. The Republicans of Union county ought to get together now and heal the breach that has existed for so long, and the bitterness of the struggle for supremacy in the party councils should be forgotten on election day. The people of Union county owe it to themselves to give substantial majorities to both Congressman Fowler and State Senator Cross. Any failure to do so would be against their own best interests. Both men have made records in the public service of which their constituents should be proud, and they are in a position to accomplish much more in the councils of the State and nation if sent back to Trenton and Washington for another term.—Newark News.

Former Councilman V. L. Frazee, of West Front street, has returned from a business trip.

In the Tenth district there is talk of Lawyer James D. Manning's nomination on an indendent Democratic ticket and Manning's indorsement by the Republicans.

In the Ninth district the aspirants for the nomination are Former Assemblyman Henry H. Holmes, of Jersey City, and Col. Charles W. Fuller, of Bayonne.

The Republicans of New Jersey have in nearly every case renominated their present Congressmen.

Heretofore New Jersey had eight Congressmen. Under the new apportionment, which goes into effect this year, the number of Congressional districts is increased from eight to ten.

At present New Jersey has six Republican Congressmen and two Democratic Congressmen, McDermott and Flanagan. The Republicans this fall expect to elect nine out of the ten Congressmen.

INDIANS COMING TO JERSEY

A TRIBE FROM MEXICO MAY LOCATE POTTERY AT CRANBURY.

Excellent Clay is Found There, and Benefactor of the Tribe Cannot Go to Mexico.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, September 26—If plans that are at present under way mature, an Indian settlement will be established at Cranbury in the near future. The facts of the case are these: Away down in southwestern Mexico lives a tribe of Indians known as the Loguna, a peaceable tribe of redskins, who for centuries have practiced industrial arts rather than warfare. They are famed as the makers of a rare and beautiful style of pottery that has been collected and highly prized everywhere. Consequently the tribe is very wealthy. Several years ago a Miss Mary Foard, of Waverly, N. Y., went to Mexico for her health, and became interested in these Indians. She became a friend of the tribe and learned the art of making the pottery. Since then she has been endeavoring to get the United States government to do something for the Logunas and help them to get their pottery manufacture on a sound financial basis by organizing in this country.

This spring the interior department took the matter up and promised to lend aid to the Indians. Just at this time Miss Foard's health broke down, and she was forced to leave the Mexican climate. For a time it looked as though she would have to give up her cherished plans. Since coming east Miss Foard learned of the rich clay deposits in Central New Jersey and started to follow up the matter.

A few weeks ago Miss Foard went to Cranbury and proved to her satisfaction that there were clays there well adapted to the pottery manufacture of the Indians. Her investigations led to the discovery of rich beds of clay only a few feet below the surface, and the veins which she had opened, she believes, contain the very best material for the manufacture of the artistic pottery made by the Logunas.

Miss Foard is reticent about her plans and will give out no positive information as to whether she will establish a pottery at Cranbury, but admits that the clay there is fully as good as that in Mexico. Since her health will not permit her to live with the Indians, the only alternative is to bring the Indians east. Cranbury expects to have quite an aboriginal population in a year or so.

New Jersey at present is one of the few states of the Union that contains absolutely no resident full-blood Indians.

LITERARY.

Literature, Art and Music, the new magazine, has the finest writers and the best stories. Every month it gives either a sheet of new music, worth fifty cents, or an art study in color, worth seventy-five cents, each separate from the magazine. It can be bought from the newsdealers, or send ten cents for sample copy to Publisher Literature, Art and Music, 125 East Twenty-third street, New York City. The subscription price is one dollar a year.

The October magazine number of The Outlook in its hundred pages of reading matter contains in actual amount and in illustration as much as many of the regular monthly magazines; while it is to be remembered that The Outlook publishes under one susbcription rate fifty-two numbers a year, twelve of which are illustrated magazine numbers. The current issue contains a pleasant discursive talk about the coronation in England, by Augustine Birrell, who has no superior among living English essayists; a vivid account of the recent manoeuvres of our army and navy under the title "With the Attacking Fleet," by James Barnes, the author of "Yankee Ships and Yankee Sailors," "Midshipman Farragut," etc., etc.; several full-page portraits of such men as Archbishop Farley and the late Professor Virchow; an illustrated article by Ray Stannard Baker called "Seen in Turkey;" an entertaining and charmingly illustrated article called "Round About in Virginia," by H. H. Moore; a personal article on John Morley, by Justin McCarthy; another chapter in Edward Everett Hale's "Memories of a Hundred Years;" a paper on Cesar Frank, by Daniel G. Mason, with a striking portrait—one of a series of articles on "American Musicians" which is attracting much attention; a very fully illustrated article entitled "America's Welcome to the Immigrant," by Ernest Hamlin Abbott; and several stories, sketches and poems, besides the usual full editorial narrative and interpretation of the events of the week, talks about recent books, etc., etc.

—Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will entertain Grand Castle officers on Tuesday evening, September 30.

TALKS OF FORMING BOROUGH OF GARWOOD

Garwood Residents Are Disgusted With Treatment by Westfield and Cranford.

A NEW MUNICIPALITY

SOME OF THE REASONS WHY GARWOOD PEOPLE ARE NOT SATISFIED.

Superintendent F. W. Morse, of the Garwood Land and Improvement Company, Interviewed — He Believes They Ought to Withdraw.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Garwood, September 26—A movement has been started here in favor of making a borough of the Westfield and Cranford sections of Garwood to give the manufacturing section home rule and freedom from entanglements with either Westfield or Cranford officials.

It is the intention to include the factories within the limits of the proposed borough and have a form of government which will suit this rapidly growing section. It is reported that nearly fifty freeholders favor the plan, and that arrangements are being made to call a public meeting to be held at the schoolhouse at an early date to discuss the project.

Frank W. Morse, superintendent of the Garwood Land and Improvement Company, has been interviewed regarding the formation of a borough. Mr. Morse is quoted as saying that over fifty property owners were in favor of a borough form of government, that the organ manufacturers favored such a movement, for they would then have something to say regarding the expenditure of money; that the land company owned the C. and C. factory property, and this would have some weight in the concern's decision, and that he believed the Hall Signal Company favored the plan.

Mr. Morse declared that Garwood had been sidetracked by the Westfield and Cranford officials when improvements were asked for, and that little or no attention was paid to requests. One notable instance was the matter of macadamizing Centre street, on which action was laid over for almost a year. The school situation also entered into the controversy, the people here desiring to have a school of their own.

Regarding the amount of income to support a borough, Mr. Morse stated that he believed nearly $4,000 was paid Cranford for taxes and a little less to Westfield, in all between $6,000 and $7,000. Mr. Morse believes that with a borough form of government the tax rate of both townships could be cut in half and the new form of government run so that Garwood would reap great benefits, and would be independent and able to take care of itself.

In conclusion, Mr. Morse declared that the officials of both townships had treated Garwood like a person would a dog—by throwing him a bone. He maintained that the people of Garwood were tired of such treatment, that the coming meeting would be a lively and interesting one, and that he had no doubt those present would be unanimously in favor of making a borough of Garwood.

The Fall Piano Trade.

The impetus given to the piano trade because of the summer sojourners' return to their homes is well marked. After the often strenuous life at a watering place, the quiet of home, and its amenities, (among which music must always be prominently considered), will be doubly appreciated. They need a new piano. Then comes the question of the buyer: Where to get an instrument that will possess all the requisites of one, interior as well as exterior finish, and durability? Piano makers are as plentiful as the proverbial blackberries of summer time; but piano makers of reputation, who have held the confidence of the public since their grandfathers' days are rare indeed. The new ware-rooms of J. & C. Fischer, 164 Fifth avenue, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, whose advertisement appear in these columns, present an assortment of pianos of the latest styles, designs and architectural effects in all woods from which it would be strange indeed for a visitor in search of a trustworthy instrument not to make a desirable selection. The Fischer piano is a leader because over sixty years of manufacture, during which skill and advanced ideas, and the application of all up-to-date improvements have made its reputation rock-solid with the public.

HOW TO GET FUEL.

When William Conger, United States minister to China, came to Plainfield as the guest of George Wharton Edwards, last year, the one thing which impressed him most, he said, was the large number of shade trees to be found on every hand. It attracted his attention particularly because China is almost devoid of trees. It is a fact that Plainfield possesses many more shade trees than the vast majority of cities of its size. In many places there are really too many trees for the good of the place and it is in reference to this fact that Mayor Jenkins has made a wise suggestion.

If those Plainfielders who are in moderate circumstances will look about their homes, the Mayor says, they will find that there are several trees which can well be spared and not injure the appearance of the place in the slightest. Too much shade is unhealthy and affects the turf as well. During his trips around the city, the Mayor has noticed many places where a tree or two could be removed much to the advantage of the occupants of the home. But the Mayor's suggestion has a special import at this time. By the removal of these trees, he says, not only would a step be taken to better the health and improve the appearances of the property, but persons in moderate circumstances could thus obtain a supply of fuel at little or no cost.

This question of providing fuel in Plainfield is going to be a serious one. The homes must be heated. There is practically no hard coal left. Even the supply of soft coal is limited. There is nothing else to burn but wood, gas or petroleum. While the last two will undoubtedly be largely used for cooking purposes, either wood or coal will be required for the furnaces. Mayor Jenkin's suggestion is a good one in that it aims to relieve an unpleasant situation and at the same time will bring about a valuable change.

The Daily Press received this morning a communication from Former Judge Nelson Runyon regarding an editorial in The Daily Press on the Republican primaries. Owing to the press of important news, its publication will have to be delayed until tomorrow.

Plainfield's suggested basket ball league will be discussed at a meeting to be held this evening. The Daily Press has already made the offer of a suitable trophy in the event of the league being organized.

HEARD ABOUT CITY SEWERS

BOROUGH SEWER COMMISSION HELD A MEETING LAST NIGHT.

City Engineer Gavett and Expert J. O. Osgood Told Something of the City Disposal Plant.

The North Plainfield Sewer Commission held a meeting in the Council rooms last night with these members present: B. A. Hegeman, Jr., David T. Kenney and Elston M. French. George D. Hallock and Wm. C. Smith, members of the committee, were unable to be in attendance. Andrew Love and Rev. W. E. Honeyman, respectively president and secretary of the Board of Health, although invited to be present, were unavoidably detained elsewhere and so could not take part in the proceedings.

Andrew J. Gavett, the Plainfield city engineer, and James O. Osgood, the expert who designed the present sewerage disposal of this city, were present and addressed the meeting.

In reply to the assertion of the Borough Board of Health that the Plainfield sewerage plant was not a success, Mr. Gavett stated that the new filtration system of beds has improved in efficiency so greatly in the past two months that its ultimate success is a foregone conclusion.

Previous to the recent election the claim was made that the city beds were so piped that raw sewerage ran direct to Green brook. Mr. Gavett emphatically denied this. He stated that it was an absolute impossibility. No pipe, he said, connected the brook with the septic tanks where raw sewerage is taken in, and it was therefore not within the bounds of reason that raw material could run into Green brook.

The committee will meet again early next week and draw up its report. This will cover the entire subject and will be submitted to the Borough Council at their next meeting on Friday, October 3.

HOME WEDDING.

Marriage of Miss Rachel Good and Henry Alexander Wednesday.

In the presence of a large assemblage of friends, Miss Rachel Good and Henry Alexander, both of this city, were married Wednesday evening, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. James R. Carter, of Richmond street. Rev. E. E. Jackson, of the Mount Olive Baptist church, was the officiating clergyman.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor which had been tastefully decorated for the occasion. Miss Good was attired in a gown of white organdie and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. She was attended by the Misses Louise and Mabel Alexander, both gowned in white. The groom was unattended.

Following the wedding, the guests partook of a wedding supper. They will go to housekeeping on Liberty street. The groom is an employe of the Pond Tool Works.

DEATH OF MRS. TODD.

Estimable Woman Passed Away at Dunellen This Morning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Sept. 26—The death occurred this morning of Mrs. Meribah E. Todd, wife of Rev. Augustus Todd, of this place, in her seventy-seventh year. Mrs. Todd has been ill for some time with pneumonia and weakness of the heart, and her end has been momentarily expected. She is survived by a husband and several children and will be regretted by a large circle of friends. The funeral services will be private and interment will be made in Somerville.

BASKET BALL LEAGUE.

Meeting Will be Held Tonight to Discuss Plans for It.

A meeting is to be held at the local Y. M. C. A. tonight to discuss the advisability of forming a basket ball league to compete for the trophy offered recently by The Daily Press.

Delegates from seven or eight teams will be present, among them being representatives from the strong Roselle basket ball team. The meeting will doubtless be an enthusiastic one and there is little doubt but that the league will be formally launched tonight.

THIRD IOWA'S CHOICE

Judge Birdsall Named For Henderson's Place.

CONVENTION'S VIEWS ON THE TARIFF

St. Louis Plank of 1896 Embodied in the Platform—Withdrawal of the Speaker Deemed a Great Public Loss.

HAMPTON, Ia., Sept. 26.—Judge E. P. Birdsall of Clarion, Ia., has been nominated for congress by the Third district Republican convention. The nomination was made on the second ballot by a vote of 88 to 26 for C. E. Ransier of Buchanan. The Third district at present is represented by the speaker of the national house, David B. Henderson, who recently declined a renomination. The report of the committee on resolutions was adopted by the convention, as follows:

"We, the representatives of the Republicans of the Third congressional district of Iowa, heartily indorse the platform of principles adopted by the late Republican state convention at Des Moines. We deny that the Dingley tariff breeds and shelters trusts. We interpret the tariff plank in the Des Moines platform of 1902 to be nearly a reiteration of and to mean no more than the St. Louis plank of 1896, which recited:

"'We are not pledged to any particular schedules. The question of rates is a practical question, to be governed by the conditions of the time and of production. The ruling and uncompromising principle is the protection and development of American labor and industry.'

"We cordially recognize and earnestly commend the patriotic fervor of President Roosevelt and the wisdom of both the foreign and domestic policies of his administration, which are adding constantly to the high reputation of the nation abroad and the prosperity of the people at home.

"We most earnestly regret the declination of the renomination which the Republicans of this district for the eleventh time tendered the Hon. D. B. Henderson. No official has been more anxious to keep in touch with and faithfully represent the well considered judgment of his constituents than has Colonel Henderson during all the long years of his congressional career. We have faith in his patriotism and in his personal and political integrity. We are conscious of his great mental power and ability. We realize his superb leadership and commanding influence in governmental affairs and believe that his withdrawal means a great loss to the people."

Irish Leader Arrested.

DUBLIN, Sept. 26.—John O'Donnell, Irish Nationalist member of parliament for South Sligo, has been arrested on a warrant at Clare-Morris, Mayo county, for refusing to obey a summons issued under the crimes act, charging him with intimidating shopkeepers into joining the United Irish league. The convention of the league is in session at Clare-Morris, and the arrest of Mr. O'Donnell caused the greatest excitement. Mr. O'Donnell was accompanied to Birr, Kings county, by six officers. The crowd cheered the prisoner as the train drew away from the station.

President Doing Well.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The president rested very comfortably last night. He is complying strictly with the injunctions of his physicians to give his injured leg complete rest, and good results are apparent already. In view of the satisfactory improvement in the president's condition no prepared statement is made, Secretary Cortelyou simply saying when he left the temporary White House this morning that Mr. Roosevelt was doing nicely. The doctors say that the president will be confined to his room a week or ten days, with two weeks as the outside limit.

A Mysterious Package Opened.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 26.—Two weeks ago a package was left at a business office, and yesterday evening it was opened. Amazement was expressed when it was found to contain clothing saturated with blood and a two pound plated scale weight, also blood stained. There was a shirt marked "B. G." a collar, baby dress, a woman's shirt waist and a bartender's apron. It is not known just when the bundle was left nor who left it. The bundle was turned over to the police, who have begun an investigation on the theory of a murder having been committed.

Four Killed In Railway Wreck.

PRINCETON, Ill., Sept. 26.—Four stockmen were killed and two seriously injured in a rear end collision on the Burlington road near Malden. The Burlington passenger train crashed into the stock train, telescoping the caboose. The dead are: George Stewart, Winchester, Ill.; A. H. Canthers, Table Grove, Ill.; A. H. Wagner, Prairie City, Ill.; W. L. Collins, Bardolph, Ill. The injured were taken to Galesburg.

Department Store Burned.

MARSHALL, Minn., Sept. 26.—Baldwin & Leveridge's department store and annexes have been destroyed by fire. Several firemen were injured by an explosion and falling walls. The loss to the firm and to tenants and lodgers in the building is $100,000. Baldwin & Leveridge have an insurance of $40,000.

Serious Trolley Accident.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 26.—A head on collision between a freight car and a passenger car occurred on the Newburg and Orange Lake trolley road at Orange Lake, and six people were hurt, one fatally.

CONNECTICUT POLITICS.

Democrats Name State Ticket and Ignore Kansas City Platform.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 26.—The Democratic state convention adjourned late yesterday after a session lasting all day. A full state ticket was nominated and a platform adopted, and the convention, which had promised to be one of the most bitter in the history of the party in this state, closed in great harmony.

The ticket nominated follows: Governor, Melbert B. Cary of Ridgefield; lieutenant governor, E. Kent Hubbard, Jr., of Middletown; secretary of state, Arthur B. Calkins of Old Lyme; treasurer, Philip Hugo of New Haven; comptroller, Edward G. Kinsley of Waterbury; attorney general, Noble E. Pierce of Bristol; congressman at large, Homer S. Cummings of Stamford.

The platform which was finally adopted occasioned a heated debate in the committee room, but once presented to the convention as recommended by the committee it was adopted without debate. A strenuous struggle had been made in committee for the indorsement of the Kansas City platform, and one delegate left the committee in anger because his views were not those of the majority. The committee refused to mention the Kansas City document or doctrine, and the fight practically ended there.

A later effort of the Kansas City platform supporters to get the matter before the convention was cleverly smothered, and it was never heard from again.

Professor Hirth at Columbia.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Professor Friedrich Hirth, one of the leading authorities on oriental philology and art, who has been appointed to fill the Dean Lung chair of Chinese at Columbia university, established by General Horace W. Carpenter, arrived on the steamer Pretoria to take up his work. His family will come later. Professor Hirth said that he did not wish to discuss in detail his plan of work until he had consulted with President Butler. His course, he said, would be divided into three heads—for beginners on the study of Chinese characters, for advanced students concerning the history and geography of central Asia and the developments of Chinese art and for the general student history of the Chinese empire.

Trolley Strikers Still Unruly.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The strike of the motormen of the Hudson Valley railroad is to all appearances again assuming an ugly aspect, and were it not for the presence of national guardsmen on duty in Saratoga, Washington and Warren counties it is believed that riotous demonstrations would be resumed. Cars without convoys of soldiers were run yesterday on the Saratoga division, but early in the evening cars were stoned as they entered this town. Glass was broken, but fortunately no one was injured. The stones, it is alleged, were hurled by men and not boys. It is understood that some of the guilty parties are known and that arrests will follow.

Stromboli Volcano Active.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—A dispatch to the Figaro from Rome says the volcano on Stromboli island, off the north coast of Sicily, has been active for several days past. A large conical mass has appeared on the edge of one of the craters, and a fissure at the base of this crater is pouring out lava and jets of flame to a height of 300 yards.

Antiritualistic Crusader Hurt.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—John Kensit, the noted head of the antiritualistic crusade in the Church of England, was seriously injured and his eyesight endangered by being struck with a chisel which was thrown at him after he had addressed a meeting at Birkenhead. He is now in a hospital at Liverpool.

Alger's Candidacy Indorsed.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 26.—The candidacy of former Secretary of War R. A. Alger for United States senator to succeed the late James McMillan was indorsed by the special Republican state convention called to select a candidate for supreme justice to succeed the late John D. Long.

FOR AUTOMOBILE WEAR.

Costumes Are Now Made of Horse and Goat Skins.

Fashions in motor garments are undergoing somewhat of a change. Time was when shapeless garments of oil skin or the hard, stiff Greenland seal were considered the only proper thing, but experience has shown us that, except when on a racing car, practically the same costumes can be worn as when one is riding in a carriage.

The successful motor costume should be dustproof and warm. Those designed for hard wear are made entirely of horseskin, but a less expensive substitute is kidskin, the hides of young goats being utilized for the purpose. As with horseskin, the short glossy hairs resist both rain and dust, while the skin if properly dressed is as soft and supple as cloth.

FOR COUNTRY WEAR.

An extra long coat is somewhat of a necessity, especially now that autumn is here.

Such a coat, suitable also for golf and country wear, is here shown. It is of striped Scotch goods and is trimmed with strappings of deep blue cloth. The hat is of gray felt, with a gray and white feather. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SEPARATE WAISTS.

They Will Not Be So Much Worn This Winter.

For morning wear the separate blouse and skirt still prevail. The smart woman, however, arranges that her skirt shall harmonize with her waist in coloring.

Grass green panne velvet waists are among the latest novelties. A waist of a good quality of black china silk is very smart as well as useful. Combined it with coarse black lace appliqued in quaint patterns. The flannel waist will not be worn as much this winter as formerly. It will be supplanted by serviceable, unlined blouses of peau de soie, wool and silk moire and heavy unlined satin. These will be made quite simply, and the greater part of them follow the style of the summer and fasten down the back with tiny silk buttons.

AFTERNOON TOILET.

Red is a very popular shade. A very bright geranium tint is considered the smartest, but this should be worn with discretion.

A dainty afternoon toilet is of rose broadcloth trimmed with ivory guipure lace and touches of deep red taffeta. As seen in the illustration, it is rather plain, with a wide collar, full sleeves and an overdress effect in the trimming of the skirt. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Golden Moments.

She—Yes, I'll go if you promise not to get impatient while I'm dressing. You always seem to think that my appearance is a matter of no moment.

He—On the contrary, my dear, it is usually a matter of a great many.—Brooklyn Life.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Well, it was just as well to-day," said she, "because I found that some things had slipped down behind out of the crack at the back of the drawer, and I shouldn't care to have anyone see them, but please sweep there next time, even if you have to call in Vinegar Cruet to help you move the furniture."

"Very well," said I, "since you give me permission."

"I feel so much better for my ride," said she. "I'm going out every day on my wheel. I think I shall take my lunch somewhere to-morrow and come home late, as I did to-day."

And now I was determined to get those letters, or copies of them, if I should be imprisoned for it. I lay awake far into the night, thinking the matter over. I determined not to speak to the ladies until I was certain. The next morning she was off, and at about 11 o'clock I was putting the finishing touches to her room—I mean the ordinary work of the day. She had not gone more than a mile before I began to move the bureau out from the wall. I had edged it out a little way when I heard the gate click, and pushing the bureau hastily back, I stood upright, and began to dust again the immaculate top of the old piece of furniture. As I did so, I raised my eyes to see Miss Dacres looking in through the open window.

"There you are, busy as ever," said she. "Just hand me my little coat, will you? I forgot it. There it is, hanging over the rocker. That's it; thank you. Now I'm really off," and she was.

I wondered if I looked conscious as she stood at the window. When I was sure that she was well away, I again pushed the bureau out into the room, and then I leaned down and began to work at the drawer. While jerking and pushing I heard a rustle. She could not have pushed the letters back very securely the day before, for, lying flat on the floor, I again perceived that packet. I took it up hastily, and withdrawing one letter, I restored the packet through the wide crack and then pushed the bureau back again. I then wondered, with the guilty conscience of a novice in deceit, if Mr. Beldon could by any possibility be at home. But of course he was. My day was his night. I went to the door between the rooms and put my eye to the keyhole. The keyhole was dark. I could see nothing. I went out of the door, and round through the hall, and tried the door of my lower-back. "What? What? Coming," I heard. He was rather slow in coming, and I waited. Finally he opened his door. I glanced at the keyhole as I stood there. He looked curiously at me as I did so. He seemed to be trying to repress a smile.

A piece of dark cloth was pinned so that it hung over the key.

"So you think I am very secretive?" said he. "I have no fancy for having that girl in there peeking at me."

"I am surprised to see you at home," said I, in a sort of embarrassment.

"Surprised? Why? Didn't I say I should be at home during the day?"

"Yes," said I, "so you did. I declare I get so confused with you and the lower-front—Miss Dacres, I mean—and my invalid aunt, and Baldy and Glorianna, not to speak of the Hall, that I—that I don't know which is the day-bird and which the night-bird."

"Ah, the Hall! That's just exactly something I want to speak to you about. I hear that they have been putting the newspapers on the case, and they're sort of detectives, you know. I told old Haight that I was not willing to do any such work, especially as you had asked me not to, though I didn't tell him anything about you, of course. I am in mortal dread that he will find out that I am located out here close to the Hall. Then he will think it the easiest thing in the world for me to write the article he wants. Of course, I could do it, but then I should not be keeping my compact with you. I don't want him to know anything about it, so, if some reporter comes out here, please don't mention me or my connection with the Star Union."

"Certainly not," said I; "I appreciate your kindness very much."

"You are awfully good," said Mr. Beldon. "You can see what trouble you'd get me into with the editors. They'd probably dismiss me from the paper. They think we must do whatever job they put us on, regardless of our feelings. I wouldn't have minded ordinarily, but as I almost promised you, and as I like your house so much——"

"Then it is better than you thought it was going to be?"

"Oh, yes—much better! The lady in the front room hasn't disturbed me at all as yet. She did move her furniture about a good deal yester——"

"That was I," said I, "and again this morning. I am extremely sorry, but the rooms must be swept sometimes, you know."

"To change the subject," said Mr. Beldon, "who's that old lady that came into my room last night?"

"Into your room! Why, were you at home? Oh, yes! I remember you said you should take a night's rest. Why, I'm sure I can't tell you. You must have been dreaming. It must have been Glorianna, if anyone, but she——"

"Oh, no, I know her; she's the man of Baldy's house, isn't she? Oh, no, not Glorianna at all. It was a large, heavy old lady——"

"There is absolutely no one," said I. "My aunt is indeed large and heavy, but, unfortunately, she cannot move. She is an invalid, and cannot get up without help, and then not without great pain."

"Then," said Mr. Beldon, "your house is haunted."

"What time was it?" I asked.

"Well, I really don't know. I was so sleepy that I hardly waked u enough to see whether it was man o woman. I heard a slight noise, more like a pouff! so, and opened my eyes, and there was this creature at my table, turning over my papers."

"Don't you lock your door?"

"Never thought of such a thing—I have nothing to steal; but I shall hereafter."

"Did—did—it go out, then?"

"Yes, vanished, with a sort of heavy lope, before you could say 'Jack Robinson.' I lay there, wondering what it could all mean. After about ten minutes I thought I'd get up and investigate, but the hall was as dark as a tomb. Now who do you think it was?"

"I'm sure I can't tell," said I. "Not Aunt Jane Mary certainly. However, I advise you to lock your door hereafter."

"Then it would have to be ghosts," said Mr. Beldon, laughing. "No, I think the best way will be to go on believing it's human. By the way, did you find that money?"

Now, I had never told Mr. Beldon about my strange loss.

"What money?" I said.

TROOPS SPREAD OUT

Part of the Eighth Regiment Sent to Duryea.

MINER MURDERED AT OLYPHANT.

As a Whole the Mining Region Is More Quiet Since the Arrival of Troops, but Many Deeds of Violence Are Reported.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 26.—General Gobin and a part of the Eighth regiment arrived at the mining town of Duryea late yesterday. Duryea is almost on the dividing line between Luzerne and Lackawanna counties and ever since the strike began has been the scene of many acts of violence. The military authorities thought it would be advantageous to have a large contingent of soldiers at this point, as they can be moved into Lackawanna or Luzerne county at short notice.

Sheriff Jacobs accompanied the soldiers and at Nanticoke placed under arrest John Zuchho, who was heavily armed. Burgess Williams has asked Sheriff Jacobs for special officers to patrol the streets of the town of Nanticoke. He says he can no longer control the strikers and the sympathizers who stone the houses of nonunion men. The windows in several houses were broken yesterday by unknown parties. A detail of soldiers may be sent to Nanticoke to keep order. The strikers keep their pickets out at all the mines the same as usual and wherever they can persuade men who want to go to work to return to their homes.

David Agnew, a coal and iron policeman, was assaulted by strikers at Brookside, in the northern part of the city, yesterday afternoon and left on the road for dead. He was removed to the hospital in a critical condition.

President Mitchell and his advisers at strike headquarters say the presence of the troops in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties has had the effect of strengthening the ranks of the strikers. The local coal operators claim the usual amount of coal is being mined.

One hundred and fifty miners have left here for Ohio, where they have secured work in the soft coal mines.

The situation at Lebanon, where negroes took the places of the iron and steel workers in the plant of the American Iron and Steel company, thereby causing riots and the killing of one person and the injuring of others, continues quiet. The first battalion of the Twelfth regiment, stationed there, has the situation well in hand.

MURDER AND LAWLESSNESS.

Strikers Kill a Nonunion Miner—Mrs. Marshall Too Much For Mob.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 26.—James Winston, aged forty-eight years, was killed and his son-in-law, S. J. Lewis, injured by a gang of Hungarian strikers who waylaid them on their way to work at the Grassy Island colliery of the Delaware and Hudson company. The affair took place half a mile from and almost within sight of the camp of the Thirteenth regiment at Olyphant. Lewis got away, but Winston had his skull crushed with a club and fell unconscious. While he lay prostrate and dying the crowd jumped on him, kicked him in the face and beat him with clubs. After dancing about their victim, clapping their hands and singing, the crowd left him. Winston was carried home by William Doyle, a nonunion man, and Mrs. Doyle, who witnessed the murder. Harry Simrock, Tom Priston and Harry Shubah, the three men who are alleged to have committed the actual crime, have fled. Six men and a woman who were in the crowd were arrested and held in $1,000 bail each as witnesses.

Mrs. George Marshall, colored, wife of the proprietor of a hotel at Jessup, armed with a shotgun, safely escorted a hunted nonunion man through a crowd of 100 strikers from the hotel to the Sterrick Creek colliery stockade late at night. When the crowd began to avenge itself by bombarding the hotel, Mrs. Marshall fired on the nearest group and peppered a dozen men with bird shot. This scattered the mob.

A company from the Thirteenth regiment was called to disperse a crowd which was tearing up tracks at the Pancoast colliery in Throop.

Last evening a crowd of strikers threw stones at nonunion men who were being escorted home from work in Forest City. The soldiers loaded their guns, and the commander said he would give the word to fire if another stone was thrown. The crowd melted away. One man who held back was arrested.

Some Coal Handled.

READING, Pa., Sept. 26.—For thirty-six hours ending last night the Philadelphia and Reading company's reports show that it has brought down 160 carloads, or 4,800 tons, of coal. About half of this, it is claimed, was mined anthracite and the remainder washery coal. All of it was sent to tidewater points. The company is accumulating the coal now being produced in the western Schuylkill region, and about 10,000 tons of washery and mined coal is promised by the end of the week.

Soft Coal For Government Use.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Captain G. W. Baird of the navy, who is superintendent of the state, war and navy departments building, has been obliged to purchase soft coal for use in the building. Under present conditions about seventy tons a week are necessary, but when the heat is turned on double that amount will be required.

SHAW WILL NOT QUIT

Secretary of the Treasury Denies Wild Stories.

TWENTY MILLIONS TO AID BANKS.

Will Anticipate All Interest Maturing Between Oct. 1 and End of the Fiscal Year—No Experiments to Be Tried.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—"There is absolutely no foundation for the half column of inference and insinuation in a New York paper headed 'Secretary Shaw May Resign His Office.' There is not a word of truth in the headline or the story."

This in effect is the statement made at the treasury department.

Regarding the published report that he had resigned, Secretary Shaw said:

"I denied this rumor in Chicago. It would seem unnecessary to republish a story that has no authority and is built upon a false assumption and is enlarged upon simply to fill space. The president and the secretary of the treasury are in thorough harmony."

Secretary Shaw later issued the statement:

"Money once covered into the treasury, and this of course includes the subtreasuries, cannot thereafter be deposited in banks. All customs receipts are by law payable to the treasury and subtreasuries. The only fund therefore available for deposit in banks is internal revenue and miscellaneous receipts before they have actually been covered into the treasury. These amount to about $500,000 per day and since the stringency arose to their fullest extent have been steadfastly returned to circulation. This policy will be continued for thirty or sixty days if needed and longer if necessary.

"In the meantime national bank circulation has been increased about $8,000,000, largely induced by the distribution of deposits, and the further increase to the amount of $8,000,000 is assured.

"It is also hoped that the country will understand that the treasury department, to the extent of its ability, will stand by the banks, east and west, north and south, and it is hoped also that the bankers will stand by every business and every interest that is worth protecting.

"The only way to get money out of the treasury into circulation after it has been actually covered in is by the payment of legal obligations of the government. These may be anticipated. The department did anticipate the October interest.

"It now offers to anticipate all interest maturing between Oct. 1 and the end of the fiscal year if presented within sixty days at a rebate of two-tenths of 1 per cent per month, which is at the rate of 2.4 per cent per annum.

"In other words, these obligations will be prepaid at such a rate as to allow the government to profit thereby at 2.4 per cent per annum. The amount maturing before June 30, 1903, is in round figures $20,650,000. The profit to the government if this offer shall be accepted will be in round figures $220,000.

"There will be no experiments tried and no policy adopted until after mature deliberation, and no 'feelers' will be sent out. Anything to the contrary should be discredited."

Bound to Overthrow Clark.

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 26.—F. Augustus Heinze, whose delegation was turned down in the Democratic convention at Bozeman on Tuesday, has announced at an open air meeting that he intends to form a new political party in Montana. It will be his aim, it is said, to fuse the Populists, the Labor party, the Socialists, the Heinze Republicans and what followers he has in the Democratic party in an effort to overthrow United States Senator William A. Clark.

City of Mexico Shaken.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 26.—An earthquake shock has been felt here. Although appearing to be a light one and causing little alarm, it cracked a large number of buildings, and the police reports show that the water pipes burst in several streets. The earthquake was quite sharp in Puebla.

OLD RESIDENT CALLED.

Peter P. Dumont, Eighty-Six Years Old, Passed Quietly Away Today.

A general breaking down due to old age resulted, this morning, in the death of Peter P. Dumont, of Crescent avenue. Up to three weeks ago he had been enjoying his usual health but a sudden decline forced him to keep to his bed.

Mr. Dumont was born April 8, 1816, on the Dumont farm across the Raritan river from Raritan in Hillsboro township, Somerset county, where three generations had lived and died before him. He came to Plainfield in 1872 and lived quietly on Crescent avenue, corner of Sixth street, until his death.

He leaves a wife and two sons, former Councilman J. B. Dumont, of East Seventh street and Henry D. Dumont, of Brooklyn. He was a faithful member of the Crescent Avenue church.

The funeral services will be held from his late residence, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. FORESTERS IN CONVENTION

SESSION OF HIGH COURT HELD AT SOMERVILLE YESTERDAY.

Gave An Opportunity for Committee on By-Laws to Make a Report.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 26—The rain that fell in great drops nearly all of yesterday did not in the least dampen the ardor of the great assemblage of Foresters that came to this town to attend a special session of the High Court of the State Independent Order. Nearly 350 delegates were on hand when the session was called to order in Masonic Hall.

The call for the special session was read and the committee on credentials reported that ninety-seven new delegates were present to take the High Court degree. These were conferred the honor, after which adjournment took place.

The afternoon session began promptly. The meeting was called especially to pass new bylaws and this was done, after much discussion.

It seems at the last meeting, held in Newark a year ago, a committee was appointed to draft suitable bylaws for the order, but they failed to report and the order was being run without any laws.

The Grand Order was instituted in 1874. The Independent Order has 3,250 members in Elizabeth alone. There are 206 in Somerville, with applications pending.

Delegates were present yesterday from Morristown, Summit, Bloomfield, Sussex, Newark, Elizabeth, Red Bank, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Raritan, Dunellen, Jersey City, Atlantic City and other places.

The executive committee of the State Order is: Dr. Henry H. Lowrie, of Plainfield; A. W. Sharret, of Mariners' Harbor; Wm. J. O'Brien, of Jersey City; Francis A. Markenzie, of Elizabeth; W. J. Norman, of Newark; Dr. W. A. Judson, of Newark; John F. Brown, of Elizabeth.

A TYPICAL DAY IN CAMP

MEMBERS OF CITY HIGH SCHOOL CADET CORPS PLAN NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT.

Military Entertainment to be Given Early in November—Will Represent the Day in Camp.

The members of the Plainfield High School battalion have decided to hold a military entertainment in the early part of November. The entertainment will represent a typical day in camp and will consist of the various drills and exercises which go to make up the schedule of the average soldier from sunrise to sunset. This scheme of entertainment is a novel one and cannot fail to be appreciated by all.

Quartermaster Koons has been placed in charge of the financial committee, Capt. R. S. Lane has been appointed to command a squad for carrying on a hospital litter drill, and a squad under Captain F. T. VanAnken will execute the Butts Manual.

First Lieutenant A. F. Conant has been appointed officer of the day and Second Lieutenant F. K. Anderson, officer of the guard. First Sergeant J. L. Tweedy will have charge of the fatigue detail and a wall-scaling squad will be under the command of Second Lieutenant V. B. Miner. Captain Moore will command a squad in bayonet drill and First Lieutenant V. W. Brooks is chairman of the decorating committee.

The proceeds of the affair will be used to pay off small bills incurred by the battalion last year and for the carrying out of the scheme of work laid out by Major Murphey for the coming year.

TALK BASKET BALL LEAGUE

Meeting Held at Y. M. C. A. Last Night at Which Six Teams Were Represented.

EXPECT TO ORGANIZE.

All Organizations Were Not Ready to Act Last Night, and a Meeting Was Called for Next Friday Evening, When the League Will Probably be Organized.

Indications are that Plainfield will have a local basket ball league. Steps looking toward that end were taken at a meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors last night. No organization was effected last night as only two of the six organizations represented came with the power to enter into an alliance immediately. The others were merely at the meeting to get some idea of the league as contemplated by the promoters. In order to give the undecided ones a chance and also to hear from two interested organization, which were not represented, a meeting was called for next Friday night when it is expected that the formal organization will be effected.

Last evening's meeting was called to order by C. E. A. Heywood, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., who acted as chairman. George Proctor Smith, of the Alis A. A., served as secretary. The organizations and their represenattives were Y. M. C. A., C. E. A. Heywood; Alis A. A., Harold A. Chandor, George P. Smith; Leal's School, N. P. Rogers, Jr., Gordon Abbott; Plainfield High School, Robert W. Meeker, Arthur Conant; North Plainfield High School, A. R. Humble, Henry Clay Brose; Company K, First Sergeant Charles Peterson, Corporal Elias Giles. Charles B. Morse was present for The Daily Press which will put up the trophy if the league is formed.

Both Hope Y. M. A. and St. Marys were unrepresented but it was understood that both organizations were considering the advisibility of joining. Y. M. C. A. and Alis A. A. were both ready to act at once but the others were not. The school teams were afraid that they would be outclassed by the heavier men of the other teams but, before they departed, all three were in favor of the league. The Company K men were not certain that they would have a team. If they did have one, they wanted to join the league.

It was explained that the Y. M. C. A. and the school teams would use the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium as all the players from those four teams would be members of the association. All players will have to be registered amateurs and the games will be played with a strict observance of the rules. The details of name, officers, schedule and many others of minor importance will all be fixed at the meeting Friday night.

From present prospects, it looks as if the league would be ready to start with six clubs, although it is possible that both Company K and St. Marys may decide to join before the next meeting.

ANOTHER TRIP.

Perseverance Lodge Decides to Take a Trip to Newark Soon.

Flushed with the success of its recent trip to Elizabethport, Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., at last evening's meeting, voted to pay a fraternal visit to Covenant Lodge, No. 35, of Newark, on the evening of Monday, October 20. It will be conducted similar to the Elizabethport visit, the trip being made by special trolley. A committee composed of S. J. Robinson, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and Thomas Muir, was appointed to arrange details.

Other business of the meeting was the installation of Thomas Muir as inner guard by District Deputy Jeremiah VanWinkle and the receiving of two applications.

Hospital Governors Meeting.

There will be a regular meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday evening, when matters pertaining to the new hospital will receive attention.

MORE WIRE STOLEN.

Near Roselle Park, 1,000 Feet of Feed Wire Was Taken From Poles Wednesday Night.

Despite the measures taken by police and officials to prevent further losses, the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company again suffered from the depredations of wire thieves, Wednesday evening, making the fourth time within two weeks.

The section last visited was in the viciniity of Roselle Park, where 1,000 feet of the feed strand was stripped from the supports, after the cars had stopped running for the night. The loss was not discovered until running time again and then only one track could be used for several hours.

The persistency of the wire thieves has staggered the railway officials and they are at a loss to put an end to the trouble. Special officers were employed to patrol the line after cars stopped but it has not resulted in a stoppage. There is a possibility that the power may be kept on all night and thus prevent the wire being handled.

CAPTAIN MARTIN IS QUOTED

ELILABETH JOURNAL PUBLISHES A STATEMENT FROM HIM.

That Newspaper Says That He Has Been Offered the Captaincy of the Company.

The Elizabeth Journal is authority for the statement that Captain W. B. Martin has been offered the captaincy of Company K, of Plainfield. The Journal says that Captain Martin is giving the matter serious thoughts and that he has given out this statement:

"I have the matter under consideration and if it was not so far away I would gladly accept. There is a possibility of making Company K the best company in the State. The personnel of its membership is exceptionally fine, and there is every opportunity to make it the finest military organization in the country. I would rather be in command of the company than hold the position I now do. I am considering the offer seriously, but cannot yet tell what I will do."

In many respects Captain Martin would make a most desirable commanding officer. As previously stated in The Daily Press he is a crack marksman, a veteran of the Spanish-American War and at present is inspector of rifle practice for the Second Regiment. He is widely known in National Guard circles.

WOMEN MAY ENTER IN CONGRESS FIGHT

Old Grudge May Line Up the Trenton Society Women Against Col. Perrine.

MRS. ROEBLING IS ONE.

RESULT OF FIGHT OVER LOCATION OF A TROLLEY POLE.

Col. Perrine, Now Democratic Nominee for Congress, Was Then at the Head of Trenton Street Railway Company.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Sept. 27—The nomination of Colonel Lewis Perrine by the Democrats of the Fourth Congressional district will bring some novel and interesting features into the campaign. Among the most interesting and important of these will be the active and dangerous hostility of the powerful Roebling family.

Colonel Perrine is a man of very positive and resolute character, and has led a remarkably strenuous career in Trenton. Several years ago, when in control of the Trenton Street Railway, which he transformed from a moribund, one-horse concern into an extensive system, he encountered much opposition from various private and other parties in the carrying out of his schemes. It is alleged that the strenuous colonel rode roughshod over everybody and everything that got in his way, and that there are still scores of angry unhealed wounds received by various citizens of Trenton in those painful encounters. It is claimed by his enemies that those who have suffered these rankling injuries will eagerly avail themselves of the colonel's candidacy for Congress to obtain a long deferred satisfaction.

Among others who feel that they suffered indignities and unforgivable wrongs at his hands was Mrs. Washington A. Roebling, the brilliant wife of the engineer of the Brooklyn bridge. Mrs. Roebling is a strenuous and indomitable person herself, as the country learned when she carried forward the tremendous work of directing the construction of the Brooklyn bridge when her husband was disabled by illness. And so when Colonel Perrine tried to plant a huge trolley pole in front of the Roelbing mansion in West State street he clashed with this high-spirited woman. She earnestly remonstrated with the colonel against disfiguring their property with this unsightly pole, but he turned a deaf ear to all her protests and appeals and directed his gang of men to put up the obnoxious pole.

But Mrs. Roebling is a woman whose undaunted spirit rises in the face of difficulties, and when the workmen had dug the hole she calmly walked out in front of her house and planted herself in it. And there she stood, smiling but inexorable, while the baffled "rough rider" and his hirelings were completely nonplussed. The important enterprise under headway could not go on until that pole was up, but Mrs. Roebling would not come out of that hole, and even Colonel Perrine's audacity and resourcefulness were unequal to the emergency. There she stood, hour after hour, all through the day, to the intense amusement of her neighbors and the people of Trenton, who greatly enjoyed the colonel's discomfiture. Her meals were carried out to her from the house and she held levees with her friends as she dined or supped under these novel and interesting circumstances, and there was much merriment and laughter. Mrs. Roebling was occasionally relieved from duty by one of her maids, who took her place in the hole, and the whole town was gay with delight.

After two days' deep and painful meditation on this perplexing problem the colonel went with a gang of men at midnight, while Mrs. Roebling was off guard and asleep in her home, and put up the pole, and there stood the hateful thing confronting her when she looked out of the window in the morning. Mrs. Roebling deeply resented the trick as an unchivalrous performance, and it is quite well understood that she and her family will not give enthusiastic support to the colonel's political aspirations this fall.

But if the old grudge against Colonel Perrine brings Mrs. Roebling into the campaign against him it will also doubtless bring into the campaign as an effective candidate to her hostile energies another woman of quite as resolute temper and strenuous qualities in the person of the colonel's wife. Mrs. Perrine is also a society leader in Trenton and a woman of great vivacity and energy of character. She is generally believed to be the chief moving force behind most of the important political and other enterprises of her husband. She has high aspirations, is resourceful, engaging in her manners and popular. It is known that she would very much like to go to Washington as the wife of a member of Congress. She comes of one of the best old Washington families and would no doubt be a social factor at the national capital.

MANY FROM SOMERSET PLEADED NOT GUILTY

Those Indicted by Somerset County Grand Jury Were Arraigned Yesterday.

FEW FROM BOROUGH.

THE CRIMINAL SESSION WILL BE A VERY LONG ONE.

Charles Drake, of North Plainfield, Charged With Atrocious Assault and Battery—He Pleaded Not Guilty and Will be Tried Oct. 7.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 27—In the Somerset courts yesterday a number of those indicted by the recent Grand Jury were arraigned before Judge Schenck.

The first one to face the court was Charles Drake, charged with atrocious assault and battery in North Plainfield. His counsel, Wm. G. De Meza, entered a plea of not guilty for him.

Frank Cooper, of Bound Brook, assault and battery, pleaded not guilty.

B. Tilimini, of Raritan, two charges of assault, pleaded not guilty.

David Tate, who was arrested for knifing John Sullivan at Bound Brook, entered a plea of not guilty.

Oscar Vaugh, of Bound Brook, larceny, pleadeed not guilty.

All the above are set down for trial on October 7.

Peter Sheelan, assault, pleaded non vult. He lives in Somerville.

Henry J. Iden, of Bound Brook, illegal selling, pleaded guilty. He will appear for sentence Oct. 24, as will Sheehan.

Wm. G. Tunison, Jr., of Somerville, assault and battery, pleaded not guilty.

Martin Krebs, of Basking Rige, and Edward Snyder, of Bound Brook, assault, pleaded not guilty.

With so many pleas of "not guilty" it looks as if the criminal business would be long drawn out.

In the Orphans' Court exceptions were filed to the accounts of Lena Hoerster in the estate of the late Eugene Hoerster, of North Plainfield. The matter was set down for a hearing on October 10.

The Hatchett estate hearing was postponed until October 17 and the Badgley matter until October 10.

ENDED CAMPAIGN FOR CARP

TIER'S POND WILL SOON BE RESTORED TO ITS OLD SIZE.

Small Boys Amuse Themselves by Fishing and Falling Into the Mud.

The two men in a boat, who for the past few days, have amused a large and appreciative audience at Tier's pond were not in evidence today. There was an abortive rumor about town that they were buried alive in the mud and that their boat had gone down, also, to keep them company. There is no truth whatever in this report. The men have simply stopped work.

A suggestion has been made to Mr. Tier, it is said, that he start a sanitarium by the drained pond and give the famous Russian mud bath treatment. He does not look upon the idea with any degree of favor however. He says he has no desire to be known as the "Jersey Mud Bath King." To avoid further well meaning but misdirected advice he will, in a couple of days, allow the water to again flow in the pond. Says it looks better that way.

A number of small boys are fishing in the pond today with bent pins and string. One boy fell head first in the mud this morning. He was dragged out, scraped off and began to fish again.

—Just a word about peaches—they're going fast. Neuman Brothers can accommodate you if you have not yet purchased your supply for canning.

W. A. CODDINGTOM WON CASE SINGLE HANDED

Verdict Handed Down in the Demarest Estate Case in the Orphan's Court Yesterday.

EXCEPTIONS OVERRULED

FILED BY TWINE COMPANY AND BANK OF NEW ENGLAND.

Lawyer Coddington, Who Represented the Demarest Estate in Suit Resulting From Failure of Firm, Received a Decision Yesterday.

Former Judge William A. Coddington, of the law firm of Reed & Coddington, has won an important case in the Union County Orphan's Court. He conducted the case single handed and won out despite the fact that his opponents had retained such able attorneys as Chas. DeHart Brower and Frederick Seymour, of New York; Coles & Carez, of Jersey City, and Colie & Duffield, Newark.

The case was that of the estate of David M. Demarest and was heard before Judge B. A. Vail.

Mr. Demarest died in this city June 22, 1899, leaving a will. He was the senior member of the firm of Demarest & Jeroleman, of New York, and when he died Jeroleman carried on the business alone until July 29, 1898.

On this date Jeroleman made a general assignment of the firm's assets for payment of partnership's debts, but these proved insufficient to pay the bills. The two principal creditors of the firm were the New York Net and Twine Company and the National Bank of New England. These received their portions of the dividends and afterwards filed claims with the executors of the Demarest estate to share equally with individual creditors.

Prior to such an action the estate was solvent, but when these additional claims were filed the estate's assets became insufficient to satisfy all demands and was adjudged insolvent. When the executors filed their accounts the bank and the twine company were not shown to be individual as well as firm creditors. They filed exceptions and Judge Coddington was retained to conduct the case on behalf of the estate.

The final decision was handed down by Judge Vail yesterday. He decided for the estate and decreed that the exceptions filed by the firm's creditors be overruled. Many interesting legal points were brought out during the trial and the case has attracted widespread attention among the members of the legal profession.

GOING TO DEWEY PARK.

The Aluminum Press Company Has Closed Negotiation for a Site.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Sept. 27—The negotiations between S. D. Drake, as manager for the Columbia Realty Company, and the Aluminum Press Company, of Plainfield, were closed yesterday for the erection of new buildings for the company at Dewey Park. The company is now getting estimates on the erection of $50,000 worth of new buildings. Frank J. Hubbard, of Plainfield, has been engaged to do the work of surveying. The company's reasons for changing its location are that more room is needed and the company wants to own its plant.

Mr. Howland writes:

"Mr. Hegeman informs me that this is untrue, and unjust to him, and as I do not wish to be considered unjust to anyone, and having personal knowledge of the matter, I regret having given expression to the rumors."

TRIED TO OWN NEW MARKET

"BILL" ROANTREE WAS THE CHIEF CAUSE OF STRENUOUS TIMES.

Made Trouble Last Night and He Had to be Bound to be Taken to Jail.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Sept. 27—This quiet little place was the scene of some real strenuous times for a while last evening. "Bill Roantree, one of New Market's erring citizens, was the central figure while Constable Robert Pierce and several other citizens took lesser but still very active parts.

"Bill" finished a term in New Brunswick jail Thursday night and immediately made break for home with a little money in his pockets. On his arrival here, it is said that his family refused to have anything to do with him and turned him away. He immmediately celebrated the turn down by getting uproriously drunk. He made his way to Smith & Thorton's store and attempted to regulate matters there. When the proprietors tried to turn him out a free fight resulted. Constable Pierce happened along about this time and took "Bill" in charge.

After much tugging and hauling he was gotten before Justice Rogers, who committed him to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. He was then taken and put in the Dunellen lock up for the night, but fought so that he had to be tied hand and foot. This morning Constable Pierce took him to New Brunswick.

MORE BRIDGES.

Somerset County Freeholders Are Again Growing Generous.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 27—The Somerset County Board of Freeholders met in the Court House Wednesday afternoon and opened bids for the new bridges—one near the home of George Wright, one near the residence of Elias Clark and the other near the Somerset Inn schoolhouse—all in Bernards township.

The Dover Boiler Works, Canton Bridge Company, W. T. Kirk and J. W. Scott all sent bids. The contract for all three bridges was awarded to J. W. Scott for $735, including planks.

The board met at the Leupp bridge in Franklin township yesterday.

Millinery Opening.

An event of interest in millinery circles will be the fall and winter opening of Adams & Chapman on East Front street. The opening days will be Tuesday, September 30, and Wednesday and Thursday, October 1 and 2. There will be shown the very latest styles in fall millinery, in trimmed and untrimmed hats. The quality of the hats and trimmings are of the best and the prices are attractive. The women are invited to call and see the display. No trouble to show goods. 9-27-2

Programme for Rally Day.

Rally Day will be observed at the Congregational church tomorrow afternoon at 2:45. The rally service will include violin solos by John Trossbach, of New York; vocal solos by Miss Whalen; a review of the lesson by Alex. Miffler, and a short address by the pastor.

Something New.

The Schonorer Club, purely a social organization was formed last evening at a store on West Front street. Justice Huff, L. Grener and A. Valgang were appointed a committee to secure rooms and draft bylaws. Another meeting will be held next Friday evening.

MEN BEATEN BY STRIKERS

Trouble at Stirling Silk Mills Results in Violence to the Would-Be Workers.

DEPUTIES IN SERVICE.

Attempt to Resume Operations at Silk Mill Caused Trouble. Those Who Wanted to Work Were Attacked by the Others—The Sheriff Sent Deputies.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Stirling, Sept. 27—In a battle between the employers and employes at the Stirling silk mills over the recognition of the union by the workers, the sheriff of Morris county has been called in and twenty of his deputies daily escort a little band of non-union men and women to and from the factory. Yesterday morning, strikers and their sympathizers assaulted several of the non-union men as they left their homes and before they could reach the protection of the deputies.

This strike was started three months ago and was simply over the recognition of the union. After a long period of quiet, the management of the silk mill announced its determination of starting up last Monday. The whistle was blown but only two men went to work. Tuesday morning the familar sound saw a band of thirty start for the mill. A mob set upon this little band and it was driven back. Then the sheriff was called upon for aid and twenty deputies were sworn in.

Wednesday morning saw the thirty workers go to the factory under guard while the mob of strikers and their friends, who are chiefly Italians and Greeks, howled and vowed vengance. The workers were fed at the mill at noon and escorted home at night. The same routine was followed Thursday.

Some of the strikers laid in wait yesterday morning and caught a few of the workers as they emerged from their homes. They were set upon and badly beaten. Then the deputies hurried to the scene and the rioters withdrew. This morning extra precautions were taken to protect those who wanted to work but the mob showed itself in an ugly mood. It is believed here that the backbone of the strike is broken and that most of the employes will return to work under the old arrangement.

RALLY DAY.

Elaborate Exercises to be Held by Park Avenue Sunday-School.

Rally day exercises will be held under the auspices of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The programme will include an address by Rev. J. W. Richardson, selections by a mixed quartette, a cornet solo by DeWitt Frazee, recitations, "The Cross and the Flag," Miss Pauline Brown; "A Time for Rally Day," Miss Eleanor Stutzman. There will also be exercises by the primary department. A cordial invitaion is extended to all.

Getting More Members.

At the regular meeting of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., held Thursday evening, one application for membership was received and two reinstatements were made. Several more applications are expected at the next meeting and indications point to a successful winter for the lodge. Initiation of candidates will begin the second Tuesday in October.

Boy Broke Arm.

Eddie Penrose, the ten-year-old son of John Penrose, of West Fourth street, sustained a broken arm from a fall yesterday afternoon. In company with several playmates he was walking along a fence when, on account of its slippery condition, he lost his balance and fell over. He was taken to the office of a physician, where the arm was placed in splints.

Not So Well Located.

The present location of the baggage office at the North Avenue station is not considered as advantageous as the old one at the south end of the station. The baggage master is obliged to walk a considerable distance every time he takes off or puts baggage on a train.

Two Centuries Old.

The two hundredth anniversary of the Episcopal church of Swedesboro will be observed 5, 6 and 7. The church was established by Swedes.

You've seen the man
With a long, sad face,
Sprinting along
At a lively pace,
Puffing a pipe
With a hurried air,
—Wild-eyed—wan—
—Dishevel'd hair—
Who gobbles his breakfast
As if insane,
Grabs his hat,
Makes for the train,
Buys a paper
While on the trot,
Misses the train—
Gets boiling hot—
Well, you've seen the man
Right here in town,
And it's no use roasting
A man that's down—
So I'll stop.

BIBLE STUDY RALLY DAY

WILL BE GENERALLY OBSERVED BY Y. M. C. A.'S OF COUNTRY.

Observance of This Day Began Eight Years Ago—What the Bible Classes Have Done.

Next Sunday fully 300 Young Men's Christian Associations throughout the country will observe "Bible Study Rally Day" and probably 3,000 addresses on the need and value of Bible study will be given in association buildings and the churches.

The associations began this observance eight years ago. It has now become general. Last year these classes in the Young Men's Christian Association had 25,093 men on their roll; the year before 19,140; this year the association leaders hope to make the number 30,000.

A unique development and the largest gain has been made in the shop Bible classes. In Cleveland 621 men were enrolled in twenty-three classes in its building and a larger number in shop classes.

In shop classes in Dayton, Ohio, 800 men attend each week. These classes are popular expositions of the Bible. They are held at noon in more than eighty cities and railroad centers, and attended by from twenty-five to 500 men, eighty per cent. of whom are not Christian men.

The graphophone and special music make important features. Some classes are held in switch shanties, boiler shops, and some in freight cabooses. The leaders or teachers are mostly laymen, and some railroad men who give the time "between runs" to talks on Bible study and evangelistic work. Prominent officials are in some instances the leaders.

There are 6,322 men on committees, directing this religious work and Bible study and $102,000 will be expended in special and religious work by the associations.

In very many of the 465 gymnasiums of the associations the gymnasium director conducts a Bible class, often meeting with his students on the gymnasium floor before the class begins its work.

Bible classes are held on the United States battleships, in army camps, in the forts in Alaska, among miners, and working boys. The college department had 13,000 enrolled in their classes last year.

The International Committee has prepared uniform courses of study and its secretaries are engaged in directing and stimulating these classes throughout the country.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

There is no denying the statement that S. Scheuer & Co., keep one of the largest stocks of groceries in the State and they can be depended upon for being first quality and low in price.

L. Moraller & Son, 219 Park avenue, the jewelers and opticians, have a splendid line of silver ware in stock at present. Their silver back combs and brushes cannot be duplicated anywhere in the city.

Drop in at John Wirth's bakery on West Front street, this evening, and purchase one of his delicious coffee cakes for tomorrow's breakfast. They are made fresh every Saturday. He also maintains a fine line of fresh confectionery.

A full line of assorted high-class canned goods can be found in the grocery store belonging to George Kirch at 402 Liberty street. There is nothing in the line of fancy or family groceries that cannot be purchased at Mr. Kirch's store.

The guarantee of the Great A. and P. Tea Company means something out of the ordinary in the business world; yet it is behind every article sold in the local store of the company. And besides that useful and valuable premiums are given in exchange for checks.

Plainfield people know that Netherwood water needs the collaboration of a hard water soap to be effective for toilet purposes. That is why R. J. Shaw makes a specialty of his "Hard Water" soap. It is admirably suited for city water and is being used more every day.

Homes without pictures are like roses minus their perfume—something lacking. Why not add a few to your residence as they will not cost much if bought from the store of the Plainfield Art Gallery in the Y. M. C. A. building. They also have a full line of artists' materials.

It is not always a question of price when you are buying jewelry or a watch. While you want to be sure that you are getting full value, an article can be so cheap as to be worthless. If you trade with Charles E. Vail, the Park avenue jeweler, you will get the best goods and at a price that is fair to dealer and purchaser.

Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, although in business for himself but a short time, has already demonstrated his ability to conduct a first-class pharmacy where prescriptions can be compounded with accuracy and promptness. Mr. Miller also keeps a complete stock of medicines, toilet articles, and his prices are reasonable.

M. C. Dobbins, 108 North avenue, the well known cigar dealer, has recently received a large shipment of Pinar Del Ria cigars, one of the best "smokes" on the market. He has, also, a full line of popular tobaccos, among which are Capstain, Ensign and Perique. Anyone desiring the latter brand and finding it difficult to secure it elsewhere can get all he wants at Mr. Dobbins'. He is one of the few tobacconists that keep it.

BAGGAGE STAMPS.

A Novel Plan of Checking Baggage to be Inaugurated on the Erie Railroad October 1.

A system will be adopted after October 1 by the Erie Railroad, that if copied by the New York Central, will be enthusiastically welcomed by hundreds of Plainfield people.

The innovation will be known as the "baggage master stamp system," and is intended to do away with the annoyance of shoppers and commuters being obliged to carry innumerable parcels to and fro on the trains.

Anyone with packages can, after the date above mentioned, purchase for five cents a piece, any number of baggage stamps. One of these stamps may be attached to a parcel and the article left at certain designated depositories. It will then, without further trouble to the owner, be immediately shipped to its destination, probably arriving on the same train with the traveler.

For several years this system has been used on suburban trains running out of Philadelphia, but the idea is a new one in and about New York.

—There will be a regular meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders Thursday, October 2, at Elizabeth.

SEASON CLOSING AT ASBURY

BUT STILL THERE ARE SOME GUESTS WHO LINGER THERE.

Yacht Emma B Has Sailed Away for the Winter—A New Hotel Building.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, Sept. 27—The middle of September finds a large delegation still at the shore. Though overcoats are greatly in demand, the season lasts well, and many of the hotels have kept open a week longer than usual. Meanwhile the late guests have been entertained by the diverting troubles of Asbury Park and her neighbors. The Government has discontinued the postoffice at Bradley Beach, and the residents of that place and of Neptune Heights are served twice a day with mail by carrier from the Asbury Park office. At a mass-meeting a petition was presented and sent to Congressman Howell protesting against the change. The Bradley Beach people fear that their town will lose its identity in short order if it loses its postoffice. It is likely that the difficulty will be adjusted by establishing sub-stations at Bradley Beach and Allenhurst, the latter place also objecting to being without a postoffice.

Ander's Band, of Philadelphia, which played at the Asbury avenue and Fifth avenue pavilions during the summer, is being heartily praised. The City Comncil expressed its appreciation of the music at its last meeting. An effort will be made to secure the band again next summer.

The yacht Emma B., which has been making daily sailing trips from the fishing pier during the summer, has left for New York. She will be put in dry dock for the winter and will return here next summer.

Work on a new brick building to be erected on the site of the burned Vendome Hotel, at the corner of Bangs avenue and Main street, has begun. The building will be used as an apartment house, and is being built by Henry C. Winsor, president of the Asbury Park and Ocean Grove Bank. It will have a frontage on Main street of sixty-seven feet and 123 feet on Bangs avenue. The front will be of galvanized iron and orange brick. There will be room for nine stores on the first floor. The cost of the building will be $18,000.

Three of Ocean Grove's hotels closed last week—the Spray View, on Ocean avenue; the LaPierre, on Lake avenue, and the Waverley, on Pilgrim's Pathway.

The bath houses and everything connected with the pavilion were closed at Ross's last week. The hot and cold sea water baths will remain open until the middle of October. The Asbury avenue houses have closed, and patrons holding keys have been transferred to Fourth avenue.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Probably that old adage that one may "catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar" could have been observed with profit by Plainfield Republicans, who tried so hard to make Judge Runyon their candidate for senator. Had Runyon announced his willingness to support Kean for senator in 1905 he might have been running yet.—New York Press.

Three times last week the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Trolley Company was crippled in its service by wire thieves. There have been numerous thefts of wire from South Jersey companies recently, and there should be some plan devised by which the companies as well as the traveling public can be protected against the loss and inconvenience occasioned by this petty thievery. An organized effort by the companies, which would provide a system of patrol, ought to land some of the miscreants in State Prison. The co-operation of local police departments could be depended upon, and it should not be difficult to locate the receivers of the stolen wire.—Trenton Times.

The merits of the annexation of North Plainfield to Plainfield have been discussed at great length, and the weight of evidence was in favor of the change. A city and county boundary through the middle of a populous and prosperous community is an injury to the permanent interests of both sides of the line. Nor is the fact that the voters of North Plainfield refused to make the change at all conclusive. The opposition which appears to such consolidations is almost always of a personal and narrow kind. Officials who want to hold their places, others who are ambitious of place, those who oppose public improvements and those who are guided by sentiment rather than public interest, usually unite to defeat any consolidation, however excellent from the standpoint of good government.—Newark Call.

—S. C. Mundy, of Somerset street, is, it is said, about to go into the dairy business in North Plainfield.

THEATRICAL.

At the Manhattan Theatre, New York, "Captain Molly," George C. Hazelton's successful comedy, will give place Monday to Miss Minnie Dupree, who will open an engagement in her delightful play of Puritan times, "A Rose O' Plymouth-Town." Miss Dupree is a new star, but she is no stranger to the patrons of the New York theatre, who long have admired this fascinating little actress. Miss Dupree's talents have admirable opportunities in the play that has been chosen as the vehicle for the actress' stellar debut. "A Rose O' Plymouth-Town" is the work of Beulah Marie Dix and Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland. It is a stirring love romance and pictures the life of the Pilgrims in an accurate and interesting manner. Miss Dupree appears as Rose de la Noye, a young French girl and the plot deals with her love for Garret Foster, one of Weston's men. Comedy predominates in most of the scenes, but there are also episodes of much dramatic strength. The play has won an emphatic success in Washington, Detroit, and other cities, and Miss Dupree's rise to stardom has been endorsed as a merited reward for earnest and successful effort.

W. G. Smyth, Miss Dupree's manager, has engaged for her support an excellent company, that includes Guy Bates Post, Mrs. Sol Smith, Augustus Cook, Douglas Fairbanks, Bennett Sturgis, Edith Wright, Cornelia Bedford and others. The settings and costumes are unusually picturesque.

—Rev. Charles L. Rhoades, of New York, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church tomorrow morning and evening.

Flour Mill Managers Answer Employees' Union.

HAD ASKED FOR EIGHT HOUR DAY.

But Without Change In Pay—A Small Increase In Hourly Wage Offered, With the Desired Shorter Hours.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 27.—Formal answer has been made by the flour mill managers of Minneapolis to the demand submitted by their employees' union for an eight hour day. The response in effect is as follows:

"It is not our intention to oppose you or your union, but when it comes to time of wages and hours we must simply repeat our answer made to you on May 17, that Minneapolis mills cannot pay for eight hours' work higher wages than mills in all other sections of the country pay for twelve hours' work. Your work is mainly superintending machines and is different from the work of men in many other employments, and you cannot, as is claimed for many other employments, do as much work in eight hours as in twelve hours.

"If, however, you have fully made up your minds that you want an eight hour day, we are willing to make the change and pay the following wages: Millers now receiving $3 to receive 35 cents an hour, machine men now receiving $2.50 to receive 29 cents an hour, machine men now receiving $2.25 to receive 26 cents an hour, oilers now receiving $1.75 to receive 22 cents an hour.

"This will give you the eight hour schedule you have desired and in addition a very large increase in the hourly wage. If this proposition is turned down, we shall shut down our mills or employ other men who are more reasonable in their demands."

The flour mill employees' union is to meet tomorrow afternoon, when the proposal of the mill managers will be considered. The strike has been set for next Monday if the union shall determine to reject the managers' counter proposition.

A Brave Nurse Commended.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—An instance of bravery and devotion to duty on the part of an army nurse has been reported to the war department by Major General Chaffee, commanding the division of the Philippines, in the following words: "Nurse Alice Kemmer, army nurse corps, having been granted leave of absence, voluntarily relinquished the same and took upon herself the care of two smallpox patients in an isolation hospital. One of the patients was the wife of an officer, the other an enlisted man. Miss Kemmer had never had the disease, nevertheless she fearlessly entered upon her self imposed task and through the months of April and May, 1902, devoted herself to the care of the patients, living in the room with the officer's wife, the enlisted man being in an adjoining room. With never more than two hours' sleep at a time in intensely hot weather the nurse attended her patients day and night and saved their lives." General Chaffee then commends her bravery and conscientious performance of duty.

Pardon For Dinkella.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The president has granted a full and unconditional pardon to William Dinkella, convicted in 1880 before a United States consular court in Japan of the murder of Charles H. Abbott, the first mate of the American ship Centennial, while lying in Hiogo harbor, the prisoner being the second mate of the ship. Dinkella has been in prison for more than twenty-two years, two years in Japan and over twenty years in the Albany (N. Y.) penitentiary. He always has insisted that the crime was committed in the heat of passion and when he believed his own life was in jeopardy, the testimony showing that the murdered man had beaten and choked the prisoner almost into insensibility, when the prisoner secured his pistol and shot Abbott dead.

Blaze In a Pittsburg Hotel.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 27.—Fire has damaged the East End hotel to the extent of $5,000. For a time it was feared the entire structure would be destroyed and that the flames would spread to the Central stockyards, but prompt work confined the fire to the third floor of the hotel. The greatest confusion reigned among the 200 guests, but all escaped. Miss Lizzie Fultz, an employee, in whose room the fire started, was badly burned. It is thought the fire was caused by an explosion of gas. The hotel is owned by H. W. Allerton of Chicago.

Death In a Runaway Car.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—As a result of a head on collision between a street car from the East Ithaca station, which was waiting on a switch on Eddy street, and a car from Cornell university, control of which had been lost by the motorman while proceeding down hill, Motorman Fred S. Hopkins was crushed to death. There were no passengers on the runaway car, and every one on the waiting car had time to leave before the crash came.

A Double Murder.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 27.—Information has reached this city of a double murder at Upatoie, Ga., eighteen miles from here. During a quarrel Arthur Comer instantly killed his wife, Louise, shooting her with a pistol. Shortly afterward J. W. Murphy, Mrs. Comer's father, hearing of his daughter's tragic death, went to his son-in-law's residence and shot him dead with the same weapon Comer had used to kill his wife.

FIGHT FOR MILLIONS

Actress' Attempt to Get Bennett Fortune Ends.

A CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY IS MADE.

Startling Evidence In Hearing at Long Branch—Story of a Forged Marriage Certificate—Two Arrests Are Made.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 27.—The fight of Laura Biggar, the former actress, for the millions of Henry M. Bennett came to a sudden and dramatic ending before Justice Wilbur A. Heisley here. The claimant through counsel abandoned the suit and announced she would be satisfied with the 60 per cent of the estate given her by the will. Hardly had this been done than counsel for the heirs opposing the Biggar claim showed they had been more than prepared for this step, and warrants charging conspiracy were served on Samuel Stanton, the former justice of the peace of Hudson county who testified that he had performed the marriage ceremony between Miss Biggar and the Pittsburg millionaire, and Dr. C. C. Hendrick, at whose sanitarium in Bayonne it was alleged that Miss Biggar's child was born. A search is now in progress for Miss Biggar herself that she may also be presented to the grand jury to answer a similar charge. Stanton and Dr. Hendrick are now in the jail at Freehold.

As soon as the case had been called by Judge Heisley Mr. Black announced that as counsel for Miss Biggar he had been instructed to withdraw the proceeding before the court and to announce that Miss Biggar would rest content with the 60 per cent of the estate given her by the terms of the will.

Mr. Arrowsmith of the heirs' counsel then addressed the court, saying he was not altogether surprised at the action, for there had been a conspiracy, and a deep one.

Samuel A. Patterson, one of Mr. Arrowsmith's associates, then announced that warrants had been sworn out for the arrest of Miss Biggar, Dr. Hendrick and Mr. Stanton on complaints sworn to by Peter J. McNulty, one of the principal legatees and an executor of the will. Hendrick and Stanton were at once arrested and held in $5,000 bail, and Judge Heisley ordered the preliminary hearing to begin at once. Miss Biggar was not in court.

Counsel for the legatees put several witnesses on the stand, the burden of whose testimony was that Miss Biggar and Dr. Hendrick had practically admitted since Mr. Bennett's death that there had been no marriage.

After recess counsel for the legatees put Joseph Tooker on the stand as their star witness. He is the clerk in the bureau of vital statistics connected with the board of health in Hoboken and has been employed in that capacity since 1892.

Tooker testified that on Friday last Stanton told him that he had married Mr. Bennett and Miss Biggar about two years before, but had forgotten to file the certificate. Stanton, so Tooker said, wanted him to testify that he (Stanton) called on him a week earlier and told him that the Weber woman, named as a witness to the marriage, was dead. This Tooker refused to do. The next morning, Tooker continued, Stanton called on him, accompanied by Mr. Young of counsel for the heirs, who, as it subsequently appeared, was arranging to entrap Stanton. Stanton, Tooker testified, asked him for a blank marriage certificate, which Tooker gave him and which he presently returned filled out, with the request that Tooker testify that he found it in his desk. He also asked Tooker to make an entry of the certificate in his books. Tooker said that he turned over the certificate to Mr. Young and that on learning of this Stanton declared that he had been entrapped and begged Tooker to swear that he was drunk when he gave him the paper.

Pittsburg People Not Surprised.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 27.—The sudden and sensational turn of affairs in the contest at Long Branch, N. J., of the will of the late Henry M. Bennett by Laura Biggar did not surprise those in Pittsburg who, with Miss Biggar, were beneficiaries under the will. In behalf of Miss Biggar it is stated that since the death of Mr. Bennett her condition has not been such as to allow of her being held responsible for her own actions. Notwithstanding this, however, it is believed here that Miss Biggar's action in contesting the will, in which it was stipulated that all contestants would lose their share of the estate, will deprive her of what Mr. Bennett really meant she should have. Mr. Bennett as the former owner of the Bijou theater and Miss Biggar as an actress familiar on the local boards and the constant companion of Bennett were well known to many persons in this city. Miss Biggar and Mr. Bennett first met in this city in May, 1892, when she appeared at the Bijou as Iza in "The Clemenceau Case." Mr. Bennett lost his wife in 1879, and from that time on he and Miss Biggar were close associates. During Mr. Bennett's illness in the fall of 1900, when it became necessary to amputate one of his legs, Miss Biggar was his constant attendant and nurse, and he insisted on having her near him all the time.

An Exodus From Greece.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—In a dispatch from Athens the correspondent of the Standard draws attention to the exodus of emigrants to the United States, which, he says, is probably due to the failure of the currant crop in Greece. Official reports say that 8,000 persons have emigrated during the past year and that this exodus continues.

STRIKE REGION QUIET.

Presence of Troops Seems to Have Good Effect.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—No disturbances of moment have occurred in the strike region during the past twenty-four hours. There was a small riot at Centralia, in the southern end of Columbia county, where some strikers attacked nonunion men who were on their way to the mines, and Sheriff Knorr asked Governor Stone to send troops to quell the disturbance. Thus far no troops have been sent.

In the Lackawanna and Wyoming regions universal quiet prevails, and the soldiers are not called upon to suppress any disorder, while at Forest City, Susquehanna county, the extreme northern end of the anthracite coal belt, the presence of the soldiers has had the effect of awing the rioters.

At Lebanon, where the employees of the American Iron and Steel company have been fighting against the importation of colored laborers, there is a temporary truce, with a likelihood that all differences will be settled and the men shortly return to work.

Accused of Bribery.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 27.—In a statement just issued District President Nichols accuses Michael Grimes, an ex-mine foreman, of being at the head of a movement inaugurated by the coal companies to bribe a number of mine workers' locals for $2,500 apiece to vote to return to work. Mr. Nichols declares at the close of his statement that his "informants stand ready to prove their assertions in court." Mr. Grimes denies Nichols' statement, and the coal companies also say it is not true.

ST. LOUIS BOODLISTS.

Sensational Developments Before the Grand Jury.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27.—Latest developments in the boodle investigation are sensational, subpœnas duces tecum having been issued at the instance of Circuit Attorney Folk commanding Broker James C. Campbell and William Reed, his cashier, to appear in court with two checks aggregating $47,500, dated Nov. 28, 1899, and payable to Ed Butler, a prominent local politician, and to explain the purpose for which the checks were drawn. It was found on investigation by the grand jury that both checks had been cashed and returned to Broker Campbell. The date of these checks was the same as the day on which the ten year lighting bill passed the house of delegates, for which nineteen members are said to have received $2,500 each for their votes. Up to a late hour deputy sheriffs were unable to serve the subpœnas. At Broker Campbell's office it was stated that Reed had not been there since Thursday and that his employer was in the east.

Another session of the grand jury was held yesterday, several witnesses being examined. The final meeting and report will be held on Monday. In additional effort to secure the release on writs of habeas corpus of the four members of the house of delegates who are now in jail awaiting trial on charges of bribery and perjury failed. Judge Vallant of the supreme court, before whom this petition was taken, denied the application, declaring he had no jurisdiction.

Firebug Confesses.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 27.—The fire that burned the barn, horses and carriages of the Nebraska Asylum For the Insane and threatened the hospital building last Wednesday was started by Frank Ackerson, a runaway inmate. He was found fourteen miles in the country and on being returned made a full confession. His insanity is of such a type that he was regarded harmless, and he had been allowed the privileges of the grounds. Superintendent Greene was severely burned at the time of the fire.

Insanity Saves a Fratricide.

DOVER, N. H., Sept. 27.—Albert M. Glass, a young man of this city who was under indictment for the murder of his brother George, has been committed to the Concord Prison Insane hospital by order of Judge Young, who after a brief hearing decided that the man was incurably insane. The court accepted the plea of not guilty entered by the defendant's counsel. The plea was offered on the grounds that Glass had been pronounced insane.

A NOVEL REMEDY.

Railroad corporations, which have struggled for a long time to obtain a remedy for the abuse of the commutation ticket privilege, are watching with interest an experiment being tried by a New England company.

The railroad in question carries many clerks and business men from Boston's suburbs to the city every day at the commutor monthly rate. For several years it has been aware that tickets were being loaned out, contrary to the contract, but nothing could be done to abate the practice. Now the officials have decreed that every male applying for a monthly ticket shall forward a photograph of himself of a recent taking at the time application is made. From this a cut is secured and when the ticket is issued, the holder's features are printed thereon. When presented on a train the conductor compares the photo with the passenger and, if there is a difference, the ticket is confiscated. The system has been in vogue but a short time, but is said to have attained great results.

When Plainfielders take into consideration the limited library facilities afforded most of the neighboring cities and towns, they can begin to appreciate in some small way the fortune of this city in possessing a public library of the kind it has. Public attention was called yesterday in these columns to the fact that the information desk, a very valuable adjunct of the library, had been resumed. Plainfield can be thankful, indeed, that it possessed such public spirited citizens as Job Male and George H. Babcock, whose generosity made this library a possibility.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The passengers, who are obliged to use the few open cars run evenings, often wonder why the conductors insist on going along the car and raising all the curtains while the car is standing on the Second street switch. The passengers are then obliged to ride the rest of the trip into the terminus with the chilly breezes floating through the cars, all on account of the conductor trying to do the work which is supposed to be done at the end of the trip.

Nothing further has been heard fom the Italian from Orange who tried to have a warrant sworn out in Judge Clark's court last Sunday, charging Toney Marrow, one of the Italian boarding house keepers, with selling without a license. When the Judge refused him a warrant he threatened to report the Justice and declared he would have Marrow indicted anyway. The Judge concluded that the matter was only an Italian quarrel.

Scotch Plains and the borough have not really felt the effects of the coal strike yet only in a financial way by the price advancing. The several coal dealers have had a little coal which has been dealt out in one-quarter and one-half ton lots but unless a new supply is received before cold weather sets in, there will be a great scarcity, as hardly any have been able to lay in their winter supply.

At The Paris GREAT SURPRISE SALE

Commencing Saturday, Sept. 27, for ten days only—no more, no less. Owing to recent strikes we have had in New York in the cloak trade we could not get all the goods in time for our fall opening. Now that the strike is over, we commenced to get in goods that ought to have been delivered by the manufacturers two months ago, as well as goods contracted for the present delivery, and therefore we find ourselves with a good deal larger stock than we anticipated to have at this time of the year, and as the trade of Plainfield is limited we had to take heroic measures in order to dispose of it in time as named above. Hence our loss is your gain. The following items will give you an idea of the bargains awaiting your call.

WORKS ARMY'S RUIN

Funston Says the Anticanteen Law Increases Crime.

TRIALS BY COURT MARTIAL DOUBLED

Recent Legislation Has Lowered Discipline, Wrecked Scores of Good Soldiers and Filled Saloon Keepers' Pockets.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Brigadier General Frederick Funston in his annual report for the department of the Colorado points out that the percentage of trials by court martial of enlisted men has nearly doubled during the past year. He says:

"It is therefore plain that there has been a deplorable increase of offenses in general and of desertion in particular. In my opinion there are two principal causes for this state of affairs—first, resentment of unaccustomed limitations and restrictions felt by men returning from field service to the monotony and routine work of garrison life, and, second, the abolition of the canteen feature of the post exchange. Since this action was taken saloons of the lowest type have been established just outside the boundaries of the various reservations. Their proprietors are in almost every case unprincipled scoundrels, who leave nothing undone to debauch the soldiers, and obtain their money. Being in all cases outside the limits of any city, the proprietors of these resorts are subject to no municipal police regulations and sell liquor regardless of hours and whether the buyer is already intoxicated or not. Gambling is universal in these 'dives,' and they are frequented by dissolute women.

"The soldier whose desire for a drink would ordinarily be satisfied by a few glasses of beer in the canteen of the post exchange goes to one of these resorts and does well if he escapes before he has spent or gambled away all his money, overstayed his leave or engaged in an altercation. As a rule the local authorities regard the existence of these places with indifference or approval, as it causes the soldier to spend his money in the community. The efficiency of the army or the ruin of a good soldier is nothing to them. There can be no reasonable doubt that most of the trials by general court martial and summary courts, at least so far as this department is concerned, are directly traceable to this cause.

"Since I have had command here there has taken place the ruin and degradation of several noncommissioned officers of long service and fine record. In short, the recent legislation by congress on this question, so far as this department is concerned, has had no effect except to lower the discipline of the army, ruin scores of good soldiers and fill the pockets of a lot of saloon keepers, gamblers and prostitutes."

President Gains Steadily.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The condition of President Roosevelt's injured leg shows steady and satisfactory progress toward improvement. There is only a slight improvement perceptible from day to day, as the healing process is naturally slow and tedious. The president spent yesterday very quietly, his principal visitor being Secretary Moody, who had some navy department matters to bring to his attention. Dr. Rixey called for a short visit about 4 o'clock, and Dr. Lung, the president's regular physician, was with him for a brief time during the evening.

No Danger of Blood Poison.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 27.—A miscroscopic examination of the excretion of President Roosevelt's wound has been completed by Drs. F. B. Wynne, Charles E. Ferguson and W. T. S. Dodds of this city. The physicians agree that no trace of dangerous matter was found in the serum. The five doctors who performed the operation to relieve the abscess on the president's leg expressed the conviction at the time that there was no danger of blood poisoning, but as a matter of precaution the serum was submitted for examination to the three miscroscopic experts.

American Jockeys In Trouble.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Le Soir says the police of Paris have been watching for some time past the doings of several well known American jockeys and their friends, who met nightly in a certain place where card play for high stakes was indulged in and where victims are said to have been plucked. According to Le Soir, the police have made six arrests, and their prisoners included a celebrated American jockey, a race horse owner and a bookmaker. Four of the prisoners were released, but the examining magistrate told them to hold themselves at his disposition.

Meeting of Labor Federation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has issued a call for the twenty-second annual convention of the federation, to be held at New Orleans, beginning Nov. 13 next. The members of the executive council will meet at the federation headquarters in this city on Oct. 6 to consider any questions of jurisdiction, grievances, adjustments and similar matters.

Schooner's Crew Lost.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 27.—A severe gale has been raging along the coast for the past few days, doing much damage to property. Three more Labrador fishing schooners have been lost, with their cargoes, but the crews escaped. A fourth schooner has been lost, and the crew of seven of this vessel perished.

YOUNG'S FATHER TALKS.

Thinks Son Innocent and Will Do All In His Power to Help Him.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—A press representative has interviewed John W. Young, father of William Hooper Young, who is charged with the murder in New York of Anna Nelsen Pulitzer. On the developments in the case against his son Mr. Young said:

"I am now convinced from what has been published and from my own cable advices that my son is innocent, and I shall do the utmost in my power to help him, while if I thought him guilty of such a horrible crime I would not move my hand to save him from justice.

"He is wayward, but he never had a criminal tendency. The only explanation to my mind which can connect him with this crime is that he fell under the influence of some designing person who perpetrated the murder and through whom my son acquired a guilty knowledge of the crime or possibly became an accessory after the fact.

"The boy is not insane, but his mental strength has been undermined by vicious habits into which he fell while young.

"The dispatches say that a suit of my son's clothes was found in the trunk with the murdered woman's clothing. This itself is in his favor, for the perpetrator of a crime would never convict himself in such an obvious way. This was done by the real murderer, who is using my son as a screen.

"I wish to say that my son is not a member of the Mormon church, nor has he been connected with it for many years. We have been estranged for fifteen years. I helped him frequently through my other son, but have not seen him because of his waywardness and his vicious habits, to which his unfortunate failings are due.

"It was without my knowledge and consent that my son was living in my apartments during my absence."

DIPLOMATIC CHANGES.

A Batch of Appointments Announced at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The following important diplomatic appointments have been announced from the state department:

Charlemagne Tower of Pennsylvania, now embassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Russia, to be embassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Germany.

Robert S. McCormick of Illinois, now embassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Austria-Hungary, to be embassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Russia.

Bellamy Storer of Ohio, now envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Spain, to be embassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Austria-Hungary.

Arthur S. Hardy of New Hampshire, now envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Switzerland, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Spain.

Charles Page Bryan of Illinois, now envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Brazil, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Switzerland.

David E. Thompson of Nebraska, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Brazil.

These appointments are to take effect when Embassador White leaves Berlin in November.

Dr. Humphreys Dead.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 27.—Dr. Willard Humphreys, head of the department of German in the university, who on Sunday night took an overdose of chloral hydrate in an effort to gain relief from a severe headache, is dead at his home, on Bayard lane. Since Monday morning three physicians and several assistants employed their skill to save the unfortunate professor. Artificial respiration was carried on continuously for thirty-six hours before he could breathe spontaneously at all and for six hours more before it was safe to omit it. The heart, which had been overpowered by the poison, failed to respond properly, and Thursday he suffered a relapse and sank again into unconsciousness.

Premature Interest Paying.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—J. P. Morgan & Co. notified the shareholders of the various companies and corporations for which they act as fiscal agents that they would anticipate October interest and coupon payments next Monday, two days in advance of the required time. These payments, it is estimated, will approximate $14,000,000. This action is taken to help relieve existing financial conditions.

Russians Leaving Manchuria.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The state department has received a cablegram from United States Minister Conger, at Peking, stating that the evacuation of Manchuria has been begun by the Russians, who already have returned the railway. It is stated that the territory up to the Liao river will be evacuated completely by Oct. 8, as stipulated in the agreement.

Soft Coal Soars.

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Soft coal is following closely upon the heels of anthracite in the matter of price. The coal club of Boston has fixed the price of bituminous at $9 a ton, a rise of $2.50 for the week. Hard coal remains at $15, with very little to be had anywhere in this section.

Conductor Killed In Caboose.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Conductor Charles Hart was killed at Pelham Manor in a collision between a freight train and an engine. Hart was in the caboose of the train when an engine, running light, ran into it from the rear, telescoping it.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Industrial and Commercial Activity Unabated.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Notwithstanding the disarranged money market, almost a fuel famine and some damage to crops, industrial and commercial activity continues unabated, and the magnitude of plans for the future indicates that confidence has not been shaken. Scarcity of funds has thus far caused no hardships except to speculators, and the stringency will remedy itself by contracting loans on Stock Exchange collateral, together with such aid as may be offered by the treasury, which is partly responsible through absorption of funds. Injury to crops by frost has no more than offset the increase in acreage, while high prices fully compensate producers. It is not a time for pessimism, although securities have declined sharply.

Pressure in the iron and steel industry has been somewhat alleviated by larger receipts of coke and liberal imports of pig iron, yet the outlook is by no means devoid of unfavorable features.

Owing to the numerous influences now in evidence there is less disposition to place large contracts for distant delivery of pig iron, and sales are chiefly of small lots. Foreign iron is freely received, and other consignments are under consideration. More steel rail orders have been placed abroad. Needs for structural shapes are increasing, much work being held back by slow shipments, and orders are reported for delivery nearly two years hence.

Another corner was effected in wheat, and corn is still stubbornly strong for spot and the early options owing to light supplies. Receipts for the week were only 2,549,353 bushels against 3,107,900 last year, while Atlantic coast exports were 32,198 bushels against 728,020 bushels a year ago, which was much below normal.

The decline in meats has received a check, and sugar is firmly held, with refiners behind in delivery.

Failures for the week numbered 207 in the United States against 227 last year and 32 in Canada against 34 a year ago.

SHAW WILL BUY BONDS.

Secretary of Treasury Offers 105 For Government 5 Per Cents.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The secretary of the treasury has made public announcement that he will buy 5 per cent bonds of 1904 at 105 flat.

Secretary Shaw believes that 105, the price he offers to pay for government fives of 1904, is reasonable and just and that, although the current quotations are slightly in excess of that figure, the excess is the result of inflation. At the price he offers a private investor would realize about 1.75 per cent for the time the bonds have yet to run.

The amount of fives of 1904 now outstanding is $19,410,350.

Motormen's Strike Unsettled.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The motormen's strike on the Hudson Valley railway, which began four weeks ago, has developed into a bitter fight, and the end is not in sight. Cars are being operated on schedule time in Saratoga, Warren and Washington counties, through which the road runs, but in some sections it is still found necessary for military protection to continue. It is feared that were the national guardsmen to be withdrawn at the present time the lawless element would repeat their criminal acts. While the strikers are confident of success, the railway company avers that it is gradually breaking the strike.

WOMAN'S WORKING DRESS.

Should She Wear Swaddling Clothes When Engaged In Active Duties?

Ladies in the country, you who do your own housework, milk cows, gather fruit in the orchard, run up and down stairs forty times a day and put the chickens and the children to bed, did you ever stop to think how much of your strength and energy go to carrying the kind of clothes you wear? Fashions are designed wholly to catch the eye of rich ladies, who can be as idle as they like, who do not take care of their own children and who would screech and run from a pretty, gentle cow if they saw her. Now, is it not supreme silliness for useful ladies who must work at home whether they like it or not to wear the trailing skirt, high shoe heels and tight corset of the carriage woman?

In public of course every woman must as yet, until the world becomes more than half civilized, dress as fashion prescribes. At home no woman is freer to wear what she pleases than the American, for her men as a rule do not meddle with that part of the programme. Why should she not devise and wear about her work a dress whose skirts she will not walk up when she ascends a staircase—one that will not be bedraggling to her knees when she goes into the orchard in the morning or after a rain shower and, above all, one that will not exhaust her by its weight and cramp her heart and lungs so she cannot draw a full breath or run upstairs?

You admit she ought to wear about her work the dress that will enable her to accomplish the most with the least fatigue. Let us see what such a dress would be. You don't wear your everyday corset tight, you say. Well, now start and run as much as one city block at the top of your speed. Does your heart thump against those steel corset ribs and make you feel as if you were suffocating? Aye! Then it is too tight. Throw it off and wear merely a bust supporter or a soft corset cover waist. If you are so stout that you must wear something of the kind, be sure it is loose enough to let you fill your lungs with air to the utmost without any cramping of your ribs or diaphragm.

Now, about the skirt, let me tell you something. For years, when I have had housework and outdoor work to do, I have worn either the so called bloomer costume or a skirt so short and scant that it never "drabbled" or was under my feet when I ran upstairs. I tell you, active, splendid, physical work is a joy and delight in such garments. What is more, I wore the dress at home and on the farm about my work in perfect peace of mind and without annoyance from anybody, least of all from the men in my own family. In dress one desideratum is to get all the air possible upon and next your skin. The truth is that the most unhealthful thing we can wear is clothes—that is, as a general proposition. If women dared to go barefoot in summer, as our great grandmothers did, they would find themselves infinitely better in health for it. Their feet would be cornless, their lower limbs hardy and sturdy, and Mother Earth would fill them with her life giving electric currents. But, I suppose, you would be shocked at going barefoot, so I say for warm weather go without stockings then, wearing tennis shoes or high cloth ones—those that have low heels and elastic webbing at the sides. Nobody will care.

For winter wear for the useful home worker there is no costume better than that devised for girls' gymnasium dress, except that the gymnasium trousers are ordinarily too full. In making these knickerbockers you can easily get a paper pattern. One special point to remember is to cut out small gores of the cloth where it is gathered below the knees, so that it will not be "bunglesome" and wear out rapidly by the folds rubbing together. Underneath the knickerbockers a warm combination undergarment, underwaist and a shirt waist of wool or cotton, according to the weather, warm stockings and strong shoes, and there you are, perfectly clothed in a costume of only four pieces besides your shoes and stockings, not counting the collar and tie or other neckgear which the neat woman always wears. In this costume you can work all day without weariness.

Let us reform woman's home working dress in America!

KATE SHARP.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Oh, I beg your pardon;" he looked confused. "I heard a whisper about it. Servants always catch on to those things, you know."

"Yes, I know they do," said I. "It's in the very air sometimes. Well, is there anything I can do for you?"

"So you don't want to answer about the money? Very well, then. No, nothing you can do; only lay the ghosts, and keep the old lady overhead quiet."

"Quiet? Really, Mr. Beldon, you are extremely nervous on the subject of noise. I told you that my aunt could not move from her bed."

"Yes, I know you told me so."

"And you don't believe me?"

"I am sorry to say, dear Mrs. Brathwaite, that I do not. Not that I think you willfully misrepresent matters; but I think you are deceived yourself. The person you think the most unlikely to have taken your money is the one who has taken it. You say that your aunt cannot get out of bed. Therefore she gets up when you can't see her. You say she would not dream of taking a penny that is not her own. She has your money without doubt."

"Can you give me a description of the person you saw?"

"I told you, a large and ponderous person, puffing and blowing, in a flowered sacque, really the most awful thing I ever beheld in the shape of woman. Her head——"

"Her head? Gray curls piled high?"

"No, you don't!" said Mr. Beldon. "Rather, dear Mrs. Brathwaite, don't try to lead me astray. Her head was as big as a pork barrel, and tied round and round with a black silk handkerchief, the end sticking out in front. It reminded me of the rabbits that Uncle Dick used to make for us on the wall when we were children."

"I must confess that you have described my aunt rather faithfully," said I, "but you might have heard of her from some one, the new boarder, or——"

"You forget that I have not had the pleasure of making the acquainfance of your new boarder."

"I did forget that. Well, then, Glorianna—or Baldwin Towner. Come, now, Mr. Beldon, tell me, haven't they talked to you about my aunt?"

"Well, yes, somewhat," confessed Mr. Beldon, "but really they gave me no such idea of her. I must say—no such awful idea of her—as that she gave me herself when she came in here last night."

"You have been dreaming," I declared—"dreaming! Lock your door, Mr. Beldon, and don't imagine——"

Here Glorianna unceremoniously poked her head in at the door.

"The's another newspaper feller come an' he says he wants to get took in."

Mr. Beldon sprang to the door. "Say she'll come in a minute, Glory, in a minute." He pushed her out, drew me in, and this time he did lock his door most hurriedly.

"I told you," he said, speaking very fast, "that old Haight was putting them on to the case. Now promise me that you won't take him in. They have withdrawn the police from the Hall, I hear, and now the newspaper harpies are going to have their innings. Now promise me, Mrs. Brathwaite, do promise me. If you must take in a reporter, take some one not on our paper."

"I sha'n't take him," said I. "Don't you be alarmed. Nothing would tempt me to help annoy the ladies at the Hall." I then went out and I heard him lock the door after me. He was evidently more afraid of his own editor than of all the ghosts in Christendom. I went swiftly out to the porch, and there I found a young fellow, not yet out of his teens. He had newspapers in all his pockets, and there was such an eruption of pencils everywhere that he might almost have answered to the sobriquet of "The Human Porcupine."

He bowed politely.

"Have you a room for rent?" he said.

"No," said I.

"Why, I was told in the village that I might be able to get in here. I came from the city this morning to write up a sensation, and I want to remain for two or three days."

"Well, I have no room for you," I said. "What is your paper?"

"The Morning Scythe," said he. At this I smiled a little, with relief at finding it not to be the Star Union, but I had no idea of harboring anyone who wanted to write up my own dear people at the Hall, and said only, "Well, I have no room unoccupied; besides, I never let my room for less than a week."

"Oh, the editor wouldn't mind paying a week's rent at all, I'm sure. He is very keen after this article."

"Well," said I, "I wouldn't let you have a room if I was as poverty-stricken as Job's turkey, and you offered me a hundred dollars a week. Here, Bill," I said, "see this stranger off the premises."

My old dog got up and came over to where the young man stood and began pushing against him with his great body.

"Does he bite?" asked he.

"Not unless too hard pushed," I said. "Don't push him too hard."

"I won't" said he. "That's what he's doing to me. I'll just go along and up to the Hall."

"Glorianna," I called.

"Yes'm," said Glorianna.

"Send Baldwin here."

"Oh, I'm going, ma'am," said the young stranger.

"Yes," said I, "you are."

"I'm going right on up to the Hall."

"No," said I, "you're not."

Here Baldy Towner appeared.

"Baldwin," said I, "this young man, hardly more than a lad, wants to go up and annoy the ladies. You and Bill see that he doesn't," and I sat down as Baldy Towner came round the house.

The young man walked down the steps quickly and out to the gate.

"You carn't mount that there bike until ye've walked down the road a bit," said Baldy Towner; "in fact, I don' know as ye'd better mount at all." Whereupon he took an awl from his pocket and gave the tire a jab; there was a great rush of air, and the punctured rubber collapsed.

"How dare you!" said the lad. "That is an indictable offense. I'll have you up in court. I'll——"

"You kin do anything but go to the Hall; thet ye carn't,"

Bill stood where Baldy ordered him to stand, in the middle of the road leading up to the Hall, ready to spring if Baldy gave the word, and so the young man started to walk back to the village, pushing his useless bicycle in front of him along the way that he had come. I saw that he was passed by another man, who was driving in one of the regular buggy-hacks that take visitors out to the country places round Caldersville. The buggy stopped right in front of our door.

"Is that another of those reporters, Charlie?" I called to the man. He was a driver for our one livery stable. We had been to the village school together in our childhood.

"I dono'm," said Charlie. "He said he wanted a nice place to board, and I thought I'd bring him out to your house."

"I never saw anything like the number of people wanting board just now," said I. "I might make money if I owned a hotel. No, I haven't any place for you," for I saw that his pockets, too, were fairly bulging out with papers and pads and pencils.

By this time the man was close to the steps.

"What paper are you from?" said I.

"How did you know? Oh, my materials, I suppose. Well, then, the Star Union."

"I wouldn't take a man from the Star Union for his weight in gold," said I.

VACATIONS

——— seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lamb, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.

MARCH OF THE BUFFALOES

Composed by FRED L. RYDER.

Copyright, MCMI. by McKinley Music Co.

How the Trouble Began.

An old woman living some distance from Manchester, Ky., was summoned as a witness to tell what she knew about a fight at her house several nights before, in which three or four people were killed. She mounted the stand with evident reluctance and many misgivings, and, when questioned by the court as to what she knew about the matter, said: "Well, jedge, the fust thing I knowed about it was when Bill Sanders called Tom Smith a liar en' Tom knocked him down with a stick of wood. One of Bill's friends then hit Tom with a knife, slicin' a big piece out of him. Sam Jones, who was a friend of Tom's, then shot the other fellow, en' two more shot him, en' three or four others got cut right smart by somebody. That caused excitement, jedge, en' they commenced fitin'."

A Crusher.

Jerrold—So she refused you with "hauteur?"

Harold—She did! And without even the French accent on it.—Puck.

Pay for Duty.

Commanding Lieut. John Lewis, of Company K, has received pay checks for the members who attended the Oliphant funeral at Trenton, recently. Although the amount is small, the issuing of the money is in accordance with a rule passed by the State that militia men are to be paid for all time on duty.

Good-Bye Doggie.

Patrolman Lunger disposed of a dog on East Front street, this morning, that attempted to halt a trolley car in its progress. The animal was bowled over and left a wreck.

No Substitute Wanted.

No! I did not ask for a bottle any cheaper or twice as large, or one made by yourselves. I did ask for and will not have any substitute for Perry Davis' Painkiller; I have used it, my father used it and I would not be surprised if my grandparents did so too; there is no imitation that can equal it. That I am sure of—for stomach ache.

HISTORIC SABRE.

Now on Exhibition in Store of J. Hervey Doane.

There is on exhibition in the show window of J. Hervey Doane, the Park avenue jeweler, a historic sabre. When the United States troops comprising the garrison in Fort Sumter, S. C., under command of Major Anderson, marched out of Fort Sumter with the honors of war, April 14, 1861, this sabre was on that occasion worn by a private soldier serving in Battery H, 5th U. S. Artillery Regiment.

In Justice Huff's Court.

Eclipse of Moon.

A total eclipse of the moon is scheduled for October 16-17. It will be visible in North America.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. CITY TEAM WON BY SINGLE RUN

Westfield's Crack Nine Shut Out by Plainfield Consolidated Saturday Afternoon.

ON WESTFIELD GROUNDS

Greatest Game of Season Saw Victory Won for Plainfield in the First Inning—Neither Side Scored After That—The Single Run Made by Bert Moore—The Details.

The unexpected has happened. Westfield's hitherto unapproachable aggregation of ball tossers has received a bitter dose of it's own medicine—a defeat and a shut-out. Notwithstanding every precaution taken to prevent the Plainfield Consolidated team from wresting victory from the nine on its home grounds, the feat was accomplished, Saturday, by a score of 1 to 0. The single tally was made in the first inning by Bert Moore, who earned his way around from first base. This makes the sting of defeat all the more keen inasmuch as Westfield was practically given the lone run which enabled it to take the first game of the series.

From start to finish, the contest was one of the snappy, nerve-wracking variety. The batteries were faultless, the field couldn't be improved upon and every man played to win. As in the first game, the credit given Plainfield is largely due "Jimmy" Montross who repeated his wonderful pitching performance of the previous week. Westfield made but three hits from his delivery, five men struck out and not one reached first on a free pass or a pitched ball.

Walsh, the pitcher loudly proclaimed as "the twirler who had never lost a game for Westfield," failed to live up to his reputation. He was landed on for six hits, two of them doubles, while two singles in the first following each other, brought in the one run.

Plainfield took the bat first and led off with Moore. He was sent to first through Walsh's generously extended four balls. Lederer sacrificed to give him second, he reached third on Martin's clean hit and was brought home on Franklin's neat single. From then on the game was played quickly and evenly, not a man on either side reaching third in the remaining innings.

Prominent work was done by Cooney, who caught a red hot fly from Burke's bat and accomplished a double play by throwing Poole out at first, and also Mallon, who did precisely the same thing with Egan and Cooney. Lederer made two pretty running catches in the eighth and would have retired the side alone but for dropping a third.

Montross worked his quick delivery in great shape. It nearly terminated the game before the last inning was played, when he worked it on Barry, striking him out. Mallon, who followed, refused to abide by the umpire's decision and wanted to argue but hastily reconsidered when he was given the time limit. To the delight of the Plainfield rooters, he, too, was struck out. Altogether it was a great day for "Smiling Jimmy."

RALLY DAY SERVICES HELD

BY SUNDAY-SCHOOL OF PARK AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Musical Selections, Recitations and Address by Pastor Made Up Programme.

The Rally Day services of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school were held at 2:30 yesterday afternoon in the Sunday-school rooms of the church. There was a large attendance and the rooms were tastefully decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting.

"More About Jesus," was sung by the pupils and the first Psalm recited, after which the prayer was said by Theodore I. Runyon. A cornet solo was rendered by DeWitt C. Frazee followed by an appropriate recitation by Miss Elinor Stutzman entitled "A Time for Rally Day."

Following the collection a male quartette, consisting of Percy Hand, Roland Treadwell, George F. Watts and Harry F. Cuming, rendered a well executed vocal selection. The secretary of the Sunday-school, Thomas A. Cuming, then called the roll, after which the primary department held its exercises under the direction of the superintendent, Miss Elmira C. Runyon.

A pretty feature of the primary department exercises was the graduation of Mabel Stutsman, Edith Whitney, Robert Wyckoff, Jr., and Gordon May from the primary department to the main school. The four graduating scholars were each presented by their superintendent, Miss Runyon, with a Bible and a diploma. They recited the Ten Commandments and the books of the Bible and Miss Runyon then, in an appropriate address, delivered them into the charge of Superintendent Hall who, in turn, welcomed them into the main school.

Every one present at the services received from Superintendent Hall a rally day badge on which were printed the words: "I was There." On the Sunday previous tasteful printed invitations, bearing a picture of the church, were presented to all those attending the various services.

An address by the pastor of the Park Avenue church, Rev. J. W. Richardson, was listened to with close attention. Mr. Richardson spoke on the importance of the Sunday-school and outlined to what good uses it could be put. He explained also the object of "rally day."

The balance of the programme consisted of a recitation by Miss Arline Brown entitled "The Cross and the Flag" and a vocal selection of the same name by Miss Elsie Giles, Miss Adeline Runyon, T. I. Runyon and Chas. F. Dayton. The annual report of the secretary was also read.

Much credit for the success of the entertainment is due to the committee which arranged the programme, consisting of Miss F. G. Hawkins, Miss Elmira C. Runyon, Miss Elma H. Runyon and Miss Adeline Runyon. Aaron D. Thompson, Jr., and Joseph M. Hawkins arranged the decorations and Mrs. E. Frank Vail presided at the piano.

FIFTY YEARS AT ST. MARY'S

Anniversary of St. Mary's Parish Observed With Pontifical High Mass Yesterday.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES.

Bishop O'Connor Was the Celebrant Assisted by Many of the Prominent Priests of the Newark Diocese—Solemn Vespers Were Sung in the Evening by High Functionaries.

With a solemnity and impressiveness that was equalled only by the elaborateness of the ceremony, St. Mary's R. C. church celebrated, yesterday, its fiftieth anniversary as a united congregation. A mass, that is seldom witnessed in any diocese and the first time it has been given in this city, the Pontifical High, occupied the morning service and was conducted before an assemblage that filled the church to its utmost capacity. The day's celebration was crowned in the evening by Solemn Vespers in which high functionaries of this and other diocese participated.

Right Reverend Bishop Pontificate O'Connor, head of the Newark diocese, was the celebrant of the mass and he was assisted by Very Reverend Father Shepherd, vicar-general of the diocese, as arch priest; Very Rev. Father Stafford, of South Orange, president of Seton Hall College, as deacon of honor; Rev. Father John Callahan, of East Orange, as deacon of honor; Rev. Father Eagan, of St. Mary's church, as deacon and Rev. Father Farley, also of St. Mary's, as sub-deacon. Other assisting priests were Rev. Father Mordiello, of Bloomfield and Rev. Father Miller, of North Plainfield. Lending especial interest to the ceremony and adding to its enjoyableness was the musical programme, prepared and rendered under the direction of the organist, Miss Smith. Solos were given by Mrs. Bailey, M. J. Cashin and R. M. Clark.

To Rev. Dr. Kelley, of Hoboken, was accorded the honor of delivering the anniversary sermon and his discourse was one to awaken new thoughts in every member of the congregation. With deep feeling he referred to the growth St. Mary's church has attained and the prosperity it has enjoyed but in words containing much emphasis he laid stress on the fact that the strength of a church is in its people. Times came, he said, when idle words and false representations induced members to stray from the teachings of God voiced by the priests and he besought all to remain steadfast and be firm to their own convictions. Faith in the Creator is the upbuilding of the Christian cause and without it a church has no support. In words filled with earnestness, Dr. Kelley closed his discourse with an appeal to every member of the congregation to take renewed interest in the faith and continue the efforts which has built up St. Mary's church to its present standing.

The Solemn Vespers in the evening were given before another immense congregation and were as impressive as the Pontifical Mass. They were sung by Rev. Father Morris, a former pastor of St. Mary's church, while the sermon was preached by Right Reverend Monsignor O'Grady, of New Brunswick. His presentation was forceful while the sentiments expressed were in keeping with the occasion.

INSURANCE SETTLED.

Loss on Sebring Building Settled; Will Build One-Story Structure.

The insurance has been settled on the Sebring property on West Front street which was destroyed at the time of the fire in the Babcock building. W. A. Woodruff, the agent, has settled for the full amount of the insurance. This is one of the last settlements, the claim having been filed March 6. Charles Sebring, the son of Mrs. Sebring, who owns the property, has charge of improving the property, and it is understood that a one story building with two stores will be erected on the property.

Euchre and Entertainment.

The Knights of Columbus will hold a euchre and entertainment in St. Mary's Lyceum Wednesday evening.

Spelling Bee.

There will be an old-fashioned spelling bee at the North Plainfield High School Wednesday morning.

REV. CHAS. H. YATMAN MADE FOUR ADDRESSES

Anniversary Services of Y. M. C. A. Were Held Yesterday at Local Churches.

AND AT THE Y. M. C. A.

PREACHED AT TRINITY REFORMED AND FIRST M. E. CHURCHES.

Mr. Yatman Addressed Men's Meeting at Y. M. C. A. in the Afternoon—He Gave a Bible Talk in the Morning.

The anniversary services held at the Y. M. C. A. and in the Trinity Reformed and First M. E. churches yesterday, were productive of much good and were very helpful to the large audiences attending each service. Rev. Charles H. Yatman, the well-known evangelist and leader of the young people's meetings at Ocean Grove, spoke at the various services.

Early yesterday morning he gave a Bible talk at the Y. M. C. A. to men. His chief thought was character as based on the Word of God.

At 10:30 o'clock he occupied the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church. Here he gave a synopsis of his tour around the world. In this talk he told graphically of the open-hearted manner in which he was received in all of the foreign countries visited by him. He told of the progress religion is constantly making among the heathen nations. Mr. Yatman said that on an average there are ten conversions in foreign land to one at home, and he spoke of the glorious opportunities now being presented to missionaries and Christian workers who desire to enter this field of labor.

In the afternoon at 4 o'clock Mr. Yatman addressed a meeting for men at association hall. He took for his subject, "Judas Iscariot," and from this he gave one of his strongest talks. He spoke of this traitor as one who desired gold above God and how in the end he lost both gold and God. He spoke of his inglorious end. He did not believe that God created Judas to be dammed, but that he had all the opportunities in the world to be a good man and accept the gracious favors of God. At the close of this service ten persons signified their desire to lead a Christian life.

Last evening Mr. Yatman occupied the pulpit at the First M. E. church and spoke earnestly upon the subject "The Problem of the Young Man." He began with primary principles, striking at the root of many of the evils which tend to make a young man dangerous to society. He also told the young man how he can be good and how willingly and anxiously God is to help him. This service was one of the best of the series held during the day.

MURRAY EXPLAINED.

Colored County Committee Satisfied Why Anderson Wasn't Named.

The county colored Republican committee met Friday evening in the Central Hotel, at Cranford, and organized an executive committee to consist of all the officers of the county committee from Rahway, Westfield, Summit and Roselle. It was reported by a member of the committee that Former Assemblyman Murray had been spoken to with reference to the failure of Dr. J. C. Anderson, of this city, to be nominated for coroner, and that he declared satisfactory explanations had been made to the aspiring candidate.

DIDN'T MIND RAIN.

Rally Day Services Were Held at the Congregational Church.

Despite the downpour of rain yesterday afternoon there were seventy-five persons present at the rally day services held at the Congregational church under the auspices of the Sunday-school. The pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, gave a brief talk on the meaning of rally day, and Alex. Millar, superintendent of the school, conducted the review of the year's lesson. There were also violin solos by Joseph Trossbach and vocal solos by Miss Whalen. The exercises were interesting and enjoyed by all.

Funeral of P. P. Dumont.

Funeral services over the remains of Peter P. Dumont were held from his late residence on Crescent avenue, yesterday afternoon. They were in charge of Rev. Dr. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue church. A quartette sang sweetly, "Rock of Ages." Interment was afterward made in the family plot at Somerville.

SEASON BEGINS FOR FOOTBALL

Leal's School Went to Elizabeth and Easily Won From Pingry School Saturday.

ALIS' PRACTICE GAME.

Alis' Team of Substitutes Won From Orange Field Club 16 to 6—Leal's Game Was Won by the Score of 25 to 0—The Details of the Two Games on Saturday.

The local football season opened Saturday afternoon, despite the wet and mugginess. It wasn't ideal football weather by any means but the showing was a good one. Leal's School made a great showing at Elizabeth by defeating Pingry School 25 to 0. The Alis A. A. played a practice game against the Orange F. C. and won 16 to 6.

LEAL'S BEAT PINGRY.

To the tune of 25 to 0, the Leal School eleven administered a crushing defeat to the Pingry School football team at Elizabeth Saturday. From the first the Plainfield boys had everything all their own way. They played a quick, snappy game, and so outclassed their opponents that the Pingry team at no period of the game were able to get the ball nearer to Leal's goal posts than the forty yard line.

For the first game of the season the local team played unusually well and considerable credit should be given to A. Willis West who has been coaching it for the past two weeks. The game Saturday was marked throughout by excellent team work and there was also good individual work. Biglow made a record for bucking centre and Brokaw drilled holes in Pingry's guard at every opportunity. R. Schoonmaker's tackles brought consternation to the Elizabeth rooters while the way in which Lovell followed interference evoked much applause from the followers of Leal.

Leal kicked to Pingry at the beginning of the first half and the latter team got the ball, losing it on downs at the twenty-five yard line immediately thereafter. Leal took the pigskin and forced it through for a touch down in just two and one-half minutes after the game was called. At the end of the half the score stood 20 to 0.

During the second half, however, Pingry picked up a trifle and held the Plainfielders down to five points. No goal was kicked in either half.

The line-up of Leal's School was as follows:

Martin, centre; Brokaw, left guard; Chas. Perkins, left tackle; Max Perkins, left end; Farber, right guard; Abbott, right tackle; Pinto, right end, W. Schoonmaker, quarter back; Lovell, right halfback; R. Schoonmaker, left halfback; Biglow (captain), full back. Atwater, of Elizabeth, referee; A. W. West, of Plainfield, umpire, and Mr. Fowler, Plainfield, timer.

ALIS' OPENING GAME.

The Orange Field Club was defeated at football on its own grounds, Saturday afternoon, by the Alis A. A., by a score of 16 to 6. A large crowd witnessed the game.

For the first game of the year some quick work was done by both elevens. The individual playing was good although the team work on both sides was rather weak. This, however, was to be expected, as both Alis and Orange had several of their regular men absent.

It was more a practice game than anything else, and the halves were only fifteen minutes each. The line-up was as follows:

Alis A. A.		Orange F. C.
Cathcart	r e.	Emmons
Davis	r t.	Hakes
Haberle, Egan	r g.	Miller
Gwynne, Beard	c.	Hinkle
Stewart	l g.	Anderson
Pond	l t.	Thayer
H. Smith	l e.	Lake
Radford	q b.	McVoy
Cuming	l h b.	Robinson
Beard, Rapalye	r h b.	Springer
Phillips	f b.	C. Smith

Referee—H. Woltmann. Umpire—Kendall Mason. Timekeeper—H. Phillips.

The touchdowns for Alis were made by Cuming, Pond and Cathcart, while Lake ran the ball through for a down in behalf of Orange. Phillips kicked goal for Alis' first down, but missed on all the others. Himkle kicked goal for Orange.

CHOSING SUCCESSOR.

Choice of New Pastor for First Baptist Church Narrowed to Four.

The committee from the First Baptist church having in charge the matter of selecting a successor to Rev. Dr. Yerkes, held a meeting in the church last week. A very large number of applications were received for the pastorate, but it is understood that the selection of a pastor lies between three or four divines. The committee will hear these ministers preach and will in the course of time make a report. It is reported, however, that no decision will be reached within another month, at least.

HE FOUGHT AGAINST ARREST

TOOK FIVE MEN TO LAND WILLIAM BROWN IN JAIL.

Given Sixty Days for Resisting Arrest and Carrying Brass Knuckles.

Resisting arrest every inch of the way and fighting even at the threshold of his cell, William Brown, a stalwart young colored man, was taken into custody by the local police, Saturday night.

When he was first apprehended by Patrolman Quaas at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street, for disorderly conduct, he threw away a wicked looking pair of brass knuckles which were picked up by a witness and handed over to Chief Kiely. Mainly for carrying this weapon he was sentenced to sixty days straight by City Judge Runyon, this morning.

From the time Quaas first took hold of him, Brown struggled like a fiend, or "demon" whirled his fists about, sending Quaas down and also two men who first went to his assistance. Patrolman Higgins came to the rescue as did the Chief himself and both came in for a share of the kicks and blows.

When arraigned in the city court, Brown admitted all the charges made against him with the exception of carrying the knuckles, but the evidence showed that he had.

DEATH OF C. S. GUION.

An Aged Resident Passed Away at His Home Yesterday Morning.

Charles S. Guion, of this city, died at his home, 315 LaGrande avenue, yesterday morning, after an illness of several months.

He was born at North Castle, near Bedford, Westchester county, N. Y., October 10, 1824. He was a descendant of one of the Hugenots, Lewis Guion, a native of LaRochelle in France, who settled in America, at New Rochelle, about 1687. When a young man he went to sea and had visited almost every part of the world. Afterwards he engaged in business in New York City. In 1853, he married Harriet E. Reynolds, of Stonwich, Conn., and after his marriage he went to Illinois, where he lived until 1877, when he removed to Plainfield. Soon after he came to Plainfield he engaged in the coal business, and continued in the business until 1890, when he retired.

He was a member of the Common Council at one time and although a life long Republican and always deeply interested in public affairs and the welfare of the city, he never held any other public office. He was modest and unassuming, of a kind and sympathetic nature, and universally respected for his many virtues. He was a consistent Christian all his life, and for twenty-five years was a member of Grace Episcopal church of this city.

He had three children, two sons, Charles Godfried and Frederick Warer, who died several years ago, and a daughter, wife of George S. Clay, who, with his widow, survives him.

The funeral services will be held from the late home, 315 LaGrande avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Death of Vincent Rushton.

Frank Putnam, of West Front street, has received a letter from Robert Rushton, who is in England, telling him of the death on September 20, of Mr. Rushton's brother, Vincent Rushton. The latter lived in Plainfield and was well-known here. His death was due to consumption.

Hackman in Court.

Peter Seader, a depot Jehu, was in the city court, this morning, charged by Patrolman Saffron with violating the hack ordinance. He pleaded not guilty and to allow time to procure witnesses the case was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

PLAYED GOLF IN THE MUD

Local Golfers Competed in Weekly Events Under Difficult Circumstances.

THE REINHART CUP WON.

J. H. P. Wharton Became Permanent Owner of It by Winning at Hillside Saturday—Other Honors for C. Abbott and B. Rogers—Senator Reed Won at Park.

It required considerable enthusiasm to play golf Saturday as both of the local golf courses bore striking resemblances to mill ponds. While no rain fell during the afternoon, both courses were in very poor condition on account of the recent rains and it somewhat affected the scores, particularly at the Park Golf Club where the lower end of the course was under water. The chief event was the final play for the Reinhart cup at Hillside. J. H. P. Wharton won the permanent ownership of it. Other honors went to Dr. F. C. Ard and B. O. Rogers. At the Park Golf Club, Senator Charles A. Reed was low man. At the Westfield Golf Club, R. I. Townley won the Gladwin trophy.

PARK GOLF CLUB.

Not since spring have the members of the Park Golf Club had to play through such a succession of ponds as faced them when the weekly competition for the President's cup began Saturday. The lower end of the course was covered with water while every where the turf was soft and muddy. For the first, second, third, fourth, sixth and eighth, temporary greens were established. Despite all these things there were some important changes resulting from the day's play.

Senator Charles A. Reed, who has not participated in the weekly competitions all summer, won first honors and now stands fourth for the cup. Roberts deS. Newhall didn't seem to mind the mud and water and came in with an 86, remarkable going for such a day. That gave him second honors and advanced him to second place for the cup, leading S. St. J. McCutchen by a quarter of a point. Charles B. Morse still leads.

Newhall was the only one who was able to overcome the conditions. All the other scores were much higher than usual. They were as follows:

	G	H	N
Charles A. Reed	1C9	27	82
Roberts deS. Newhall	86	0	86
Frank Rogers	114	25	89

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

General Gillmore is to give the Plainfield National Guardsmen a lesson in military ethics and decorum. From all accounts it is badly needed; but it is unbecoming in the Jersey City Evening News to exhibit such virtuous indignation over the shortcomings of the Plainfield boys at the recent appearance of the Second Regiment. If we mistake not, it was members of a Jersey City regiment that made a riotous demonstration during the inaugural parade last winter, and while there was talk of an investigation and accounting, the affair was suppressed in order to prevent a worse scandal.—Trenton Times.

The overthrow of the plan to turn down Senator Cross in Union county, will be heralded with satisfaction everywhere. No matter to which faction Senator Cross belongs, he is recognized as a legislator of ability, and one who has a high standard of politics. It is not advisable to take such men out of public life until they have, at least, served the time to which they are entitled by common consent. It is to be hoped that the Kean faction, after such an overwhelming victory, will now turn in and help elect Congressman Fowler as the adherents of the latter ought to work for the whole ticket. It would seem that Mr. Fowler was on the wrong side in this matter, but his election should not be jeopardized by any factional feeling. The Elizabeth Journal has asserted that Senator Kean did not want a fight, but was forced into it. Now he can show a broad-minded policy by helping to elect the man with whom he has successfully battled. We believe he will do it.—Somerville Unionist Gazette.

The charge to the Somerset County Grand Jury delivered by Supreme Court Justice Garretson, touching on the death of Mrs. W. V. Snyder, of this city, was similar in tenor to the charge made by Justice Dixon as the result of an automobile fatality in Bergen county. Information had reached the court in Somerville that the accident at Bernardsville was due to the reckless manner in which an automobile was operated. The jurors were instructed to make a complete investigation, and if the charge was substantiated by the evidence they were ordered to bring in an indictment for manslaughter against the person responsible for the disaster. In order to find such an indictment, the jurors were told that it was only necessary to prove that the machine was being operated without regard to the rights of other users of the highway.

The charge of Justice Garretson will meet with popular approval. It is not to be doubted that the drawing of the attention of grand juries to similar occurences followed by indictments and convictions will do more than all the ordinances that may be adopted to properly regulate the operation of automobiles. With the danger before them of being held criminally responsible for reckless driving, the operators of horseless vehicles are sure to be more cautious than they would be if they felt that they could escape the consequences of their daring by paying small fines.—Newark News.

BUILDING BOOM.

Many New Houses to be Erected in the West End.

Mrs. Clara M. Naylor, of this city, has signed a contract with the Economic Contracting Company through C. S. Nicholson, the local representative, for the erection of a five-room house on South Second street near Clinton avenue. It will have all modern improvements. This is the first of a large number of residences that are to be erected in that vicinity soon, due to the building boom promulgated by the Pedrick-Ayer factory.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

George Mehl, of No. 3 engine house, is detained at his home by illness.

Miss Dora Ulrich, of this city, has been the guest of Somerville friends.

Miss Ursula Rowland, of West Seventh street, will enter Wellesley College this week.

Mrs. Jennie Parks, of High Bridge, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur P. Henderson, of West Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl, of Somerset street, have returned from an extended stay in New York State.

Former Councilman and Mrs. Arthur T. Gallup, of West Front street, are sojourning in Washington for ten days.

Senator and Mr. Chas. A. Reed, who have been spending the past season at Seabright, have returned to their home on Myrtle avenue.

THE SEES GOING.

Readers in Christian Science Church at Cranford Have Resigned and Will Leave Cranford.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph See, first readers of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Cranford, have resigned from their positions in that organization and will possibly take up the work in some other portion of the State. They are temporarily filling the readers' desk until their successors are elected. Readers, in this church, serve for three years.

The Cranford Christian Scientist church now has a membership of nearly one hundred. It was organized in 1899 by Mr. and Mrs. See and since that time has grown steadily. The organization now owns a well appointed church building on North avenue and its members and officers are all prominent in the town.

LITERARY.

Barrie's delightful serial, full of humor and pathos, "The Little White Bird," dominates the interest in Scribner's for October. Artistically this number is made notable by a cover in color from a design by Mills Thompson; a spirited drawing by Yohn used as a frontispiece and printed with a tint; and a series of four western types by Frederic Remington in his most vigorous manner, depicting the Cow-Boy, the Scout, the Cossack Post and the Half-Breed. The original colors are beautifully reproduced. McCarter, James Preston and George Wright are other artists here represented. The leading artistic feature is a brief appreciation of the work of J. Q. A. Ward by Russell Sturgis.

Walter A. Wyckoff, the author of "The Workers," continues his observations of London wage-earners.

Henry vanDyke has never written a more subtile story than "Spy Rock." It is a study of egotism, and the setting of it is the pinnacle of a great hill, not far from West Point.

There is another sea story by James B. Connolly. This one describes a great race in which a Gloucester skipper beat the Valkyrie. This is the kind of a sea story that stirs the blood and raises a most vivid picture of the daring and skill of the modern Gloucester sailor.

The dramatic story, "Vive l'Empereur," by Mrs. Andrews, is concluded with a scene that would make the success of any play. Miss Daskam has a pathetic story of "A Little Brother of the Books," which is illustrated by Bacher.

There are illustrated poems by Mrs. Dorr and Margaret Crosby.

Must Pay Debts.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has decided that all of its employes must pay their debts or get out. This decision has been made necessary on account of the garnishment laws of some States, as when writs of attachments were served they had to be honored, otherwise the company would be responsible for the debts and their property would be subject for attachment.

Monroe Avenue Rally Day.

Sunday, October 5, has been appointed as rally day at the Monroe Avenue church. The pupils of the Sunday-school will furnish an appropriate programme.

IMPERIALISM AGAIN.

Certain French Papers Protest "Armed Intervention" on Isthmus.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—The French press has been following closely the "armed intervention" of the United States in affairs on the isthmus and at Panama, and the article published in La Prensa of Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, Sept. 26, in which attention was called to the alleged tendency of the United States toward imperialism, as illustrated by the landing of American marines on the isthmus, and against which La Prensa protests energetically, has evoked comment in several newspapers.

La Liberte [illegible] the Latin countries of America [illegible] times clearly affirmed [illegible] not to allow themselves [illegible] by the United States. [illegible] nations of Europe ought to [illegible] them vigorously in this work of defense and self preservation. It is the especial duty of nations of the same blood as theirs, says La Liberte, such as France, Italy and Spain, to stretch out a helping hand.

Le Journal des Debats, on the other hand, indorses the policy of the United States toward the republics of South America. This paper first remarks that the American government does not need to repeat the Monroe doctrine to Europe. The situation itself suffices to recall to the latter that the American continent cannot longer be a field of European political action. The paper then says that the protest against the landing of American marines on the isthmus made by General Salazar, commander of the Colombian forces on the isthmus, is futile and therefore of only mediocre interest. "America," says the Journal des Debats, "is scrupulously fulfilling the duty imposed upon it by the treaty of 1846, and it will fulfill this duty more and more in the future as the canal is completed.

IN MEMORY OF KOSSUTH.

Statue of the Hungarian Patriot Unveiled In Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29.—A life size statue to the Hungarian patriot Louis Kossuth was unveiled in this city yesterday in the presence of 30,000 people. The statue stands on a pedestal and is about twenty feet high. The figure of Kossuth was the work of a Hungarian sculptor, Andrew Toth of Debreazin, Hungary.

The occasion was made the opportunity for a display of the affection in which the Hungarian patriot is held. Addresses were made by Mayor Johnson, Senator Hanna, Congressman Burton and Governor Nash. Addresses were also made in several foreign tongues by eminent speakers. There was a street parade, in which Hungarian and allied societies participated. Six Thousand men were in line.

The statue is located on University circle, a fine open plot of ground facing the buildings of Western Reserve university.

At night there was a number of banquets and little literary celebrations tendered to the notable Hungarians from several cities who came to attend the unveiling.

Trolley Strikers Jailed.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Violent demonstrations against the Hudson Valley Railway company have caused shots to be exchanged, and there are two men locked up in the county jail charged with being implicated in the attack on the company's property. The trouble developed late at night when attempts were made to burn the bridges between this place and Ballston Spa. Obstacles were also placed on the tracks, and the depredators, who seemed to number about a dozen, sought to ground the trolley wires at an isolated point south of this village. A force of private detectives was hurried to the point, and it was here that revolvers were drawn and shots exchanged. Two men alleged to have been engaged in the depredations were arrested.

Sailors In Bad Shape.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Dr. Doty has made a close examination of the sick sailors on board the British bark Kentmere, which arrived from Japan. He says almost all of the crew are suffering from scurvy and several are in a pitiable condition. Malnutrition is responsible for the illness. Several have suffered from moon blindness, popularly called moon blink. It is said on board that the men were supplied with very little besides salt meat. Vegetable and other foods necessary to prevent the scurvy were not to be had. The men will be sent to some nearby hospital for treatment.

Couple That Eloped Found Dead.

EMPORIA, Va., Sept. 29.—William Batte, who lives thirteen miles north of this place, reports finding in the woods near his home the dead bodies of R. B. Mitchell and Miss Mabel Lee, both of Stony Creek, Va., who ran away from Stony Creek last Tuesday or Wednesday to be married. There were bullet wounds in both, and a revolver was lying between them. The supposition is that Mitchell shot the girl and then killed himself.

Severe Pacific Storms.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—The steamer Nappon Maru has arrived from the orient after passing through two of the worst storms that have visited the south Pacific in many years. Passengers declare that their experience was something fearful. Among the passengers on the Nappon Maru were Chie Wa Ching and Kwon Dong Kin, two Chinese diplomats bound for Washington.

Cyclist Commits Suicide.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 29.—Ernie Johnson, a well known professional bicyclist, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart at midnight at his home in this city.

TO GIVE PROTECTION

Troops Will Take Care of Working Miners.

A CAVALRY COMPANY CALLED OUT

Strikers Profess to Be as Firm as Ever and Claim There Will Be No Desertions From Their Ranks.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 29.—Some of the local coal operators after being shown a copy of the statement just issued by President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers say it will be probably the last he will give to the public before the ending of the strike. They claim his appeal is made up of generalities and that he endeavors to win public sympathy by making a plea for child labor. One operator said the condition of child labor in the coal region is much better than it is in the manufacturing districts of the country, that the wages paid are better and the working hours shorter. At strike headquarters Mr. Mitchell's latest deliverance is termed a "ten strike" and that the facts he presents are irrefutable.

The military authorities, Sheriff Jacobs and some of the superintendents of the coal companies in this vicinity held a meeting in the office of one of the coal companies and talked over a plan by which the troops can be moved promptly to scenes of disturbance.

It is not the purpose of the military to do police duty, but if any of the companies can get men to go to work the soldiers will give them protection. It is reported that attempts will now be made to resume work at several of the collieries in this region, which have been idle since the strike began, but the report cannot be verified.

At strike headquarters it is claimed that there will be no change in the situation the coming week, which is the twenty-first of the strike, that the strikers are as firm as ever and that there will be no desertions from the ranks to make it possible for the coal companies to start up any new collieries.

The Ninth regiment went into camp at West Side park yesterday afternoon in the midst of a drenching rainstorm.

MORE TROOPS SENT.

Report That Call on Governor Was Forged Declared False.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 29.—Governor Stone has ordered the Sheridan troop of Tyrone to report to General Gobin for duty in the anthracite strike territory. The troop left Tyrone last evening by special train under orders to re-enforce the Thirteenth regiment at Olyphant. Camp equipage and canvas were shipped from the state arsenal in this city in a special car which was attached to the troopers' train at Tyrone. The Governor's troop of Harrisburg and the Second Philadelphia City troop will remain on duty at Shenandoah.

Governor Stone called up General Gobin by telephone last night and advised him that he had received a telegram from Shenandoah advising him that the call for troops to Columbia county was a forgery.

General Gobin replied that the sheriff's call for soldiers was authentic and that Sheriff Knorr had sent his deputy to him (Gobin) for troops.

After his talk with General Gobin the governor said that the general would send troops to aid in the arrest of persons who have stopped and delayed trains and forcibly taken non-union men from the cars.

The following is the telegram received by the governor. It was signed by Terrence Gurley, member of the executive board, United Mine Workers:

"Sheriff Knorr says call for troops for Columbia county is a forgery. General Gobin says he will send troops to Centralia to make arrests. Action certain to cause complications and injustice. We guarantee peaceful surrender of all accused persons to civil authorities. Telegrams to sheriff and general will show through these statements."

Troops Kept Busy.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 29.—By working his troops eight hours a day regardless of the rain and awful condition of the roads Colonel Watres of the Thirteenth regiment has succeeded in restoring order throughout Lackawanna county. Sporadic outbreaks of a comparatively trivial nature have occurred during the past two days, but the usual attacks by mobs on nonunion men and company properties have been wanting. So arduous have been the tasks of the soldiers that many of them collapsed on the long night marches and had to be carried into the camp. Word of the coming of the Sheridan troop of cavalry was received at camp with many joyous comments.

A Beef Trust Move.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—The Tribune says: What was to have been an important move in the formation of the alleged beef trust took place when Swift & Co. notified the Anglo-American Packing company that it would assume control of the Kansas City and Chicago plants on Monday. This assumption of control, now of little moment, was to have been a practical announcement of the consummation of the trust.

Hendrick and Stanton Still In Jail.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Sept. 29.—Dr. Hendrick and former Justice of the Peace Stanton of Hoboken, the men arrested accused of conspiracy with Miss Biggar to obtain for her the entire estate of the late Henry M. Bennett are still locked up in the jail here, no bondsmen having appeared in their behalf. No word has reached this city as yet that Miss Biggar has been arrested or even located.

ANOTHER OPERATION

Abscess on President's Leg Treated With the Knife.

BONE FOUND SLIGHTLY AFFECTED.

Dr. Shaffer of New York In Attendance Reiterates Statement of Other Physicians That There Is No Cause For Alarm.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Another operation has been performed on the abscess on the left leg of President Roosevelt. In the former operation a simple needle was used to relieve the trouble, but yesterday the surgeons with a knife made an incision into the small cavity, exposing the bone, which was found to be slightly affected. The president's case has been progressing satisfactory, but it is believed by the physicians that the further operation made will hasten his complete recovery.

While none of the doctors is willing to be quoted, they give the most positive assurances that there is not the least cause for alarm and say that, on the contrary, there is every indication of a speedy recovery, that the area of the affected is very slight and will result in any impairment of the president's limb and that there is no evidence whatever of any matter that would produce blood poisoning. They confidently expect that the president will be on his feet within a reasonable time and with his robust constitution to assist recovery soon will be himself again.

Dr. Newton M. Shaffer of New York, who long has been acquainted with the Roosevelt family and has attended the president's children at various times and who also is a well known bone specialist, joined the president's physicians in their consultation. It was noticed that there had been a slight rise in the president's temperature and an increase in local symptoms, and the conclusion was reached that the patient's recovery would be hastened by making an incision of the wound for the purpose of relieving the slightest tension or swelling which was present and also to drain the wound.

The operation was performed between 2 and 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. An application of cocaine was used to allay the pain.

The president stood the operation well and subsequently expressed his satisfaction at the successful result.

Dr. Rixey, the surgeon general of the navy, performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Lung, the president's regular physician. Dr. O'Reilly, who also was present with the other physicians, is the surgeon general of the army and heretofore has been consulted regarding the case. Dr. Edward R. Stitt, another of those present, is in charge of the Naval Museum of Hygiene and Medical school.

The physicians take a roseate view of the president's prospects for getting out again. He has become somewhat restive because of his close confinement, and the physicians are considering the advisability of permitting him to take a ride in a few days. The physicians say the question now is simply one of the healing of the wound and reiterate that this will be hastened by the operation performed yesterday.

Dr. Shaffer called at the temporary White House for a social visit and found the president in the best of spirits. The doctor remained in Washington during the night and this morning again saw the president.

Dr. Shaffer, while he declined to discuss generally the president's case, authorized in the most positive manner the statement that there need not be the least cause for anxiety or alarm regarding his condition, but said, on the contrary, he could give every assurance of the belief that the president would soon recover.

Secretary Cortelyou issued the following statement last night:

"Dr. Newton M. Shaffer of New York joined the president's physicians in consultation this morning at 10 o'clock.

"The increase in local symptoms and a rise in temperature rendered it necessary to make an incision into small cavity, exposing the bone, which was found to be slightly affected. Thorough drainage is now established, and the physicians feel confident that recovery will be uninterrupted.

"The operation was performed by Surgeon General Rixey, assisted by Dr. Lung, in consultation with Surgeon General O'Reilly and Drs. Shaffer, Urie and Stitt."

Isthmian Situation Unchanged.

COLON, Colombia, Sept. 29.—The situation on the isthmus remains unchanged. Free transit between Colon and Panama obtains, and American marines and bluejackets are still traveling on all trains. Commander McLean of the United States cruiser Cincinnati will sail for New York next Tuesday on the Panama Railroad company's steamer Finance. Commander Newton E. Mason, will then assume command of the Cincinnati.

Turks and Bulgarians Lost Heavily.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 29.—Official telegrams received here say that 300 Bulgarian revolutionists who were surrounded by Turkish troops at Vodena, in the vilayet of Saloniki, and who succeeded in forcing the cordon after a sanguinary fight, lost 52 men killed and 112 men wounded. The Turks also suffered severe losses. The pursuit of the Bulgarians continues.

Alger Named For Senator.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 29.—General Alger admits Governor Bliss has notified him from Saginaw of the appointment to fill the unexpired term of United States senator. "I will probably accept the appointment," was all General Alger could be induced to say.

AGAINST THE MOROS.

Second Expedition to Attack the Position at Maciu.

MANILA, Sept. 29.—A second expedition against the Moro position at Maciu, island of Mindanao, has left Camp Vicars. It is in command of Captain John J. Pershing of the Fifteenth infantry and is composed of a battalion of infantry, a troop of cavalry, three sections of artillery and a detachment of engineers. The engineers will construct a pontoon bridge and a corduroy trail across the swamp which flanks the land side of the Maciu forts. This work will occupy several days. Rafts will probably be used to attack the fort from the lake side. The actual date of the assault upon the forts is indefinite.

The sultan of Butig has been made a prisoner of the American forces and was subsequently released. He furnished the Americans with horses to transport their supplies.

The first expedition which left Camp Vicars to operate against the Maciu Moros was composed of a battalion of infantry, two troops of cavalry and two guns. It started Sept. 17. The position at Maciu was found to be strong, and the attack was delayed in order to improve the methods of approach and to receive re-enforcements.

The fort at Maciu is on an elevation close to the lake shore and flanked by swamps which virtually make it an island. The sultans of Maciu regard their position as impregnable and have refused to treat with Captain Pershing. Captain Pershing is confident of his ability to capture the Moro forts without serious losses.

FIVE HUNDRED BODIES FOUND.

Sicily's Tempest Resulted In Terrible Havoc.

ROME, Sept. 29.—Advices received from Sicily show that the tempest that worked such damage in that island is still raging. Details of the storm multiply the number of deaths. On the east coast 370 bodies have been recovered, and the sea continues to give up corpses which were swept down from the interior. It is estimated that 500 bodies have already been recovered.

Three hundred lives were lost at Modica. The churches there are filled with dead, and the cemeteries are wastes of mud, rendering the interment of the bodies of the victims impossible. Salvage operations continue, troops and peasants working without intermission.

At Sortino, sixteen miles from Syracuse, the cyclone continued for fifteen hours. The rains which have followed the cyclone have aggravated the disaster in the country, sweeping down bridges and interrupting railway traffic.

AIR TUBE SERVICE.

Contracts Are Awarded For Several Large Cities.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The contracts for carrying the mails by pneumatic tube service in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis have been awarded by Acting Postmaster General Shallenberger.

The service in each of the cities will begin as soon as the system is constructed, each section operating as soon as ready. The service can begin immediately in some instances, as the pneumatic tubes have already been constructed to some extent in several cities. The contracts are awarded with the understanding that the mileage, when definitely ascertained, may slightly vary the rates to be paid by the government and also with the understanding that the total amount of all the service in all the cities shall not exceed $8,000,000 per annum, the amount to which the department is limited by congressional enactment.

A New Ocean Steamer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — The new twin screw steamer Finland of the Red Star line which was built at the yards of the William Cramp & Sons' Ship and Engine Building company in Philadelphia has arrived from a trial trip up the coast from Philadelphia. The Finland will be put into the New York-Antwerp service of the Red Star line immediately, sailing from here Saturday, Oct. 4, at 10 a. m. The vessel is the last of the quartet of new twin screw steamers which the International Navigation company has had built for the New York-Antwerp service of the Red Star line. She and the Kroonland, recently added to the service, are the largest ships built in the United States.

Tobacco War at an End.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The tobacco war has been ended by the amalgamation of the American and British interests. An official statement covering the details and subscribed to by the officers of both combines has been given out. The official announcement shows that the amalgamation of British and American interests takes the form of a new company, to be known as the British-American Tobacco company, in which both the Imperial and American companies are represented. The American and Imperial companies agree to respect each other's domestic trade.

Canadians Won at Lacrosse.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 29.—The Winnipeg Shamrocks won the international lacrosse championship by defeating the St. Paul team. The latter team had won the championship of the United States by defeating the Calumets of Chicago, while the Shamrocks had vanquished all the crack Canadian teams. The Canadian club outclassed the St. Paul team, winning by a score of 11 to 2.

Reported Death Untrue.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS.

Leaders Gathering at Saratoga—A Wealth of Timber For Governor.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Many delegates to the Democratic state convention, which is to begin its work here tomorrow, have arrived on the ground, but those here know little as to nominees or platform. The arrival of Senator Hill this morning served to clear up the situation somewhat, but the fight over the governorship is likely to go into the convention. The rest of the ticket will be named without concentrated opposition.

At least three selections have, it is said, been tentatively made. Randolph Guggenheimer will go on the ticket for lieutenant governor, John Cusneen of Erie for attorney general and Edwin S. Atwater of Dutchess for comptroller. These are in addition to Judge John Clinton Gray, who has no opposition for the court of appeals judgeship. Of course Mr. Guggenheimer's nomination depends on the selection of an up state man for governor.

Never in advance of any convention in years has there been such a list of names to select from. Here is only a partial list of candidates for governor, who, if the leaders are to be believed, all have an even chance to fight it out in the convention or before it meets: Bird S. Coler, Edward M. Shepard, Edward M. Grout of Kings, Jacob A. Cantor of New York, Frederick Cook of Monroe, Elliot Danforth of Chemango, Nicholas Muller of Richmond, Alton B. Parker of Ulster, David B. Hill of Albany, Cornelius A. Pugsley of Westchester, John B. Stanchfield of Chemung, John G. Milburn of Erie and Judge E. M. Cullen of Kings.

BURNED AT THE STAKE.

Negro Confesses Murder and Gets Mississippi Justice.

CORINTH, Miss., Sept. 29.—Clark, alias Will Gibson, the negro who confessed to the murder of Mrs. Carrie Whitfield, was burned at the stake at a late hour yesterday.

On Aug. 19 last the body of Mrs. Carrie Whitfield, a lady highly respected and connected with several of the foremost families in Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama, was found in her home by her husband on returning from his day's work. The head had been severed from the body with a razor. The husband gave the alarm, and posses were at once formed, and the whole country was scoured. Several suspects were arrested, but in each case an alibi was proved.

Will Gibson, a young negro, was arrested near here and brought to the city. He appeared before a committee of twelve citizens and finally acknowledged that he committed the brutal murder, his purpose being robbery. A mass meeting was held, and it was decided to lynch him.

Gibson appealed to the committee to spare his life so that he could see his mother and brother, who live in Memphis. The request was granted, and the negro's relatives were telegraphed for. They arrived here, and after the interview Gibson was executed.

WELCOME TO SVERDRUP.

The Fram Received at Christiania After Long Absence.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Sept. 29.—Escorted by warships and numerous pleasure steamers, Captain Sverdrup's arctic expedition on the Fram has entered Christiania harbor. The Fram was saluted by the fort and welcomed by thousands of spectators as she entered the harbor, where flags were flying from every mast.

Sir Clements Robert Markham, president of the Royal Geographical society of Great Britain, who is now here, regards Captain Sverdrup's expedition as the most important since the Franklin arctic expedition.

King Oscar, Emperor William and King Victor Emmanuel have telegraphed words of welcome to Captain Sverdrup.

The Fram returned to Stavanger, Norway, Sept. 19, after more than four years in the arctic regions.

Heavy Rains In Texas.

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 29.—There has been a terrific rainfall over the whole of the southern and a portion of eastern Texas, which has done great damage to the open cotton, washed away innumerable small and many big bridges, drowned cattle and caused other destruction. The small streams are reported out of their banks in every direction, and the railroads have suffered heavy damage to their tracks and bridges. The loss to cotton cannot be estimated because of the large area affected. Picking has made no progress for some days, but all that was not removed from the bolls was a total loss, being beaten into the ground.

French Mining Strike Unlikely.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—A correspondent of the Temps at Commentry says in a dispatch that the national committee to which the national congress of French miners referred the question of the date of the general strike is composed entirely of members opposed to a strike. The principle of a general strike for an eight hour day, including the time occupied in descending to and ascending from the mines and at meals, was adopted by the miners' congress last night.

Deputy Shoots a Striker.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 29.—James Sweeney, a deputy employed at the Bliss mine of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company at West Nanticoke, on his way home last evening met some strikers. An altercation ensued, when Sweeney pulled a revolver and fired at Joseph Gillis, a Slav. The bullet entered Gillis' back, and he was removed in a precarious condition to his home. Sweeney was locked up. He says the strikers threatened his life and he shot in self defense.

NEARS MILLION MARK

Uncle Sam's Pensioners Number 999,446.

COMMISSIONER WARE'S FIRST REPORT

Nearly Three Billions Have Been Paid For Pensions Since the Government's Foundation—Annual Deaths of Veterans 40,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The annual report of the commissioner of pensions, Eugene F. Ware, just made public, shows that the number of names on the pension rolls still is under the million mark despite a net gain of 2,732 pensioners since 1898. The total enrollment July 1 last was 999,446 against 997,735 last year. The total comprises 738,809 soldiers and 260,637 widows and dependents. The aggregate includes 4,635 pensioners outside the United States.

The number of death notices of old soldiers not now on the office received by the bureau during the year was 50,128, but only 40,000 of them were pensioners.

The report says that the death rate among the pensioners for the coming year will be about 40,000, and the losses to the rolls from other causes will be about 6,000. The total amount paid for pensions during the fiscal year was $137,504,268, and the yearly cost of operating and maintaining the bureau and the agencies outside of the payment of pensions proper aggregates $3,590,529. The pension system, says the report, since the beginning of the government has cost $2,902,509,019, exclusive of the establishment of the soldiers' homes. The pension disbursements by the United States from July 1, 1790, to June 30, 1865, were $90,615,444.

The following amounts have been paid to soldiers, their widows, minor children and dependent relatives on account of military and naval service during the wars in which the United States has been engaged:

Revolutionary war (estimated), $70,000,000; war of 1812, on account of service without regard to disability, $45,025,297; Indian wars, 1832-42, on account of service without regard to disability, $5,814,207; war with Mexico, on account of service without regard to disability, $31,861,338; war of the rebellion, $2,744,878,276; war with Spain, $3,275,184; actual total disbursements in pensions, $2,900,854,302.

The amounts paid as pensions on account of disabilities and deaths as results of military and naval service during the wars of 1812 and with Mexico and in time of peace to the beginning of the war with Spain are included in the payment on account of the war of the rebellion.

It is estimated that $16,000,000 was paid in pensions for disabilities and deaths due to military and naval service in the wars of 1812 and with Mexico and during the time of peace prior to the war of the rebellion, making the payments of pensions to soldiers and sailors of the war of the rebellion and of the regular military and navy establishments since the close of said war of the rebellion and their widows, children and dependent relatives amount to $2,728,878,276. This is outside of the cost of maintaining bureau, agencies and soldiers' homes.

The average value of each pension is now a little over $132.

Two Steamers Unfortunate.

ROCKLAND, Me., Sept. 29. — The steamer City of Bangor of the Eastern Steamship company's Bangor and Boston line went ashore on Monhegan in a dense fog, and she was backed off and beached at Spruce head, six miles to the eastward. The fifty passengers who were on board the City of Bangor at the time of the accident were transferred to the steamer Catherine and started for their destination. At Belfast the Catherine lost her propeller, and the passengers were obliged to remain in that city for the night.

New York to Chicago by Auto.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29. — William L. Dickinson and L. C. Boardman, officials of the New York and Chicago Road association, accompanied by Mrs. Boardman and George Soules, have arrived here in a steam propelled automobile in which they started from New York twenty days ago. The trip was made for the purpose of investigating the practicability of constructing a macadam highway between the two cities. Much encouragement was received from towns along the route favoring the proposed road.

Haitian Rebels Defeated.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 29.—The German gunboat Panther has arrived here from Haiti. She reports that the government troops under General Alexis Nord have defeated the rebels and are occupying the village of Limbe. General Jean Jumeau, General Firmin's right hand man, is reported to be dead. After taking on coal and provisions the Panther will go to Venezuela by way of Trinidad.

Defaulter's Body Found.

VIENNA, Sept. 29.—The body of Edmund Jellinek, the defaulting official of the cashier's department of the Vienna Laender (real estate mortgage) bank, has been found in the Danube at Altenwoerth, near Kreme. Jellinek disappeared from Vienna Sept. 18. His embezzlements from the Laender bank amounted to about $1,150,000.

THE EQUINOCTIAL STORM.

The equinoctial points or the two lines when the celestial equator and ecliptic intersect each other, and the equinoctial line or celestial equator when the days and nights are of equal length in all parts of the world have always been of special interest to astronomers and scientific men.

The equinoctial phase has come to have common parlance from the storm that is supposed to come about the time of the autumnal and vernal equinoxes, September 22 and March 21. Many old people would think the spring and fall robbed of one of its necessary auxiliaries if there were no equinoctial storm to anticipate and regard retrospectively. Even poetry that grasps all that is worth knowing in the range of human thought and experience descants of the equinocial storm.

For instance Longfellow says:

"When descends on the Atlantic
The gigantic
Storm wind of the equinox."

In spite of the prose and poetry and the faith of many generations, scientific men declare there is no such thing as an equinoctial storm and that it is a myth to be laid aside with many dear things old fogies have loved and honored. Of course there does not seem any reason why an imaginary line like the equinoctial should disturb the air currents as if it were a high board fence or even a clothes line to be run against. But this year the clouds have lowered so darkly at the predicted time and the rains have fallen so persistently in the good old fashioned way of a veritable equinoctial storm that it will be hard for scientists to shake the faith of the older generations in the storm described by Mrs. Partington as "The obnoxious storm when the equator crosses the Penobscot."

The editor of the Nortnh Plainfield Review is not neighborly. Incidentally he is somewhat careless in handling the truth. He published Saturday an editorial regarding the East Orange sewer beds, which were abandoned long ago, giving the impression that the method of disposal was the same as now in use in Plainfield and that the city disposal beds would have to follow the same fate. If he had cared to investigate at all, he would have found that it was a scheme of chemical precipitation, entirely different from the Plainfield system of septic tanks and bacterial contact beds, which was tried there without success and that East Orange has for some time been emptying its sewage into the Passaic river through Newark's system. It is not polite or neighborly to try to stir up the Plainfield tax payers by wild stories about the disposal works, particularly when they are based on misleading statements which do not happen to apply to the subject in question. It would be well for The Review to investigate a little before it makes such a ridiculous error as it did in its editorial column Saturday.

This year will conclude the present term of service of Councilman Ralph I. Tolles as a member of the Common Council. He will then have served the city as a member of the Common Council for six years. Mr. Tolles has certainly proved a valuable public official. He has given much time and effort in behalf of the city and his work has been of decided importance. He is now chairman of probably the most important committee in the Council and, as chairman, he has carried on a good work which was started by former chairmen. If Mr. Tolles cares to return to the Common Council, there seems to be no doubt that the Republicans of the First ward would gladly renominate him. Some of his friends say, however, that he feels that he has done his duty and that it is time for someone else to assume the burden.

The enormous consumption of oatmeal in this country is known to be due to advertising, declares the Philadelphia Record. In the past six years the use of that food has increased sixfold as the result of increased advertising. Mahin's Magazine says that cornstarch and many other articles would be subject to an equal demand had they been as well advertised. There are many proofs that publicity creates business and does not merely stimulate an existing demand.

Those who attended the Republican county convention at Elizabeth Wednesday afternoon must have thought they had landed in a Democratic convention by mistake. In this part of the land, Republican conventions usually have their work all cut out for them in advance, and it is done with a display of much harmony. Wednesday's convention was in striking contrast with those of the past.

The cadets of the Plainfield High School are planning something far more elaborate than they ever attempted before. A typical day in camp, with drills of all kinds, is no easy task to portray and the school boys will win no end of credit if they manage to give a successful entertainment along the lines they have laid down.

THEATRICAL.

Manager Wm. Schorb announces everything in readiness for the opening of the Central Theatre, this evening. For the initial performance he has a fine array of vaudeville artists. Among the performers will be Prince Albene and Mrs. LaBrant, master minds in second sight, in their great $1,000 challenge act; Meakin and McCarthy, blackface character singing and dancing artists, in their latest, "A Darktown Flirtation," which received curtain calls at Tony Pastor's all last week; King and Stange, the famous funmakers, in "Wanted, an Actress"; Danny Higgins, in his quaint monologues, and three other acts, including the popular illustrated songs with new slides.

Great Surprise Sale

Commencing Saturday, Sept. 27, for ten days only—no more, no less. Owing to recent strikes we have had in New York in the cloak trade we could not get all the goods in time for our fall opening. Hence our loss is your gain. The following items will give you an idea of the bargains awaiting your call:

Cruikshank and her daughter, Lella, of Plainfield, N. J., were in the cab on their way to the ferry. Both screamed for help. At Twenty-fourth street the horse dashed into a cab containing Charles and Miss Minnie Schapter, of 204 Park avenue."

WAS A BRAVE CHIEF.

Logan, Friend of the Whites and Protector of Indians.

Was Driven to Vengeance by the Cruelty of Bloodthirsty Soldiers Who Killed Every Member of His Family.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"IN speaking of animals of America, the theory of M. de Buffon, the Abbe Raynal and others, presented itself to consideration," wrote Thomas Jefferson. "They have supposed that there is something in the soil, climate and other circumstances in America, which occasions animal nature to degenerate, not excepting even man, native or adoptive, physical or moral. This theory, so unfounded, and degrading to one-third of the globe, was called to the bar of fact and reason."

That such a theory ever was advanced by civilized and educated persons was news to the writer, but it is contained in an old publication which was recently handed to the correspondent by a delver in literary lore, one who delights in studies of minute details of history. The pamphlet is worn and somewhat faded, manifesting antiquity, and it contains Jefferson's letter dated Philadelphia, December 31, 1797, with a great deal of interesting and valuable matter upon an historical topic.

In the years 1781 and 1782 Jefferson compiled the "Notes on Virginia, for the information of the secretary of the legation of France to this country. A few copies were published in Paris in the year 1874 and given to particular friends. In the letter quoted Jefferson says: "Combating in these Notes the contumulous theory of certain European writers, whose celebrity gave currency and weight to their opinions, that our country, from the combined effects of soil and climate, degenerated animal nature in the general, and particularly the moral faculties of man, I considered the speech of Logan as an apt proof of the contrary, and used it as such; and I copied, verbatim, the narrative I had taken down in 1774, and the speech as it had been given us in a better translation by Lord Dunmore."

It seems that the genuineness and authenticity of a since celebrated speech by Logan, the bereaved Indian, which Mr. Jefferson had published with the purpose thus disclosed, had been questioned. The speech has been published in school books for more than a century; and here is Jefferson's account of its origin: "As soon as I found that the story of Logan could be doubted, I determined to inquire into it as accurately as the testimony remaining, after a lapse of 20 odd years, would permit, and that the result should be made known either in the first new edition which should be printed of the 'Notes on Virginia,' or by publishing an appendix.

"I had only concurred with thousands and thousands of others in believing a transaction on authority which merited respect. The story of Logan is only repeated in the 'Notes on Virginia,' precisely as it had been current for more than a dozen years before they were published."

Here is the brief history of Logan. His name was Tah-gah-jute. He was the son of a Cayuga chief and assumed the name of Logan to do honor to his friend, the acting governor of

THOMAS JEFFERSON.

Pennsylvania. He lived in Pennsylvania and on the Virginia frontier from 1720 to 1770, when he removed to the shores of the Ohio with his family. He was a brave chief, of noble presence, always friendly to white people, and endeared himself to them by his many noble qualities and sturdy friendship. He was favored (?) with unlimited quantities of liquor, and became very intemperate, but was always as harmless and gentle a vagabond as Rip Van Winkle. In 1774 marauding bands of white men assassinated every member of Logan's family. This cruel and villainous deed aroused Logan to deeds of vengeance upon the entire white race. He stimulated the tribes to make war upon the whites by telling them his story of bereavement, and became the successful leader of a savage warfare lasting six years. There were terrible cruelties, in all of which Logan was preeminent. He is reputed to have taken upwards of 30 scalps with his own knife.

The Indians were finally defeated, but Logan disdained to sue for peace with the other chiefs. Instead of any act of submission he sent to Lord Dunmore, governor of Virginia, an address of marvelous eloquence and pathos, as follows: "I appeal to any white man to say if he ever entered Logan's cabin hungry, and he gave him not meat; if ever he came cold and naked, he clothed him not. During the course of the last long and bloody war Logan remained idle in his cabin, an advocate for peace. Such was my love for the whites that my countrymen pointed as they passed, and said: 'Logan is the friend of the white men.' I had even thought to have lived with you, but for the injuries of one man. Col. Cresap, the last spring, in cold blood and unprovoked, murdered all the relations of Logan, not even sparing my women and children. There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many. I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country I rejoice at the beams of peace. But do not harbor the thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? No one!"

JEFFERSON'S MAP.
(From an Old Print in Mr. Max Lansburgh's Collection.)

Mr. Jefferson says: "That anybody questioned this speech was never suspected by me till I saw the letter of Mr. Martin in a Baltimore paper. I remembered that Gen. Gibson was still living, and knew that he had been the translator of the speech. I wrote him immediately. He in answer declares to me that he was the very person sent by Lord Dunmore to the Indian town; that, after he had delivered his message there, Logan took him out to a neighboring wood; sat down with him, and rehearsing with tears the catastrophe of his family, gave him that speech for Lord Dunmore; that he carried it to Lord Dunmore, translated it for him, has turned to it in the encyclopaedia as taken from the Notes of Virginia, and finds that it was his translation I had used, with only two or three verbal variations of no importance. This establishes unquestionably that the speech of Logan is genuine, and that being established, it is Logan himself who is author of all important facts."

It seems that Mr. Jefferson was accused of publishing an unwarranted attack upon Col. Cresap, by publishing the speech of Logan. Concerning this Mr. Jefferson says that, if he can find that an error was made by Logan, he will disseminate that fact, but concludes: "If I find that Logan was right in his charge I will vindicate, as far as my suffrage may go, the truth of a chief whose talents and misfortunes have attached to him the respect and commiseration of the world."

Mr. Jefferson then publishes letters and affidavits tending to completely substantiate the genuineness of the Logan address. Hon. Judge Innes, of Frankfort, Ky., says: "I recollect to have seen Logan's speech in 1775. "He also saw the war club which announced the beginning of war. It was from Logan, and began: "Capt. Cresap: What did you kill my people on Yellow creek for?"

The affidavit of Gen. John Gibson, who received the Logan address and delivered it to Lord Dunmore, is sworn to April 4, 1800, at Pittsburg, Pa., before Jen Barker, a justice of the peace. Gen. Gibson avows that Capt. Cresap endeavored, with him, to prevail upon a marauding party of white men to desist from their purpose to attack Indians on Yellow creek. This exonerates Capt. Cresap from Logan's charge. He fixes the authorship of the Logan address in the following words:

"At the request of Lord Dunmore this deponent went in, and Logan, the Indian, came to where this deponent was sitting with Cornstalk and other chiefs of Shawnees, and asked him to walk out with him. That they went into a copse of wood and sat down, when Logan, after shedding abundance of tears, delivered him the speech nearly as related by Mr. Jefferson in his Notes on Virginia; that this deponent on his return to camp delivered the speech to Lord Dunmore."

An extract of a letter from Col. Eben Zane is printed. Col. Zane tells in detail of the disorders preceding the murders, and concludes: "I must do Capt. Cresap the justice to say that I do not believe that he was present at the killing of Indians at Yellow creek."

There are other letters and affidavits which all tend to incriminate Capt. Cresap, showing that he was in the vicinity of the murders, which were committed by men under his command. But the authenticity of Logan's address is established, and that was Mr. Jefferson's principal desire. Accompanying the aged pamphlet containing these interesting facts is a crude map indicating the locality of the atrocious crime which caused the deaths of so many innocent white people in a war which concluded with Logan's pathetically eloquent: "Who is there to mourn for Logan? No one!"

SNAKE IN THEIR BED.

Monster Reptile Was Enjoying a Quiet Snooze When the Two Wertman Girls Awoke.

Bertha and Lizzie Wertman, aged respectively nine and seven years, daughters of William F. Wertman, of Strausstown, Pa., had the oddest experience with a snake ever recorded in that county, and the story of their adventure is positively true and is vouched for by some of the best known residents of Strausstown.

While the parents of the girls were downstairs the other morning at seven o'clock they were attracted by the loud cries of their daughters. The father ran upstairs and found that they had just awakened. One told her father that a strange thing was in the bed, and she was so badly frightened that there were fears of her going into hysterics.

Upon investigation Wertman, together with William Rentchler, Herbert Shade and Dr. I. W. Schollenberger, found a huge blacksnake lying in the bed. It was only then that the real cause of the alarm of the children was known. The moment the reptile noticed that it was being disturbed it showed signs of fight, and it was some moments before the monster was dispatched.

Bertha, the eldest child, discovered the presence of the snake first. While in bed she came in contact with the cold body and it sent a shiver through her, although she did not know what it was. When she found out the cause she lost no time in calling her parents.

It is supposed that the snake worked its way up the grape vine and along the arbor which runs up to the edge of the house, and then entered the open window and crawled under the cove on the bed in which the girls slept and lay there undisturbed until morning. It measured five feet seven inches in length.

BABY POUNDED A PAN.

Noise So Produced Attracted a Blacksnake, and Little One Had Narrow Escape.

Mrs. Estella Penny, who lives a half a mile below Florence, Ky., while busy with her Saturday's baking, placed her baby in a high chair under a tree. She gave the little one a tin pan to pound upon, and it was having a fine time pounding and watching people going to the county fair.

Suddenly Mrs. Penny paused in her work and wondered why baby had quit pounding. She ran to the door and the sight that met her eyes nearly caused her to collapse.

There, coiled about the chair, with its fangs close to baby's face, was a huge blacksnake.

Mrs. Penny screamed, and as luck would have it Frank Loomis was passing. He heard her. She pointed to the baby. He took in the situation and soon had rescued the tot and killed the snake, which measured seven and one-half feet.

It is supposed that the snake was attracted by baby's "mudsie" and was in the act of charming the infant when the mother discovered it.

New Method of Steering.

An English engineer's plan for steering twin-screw steamers consists of a special throttle valve attached to each set of engines, the valves being connected to a tiller by bell cranks and link work. When the tiller is moved either way from its central position on throttle valve reduces the steam of its set of engines, diminishing the speed of its screw to a degree varying with that of the turning of the tiller.

The Joke Was on Dumas.

A youth to fortune and to fame unknown sent Dumas the manuscript of a new play, asking the great dramatist to become his collaborateur. Dumas was for a moment petrified, then he seized his pen and replied: "How dare you, sir, propose to yoke together a horse and an ass?" The author, by return of post, wrote: "How dare you, sir, call me a horse?" Dumas, by next mail: "Send me your play [illegible]

The Sympathetic Woman

THE college graduate lifted her eyes from the book she was reading. "If you had to take your choice, which would you rather be—a clever or a beautiful woman?" she asked.

The blase girl's answer was prompt and showed she was indeed a true woman. "Neither," she said. Then after a pause she added, "They don't teach those things at college, but they ought to—the thing which will avail you most in this world is to be a sympathetic woman."

The college girl looked disappointed. "Oh," she said, "I thought that role was the last resort of a plain girl."

"Doubtless the reason why so many plain girls make good matches instead of their prettier sisters, then," retorted the blase girl dryly. "But don't you believe anything of the sort. The precious gift of being sympathetic is worth more than pearls and diamonds. Of course it must be to a certain extent inborn, but it can be cultivated, and the woman who is clever does cultivate it. Do you really know what it means in this hard, selfish world to find one other soul who will take the time, not to speak of the trouble, to understand your heart, your mind, your temperament, your ambitions—all the things, in a word, which are vital to your happiness, but which are next to nothing to the others around you, because they do not go to make up their existence? You would appreciate this if you had ever known great sorrow and had gone about in your pain trying blindly to force sympathy where you received only words. Don't you see how precious sympathy is; how the average human being would at times give all he has to be sure of it?"

As she said this the blase girl's eyes became strangely softened, and for once her nickname seemed a misnomer.

"They say," remarked the other, watching her quietly, "that through sorrow all women become sympathetic. If so, sorrow is a gain."

"You know the quotation," retorted her friend:

"Oh, the heart that cries out in its longing,
And the heart that is rocked with its doubt,
Is the heart that soothes other hearts' longings
And brings hope to other hearts' doubts.

"For most there is only one knowledge,
The knowledge which comes through self pain,
But it opens our eyes to all sorrow
And our arms to all weeping in vain.
The heart of the world is the gainer;
The love of the world is our gain.

"And the love of the world is the gain. Look at the women who have been striking instances of this, at Mme. Recamier, who, when old, without any vestige of her former beauty and even half blind, still retained her large circle of friends. Why? Because she always preferred to win love to admiration, and by her rare and divine sympathy she brought out the best in all those who came about her. Look at Mme. de Maintenon, who by this same gift obtained an ascendency over the mind and heart of Louis XIV. which younger and more beautiful women tried in vain to destroy; Mme. du Deffand, who at eighty years of age was declared by Horace Walpole to be the most interesting woman in France; Elizabeth Barrett Browning, who, though a pale faced invalid, gained love such as few women have bestowed on them.

"But you don't have to go back so far. Look around you, and you will see the truth of what I have said. Watch the conduct of the woman who is a true social success in every sense of the word, who numbers her friends by the score. You will find that women can count on her in time of anxiety, that men come and tell her their troubles, that even the children are sure of a smile and a word of comfort. And they all love her and look up to her.

"The sympathetic woman is indeed an uncrowned queen."

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

"What's the matter with the Star Union?" he asked. "Been saying anything about you, or anyone connect——"

"No," said I. "I never get into the papers. There is no reason why I should, but I don't want to take newspaper reporters. I have an invalid aunt——"

"I should like to interview her ——" He took a pad from his pocket.

"We have a ghost in the house, and——"

"I'll write it up——" He drew a pencil from another pocket.

"I have a strange young woman, a trained nurse, in my lower front, and——"

"She might give me an article on the system of training nurses——"

"——And a news—but no! I won't take you."

"What were you going to say about a newspaper man?"

"I was going to say that a newspaper never knows enough to mind its own business, and I, for one, will have nothing to do with them."

"Then I'll go on to the Hall," said the stranger, turning towards the buggy.

"Charley Blount," I called, "if you let that man go to the Hall, you and I are friends no longer. You know what the ladies wish. Do it, and don't let strangers come meddling in Galtersville."

Charlie Blount looked uncertainly at me. Then he turned to the stranger.

"I don't know as I can take you," said he. "Ef the ladies don't want it, nuff said."

"Then I'll walk."

"Not ef Bill knows it," said Baldy Towner. "Here, Bill."

"Well, I'm blessed! Deprive a man of his liberty on the high-road in this free country? I'll see what the law says to that," and the stranger got slowly into the carriage to drive back to the village with Charlie Blount.

He had not more than taken his seat in the buggy before Miss Dacres dashed down the hill from the direction of the Hall, rode up to the side of the fence, jumped lightly off in that way that experts have, and leaned her wheel against the elm-tree. She stood looking inquiringly at the two men.

"What do they want?" she said.

"One's a newspaper man," I replied. "He wants to interview the ladies up at the Hall, but as far as I can, I shall prevent it."

"Perhaps I'll let you interview me some day," said Miss Dacres, smiling at the stranger.

"You're not what I'm after," said the man as they drove off.

"Well," said Miss Dacres, "I'm glad I'm not what he's after," and came in at the gate.

"Please do not walk on the grass," I called. "Just since you have been here it's getting dreadfully worn."

"Am I the only one?" asked Miss Dacres.

"Yes," said I, "you are, or no——" and then I recalled the fact that Mr. Beldon always walked on the grass also. "I must speak to him about it," said I.

"To whom?" asked Miss Dacres.

"Have you a room for rent?"

The question was getting monotonous. I turned quickly at these words. This latest applicant for a room at my house seemed to have risen out of the ground. He began to cough as soon as he had spoken, and coughed violently for a minute or

"HAVE YOU A ROOM FOR RENT?"

so. He was a weak old man, a clergyman, apparently. When he had finished his paroxysm he came nearer. "I have had a bad attack of grippe," said he. "I am from the west. I was traveling to Washington to see about a pension to which I am entitled, for, you must know, I served in the late war."

"Come right in," said I, "and rest yourself."

He came slowly into the yard and walked haltingly up the gravel path. That pleased me, his not walking on the grass, and I made up my mind that if he was willing to take the little room over Mr. Beldon's and back of Aunt Jane Mary's, I would take him in. At this rate it would not be long before I should be able to repay Miss Dacres what I owed her and send her off. But stay! Did I wish to send her off? Her blue eyes—her light curly hair—her name—Amaranth—

We walked to the steps together, the old gentleman and I. I really wanted to assist him, but was afraid of hurting his feelings, so I went slowly up to the piazza and sat down. He had halted half way to cough again, and as he seized upon the rail I thought that he would strangle.

Finally he recovered, wiped his eyes, and came to where I sat. I arose hastily and drew a chair forward, into which he sank with a grateful nod. He wore a frock coat of shabby black and a turned-down white collar, what we used to call a Byron collar. He had bushy eyebrows, and thin side whiskers, and long, thin, iron-gray hair.

"How queer for you to find this quiet little place," said I.

"I came to see your college. You have a very fine one," he replied. "The president is an old friend of mine. In fact, we were college chums, and shouldered muskets in the old Ninety-second New York side by side. I have been at his house today, and when he saw how worn out I was with this cough, he advised me to rest awhile before going to Washington. He recommended me to you." He then fumbled in his pocket and brought out a letter, which he handed me. I knew the writing well. I opened it. It ran:

"Dear Mrs. Brathwaite: You will do all good people a favor if you will take in my old friend, Dr. Wynne, for a little stay. He ought not to travel at present, and I think your neighborhood is exactly the one for him just now. I shall come out to see him soon; meantime do what you can for him, and thus place me only deeper in your debt as a friend, and

"Believe me, yours faithfully.

"As ever,

"Marmaduke Smith."

Now Marmaduke Smith and I had studied our geography in the same class at the village school, Marmaduke at the head, Charlie Blount at the foot, and I half way between, and there had been a time—well, I won't go into that, but I felt if Marmaduke wanted anything, and I could procure it for him, I was bound to do so.

"Do you think you can go upstairs?" I asked. "My other rooms are all taken."

"Front or back?" said he in his quavering voice.

"Well, I'm sorry to say that my aunt has the upper front, and I have the room across the hall from hers. There is only a small room left, back of my aunt's."

"Have you other boarders in the house?"

"Yes, a lady and a gentleman. They are strangers to each other. The lady is in the front, and the gentleman at the back. I could give you a small room over his—the gentleman's, I mean."

"That will do capitally," said Dr. Wynne.

"Or I could change into the little back room myself," said I, "and give you mine; it wouldn't be much trouble. The front is pleasanter, and ——"

"Not for the world," cried out the old gentleman, "not for the——" and then he began to cough again until the tears rained down his cheeks. "I will take the back room with the greatest pleasure," said he when he could speak. "When can I come?"

"At once," said I. "Have you a trunk?"

"Oh, yes, we arranged that. If I did not return by four o'clock, Dr. Smith was to send it out. You know he boards in the village, but he thought the dust of Main street would irritate my lungs. It seems all very sweet and peaceful out here."

I settled Dr. Wynne in the little room over Mr. Beldon's, and came down to find my lower-back in the hall.

"You've taken a new boarder," said he, "after all your promises."

seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lamb, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.

FOOTBALL AND BOWLING ARE THE ABSORBING TOPICS OF THE SPORTS

THE FOOTBALL SEASON

MOLESKINS and shin guards, nose guards, and headgear and all of the paraphernalia of the gridiron are in evidence at the big universities, at the high schools and academies and in the smaller schools. Football has taken the center of the field again for an uninterrupted course that will come to an end Thanksgiving day. The sound of the toe of the athlete coming in contact with the pigskin oval is making more music in the soul of the big aspirant for gridiron honors than whole orchestras could make in the hot weather.

East and west there will be a great season for football this year. Every fall the coaches and critics predict a greater season than the preceding one, and some critics smile. But the fact remains that intercollegiate football is annually taking a stronger hold on the people. Staid "prexy" spectators of the practice make mental vows that the sport shall be eliminated from their colleges, but later on they become convinced that participation in football is like meat and air to some strong growing young men, and a college that puts the gridiron sport on the blacklist soon loses prestige—finds a falling off in the number of matriculates.

There will be some minor changes in the way football is played this fall on the 'varsity gridirons, but it is safe to say that not one in ten spectators will notice that the game is affected in any way. Intricate, difficult, heart and brain testing and a sport only for well-trained and finely conditioned athletes, football is likely to remain the same in its important features for many years. The tendency of the rules committee is rather to get out of making changes than to burden the book of rules with involved sections. It takes a studious referee and umpire to keep track of the fine points involved in the rules.

"Yale" Butterworth, the famous back of former years, is one of the first of the deep students of the game to severely criticize the suggestion of the committee that this fall the goals be changed after each touchdown. Like many others who have gained distinction in the 'varsity game, Butterworth is for a paring down of rules rather than for the addition of "side issues."

Each year a determined effort is made to abolish the one point scored by kicking goal after a touchdown. Many games have been won by colleges possessing the inferior teams, by the margin of one point because the individual of the losing team counted upon for the kick across the bar has failed to score the point needed to tie or win. That the friends of the abolition of this feature of scoring are increasing right along seems to be the case judging from interviews had with various prominent college men.

One noticeable thing about the football outlook in the reports from Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Michigan, Chicago, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Northwestern, etc., even at this early time of the season, is that every school has a big list of candidates, a fairly generous nucleus of old timers and a determination to do as well if not better than last year. Practice has begun in earnest, but it will be some time before the make-up of the regular 'varsity elevens will assume denite form.

THE BOWLING SEASON

WANTED, a good strong pin boy, inquire within." That is the certain harbinger of the bowling season. In the cities and towns where bowling is going to be as popular a sport this fall and winter as it was last, this sign has made its appearance. Pin boys are a necessary adjunct of the game, and they are going to be scarce this season. A scarcity of maple wood properly seasoned for making pins was a great drawback to the game last winter. Happily the dealers in bowling supplies have eliminated that inconvenience, and have in their kilns great quantities of material for new pins. But the pin boys are not anxious to work in the alleys. In vain have the old experts like Dr. Tilam, Sam Karpf, "Tug" Wilson, Harry Kiene, Gus Burkhardt and A. C. Anson worked on the problem of an automatic pin setter. To do away with surly, indifferent and often fatigued alley employes and get a machine that will set up the pins by pressing a button after a strike or a spare or a break seems to be the desire of the experts, but so far the problem has balked every one of them. The chances are that as long as ten pins is played the human pin setter will have to do the business.

It would not surprise those who are devotees of the game if the pin setters in the principal cities of the country formed a union for their protection and the increase of their wages. Strange as it may seem their duties are more arduous than those of a great many laborers. Statistics said to have been collected by an enthusiastic doctor show that the vocation is more dangerous to human life than railroading or mining. The younger the pin boy who sets the pins for the experts who make the strikes, the less injury the work brings to his system. It is when the pin setter is a middle-aged man or a youth out of his teens that the work tells most.

When a big match is on and the balls are flying down the alleys with great speed and the bowlers are excitedly coaching one another the bowling alley often seems "smoky" down at the end where the boys set the pins. The fact is the air is surcharged with dust, no matter how carefully the proprietor of the alley may plan to ventilate it.

Each time the pin boy stoops to set the pins he breathes faster than he would under normal conditions and his lungs are filled with this dust. Besides the effort of getting up and down on the seat provided for the boys, so that the lignum vitae balls will not strike them, has a direct effect upon the muscles of the small of the back and superinduces early disorders of the kidneys.

FOR three successive years I have watched the golf matches that gave Miss Bessie Anthony, of Evanston, Ill., the title of western champion among women. No one ever saw a masculine champion in any line of sports accept honors as gracefully as did this young woman. Beyond a few exhibitions of naturally girlish pleasure over the adulation of hosts of friends, Miss Anthony never has displayed anything that could be termed self-consciousness. She is the most "unartful" champion the country possesses. Quite a feat to three times lead all your rivals, yet Miss Anthony does not "eat, talk and sleep" golf, as do some of the men experts. She never discusses the game at home unless her father, an old Yale athlete and golf enthusiast, persuades her to talk about it. As a matter of fact, Miss Anthony is the eldest of a family of three girls, all golfers, but spends her leisure time in making clothes. She fairly drives me to distraction by her silence on the game," remarked her father one day. "I suppose only the winning of the national trophy will cause Bessie to take golf seriously and talk about her scores, as do some of the other players," said Mrs. Anthony.

Strange as it may seem—and it tells a character story better than words—a few minutes after Miss Anthony and Mrs. W. A. Alexander had concluded their brilliant and close struggle for championship honors—a struggle that was kept up for 2½ hours and with every nerve highly strung until the last putt was made on the last green—I found the victor and vanquished chatting in the most friendly and gracious manner about clothes. The setting of the latest styles of skirt and the wearing of chiffon on hats, with a variety of other subjects dear to the feminine heart, were subjects of consuming interest with them. Each had told the reporters at the conclusion of the match what good natures the other had and how hard it was to beat her rival because of the overthrowing of ambitions, yet Parisian modes and styles soon drove thoughts of the championship from their minds. How unlike the men who play for championships! Do they discuss the latest modes in hosiery or vests soon after their battles? It is contrary to the temperament of the masculine golfer to be so naturally indifferent. He may invite his conqueror to take a drink and whistle to keep up his broken spirits, but fall styles—no!, they be "jiggered!"

HAVE BEGUN ADVANCE ON THE COUNTY SEAT

Salt Marsh Mosquitoes Have Appeared According to the State Entomologist.

THE EXTERMINATION.

HE HAS SHOWN ELIZABETH HOW TO RID ITSELF OF THE PEST.

His Suggestions Will be Followed Next Year—Dr. Robinson, of the Elizabeth Health Board, Discusses the Subject.

Prof. John B. Smith, the State entomologist, in a letter to Dr. Robinson, of the Elizabeth Board of Health, says:

"Mr. Brehme has been working down to the south of Elizabeth and toward the mouth of the Elizabeth river. He thinks he has discovered the locality whence Elizabeth gets its salt marsh mosquitoes. I am inclined to agree with him. At all events it is worth while saying that he finds sollicitans just coming out in enormous swarms from the pools that are drying up. He says there are millions of them, and that the first south wind will cover Elizabeth. Watch for the specimens and see how nearly he hits it. This is about two days (Sept. 20) after Mr. Brehme's original investigation. It is not impossible that at this writing you may have the specimens. At all events I think that to have Mr. Brehme in the field two weeks longer will prove an extremely good investment."

In reference to this letter Dr. Robinson is quoted by the Elizabeth Journal as saying: "Prof. Smith's prediction is evidently becoming too true, as the sollicitans are upon us in great swarms. It is of great value to know where they come from for future work, but as we are doing nothing this year to exterminate the salt marsh species we cannot at present check their march upon us.

"If Prof. Smith can show as simple a means for draining this section of the meadows as he has already shown on his map of the meadows east of our city, we may rejoice in the fact that the future treatment of our mosquito problem is not only solved in method, but so clearly worked out on the practical side as to make the cost within reasonable expectation. To those who are impatient of immediate results, let it be said that a complex problem such as we have before us must be worked out in detail before the work of extermination is begun.

"Prof. Smith's work upon the meadows in our vicinity is purely a study of conditions for the purpose of suggesting plans for the work of extermination. The State's work is simply investigation, experimentation and recommendation; and in my judgment Prof. Smith has already produced most valuable information for treating the meadows lying between Elizabeth and Newark.

"The work of the brigade for the past month has been largely confined to a treatment of the street sewer basins with oil. They were found to be the source of large quantities of the culex pungens, or "house mosquito." There is no water too filthy for this mosquito to breed in, therefore the cesspool now, rather than the rain barrel, is the place to be cared for on all private property. We have had nine different species of mosquitoes in Elizabeth during the season, each varying somewhat in its sources for breeding, but it may now be said that only two of these, sollicitans and pungens, are the real source of annoyance. The former infest the grass, shrubbery and trees, the latter watch for a chance to enter the house and if plentiful may be a cause for profane nightmare.

"In closing its work the brigade expects to issue a report of the work done while studying the pools, ponds and sewers, and this, coupled with Prof. Smith's study of the meadows will leave the mosquito problem, so far as Elizabeth is concerned in reasonable shape for future execution."

WOODHULL & MARTIN'S NEW BUSINESS HOME SOON TO BE ERECTED ON EAST FRONT STREET

Within the next eight months the handsome new building to be erected by Woodhull & Martin, Plainfield's progressive and hustling dry goods merchants, should be completed. The structure, which is to be a credit not only to the firm, but the city as well, is to be located on East Front street, just above the Powlison & Jones store. The excavation for the cellar is now well under way and within a short time the work of laying the foundations will be started. This building has been designed by A. L. C. Marsh, the architect, and he has executed plans that have been pronounced ideal in arrangement and general equipment.

Woodhull & Martin's New Building.

The building will be of the modern French style of architecture, the materials to be used for the front will be Buff Indiana lime stone and grey brick. The first floor will have nine show windows of good size. The entrance to the store will be directly in the centre. This will be vestibuled with double doors and tiled floor. The first floor will be 200x108, or about 20,000 square feet, as against 8,000 where the firm is now located. It will allow the placing of the firm's entire stock of goods on one floor, something much desired and very advantageous.

This first floor will be devoted to the sales and show rooms for dry goods, carpets, furniture and china. The basement will be used for heavy furniture and crockery show rooms, for the receiving and shipment of goods, also work rooms.

In the second story a space 108x40 has been designed for the use of mercantile departments which will probably be added after possession is taken. Broad stairs lead from the first story to the basement and second story. The front part of the second story will be devoted to offices, of which there will be suites consisting of two and three offices each. The third story will be divided into lodge rooms and store rooms. There is no doubt but what the building when completed will be one of the best equipped store structures in the State.

It is the desire of the owners to have their building erected entirely by local contractors and contracts for the mason and iron work have been awarded to Seaman Williams and W. T. Kirk Company respectively. The contracts for the other work will be awarded very soon. In the general design of the building efforts have been made to have it so arranged that there will be an abundance of light and the heating apparatus will be modern and up-to-date in every respect. The building will also be a cool one in the summer.

The entrance to the offices and lodge rooms in the upper part of the building will be on the east corner next to the property occupied by Dr. Probasco and it will be very easy of access. The lodge rooms will be commodious and thoroughly equipped for every convenience. The location of this building on East Front street will have a tendency to extend the business section and distribute it in an advantageous manner, at the same time it will be one of the best improvements made in the business section in a number of years. Woodhull & Martin believe that the people of Plainfield and vicinity will continue in the future as they have in the past to support a thoroughly up-to-date metropolitan store and they propose to give them the advantage of such a business house.

MILLINERY OPENING.

Event of the Season at Bonn's is Attracting Much Attention to That Merchant's Store.

The fall and winter opening of millinery at Bonn's on West Front street, today, is one of the events of the season attracting considerable attention. Mr. Bonn's display is this year larger and finer than ever and it represents the height of fashion in head-gear. The entire store is now devoted to millinery and a more attractive line it would be difficult to find.

There are two hats, especially attractive. One a large picture hat of white panne velvet, with black silk applique roses on the crown and brim. There is an ermine edge and black velvet facing on the brim. The hat is finished with large plumes with steel buckle as a band of trimming, and with maline and velvet streamers draped over the back.

The other hat is a mirrored velvet, of the new shade of orange and lemon combined with rich lace edge and shirred chiffon facing. Surmounting the hat are natural birds of paradise, while an important feature is the drapery of chiffon coronation tassels. Mr. Bonn also has a very large assortment of children's hats, one very attractive being a delicate pink of French felt with clusters of black ribbon velvet strips caught with tiny steel buckles.

Verdict for Plaintiffs.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 30—The case of Boice, Runyon & Company against Brooks Carson was concluded yesterday before Justice Garretson, when a verdict of $274.20 was given for the plaintiff. Counsellor G. W. V. Moy represented the plaintiff.

PLENTY OF COAL.

Borough School Authorities Believe That They Can Tide Over Cold Weather in Public Schools.

The first Board meeting of the year of the North Plainfield High School was held, last night. According to the report submitted by Principal Wightman the school never before opened under such favorable conditions. The attendance at the school is large but there is no overcrowding, and the corps of teachers this year is more efficient even than in previous years.

A good deal of time was given by the board to discussing the truancy question. It was decided to appoint Richard McDonald, the school janitor, and a special marshal in the borough, as truant officer. McDonald is eminently fitted for the position as he knows practically every child in the town.

From all indications the school will not be obliged to close up this winter on account of the cold. There are thirty tons of coal on hand and if this will not be sufficient to last until the strike is over the board has made arrangements for securing more. About 180 tons of fuel are necessary to tide over the winter.

Injured by Carriage Overturning.

George VanBoskerck, and his son, Thomas VanBoskerck, of West Seventh street, were painfully injured last evening by being thrown from their carriage which overturned near the Plainfield depot. Their injuries are not serious, however.

—Just a word about peaches—but a few more are left to be shipped to market. Neuman Brothers are receiving their last lots, so buy now.

DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST E. S. HOOLEY DEFEATED

Case Went to Jury in Court at New Brunswick, and Verdict Given for Mr. Hooley.

LASTED SEVERAL DAYS

FINAL STEP IN TROUBLE BETWEEN GEORGE BECKER AND E. S. HOOLEY.

Becker Wanted $5,000 Damages for Assault and Battery and False Imprisonment—Craig A. Marsh Represented Mr. Hooley.

Edwin S. Hooley yesterday won a complete victory in the long drawn out suit brought against him by George Becker for $5,000 damages. The case was called before Supreme Court Judge Fort at New Brunswick, September 16 and the parties and their numerous witnesses have been in almost daily attendance since then. The actual trial was begun and ended yesterday.

Mr. Becker testified that Mr. Hooley and his coachman and groom had forcibly seized him and tried to imprisoned him in a barn and then sent for a policeman, dragged him forcibly to Mayor Smalley's and there had him again arrested and dragged through the streets to the station house where he was detained against his will; next that Mr. Hooley had maliciously sworn out a warrant against Becker before a Dunellen justice, on which Becker was again arrested and dragged before that justice and compelled to give bail, next that Hooley had induced Joseph Burke to have Becker again falsely imprisoned and maliciously prosecuted; that the Grand Jury had heard Hooley and his witnesses and refused to indict. Mr. Hooley and his witnesses denied having touched Becker or caused his arrest in North Plainfield.

The arrest in Middlesex county was admitted and justified on the ground that Becker had run after the carriage of Hooley's children, seized the pony and threatened the children, while he was carrying and brandishing a loaded shot gun, until men came to their aid and took the gun away and removed the cartridges. The witnesses for Becker were Marshal Campbell, Justice Warden and the clerk of the Grand Jury. Hooley's witnesses were Mayor Smalley, James Middledith, James Frazier and Henry Noble.

Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Mr. Hooley, obtained a ruling of the court that the evidence would not warrant the case going to the jury as any of the charges except the alleged assault and battery and false imprisonment in North Plainfield. On the latter charges, Wm. Newcorn, of Plainfield, counsel for the plaintiff and Mr. Marsh for the defendant argued the case before the jury and Judge Fort delivered a charge so satisfactory to both sides that not a single exception was taken by either.

The jury promptly vindicated Mr. Hooley by returning a verdict in his favor.

ITALY'S MARINE BAND.

Will Inaugurate Season's Performances at Casino, October 7.

Giannini's Royal Marine Band of Italy and Grand Opera Company will inaugurate the season's performances at the Casino, Tuesday, October 7. The music lovers of Plainfield will be treated to a novel entertainment in every respect. This great band of talented musicians will play selections and solos from grand opera, and for encores will play the popular airs of the day.

Signor Ettore Martini, the well-known Italian composer and leader, has been especially engaged by Signor Giannini to conduct. Martini is second only to Mascagni, and in fact has more than once been chosen by this great composer to produce and lead his operas.

The second part of the programme will consist of an act in costume of one of the great grand operas. Signor Ferrucio Giannini, the founder and proprietor of the organization, has an excellent voice, and will sustain the tenor roles. The other vocal artists will be found most capable.

The band has been making great success wherever it has appeared and a fine entertainment is assured. Reserved seat tickets will be ready at Armstrong's, Thursday.

Grocery Closed.

The grocery store of VanNest & Edsall, at Washington and East Front streets, closed its doors this morning. It is said that the cause is other than financial troubles.

BALL PLAYERS AT BANQUET

Dinner Given by Y. M. C. A. to Members of Teams of City Amateur Baseball League.

IT CLOSED THE SEASON.

Only the Best of Feeling Prevailed Among the Players and the Invited Guests Who Gathered There—The Dinner Was Followed by Speeches and Pleasant Sayings.

Discarding for the nonce all thoughts of the rivalry that has resulted in clean, healthy and interesting sport being furnished the people during the past summer, the officers and members of the teams, comprising the Plainfield Amateur Baseball League, sat down together, last evening, and banquetted in the small hall of the Y. M. C. A. as the guests of the association.

With them were many of the city's most prominent residents, men who appreciate sport for sport's sake and by their aid have helped to place the national game on the footing in enjoys locally. It was one of the most representative gatherings that has ever assembled in the city and no function ever passed over in a more successful or enjoyable manner.

The idea of the committee on physical work in giving a banquet to the baseball players was to erase all from their minds all thoughts of personal feeling and have victors and vanquished unite simply as good fellows. The young men who through the summer have fought each other on the diamond had naught but good words for their bitterest foes and forget all little differences while disposing of the course dinner.

This had been prepared by the women friends of the association and a better menu was never provided at a select hostelry. Seats were taken at the tables at 7:15 and it was well after 8 o'clock before the inner man had been successfully catered to. It was then that order was called and the opening address was given by the president of the League, William N. Runyon, in the course of which he presented to the Y. M. C. A. the pennant which its team had striven for and secured by superiority. The beautiful silken banner was drawn along one side of the room and was displayed that all might see the little that represented so much.

Retaining his seat as toast master, President Runyon called on various members of the party for addresses. Contrary to custom the representatives of the teams did not speak for their own players but for some one of the other nines. Thus: John Valiant, of the Y. M. C. A. committee on physical work, spoke for all the teams in general and responded to the toast master's remarks; H. D. Hibbard, of the Hibbard-Rodman Ely Safe Company which fosters the Safe Works team, spoke for Hope chapel, Thomas Comerford, secretary of the St. Mary Athletic and Literary Association, toasted the Y. M. C. A. team and H. Otis Newman, of the association, responded for the St. Mary team.

An address, which was not expected and which was fully enjoyed as anything during the evening, was the one given by Charles H. Denman, manager of the Westfield baseball team. In well chosen words that showed the high regard he holds for Plainfield's baseball players, he reviewed the part Westfield has taken to promoting the national sport, its defeat of Saturday and ended by encouraging the Consolidated team and warning it not to underestimate its strength as it did before the two games took place. His remarks were timely and were received with vociferous applause.

It was expected the averages of the players would be announced but through an oversight the guests departed before they could be read. A feature of the entertaining part of the evening was the introduction of William Lyle, of this city, in darky costume, between courses, when he evoked much laughter with his songs, banjo playing and jokes. Another feature was the unique decorations about the hall which in addition to silken banners, consisted of baseball paraphernalia displayed in convenient places.

The entire affair was arranged and directly in charge of the committee on physical work which consists of John

DR. PROBASCO RESIGNS FROM HOSPITAL STAFF

His Resignation Was Accepted by Board of Governors With Regret.

HE HAS WORKED HARD

WAS ONE OF THE ORIGINAL MEMBERS OF THE MEDICAL STAFF.

His Son is Now Pathologist and Bacteriologist of Hospital—The Great Importance of That Department, But Little Known.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital received last evening the resignation of Dr. J. B. Probasco as a member of the medical staff, and with great regret the resignation was accepted.

Dr. Probasco was one of the original members of the medial staff at its organization on January 22, 1881, and for nearly twenty-two years has faithfully carried his share of the burden of caring for the ever-increasing number of sick and wounded patients who have entered the doors of the hospital. The increase of the work there and of his regular practice has become such a severe tax on his time and strength that he has, very reluctantly, he says, decided to request from the Board of Governors to grant that release from further obligations to which his long and arduous service entitles him.

The medical staff still has the name of the retiring member on its roll, for Dr. Norman H. Probasco, his son, is the pathologist and bacteriologist of the hospital, in which position he succeeded Dr. B. vanD. Hedges a few months ago.

This department of pathology and bacteriology, by the way, though probably people generally have taken little notice of it, is of no little importance to the city of Plainfield. To the pathologist the general practitioner sends specimens, taken from patients, of blood, of tissue or of secretions, and receives a prompt and authoritative decision as to the nature of the disease from which the patient is suffering which could be reached in no other way with certainty until in some cases too late to treat the disease with success or to prevent the spread of some contagion.

The examination of water to determine its fitness for use, and of suspected food supplies of any kind also comes into the work of the labratory of the pathologist and bacteriologist. In the new hospital provision is to be made for an improved labratory for the equipment of which the Board of Governors are hoping that money from some source will be forthcoming.

Not many towns like Plainfield enjoy the advantages of a labratory and the services of an accomplished pathologist and bacteriologist; and up to a very recent time answers to such questions as are solved by him could only be obtained in this city by sending the specimens to Princeton or to New York, with much additional delay and trouble.

Delegate and Committeeman.

In the Fanwood borough the Democratic primaries, last night, went off smoothly. They were held in the residence of W. R. Stanbury and there was a good attendance. Ernest C. Keif was chairman of the meeting and W. R. Stanbury was elected member of the county executive committee and also delegate to the county convention.

Brought Back to Plainfield.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and family returned from Watch Hill, R. I., yesterday. As a whole Mrs. Lewis has passed the summer very favorably. The return was made on the Colonial Express from Westerley to Metuchen, where the ambulance was in waiting to convey Mrs. Lewis to her home on West Seventh street.

Boehm's Annex Opened.

The new annex to I. H. Boehm's store, opening on Park avenue, was thrown open to the public, this morning. It is replete with a fine stock of cloaks, millinery, women's underwear and waists. Mr. Boehm personally supervised the opening and is ready at all times to show visitors through the building.

Taking the Time.

John Hogan, who was arrested by Chief Campbell, of the borough police Saturday night, was arraigned before Judge Dond last night on a drunk and disorderly charge and fined $15. Being unable to pay, Chief Campbell took him to Somerville this morning where he will be allowed twenty days in which to sober up.

THE DEMOCRATS CHOSE DELEGATES IN UNION

Democratic Primaries Held in the Four Wards of City Last Evening.

WERE NO CONTESTS.

NAMED DELEGATES TO THE COUNTY CONVENTION.

Also Members of the County Committee—The Primaries Were Very Quiet Ones, Although Some Interest Was Shown.

Regular Democratic primaries were held last night in the four wards of the city. As a rule they were well attended, and the proceedings passed off quietly. In none of the wards was there any particular contest. Delegates to the county convention to be held in Elizabeth, Thursday, were elected as were the district members of the county committee.

The Democrats of the First ward held their primary at headquarters in East Second street. There was a good attendance and much enthusiasm shown. There was no contest.

Andrew J. Nolan called the meeting and was subsequently chosen chairman, while Former Councilman V. L. Frazee was chosen secretary. Michael DeCourcy was made judge and W. T. Banks inspector. Those elected delegates to the county convention were as follows:

Andrew J. Nolan, W. T. Banks, Vincent L. Frazee, Clarence E. Teel, Walter Hetfield, Jr. For membership of the county committee Andrew J. Nolan was chosen from the first district and W. T. Banks from the second district.

There was no other business to be transacted the primary adjourned at an early hour.

There was a good attendance at the Second ward primary held in the Bryant School building on East Sixth street. The meeting was called to order shortly after 8 o'clock by James E. Martine who was appointed chairman with Frank Shattle as secretary and Hezekiah Hand as judge. The election of delegates was almost unanimous as was the selection of members of the county committee.

These men were elected as delegates with full power to fill all vacancies: Jeremiah Dilts, Alfred E. Stover, Frank Shattle and James B. Guttridge, while the balloting for members of the county committee resulted in the choosing of James B. Guttridge and Frank Shattle.

The Democratic primary for the Third ward was held in the Plainfield High School on West Fifth street. James Hibbitts was chairman; Frank McInerney, secretary, and A. H. Atterbury, judge. F. M. Bacon, John M. Hillman and Harry W. Marshall were chosen delegates to the county convention, and for members of the county commitee James Hibbitts was chosen from the First district and John M. Hillman from the Second district.

In the Fourth ward the primaries were held in the T. A. B. Hall, on West Fourth street and about fifty voters turned out. In every respect the meeting was a harmonious one. It was presided over by Michael Flynn while Louis M. Stover acted as secretary and James J. Kane as clerk.

Delegates were as follows: Michael Flynn, John F. Casey, E. D. Moffett, George Firstbrook, L. M. Stover, I. G. Hurlburt, Patrick Muldoon, Bernard Brady and James J. Kane.

For members of the county committee these received the majority of the ballots: First district, John F. Casey; second district, James J. Kane; third district, Ira G. Hurlburt.

IMBIBED TOO MUCH.

So Two Individuals Faced the City Judge for Drunkenness.

Two cases of drunkenness occupied the attention of City Judge Runyon, at this morning's session of the city court. George Rockfellow, Jr., who was picked up on East Front street, last night, by Roundsman Flynn was fined $5 or twenty days. Winfield Smalley, a hay carter from Dunellen, was taken off his wagon on East Front street, last night, by Patrolman Meyers, as he was unable to care for himself. Sentence in his case was suspended.

Setttled Before Trial.

Five local milkmen, against whom charges had been preferred by the Board of Health for selling an adulterated milk, settled the cases against them by paying the fine, $50, without allowing the matter to come to trial.

$125,000 FOR HIGH SCHOOL

City Board of Education Made Formal Request for Funds for the New Building.

AT A SPECIAL MEETING.

Request Will be Considered by the Board of School Estimate and Will Probably be Considered at Council Meeting Next Monday Night—It Will Cost $125,000.

A new High School for Plainfield is in prospect in the near future. At a special meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education last night, formal request was preferred to the Board of School Estimate for power to raise $125,000 to purchase a site and erect a new High School. As soon as the Board of School Estimate has favorably passed on the request, it will come before the Common Council for the final word of approval. While the last two named bodies have not yet considered the request, it is quite certain that the plan will go through and that the much talked of High School will soon be a reality.

It will be remembered that the subject of the new High School was brought up two years ago when a request for permission to issue bonds for $100,000 was granted at a Council meeting. The proceedings were conducted under the new school law and the announcement that it was unconstitutional suddenly tied up the project.

This summer, Mayor Jenkins, who has been a strong supporter of the new High School plan, expressed himself as of the opinion that this was the proper time. So the Board of Education has had the matter quietly under consideration for some time but nothing definite was done until last evening.

A special meeting of the board was called for last evening. After a meeting of the committee of the whole the open session was held. There were present President Probasco, Secretary Lovell, Mr. Abbott, Dr. Richards, Superintendent Maxson and Clerk Clark.

Mr. Lovell read a resolution which complied with the terms of the new law and asked permission of the Board of School Estimate to raise $13,000 to purchase land for a site, and $112,000 for the erection of the new High School building, making a total of $125,000 in all.

Mr. Lovell explained that while two years ago only $100,000 had been asked for, the increase had been made necessary by the advance in the cost of building. The building contemplated was no better than the one in mind two years ago but the architects had notified the board that it would be necessary to increase the estimates on the building thirty per cent. in order to keep pace with the advance in the cost of erection. After Mr. Abbott had seconded the resolution, it was unanimously passed without discussion.

It is expected that a meeting of the Board of School Estimate will be held some evening this week. It is composed of Mayor O. L. Jenkins, Councilman George P. Mellick, Councilman Jan vanHerwerden, School Trustee C. F. Abbott and School Trustee L. N. Lovell. The next Common Council meeting will be held Monday night of next week and it is expected that the subject will be ready to be brought before the Common Council at that time.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield Citizens.

The people of Asbury Park have at last united to make a strong effort to secure control of the beach front, and they do not seem to care whether or not Mayor Bradley is compensated for the property. The question has arisen as to the correctness of the claim made by the "Free Press" that he owns the beach front, a claim which for so many years has not been attacked. It is declared by some of the people who have made a study of the matter that the land in question belongs to the city, and that Mayor Bradley has no legal right to it. If this be so, it is no more than right that the city should claim all that is its own. Eminent legal counsel is to be retained to report on the exact conditions, and if the findings are in favor of the city the courts will be appealed to in an effort to oust Mr. Bradley from the beach front.

There is no doubt but that Asbury Park should own and control this property, which is its chief attraction. Mr. Bradley has been most wise in the way in which he has governed the beach front, and the taxpayers of the municipality have much for which to thank him. But the time has come for a change. If it is shown that the title to the property is legally vested in Mr. Bradley, there should be no delay in taking advantage of the act passed at the late session of the Legislature to acquire the beach front by purchase or condemnation. The respect and honor which the people of Asbury Park have for the man who did so much for the upbuilding of the resort which he founded should not deter them from securing their rights. —Newark News.

The results of the experiments by State Entomologist Smith to find an effective means of exterminating the mosquito pest in New Jersey will, if successful, be of immense value to the national government in the building of the isthmian canal.

Thousands of lives were sacrificed to disease alone by the French company in the construction of the Panama canal, and engineers and other skilled employes were swept off, with hordes of laborers. This mortality seriously retarded the work and made it more expensive. The principal diseases are typhoid, malarial fever, yellow fever, dysentery and chronic diarrhoea. All of these are communicable either by a tainted water supply or by mosquito inoculation.

The Isthmus of Panama is infested with mosquitoes, and the malaria, always prevalent there, is attributed to the bites of these insects. As has been proven in Cuba, they are also the medium for the spread of yellow fever. If the isthmian mosquito can be conquered and the water supply kept pure the Isthmus of Panama will be as healthful as New York City.

A necessary part of the outfit for building the canal will, therefore, be a well-equipped sanitary corps. The water supply problem can readily be dealt with, and, if results in New Jersey disclose a sure method of mosquito extermination, the work of the sanitary corps will be simple of accomplishment. With the traditional terrors of the isthmian climate routed, there will be an immense saving in labor and time, and the nation will not be distressed by the dreadful spectacle of disease and death presented by the work of the French Canal Company.—Newark Advertiser.

Great Surprise Sale

Commencing Saturday, Sept. 27, for ten days only—no more, no less. Owing to recent strikes we have had in New York in the cloak trade we could not get all the goods in time for our fall opening. Now that the strike is over, we commenced to get in goods that ought to have been delivered by the manufacturers two months ago, as well as goods contracted for the present delivery, and therefore we find ourselves with a good deal larger stock than we anticipated to have at this time of the year, and as the trade of Plainfield is limited we had to take heroic measures in order to dispose of it in time as named above. Hence our loss is your gain. The following items will give you an idea of the bargains awaiting your call:

C. B. L. STATE COUNCIL.

Plans for the Annual Convention to be Held in Elks' Hall, Jersey City, October 14.

Under date of September 2, the officers of the State council of New Jersey, Catholic Benevolent Legion, have issued a circular calling the twentieth annual convention of the council. The meeting will be held October 14, in Elks' Hall, at York and Henderson streets, Jersey City. The morning session will be preceded by a solemn high mass at 9:30 o'clock.

According to the circular, those entitled to official recognition are the present officers of the State council, State chancellors and the legally elected representatives, who must have been chancellors or presidents at the time of their election as representatives. Credentials must be delivered to the State secretary on the morning of the session, or before, if possible.

THEATRICAL.

Music lovers will have a rare treat provided for them at Keih's Union Square Theatre, New York, next week in the Fadettes woman's orchestra, a Boston organization that is second to no orchestra in the country today. The musical critics of Boston, who have the reputation of being the most severe in America, have been unanimous in their praise of the Fadettes. The appreciation of the public in general is best shown by the fact that the engagement of the orchestra was, contrary to the usual policy of the house, prolonged for week after week until they were compelled to leave that they might fill engagements previously made.

Another big feature of this bill will be Eva Williams and Jac Tucker, who present their little playlet "Driftwood" an idyll of the East side. There are no actors in America more artistic in the delineation of East Side types than are these two, and their performances are always enjoyable in the extreme.

The remainder of the bill is the make-up of a typical Keith show, clean, bright comedy, balanced with some first-class singing and a sprinkling of what are called "sight" acts, and a turn or two of dancing, each act being always the best of its kind, and the show always sparkling entertainment, free from all suspicion of vulgarity, and from anything which could give offense to the most refined woman. Noon to 11 p. m., 50 cents.

A ninety minute journey lands you in Lakewood where your most particular whims are catered to and the conveniences afforded are palatial in every respect. seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lamb, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.

THE BASEBALL GAME.

Who can say that the Plainfield boys cannot play ball now? Just think of that showing made in the two games which have been played with Westfield's crack team. One game won and one game lost, both by the same score, 1 to 0. Never has such a series been played.

But the greatest thing of it all is the fact that the Plainfield team is composed entirely of Plainfield boys. They have all been playing in the local league and were banded together for this series, the initial steps in the arrangement of which were taken by The Daily Press. Westfield has never pretended that its team was composed of Westfield boys. They are professionals hired for the occasion. But despite the fact that the Westfield management searched for the best team it could hire and defeated nearly every team, all but two in fact, that it met before the present series, nine young fellows from Plainfield went over to Westfield and won a game.

The deciding match in the series is to be played Saturday afternoon. There was a slight hitch over where the game was to be played but it seems probable that Westfield will obtain the coveted honor. Wherever the game is played, it is going to attract no end of interest. There is a sure prospect of good ball, no matter which side wins and the Plainfielders are just confident that they will be able to win out when the time comes.

The Daily Press is justly proud that it was the means whereby this series of games was arranged. When the league officials refused to take the matter up, The Daily Press accepted the challenge of the Westfield club on its own responsibility and it is now shown that its confidence was not misplaced. It didn t look as if the Plainfielders would win but they are playing good ball and played good enough to beat Westfield's best team of many years.

While there are a few of the local coal dealers who still have some coal in their bins, it has all been ordered and the end seems in view. The only trouble is that there is no apparent end of the strike. It is all right to joke about the coal famine when the days are warm and balmy but now that cold weather is close at hand the shortage in the coal supply promises to be a serious thing for all concerned.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

Bound Brook, Sept. 30—A fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, broke out at 2 o'clock, this morning in the storage warehouse of J. D. Spicer at South Bound Brook, entailing a loss of $3,000. The building material owned by R. A. Ross Company was a loss to the amount of $800, and the loss on household goods stored by two families was $600. EMILE ZOLA IS DEAD

Well Known French Novelist Asphyxiated.

HIS WIFE HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Gas From a Stove Which Was Out of Order the Cause—Rumors of Suicide Are Not Borne Out by Facts.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Emile Zola, the well known novelist of the realistic school who gained prominence in recent years because of his defense of the Jews and of former Captain Dreyfus, has been found dead in his Paris house from asphyxiation.

M. Zola and his wife retired at 10 o'clock at night. Mme. Zola was gravely ill when the room was broken into in the morning. At about noon she was removed to a private hospital, where she recovered consciousness for a short time and was able briefly to explain to a magistrate what had happened. M. and Mme. Zola had just returned to their Paris home from their country house at Medan. Owing to a sudden spell of cold weather the heating stove in their bedroom was ordered to be lighted. The stove burned badly, and M. Zola was asphyxiated by fumes from the fire. The pipes of the stove are said to have been out of order. To the magistrate Mme. Zola explained that she woke early with a splitting headache. She wakened her husband and asked him to open a window. She saw him rise and attempt to move toward a window, but he staggered and fell to the floor unconscious. Mme. Zola fainted at the same moment and was therefore unable to give the alarm.

The death of M. Zola has caused a great sensation in Paris, and there has been a constant stream of callers at the Zola residence. It is believed that Mme. Zola will survive.

It was reported here that there were evidences of suicide in the death of M. Zola. Nothing has so far developed to substantiate this theory, and the statement made by Mme. Zola to the magistrate seems to disprove it.

M. Zola had been resting from literary work since he finished his book called "The Truth," which is being published in serial form in the Aurore.

The obituary notices pay tribute to M. Zola's high literary talent. The Temps says French letters have suffered a loss which will be keenly felt.

The newspapers judge M. Zola's role in the Dreyfus affair according to political bias.

M. Zola was born in Paris April 2, 1840.

An Outbreak In Macedonia.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 30.—The organ of the Macedonian revolutionary committee announces the outbreak of an insurrection in Macedonia under the leadership of Jankoff, a former Bulgarian colonel, who has at his disposal over 3,000 combatants, who have been divided into several bands. A provisional government has been formed, which is directing the operations of the insurgents in the districts of Kastoria, Vodena, Guevgueli and Neglena. Railroad and telegraphic communication has been interrupted in several places. The journal calls upon the Macedonian emigrants to hasten to the assistance of their brethren.

Gifts For Cuban Patriots.

HAVANA, Sept. 30.—At a meeting of the secretaries President Palma said he proposed to ask the senate to solemnize the 10th of October, the anniversary of the beginning of the war of 1868, by distributing $15,000 to poor Cuban soldiers and widows of soldiers. He proposes that $300 each be given to the widows of Jose Marti, Antonio Maceo, Guillermo Moncada and Flor Crombet and to the son of Francisco Borrero. The remainder, or $13,500, is to be divided among the soldiers who fought in the revolution of 1868.

Aged Druggist's Mad Act.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 30.—A special from La Center, Wash., says R. S. Davis, a druggist, eighty-five years of age, set fire to the drugstore of Mrs. White and then set fire to his own store, which was destroyed. He was burned to death. Davis is supposed to have been temporarily insane. He imagined Mrs. White was unfair in trade and that her efforts were directed toward injury of his business.

Not Long Separated.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 30.—The Rev. Mr. Pitman, a retired Episcopal minister, is dead here, three weeks after the death of his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Pitman were married fifty-four years, and grief over the wife's death broke the health of the husband. Mr. Pitman stood high in ecclesiastical circles and had many charges in the large cities throughout the state, preaching for fifty years.

Burned Fireman Dead.

STOCKTON, Cal., Sept. 30.—Tom Walsh, the fireman who was burned in the fire that destroyed the Stockton pavilion, together with five other blocks of buildings, is dead. The other injured are doing well and will recover. The aggregate loss is roughly estimated at $300,000.

General von Gossler Dead.

DANTSIC, Prussia, Sept. 30.—General von Gossler, formerly Prussian minister of war, is dead here. General von Gossler was born in 1841. He was appointed minister of war Aug. 14, 1886, and resigned the office Aug. 22 of this year.

Two Killed In Freight Wreck.

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 30.—Two men have been killed and another seriously injured in a freight wreck on the Norfolk and Western railway at Alleghany Tank, thirty miles west of Roanoke.

Mrs. R. Wortman, living with her daughter, Mrs. S. E. Cook, of 204 Somerset street, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pains across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit ten minutes in one position, but had to be continually changing about. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kindey trouble but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store and it is the only remedy I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them."

NOVELTIES IN WAISTS.

An Advance Peep Into the Fashions of the Coming Autumn.

Novelties in waists are now to be seen by the initiated, though they are not yet on public exhibition. We have had all kinds, from the simple French to the elaborate and expensive ones where there seemed to be no beginning or end to cloth or trimming. We have had—still have—shirt and separate waists without end; tight ones made with the utmost severity, and we have seen many postilion basques, short ones in empire style and in the Rejane fashion, and for the coming season we have all these and many new ones evolved from taking different characteristics from the old ones and bringing them together and perhaps finding some new way of putting trimming on them. We have the Gibson waist in all its variations, made indiscriminately of silk, wash and woolen fabrics. One odd novelty has the back rather short and laid in four narrow folds directly in the center, while the fronts have a regular shirt waist finish, with several narrow, short tucks at the neck and the fullness drawn down in blouse form. A flat collar of white linen, made with a point in the back, and a long white tie go with this waist. There is also a white belt. The material is of fine dark blue French flannel. The sleeves are bishop shape, with very narrow cuffs.

DAINTY WAISTS.

Other waists have shield shaped fronts, buttoning over to the left side at the shoulder. Still others are in the ever loved surplice shape. In these the back has a few folds at the center, with all the rest plain. The fronts are gathered at the shoulders and the ends are made long enough to tie around the waist in a small bow in the back. These are made of everything from flannel to silk, with a few wash goods thrown in. High collars may be set in under the V shaped front, or if a dressy effect is desired the front may be left open and a little lace be put along the edges as a finish.

For evening wear there are many styles, but probably the best is the bloused front and French back cut rounded at the neck, so that it does not fall too low off the shoulders or appear too low in front. A bertha of quite deep lace finishes the neck. Elbow sleeves are for dinners and short puffed ones for full dress. These shaped waists are varied almost infinitely by ornamentation in which lace of different kinds is utilized. One style has the shoulders cut down and held up by black velvet straps. Others have the whole shoulder part left to hang loose and bare. A strap of twisted lace or of the dress material holds the waist up. The slope of the shoulder is a line of beauty, and it is not in the nature of things to hide it.

Sleeves are mostly bishop, even for fine semidress occasions. They are long or elbow, as best suits the wearer. Where the sleeves are for fine gowns they usually have a fall of lace at the wrist or elbow. Bell sleeves for coats are certainly seen on more than half of the coats, redingotes and wraps.

I see many black lace dresses, some of them plain, some beaded and some with the largest flowers outlined in floss silk in delicate colors or in chenille. In such a case the dress is trimmed at the neck, on the sleeves and often around the bottom with chiffon shirrings of the same tint. Pink and black, light blue with black, green and also red and yellow, are seen. I think the all black over a black taffeta glace is the most elegant.

There are some lovely tea gowns on exhibition so far; mostly in light brocade silks and eolliennes. These are lined with some contrasting color, which show delicately through the material, and the dress itself is barred back and forth with insertions of black or white lace and sometimes the two mingled. The neck is finished with a wide bertha collar, richly trimmed with narrow ruffles of lace. The bottom of the skirt has its usual quota of ruffles. Some of the sleeves are wide and flowing at the bottom, and others have them brought to a band with a deep fall of lace.

Much fancy hand stitching is done to ornament almost every kind of garment—feather, herringbone and so many varieties of this particular kind of garniture that no garment need have anything better to be fashionable. It is principally done on woolens, but many elegant silk waists and skirts have it too. Some make whole waists with ribbon fastened together by this stitching, which is now called fagoting.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

He is not a newspaper man. I promised not to take newspaper men. You really must know that I cannot be bound to take no one while you are here. In that case, you had better engage the entire house."

He muttered something which sounded like "that would have been better," and then spoke aloud. "How is it possible for me, a poor reporter, to take a whole house like this? Of course I can't. What is this new man like?"

"He is an old clergyman," said I. "He is highly recommended by my old friend, President Marmaduke Smith, of the Galtersville College. He is from way out west somewhere, I don't know where. But how did you know that I had taken anyone?"

"How do I know? I'm sure I can't tell you. It's in the air, I suppose, as you said this morning. You are sure he is just a clergyman?"

"One look at the poor old man is enough," said I. "Why, what did you think he was?"

"Well, I—I—thought it might be old Haight himself perhaps, come out here to track out the mystery up at the Hall. But, of course, he would make no secret of who he is, and he wouldn't tell a lie not to get the whole scoop. What peculiar superstition does your friend affect?"

"If you mean what church he belongs to," I said stiffly, for I did not at all like the lightness of his tone in speaking of religious matters, "I think he is a Baptist. He said something about bathing, called it immersion, this morning. Poor old gentleman! I'm afraid he's not long for this life."

"Well," said my lower-back, shrugging his shoulders. "I suppose I'll have to put up with him, but I want to say just this, if he makes a noise overhead, or roams round at night like your aunt, you can count me out."

"I'm very sorry," said I, "but my poor aunt cannot walk one step. How you do harry me. You are so fanciful. I really have no one to help me, and nowhere to turn. I must make all the income I can at present, and I don't want you to ask me why."

"Very well, enough said," and Mr. Beldon went into his room and closed the door. This time he locked it, as I had advised, and I saw nothing more of him that day.

Meanwhile, whenever I could get an opportunity, I stole one of Miss Dacres' letters, and as I did so I replaced it with the one that I had just copied. I read them with deep interest, and spent a great deal of time over them in my own room, so much so that Aunt Jane Mary complained that she was left entirely to Glorianna.

One day when Miss Dacres had gone off on one of her lengthy rides, and I had been up to call on the ladies, I returned to find her door open and Glorianna standing within the opening. She was beckoning silently with a quick, sharp crobk of the finger.

"Glorianna," said I, "Miss Dacres allows no one in her room but me."

"That's why I come," said Glorianna. "You be'n fooled long enough."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

Glorianna closed the door gently and then crossed the floor. She flung a towel over the keyhole of the communicating door, and led the way to the door of the cellar. This I saw that she had already unbolted; she began to descend the stairs.

"Come back, Glorianna," said I, "come back!" in as loud a whisper as I dared give voice to. "You know I told her that no one should enter her room but myself, and going into the cellar was a very particular part of the promise. Come up, do you hear? Come up!"

"You wait," she replied. "Ye don't deserve no gardeen angel, but ye gut to hev one all the same. Whut d'ye think o' thet?" She reached out to a beam which supported the flooring and unhooked something from it. "There!" she exclaimed. "Wuz ye took in, or wuzn't ye?"

My eyes fell upon a coat, waistcoat and trousers; indeed, there were two pairs, one made as knee breeches, and the other pair the long coverings of a young man of fashion. "An' I'll bet ye'll find the counterpa'ts of 'em in them boory draw's," said Glorianna.

"Perhaps it's a bicycle suit," said I. "She may like to ride so in the evening. They tell me that in Paris the women look almost like men. I know she's lived abroad." I stopped short. This knowledge I had gained from the letters; I must not divulge it too soon.

"An' whut say to this?" and Glorianna began to remove from the coat-pockets some cigarette stumps, and those little books that I have seen young men take out and tear up to roll their tobacco in.

"Well, it's all the same thing. She acknowledged that she smoked. I spoke to her about it. Many women do it. It's considered a rather stylish accomplishment, I believe. She may smoke and wear boy's clothes to ride in, and still be a young woman. Don't you think so, Glory?"

"And whut do ye say to this?" asked Glorianna, ignoring my humble plea. She had pulled a letter from one of the pockets, and was holding it to the light.

"'Dear Jim,'" she began. "'Isn't it about time we got on to somethin'?'"

"Stop! Glorianna," said I, "this is really too much! She could have you arrested for that."

"Oh Lordy!" said Glorianna as she dropped the letter and skipped up the remaining steps.

"Now go right back," said I, "and place those things exactly as you found them. She told me about her brother Jim, and, about his being dead. These are evidently his clothes, and we have been laying bare her dearest secrets. Come! Hang them up quickly, and come out of the cellar."

"Yes'm," said Glorianna Towner, meekly.

"Now don't ever let me hear of your going into that cellar again through this room," said I, emboldened by the change of front.

"No'm," said Glorianna. "I won't, fer I'm a-goin' home this noon."

Thus was my soul torn with constant warnings from Glorianna, with constant anxieties about money matters, and, I must say, with constant suspicions about my lower-front. It was dreadfully wearing, and I was relieved in mind when Aunt Jane Mary began to thump. Glorianna did not go at noon, nor for many noons after that. I think now that she was quite conscious when she was well off, but at the time I feared her departure with every day that dawned, and I was in dreadful bondage to her, to Baldwin Towner through her, to my lower-front, and not the least to Aunt Jane Mary. My lower-back did not worry me at all, and my upper-back, Dr. Wynne, was a delight and a joy. His cough began to desert him now, and he grew steadily better. Marmaduke Smith came out to see him every day or two, and they often walked in the flower garden of an afternoon, or sat in the arbor conversing in low tones. He said it was about the college taking his volumes on "The Lost Tribes" as a text-book. I knew that President Smith would help him out if he could. He said that if that were settled he would go on to Washington at once, but that Marmaduke must apply to the trustees, and that couldn't be until the next Monday.

Sometimes they came in and sat on the piazza as the sun was setting, and their talk was always of books and the higher education, until I really got rather tired of having so much learning about me. Sometimes it happened that Miss Dacres would come home while they were sitting there. She never seemed to like it, and usually she rode on, and came back when President Smith had left and Dr. Wynne had gone upstairs. If they were still there when she came past the second time, she would go on again, or else stand her wheel against the tree, open the gate, and walk swiftly round the house. I told her once that it wouldn't do any harm to be introduced to two of the most learned men of modern times, but she always replied that she had come for rest, and not for education, and she meant to get it if possible. Why she should know these people just because I did she could not see. Americans, she said, were always crazy to introduce people who didn't want to know each other.

Reserve Against Government Deposits Abolished.

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY SHAW.

Action the Result of the Great Stringency In the Money Market—Call Money In Wall Street at 35 Per Cent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, now in this city, declines to discuss the financial situation further than to say that the treasury would co-operate as far as possible with the banks both east and west in their effort to supply the necessary credit to do the unprecedented amount of business that is taxing railroads and steamship lines as well as banks to the utmost. He said he had never seen any good reason why banks holding a government deposit secured by government bonds should be required to carry a reserve against it. First, it is a deposit not likely to be called in a time of stringency, and, second, if called, the collateral will always sell for cash and in excess of the deposit. He has had in mind ever since he took control of the treasury to relieve the banks of this burden.

The comptroller of the currency agrees with the secretary, and therefore it is announced that hereafter banks will not be required to carry a reserve against government deposits secured by government bonds. The treasury has on deposit with various banks scattered throughout the country from Maine to California and from Minnesota to New Orleans in round numbers $130,000,000, against which they have heretofore been compelled to hold more than $30,000,000 of gold or its equivalent. This decision will release that much reserve and $30,000,000 additional credit.

The secretary said he would continue to make deposit of internal revenue and miscellaneous receipts (all available for that purpose), practically $500,000 per day, as long as the situation required, and if banks were unable to obtain government bonds to secure the same he would accept the same general class of securities — municipal bonds, etc.—as are made available by the laws of the several states for savings banks. By this it is not intended to loan in excess of 65 per cent of the par value, and nothing will be accepted that has not been panic tried and proved salable for cash. He said he should of course determine each case by itself.

The secretary further said he would accept security of the class described above for a portion of the deposit held by each bank now holding a government deposit and release enough 2 per cent consols to cover any increased currency that the bank may desire to issue.

The secretary's additional relief therefore may be summed up as follows:

First.—The release of practically $30,000,000 reserve, which will permit the banks to increase their volume of business $130,000,000.

Second.—The substitution of other security for consuls now held by the government on condition that the same shall be used as a basis for increased circulation, which, if accepted by the banks, will immediately increase the volume $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 and will add thereto, if needed.

Third.—The continuation of deposits to the limit allowed by law, accepting, if necessary, security other than government bonds.

With call money up to 35 per cent and other adverse circumstances yesterday's stock market received a very severe shake up, net losses in many active issues ranging from 2 to 10 per cent. The greatest loss was sustained by Louisville and Nashville, which dropped 10⅝ points. Disappointment regarding the probable disposition of the road as much as anything else is supposed to have caused the break.

Other features that combined to unsettle the market were disquieting reports concerning the president's condition, the prolongation of the coal strike and the indubitable fact that London and the continent are unloading "Americans" in large blocks. Practically all the money loaned on call came from trust companies and out of town corporations and private individuals. The banks of the Clearing House association stood aloof and made virtually no loans for speculative purposes. Moreover, the so called substantial interests offered no support to the market, which, with few exceptions, including Atchison and St. Paul, closed at the lowest level.

Tungchou College Opened.

PEKING, Sept. 30.—The college at Tungchou, province of Chili, which was destroyed in 1900, and where 145 Christians were massacred, has been reopened. Forty-eight officials and 8,000 Chinese who were once Boxers and who now reside in the Tungchou district participated in the opening ceremonies. The college received many congratulatory gifts.

Protocol Terms Fulfilled.

PEKING, Sept. 30.—The restoration to the Chinese yesterday of the Peking-Shanhaikwan railroad, with consent of the allies, fulfills the terms of the protocol. The guards who are keeping open the line of communication from Peking to the sea will be retained indefinitely.

Sharkey Indicted.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Thomas J. Sharkey, who was arrested on the charge of causing the death of Nicholas Fish, the banker, in an altercation at Eighth avenue and Thirty-fourth street on Sept. 15, has been indicted on a charge of manslaughter in the first degree.

SECRET CONFERENCE

President Mitchell Meets the Leaders In Philadelphia.

A MYSTERIOUS PERSON PRESENT.

All Efforts to Ascertain Object of the Gathering Unavailing—Situation in Strike Region Unchanged.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—A mysterious conference took place in this city yesterday between President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America, Secretary Treasurer W. B. Wilson, District Presidents Nichols, Duffy and Fahey and an unknown person whose identity the other parties to the conference refused to divulge. At the office of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway company it was stated positively that no official of that company had been present at the meeting.

A member of Mr. Mitchell's party who declined to allow the use of his name made the following statement:

"Any one can readily understand that only a matter of the first importance in relation to the strike would bring President Mitchell, Secretary Wilson and District Presidents Nichols, Duffy and Fahey, who form the executive board of the United Mine Workers, to this city together. There must necessarily be continued conferences and negotiations with the coal operating interests before the strike can be settled."

Messrs. Mitchell and Wilson arrived here at 7:30 o'clock in the morning from Pittsburg, where they had held a conference last Friday. The three district presidents and John J. Keegan, business manager of the International Association of Mechanics, met the miners' chief at the railroad station.

After a hasty breakfast the party proceeded to the office of Mr. Keegan. After remaining there about thirty minutes President Mitchell went to the Hotel Walton and was shown to a private room. Later he summoned his associates, and the five miners' officials were there closeted with the mysterious personage for nearly three hours.

At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Mitchell and the three district presidents left over the Pennsylvania railroad for Wilkesbarre, and Secretary Wilson departed for Indianapolis.

Senator Quay was not in the city, and Senator Penrose denied having any communication, directly or indirectly, with Mr. Mitchell.

President Mitchell declined positively to make any statement concerning the object of his visit here.

Quiet at Scranton.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 30.—In remarkable contrast to last Monday and the Monday previous yesterday was wholly free from disturbances. Up to a late hour not a single act of violence worthy of note had been reported. Sheridan troop of Tyrone, with sixty men, arrived and is now encamped on the hillside above the Thirteenth regiment's location. When the Third battalion of the Eighth regiment comes to patrol the lower end of the valley, there will be twenty-two companies of infantry and one troop of cavalry in all, about 1,200 men, encamped in Lackawanna county. The United Mine Workers' leaders claim the nonunion men are deserting the companies and applying for admittance or readmission, as the case may be, to the union.

Coal Conference Called.

DETROIT, Sept. 30.—Steps have been taken by the special committee of the common council appointed for the purpose for the holding of a conference in this city Oct. 10 of citizens from all parts of the country to discuss ways and means of securing a supply of anthracite coal. Invitations were sent out by telegraph to the governors of all states in the east, middle west and northwest and the mayors of the principal cities in these states to send delegations to the conference, which it is hoped will have sufficient effect to bring about some settlement of the strike.

Troops Sent to Another County.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—The Fourth regiment has been added to the state force of troops on duty in the anthracite strike region. Sheriff Dietrick called upon General Gobin last night for troops to suppress the rioting in Northumberland county. The general called up Governor Stone by telephone and stated the situation, after which the governor ordered out the Fourth regiment. A portion of the regiment will be located at Shenandoah and the remainder at Mount Carmel. Two of the companies of this regiment have been in the field for two months.

Mine Train Robbed.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 30.—The miners' train on the Pennsylvania railroad, bound for the Richards colliery, near Mount Carmel, was stopped by a mob, who refused to allow the train to proceed. The train was so thoroughly stoned that only two window panes were left unbroken. Most of the men aboard got under the seats and escaped injury. The passengers on the train consisted of carpenters, repairmen and pumpmen for the Richards colliery. No attempt is being made to work this operation.

To Develop Peat Deposits.

PASSAIC, N. J., Sept. 30.—The American Peat company, with a capital of $50,000, is being formed in this city to develop and work large deposits of peat in Somerset county. The organizers are Ed Terhune and other heirs of the Terhune estate in that county. They reside in this city. They control 200 acres of peat in that section. A plant will be erected and business begun as soon as the company is incorporated.
